PREFACE.

THE BIBLE (or 'the Book') is the name usually given to an ancient collection of sixty-six smaller volumes, comprising narratives, poetry, moral axioms, and religious discourses, written in Hebrew, Chaldee, and Greek, by many different authors, who lived successively during a period of more than fifteen hundred years. Exceedingly valuable as containing the most ancient writings, the most remarkable and best accredited histories, the sublimest poetry, and the noblest personal, social, and political morality in the world, it has peculiar and extraordinary claims on account of its professed ORIGIN and OBJECT,—declaring itself to be a Divine revelation, in which God is made known to us, in order that he may be honoured in the restoration of our fallen race to purity and happiness.

Whilst no one can deny that it is possible for the Creator to give to his intelligent creatures direct revelations respecting himself and his will, his wisdom and benevolence render it highly probable that he should have made such communications, if they were necessary. And, when we consider the deep degradation of millions of heathen in every age and of every form of worship (compare Rom. i. 18—32 with ancient histories and modern missionary records)—the dismal uncertainty of the greatest pagan philosophers respecting the attributes and purposes of God, and the nature and destinies of the human race (compare Acts xvii. with Plato's Phædon and Cicero's Treatise De Naturâ Deorum)—and the entire failure of all modern theorists, though borrowing much from revelation, to construct any system affording adequate motives to self-improvement, or sufficient consolation under inevitable suffering—we must be convinced that it was essential to the well-being of man that God should so speak to him.

Now the Bible expressly and repeatedly claims to be the word of God—the only and complete written revelation of the Divine will. In proof that it is so, we observe,

1. Its numerous books, written in different ages and countries by men of different ranks and classes—shepherds, fishermen, priests, warriors, statesmen, kings—all have one great subject; and, amidst numerous diversities of form, style, and manner of thought, are pervaded by the same ideas, which are gradually developed, with no real contradictions, yet with such circumstantial variations as disprove the possibility of collusion; clearly showing that one mind, through more than fifteen hundred years, must have been engaged upon it.

2. The description which it gives of man's state, however opposed to his self-flattering views, exactly accords with what he sees passing around him and within him; so that the more closely any one scrutinizes the thoughts, desires, and motives of his own heart, the more will he be convinced that the Bible proceeds from One who knows all the hidden secrets of his heart, and gives a far more accurate account of his disposition and character than he himself could have done:—while the representation which it contains of the character of God, being altogether unlike and infinitely superior to any ideas of Him which fallen man ever formed, evidently could not have originated in his mind, but must have been communicated to him from a higher Being. In the life of the Redeemer especially, human excellences are delineated which no biographer had ever attributed to his hero; but which are not less striking for their naturalness and reality than for their perfect agreement with the dictates of enlightened conscience.

3. All that the Bible discloses respecting the moral government of God, and human responsibility, and the connection between our present conduct and our future destiny, is in perfect accordance with the constitution of nature and the order of providence—as manifested in the punishments and rewards which even now follow virtue and vice, in their effects upon men's physical and mental constitution and outward circumstances—in the pleasure bestowed or the pains inflicted by conscience—in the approbation or contempt of others, and in the retributions of domestic and of civil life:—all of which sufficiently prove that, even in the present degenerate and disordered world, the Divine administration is on the side of the righteous; and amply justify the conclusion that, as this book declares, virtue, militant here, will be triumphant hereafter; and that the first-fruits of God's moral government which are perceptible now are the sure signs of its future perfection in the world to come.

4. The plan of salvation which it reveals, through the mediation of the Son of God, is altogether beyond the limits of human invention or conjecture; while, at the same time, it affords a matchless display of holiness and love in indissoluble union, which fully accords with our most enlightened notions of the Divine attributes, and can easily be conceived to produce effects upon the welfare and happiness of the whole universe far beyond our present powers of knowledge or comprehension. And not less does the wonderful adaptation of this scheme of mercy to the condition of man prove that it proceeded from the Author of his nature; for it meets all the exigences of the case—awakening conscience and satisfying its demands—supplying motives to holiness of irresistible force—providing influences fully adequate to the moral renovation of every human being, whatever be his character, condition, or circumstances—and giving solid peace to the mind; as is remarkably illustrated by the fact that no instance is on record, or can be produced, of any sincere believer in the religion of the Bible who, in the prospect of dissolution, ever repented of his faith.

5. The moral teachings of the Bible, which fully accord with the fainter light of natural religion, bespeak its Divine origin. The religion which it reveals is spiritual and holy, requiring universal moral rectitude, and extending to the inward principles and motives of human conduct—not overlooking the outward forms, but valuing them only as they are expressions of the internal spirit; unlike all human religions, which have respect to the garb and manners of piety rather than to its heart and soul. Among numberless illustrations of the moral dignity of the Bible may be instanced its truthfulness and its goodness:—its truthfulness, as seen in the fearless exhibition of truths the most unwelcome to human selfishness, pride, and prejudices—its candid forewarnings of the trials and sufferings incident to true piety in the present world—and its faithful delineation of good men, whom it nowhere describes as perfect, although it presents them as sincere, holy, and devoted disciples of a perfect system of truth and duty;—and its goodness, as manifested in the spirit of love and kindness which breathes through every part of this book—its solicitude for the young—its sympathy for the poor, the oppressed, and the suffering—and its benevolent regard for classes of the human family whom every other system of religion overlooks and despises.

6. Another evidence of the truth of Scripture is found in its perfect agreement with personal experience. It declares, for example, that the fruit of righteousness is ‘quietness and assurance for ever’—that sincere believing prayer to God is ever answered, either in the bestowment of the blessing asked, or of some greater—that obedience to the Divine precepts is followed by inward joy, even though it may lead to outward suffering;—in a word, it describes the history and experience of all Christians, and, with no less accuracy, those of the ungodly; and the description, in each case, is found to be true. The Bible is thus incessantly proving itself to be the word of unerring and ever-living truth.

7. The effects of the Bible upon those who believe it are such as no other book was ever known to produce;—altering entirely the character and conduct, producing eminent virtue, supplying extraordinary consolation, and especially giving birth to expansive and self-denying benevolence. So that if a person ‘of entire impartiality, of sound mind and holy disposition, should be shown the two companies of those who have received and those who have rejected the Scriptures; and should compare the seriousness, learning, patient investigation of truth, solid judgment, holy lives, and composure in a dying hour, without unmanly terror or indecent levity, of the one company, with the character and conduct of the other, he would be induced to take up the Bible with profound veneration, and the strongest prepossession in its favour.’—Scott. It has also widely diffused a vastly beneficial influence wherever it has been known; improving the moral and social state of the world to such a degree as to make its own accounts of the depravity of former times, though corroborated by many ancient writers, and by the existing practices of the dark parts of the earth, appear almost incredible; while all other professed revelations have not only proved utterly worthless for the purpose of ameliorating the condition, or reforming the character of those who have most heartily received them, but have cherished and called into action the most depraved principles of the human heart.

To these might be added (beside the whole body of external evidences) many other marks of moral beauty and Divine wisdom in the word of God: its variety combined with its unity; its brevity, and yet its inexhaustible fulness; the consistency and harmony which exist between its several portions, as seen in the mutual relations of the Old and New Testaments—the mutual connections of the historical, poetical, and didactic books—the exact correspondence of the types under the law with the substance under the gospel, and of predictions in the prophets with their fulfilment in the person and work of the Saviour; and the complete subordination of all that is merely personal, national, or temporary, to the higher interests of universal and eternal truth and goodness.

It should also be remembered, that if this volume be not a revelation from heaven, there is no other document in the world which can substantiate its pretension to be such; so that we are left in darkness as to the origin or the destiny of the human race, the whole history of the world is unexplained, and man himself, with all his noble powers and endowments, will appear to have existed in vain.

Such are a few of the reasons which are sufficient to satisfy every honest inquirer that the Scriptures are not a merely human production, but ‘given by inspiration of God.’ But a practical belief of the gospel usually rests upon more simple grounds even than these. A man who has just views of the character of God, and of himself, will accept the Saviour here offered to him, just as a drowning man will lay hold of the arm that is stretched out to draw him to the shore; and, in proportion as the heart and conduct are influenced by these doctrines, will the understanding be opened to perceive their perfect fitness, unquestionable truth, and surpassing glory.

By the DIVINE INSPIRATION of the Scriptures, we mean ‘such a complete and immediate communication, by the Holy Spirit, to the minds of the sacred writers, of those things which could not have been otherwise known, and such an effectual superintendence as to those particulars concerning which they might otherwise obtain information, as sufficed absolutely to preserve them from every degree of error in all things which could, in the least degree, affect any of the doctrines or precepts contained in their writings. . . . They wrote, indeed, in such language as their different talents, educations, habits, and associations suggested or rendered natural to them; but the Holy Spirit so entirely superintended them, when writing, as to exclude every improper expression, and to guide them to all those which best suited their several subjects.’—Scott. See 1 Cor. ii. 13.

Although some apocryphal writings have raised questions respecting the CANON OF SCRIPTURE, it is not very difficult to ascertain what books are properly included in the volume of Revelation. As regards the Old Testament, we have the testimony of our Lord, in numerous instances, to the collection of sacred writings in use in his days among the Jews; and he expressly mentions the three parts of which it consisted, according to the division made at that time—the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms (Luke xxiv. 44—46). And from the New Testament writers, from Josephus and other contemporaries, we learn the names of the books of which that collection was composed. The Law included the five books of Moses. The Prophets consisted of two parts: the one, called ‘the former prophets,’ comprising the historical books, to the end of 2 Kings; the other, called ‘the latter prophets,’ containing all the prophetic books except Daniel. And the third division, which was called the Psalms, because those Divine poems stood first in it, and also named the ‘Writings,’ comprehended all the rest. It is probable that the collection was made by Ezra (see note at the end of Ezra); and that, after his time, his own book, with those of Nehemiah and Malachi, were added. Since then, the Jews have guarded with the utmost jealousy the ‘Oracles of God' committed to them; and we have the evidence of early translators, and of Josephus, a priest and leader of his nation, that precisely the same books as now bear the name of the Old Testament were regarded by them as alone possessing religious authority.

The names given to the Old Testament in the New are 'Scripture,' or 'the Scriptures,' or 'the Holy Scriptures' (2 Pet. i. 20; Matt. xxi. 42; Rom. i. 2); 'the Sacred Writings' (2 Tim. iii. 15); 'the Law;' or, 'the Law and the Prophets;' or, 'the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms' (John xii. 34; Luke xxiv. 44).

The genuineness of every book in the New Testament is established by a great variety of historical, critical, and internal proofs. Besides the evidence afforded by their contents, there is express and positive testimony, on the part of both friends and enemies, that these books were written by the apostles of Jesus Christ and their fellow-labourers. Indeed, there are no other ancient works the origin and age of which can be established by so many trustworthy witnesses living at or near the time when they were written. They were received with the greatest respect by the first churches, many of which had among themselves individuals competent, from their own personal knowledge and experience, to judge of the credibility of the facts related in them; copies of them were multiplied and dispersed, as the boundaries of the Christian church were extended; and in every age, from that time to the present, they have been publicly and solemnly read in the assemblies of Christians throughout the world. Wherever the Christian faith was received, these books were acknowledged as the word of God; were quoted and appealed to by persons of different sects and parties among Christians, as the standard of truth; and were explained and illustrated in numerous commentaries and expositions from the first centuries of the Christian era. And while there was this general concurrence of testimony respecting the books now received as canonical, there was no less agreement in excluding all other books professing to have similar authority.

At what period the writings of the New Testament were first collected together cannot be stated with certainty. As this collection took its rise from the communication of its apostolic writings by one church to another, the great distances which separated them, and other circumstances which rendered mutual intercourse difficult, would necessarily cause some churches to possess certain Scriptures earlier than others. Hence their collections of sacred writings must at first have been different, and must have remained so for a longer or shorter time, according to their different situations. But, notwithstanding the great difficulty of multiplying copies in an age when there was no quicker method of producing them than by writing every letter with the pen, it appears that the numerous Christian churches founded in the first century, as well as many private individuals, were possessed of the sacred writings. As early as the second century, a collection of the Christian Scriptures was in general use, consisting of two volumes, under the names of 'the Gospels' and 'the Apostles;' and subsequently, in about the third century, the complete volume received the title of the 'New Testament,' or rather 'New Covenant,' in contradistinction to the preceding books, which are called by St. Paul (2 Cor. iii. 14) the 'Old Covenant.' The name BIBLE ('Biblia,' i. e. books), as applied to the whole, is supposed to have been first used in this sense in about the fifth century.

The ORIGINAL LANGUAGES of the Bible are Hebrew, Chaldee, and Greek. The Old Testament was written in Hebrew, excepting a few portions which, from particular circumstances, were in the cognate Chaldee dialect. See Dan. ii. 4—vii. 28; Ezra iv. 8—vi. 18; vii. 12—26. The books of Moses exist in two forms. Beside the ordinary Hebrew text, there is also the Samaritan Pentateuch, which was in use among the mixed population who inhabited the kingdom of Israel after its conquest by the Assyrians, composed of the remnant of the poorer classes left in the country by Shalmaneser, and of the heathen colonists introduced by him (see 2 Kings xvii. 24—41); and who, in consequence of their political hostility to the Jews, acknowledged only the writings of Moses. The date at which this Hebræo-Samaritan text had its origin is uncertain; it being ascribed by some to a period shortly after the division of the two kingdoms, and by others to a date subsequent to the Assyrian captivity. This text, though inferior in value to the Hebrew, is useful as affording confirmation or correction of it from an independent authority.

All the authors of the New Testament appear to have written in the Greek language. That this was already familiar to them as a vehicle of their religious thoughts and feelings, is evident from their frequent use of the Greek translation called the Septuagint, in quoting the Old Testament, and from the remarkable accordance of their style with the style of that ancient version. This language was also peculiarly suitable for this important purpose, as being at that time almost universally known and used in the most civilized parts of the world.

In the PRESERVATION OF THE SACRED TEXT through many dark and troubled periods, the gracious hand of an ever-watchful Providence may be clearly seen. Among many remarkable circumstances which contributed greatly to this end, may be mentioned the speedy multiplication of copies, the early execution of accurate translations, and the introduction of very extensive quotations from the books of the New Testament in the writings of the early Fathers, which now, from their abundance and their agreement with each other, form one principal criterion for the settlement of the text. As, for many ages, until the invention of printing, the Scriptures were handed down in written copies, there exist, as might be expected, literal and verbal variations between the different ancient manuscripts. In later times, an incalculable amount of learning and industry has been applied to the investigation and settlement of the text; the various authorities have been completely sifted; and the most minute care and attention have been employed in collating all the existing manuscript copies and ancient versions;—and the result is, that the Sacred Books are cleared from every cloud of doubt respecting their authenticity. All the omissions in the ancient manuscripts put together would not countenance the rejection of one essential doctrine of the gospel relative to faith or morals; and all the additions countenanced by the whole mass of manuscripts which have been collated, do not introduce a single essential point which is not found in the most imperfect versions. Thus the greatest discrepancies that can be found leave untouched the ground of faith and the rule of life.

PREFACE.

TRANSLATIONS both of the Hebrew and of the Greek Scriptures were early made into various languages. The most important of these are, (1.) The Septuagint, which is the name given to a Greek version (already mentioned) of the whole of the Old Testament, made about 280 years before the Christian era, at Alexandria in Egypt, for the numerous Jews who used the Greek language. It was called the Septuagint (i. e. seventy) probably because the seventy or rather seventy-two elders of the Alexandrian sanhedrim are said to have examined and approved the work. This translation is, on the whole, rather free than literal; and having been executed by different persons, it is of various degrees of excellence: but as the most ancient version of the entire Old Testament, made by learned Jews at a period long anterior to the date of our oldest existing Hebrew manuscripts, it is of important service in the establishment of the text, as well as in the elucidation of the Scriptures. It is very frequently quoted in the New Testament. (2.) The Samaritan version of the five books of Moses, which closely follows the Samaritan text, previously referred to, though the translator appears to have availed himself of the labours of the Chaldee paraphrast, Onkelos. This version is supposed to have been made in the first or second century of the Christian era. (3.) The Ancient Syriac version both of the Old and New Testaments, called the Peshito (i. e. 'simple' or 'single'—meaning literal, or free from glosses), and which was made in the first century of the Christian era. This version is faithfully translated, in a pure, easy, and vigorous style, and has been found of important use in interpretation, especially in the New Testament. (4.) The Vulgate, which is the name applied to the Latin translation of the Bible used in the Western Church. Several Latin translations were made in the first ages of the Christian church; and by the revision of these, Jerome, towards the end of the fourth century, formed that which is now called the Vulgate, which subsequently came into general use in the Latin church, and is of considerable value in Biblical criticism. (5.) The Targums, or Chaldee versions and paraphrases of the Hebrew Scriptures, which appear to have been made when the Jews began to lose their acquaintance with Hebrew as a living or spoken language; having, during their long exile in Babylon, become familiar with the dialect which was there spoken, and which they brought with them upon their return to their own land. These are of different degrees of value. The two oldest and best are that of Onkelos on the Pentateuch, and that of Jonathan on Joshua, Judges, Samuel, Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve minor prophets. These were certainly made before A. D. 300, and probably about or shortly before the time of our Lord. Their chief use is in throwing light upon the meaning of words, and upon Jewish ceremonies, customs, and laws.

There are also ancient translations in the Gothic, Georgian, Armenian, Ethiopic, Slavonic, and other languages.

Our Anglo-Saxon ancestors had translations, more or less valuable, of different parts of the Bible, by Adhelm, Bede, king Alfred, and others. The Anglo-Norman period also furnished rhyming paraphrases of portions of the Scriptures. But to John Wycliffe belongs the honour of first making a version of the whole Bible into English, which he probably completed about A. D. 1380: and although its circulation was greatly restricted, both by the extreme costliness of copies before the invention of printing, and by the severe punishments, amounting even to death, to which any person having it in his possession was liable, it became an engine of wonderful power, and contributed greatly to prepare the way for the happy changes which afterwards took place. Wycliffe also wrote much in vindication of the right of the common people to have the Scriptures in their own tongue.

For the first printed copy of a portion of the Scriptures in English we are indebted to William Tyndale. Unable to accomplish his great enterprise at home, he went to the continent, first to Cologne, then to Worms, and afterwards to Antwerp; and there made his version of the New Testament, not, as former English translators had done, from the Latin Vulgate, but from the original Greek. It was printed in Holland to the extent of thirteen editions in the course of about ten years; the greater portion of which were imported secretly into this country, where they were soon circulated far and wide, and produced great and lasting results; so that, in the convocation of 1536, Edward Fox of Hereford declared, that 'the lay people do now know the Holy Scripture better than many of us.' Tyndale also translated from the Hebrew the Pentateuch and the book of Jonah, which were in a similar manner brought over and largely circulated here; the latter book having prefixed to it a long, bold, and seasonable warning to all England; and he had made very considerable progress in the translation of the rest of the Old Testament, when he was seized by the Romish emissaries at Antwerp, and put to death at Vilvorde, near Brussels, in the year 1536. But, happily, his manuscripts were saved, and came into the possession of his intimate friend and fellow-labourer, John Rogers (afterwards the first sufferer at Smithfield in Mary's reign), who proceeded with the work; and in the year 1537 the whole Bible, with prologues and annotations, was printed, having the letters W. T., in large flourished text capitals, placed at the end of the Old Testament, to mark the very large share which Tyndale's labours had contributed to that portion of the volume; and with 'an exhortation to the study of the Bible,' signed J. R.; thus pointing out Rogers as the editor. For the purpose of concealment, the fictitious name of 'Thomas Matthew' was put upon it; and hence it became known as Matthew's Bible. It was printed somewhere on the continent, but where cannot be ascertained with certainty, and thence imported into England.

In the mean time, Coverdale's Bible had been printed at Zurich, in 1535, which professed in the title-page to have been faithfully translated 'out of the Douteche (German) and Latyn:' but it was soon superseded by Tyndale's superior version, which became the basis of all subsequent editions of the English Bible.

After these there appeared (1) the Great Bible, which was a revision of Tyndale's version. This was commenced by Coverdale at Paris in 1538; but the printing being interrupted there by an order of the Inquisition, the sheets, types, presses, and workmen were brought to London, where the work was finished, and published in 1539 by royal license: and, through Cranmer's influence, an order was made that the clergy should provide 'one book of the whole Bible of the largest volume in English to be set up in the churches.' 'It is wonderful,' says Strype, 'to see with what joy the book was received, not only among the learned sort, and those that were noted for lovers of the Reformation, but generally all England over; and with what greediness God's word was read, and what resort to places where the reading of it was. Everybody that could, bought the book, or busily read it; or got others to read it to them if they could not themselves; and divers more elderly people learned to read on purpose; and even little boys flocked among the rest to hear portions of the Holy Scriptures read.' (2.) Taverner's Bible, in 1539, which was also a revision of Tyndale's, by Richard Taverner, a learned layman. (3.) Cranmer's Bible, in 1540, which was a revised edition of the Great Bible, with a preface by the archbishop. (4.) The Geneva Bible, first printed in 1560. This was a new translation, with annotations, by William Whittingham and two other English ministers, who took refuge at Geneva during the persecutions of queen Mary. This became afterwards a great favourite with the English people; so that out of one hundred and thirty distinct editions of Bibles and Testaments, which were issued between 1560 and 1603, ninety were of the Genevan text. (5.) The Bishops' Bible, with marginal notes, 1568; so called because archbishop Parker engaged several bishops and other learned men to prepare it. It exhibits some material variations from former versions. (6.) The Rheims and Douay Bible, made by the Romanists; who, finding themselves unable to stop the spread of the Scriptures, resolved to have a version of their own; the New Testament being printed at Rheims, in 1582, and the Old Testament at Douay, in 1610. (7.) And, finally, the present Authorized Version, which arose out of a recommendation made by Dr. Reynolds, one of the Puritan ministers present at the celebrated Hampton Court Conference, to king James I. By the king's command, it was executed by forty-seven learned men, who were divided into six companies, two of which sat at Westminster, two at Oxford, and two at Cambridge. According to their instructions, they followed the Bishops' Bible then in use as closely as adherence to the original would permit. This work was commenced in 1607; and, after being revised by a committee of twelve, and then by Dr. Smith, who wrote the Preface, and by Dr. Bilson, it was printed in 1611. This translation is much admired by competent judges for its general fidelity, as well as for the simplicity, energy, and purity of the style. It would be too much to affirm that it is not susceptible of improvement: but its general excellence is attested by the fact that, with all the diversities of opinion on religious subjects, and the controversies which have been carried on between different denominations of Christians, in our country, all have agreed in appealing to the same version, and none have, in any matters of consequence, objected to it.

It would be interesting, were it possible, to ascertain what has been the whole extent of its circulation; but no certain data exist until recent times. During the last half century the number of copies of the entire English Bible, and of the New Testament separately, which have issued from the press is upwards of twenty-seven millions. This wide and general diffusion of the word of God in our land may well be regarded with devout gratitude as our greatest national blessing.

Besides the English, there were, about the period of the Reformation, translations of the Bible in most of the European languages, including the German, French, Italian, Spanish, and many others. Among these, that of Luther stands pre-eminent for its clearness and accuracy, and the remarkable purity and elegance of its style. The circulation of it rapidly produced wonderful effects, and contributed more than any other means to extirpate the errors and superstitions at that time prevalent. It also formed the basis of most of the translations made in the north of Europe at that period. More than one hundred and fifty translations of the whole Bible, or of parts of it, have been made during the last half century.

Whilst the essential truths of Scripture are so fully and plainly revealed that every sincere and prayerful inquirer may readily obtain a sufficient answer to his question, 'What must I do to be saved?' there is a considerable portion of the Bible which needs for its satisfactory INTERPRETATION much diligent and well-directed study. If this work be engaged in with an humble, unprejudiced, and teachable spirit, and a sound and cautious judgment, the following simple rules will be found helpful in deriving the greatest benefits from it:—

1. The literal and primary meaning is first to be sought; and that is to be ascertained in precisely the same way as that of any other book. The Bible was written for the people, in the common language of men.

2. In order to ascertain the precise impression intended to be produced upon the minds of those to whom the words of Scripture were originally addressed, a knowledge of the persons, places, habits, and customs referred to furnishes great assistance.

3. Attention should be paid to the peculiar character of each book—whether it be prose or poetry, narrative or prophecy, address or dialogue, devotional or didactic.

4. Observe the gradual unfolding of the Divine will to man, from the first dawn of hope in the first promise to the fulness of the gospel, when the 'Sun of righteousness' had arisen.

5. It must not be supposed that everything in the Bible can be fully comprehended. It is probable that the Divine Being intended that revelation should have its difficulties; in order to further our moral discipline, to make trial whether we would submit our reason to His will, to exercise our faith and diligence, to make us willing to wait till the light of eternity shall disclose all—perhaps also to afford us evidence that the book is Divine: for when we find difficulties surrounding us in our search into all the other works of God, was it to be expected that this one alone should be free from them? Much of the prophecy of the Old Testament was not understood till it was fulfilled: indeed, obscurity seems to be a necessary condition of prophecy; else it might be said that it had occasioned its own fulfilment. Prophecy, therefore, which is still unfulfilled is likely to be obscure. The time has not yet come for a clear understanding of it.

6. Let the mind be thoroughly possessed with a conviction of the infallible truth and supreme importance of the things here revealed; however opposed they may often seem to be to the opinions and principles of mankind in general, even in nominally Christian countries.

7. The Bible should be read with self-application; with the inquiry how it bears upon our own character and condition; and with a determination, by the grace of God, to carry out in practice what we read. Thus will our own experience both confirm and correct our interpretation of Scripture. 'Whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance,' Matt. xiii. 12. 'If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine,' John vii. 17. And the guidance of that gracious Spirit, whose word this is, must be earnestly sought, while pressing the important question, 'What may I gather here to forward and secure my own salvation and that of others?'

It only remains to describe briefly the PLAN and DESIGN of this work.

The TEXT itself is a correct reprint of the authorized version; but it differs in its arrangement from the common editions in two particulars: (1.) Like other books, it is divided, according to the changes in the subject or pauses in the narrative, into paragraphs or sections, to which appropriate headings are given; the chapters and verses being marked in the margin for facility of reference. (2.) The poetical parts are printed, according to the natural order of the original, in parallelisms; by which the meaning is often more readily ascertained, and the spirit and beauty of this Divine poetry more fully exhibited. (See the General Remarks prefixed to the Poetical Books.) It is well known that the divisions into chapters and verses are no part of the original form in which the Scriptures were given; but are of comparatively modern date. In the earliest manuscripts the text was divided into lines, varying of course in length according to the width of the page; and sometimes into sentences, according to the sense; while the several books were divided into sections of greater or shorter length. Ancient authorities, however, do not agree in the numbers of these divisions; some, for example, reckoning in Matthew twenty-eight, and others upwards of sixty; so that the arrangement evidently depended on the taste or skill of the translator. The present division into chapters was made by cardinal Hugo about the year 1250. The subdivision of the chapters into verses had its origin, as regards the Old Testament, from a division of a similar description made by a Jewish rabbi named Mordecai Nathan, who prepared a concordance of the Hebrew Bible about the year 1445; and, with respect to the New Testament, it originated with Robert Stephens, a celebrated printer at Paris, who thus divided an edition of the New Testament, A. D. 1551. He, however, simply placed the figures in the margin, as in the present edition, without forming every verse into a new paragraph. The method now commonly in use was first adopted in the Geneva English Bible, printed about the year 1560; and, in the millions of copies of the Scriptures which have since been published, it has been almost universally followed. Although some division of this sort is convenient for the sake of general reference, it must be confessed that, when made in this form, it necessarily breaks the proper connection of the sentences; and, in many places, from the arbitrary and defective manner in which the division is made, it tends greatly to obscure the sense.

The MARGINAL READINGS, and translations of many Hebrew proper names, which were appended by our English translators to their work, so far as they have been retained here, have been, for the most part, incorporated within brackets in the text, so as to meet the eye in the most convenient form. But, as they vary much in value and importance (many of them being merely literal translations of Hebrew idiomatic phrases, the true sense of which is better conveyed by the version in the text), those only have been inserted which appear to convey an improved or illustrative rendering, or in some way to throw light upon the passage, either in itself or in its connection with some other.

In the preparation of the EXPLANATORY NOTES the chief objects have been, to give improved renderings in many instances where our present translation appears incorrect or faulty—to elucidate what is difficult or obscure—to bring out the true meaning and force of the text—to illustrate the language of the sacred writers, by references to the manners, customs, geography, and history of the countries and of the times in which the events of the Bible occurred—to show the harmony and mutual connection subsisting between different parts of the inspired writings, and the progressive development of Divine truth—and, in short, in every practicable way, so far as the limits would allow, to promote the right understanding of the Scriptures. In order to this, the help of the ablest and most judicious Biblical critics and commentators has been diligently sought; and the endeavour has been to give in a small compass—in a condensed, but at the same time convenient and popular form—the substance of what the learning and piety of successive ages have contributed to the elucidation of the word of God.

The PREFACES to the respective books contain an account, so far as authentic information is possessed, of their origin and their authors, with a description of their scope and contents; in preparing which, one aim, among others, has been to attain the objects described by bishop Percy in the preface to his 'Key to the New Testament:'—'A clear introductory illustration of the several books, showing the design of their writers, the nature of their contents, and whatsoever else is previously necessary to their being read with understanding, is a work that, if well executed, must prove the best of commentaries, and frequently supersede the want of any. Like an intelligent guide, it directs the reader right at his first setting out; and thereby saves him the trouble of much after inquiry: or, like a map of a country through which he is to travel, if consulted before-hand, it gives him a general view of the journey, and prevents his being afterwards lost and bewildered.'

There is also added an entirely new selection of REFERENCES TO PARALLEL AND ILLUSTRATIVE PASSAGES; which, it is hoped, will be found to possess great completeness, without inconvenient copiousness. Such references are of great use to all who desire to study the Scriptures accurately and deeply; as they make Scripture its own interpreter—frequently throw a satisfactory light upon the meaning of disputed passages—and in many cases bring out, in a surprising manner, most remarkable coincidences.

GENERAL REMARKS

THE FIVE BOOKS OF MOSES.

THE first portion of the Bible is called, by the Jews, 'Torah,' the LAW (Luke xxiv. 44); and is also named, from the Greek, the 'Pentateuch,' or Five rolls. Its division into five books is attributed to the Greek translators, from whom the titles in common use are derived. The Jews have no other names for these books than the first Hebrew words of each; in which way they also designate the fifty-four sections into which they divide them for sabbath reading in the synagogue.

Both the Jews and the Samaritans always held the Law in the highest veneration, and preserved it with most jealous care. To us it is of inestimable value, not only as it contains authentic historical memorials of the first ages of the world, nowhere else to be obtained; but still more as it gives the only satisfactory and authoritative explanation of many facts of the deepest interest to the human race, which otherwise would be involved in impenetrable darkness—such as the origin of man and of his fallen and degraded condition, and the purposes for which such a race is continued upon the earth: and, further, as it contains the earliest communications from God to men, and those Divinely-appointed types which prefigured to ancient believers the promised Redeemer.

The unanimous testimony of antiquity, of the other Old Testament writers, and, above all, of our Lord and his apostles, shows that Moses was the author of these books; although it is possible that he may have been instructed to avail himself occasionally of earlier records of inspired patriarchs. At the same time, it is evident that some subsequent writer—perhaps Joshua, Samuel, or Ezra—has occasionally inserted a brief explanation, and has added the account of the great lawgiver's death and burial (Deut. xxxiv.)

While Moses was signally honoured in being qualified and employed to communicate to the world these important disclosures of the Divine purposes and will, he was equally distinguished by the endowments bestowed upon him for the responsibilities and duties of his active life. The forty years which he spent in Egypt, acquiring 'all the wisdom of the Egyptians,' and learning the maxims of the best human government then known, and the other forty which were occupied in leading his flock to the wells and pastures of the wilderness, through which he was to guide the Hebrews during a similar period, had prepared him, by the grace of God, for fulfilling his high destiny. And that grace so elevated his character as to make him appear in every respect both great and amiable. Observe, for instance, his entire disinterestedness. In refusing to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, he renounced honour, wealth, and pleasure; and in becoming, by the command of God, the leader of the Israelites, he entered upon a course so full of trials and dangers, that there were times when, in the bitterness of his soul, he would gladly have been released from his painful pre-eminence. Nor did he use his power to aggrandize his family; he left them to occupy the rank of ordinary Levites. How intensely he loved his people is evident from his earnest intercessions for them: and equally remarkable was his confidence in God, amidst a multitude who were constantly rebelling and raising formidable conspiracies against him, while he was without any human means of maintaining his authority. Nor did he cease from his labours till the very close of a long life; so that, at the age of a hundred and twenty years, he spent his last breath in exhorting the Israelites to a remembrance of God's mercy and obedience to his laws.

Moses, however, derives his chief honour from the relation which he bore to the Great Prophet of whom he wrote (John v. 46), who was like unto him (Deut. xviii. 15; Acts iii. 22); the Divine Builder and Lord of that house in which Moses was faithful as a servant (Numb. xii. 7; Heb. iii. 2—5); and who associated him with himself and Elias in the glory of his transfiguration (Matt. xvii. 3). As the saviour of the Israelites from the bondage of Egypt; as their legislator, governor, teacher, and leader through the wilderness; and as the founder of a new dispensation, he was a distinguished precursor of Him who came from heaven to rescue men from the slavery of sin, and to conduct his people to the heavenly Canaan.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED GENESIS.

THE book of Genesis was so named by the ancient Greek translators, because of the account it gives of the creation of all things. It is chiefly historical, relating the most wonderful events with the greatest simplicity. It gives us all the information which its Divine Author has deemed necessary or desirable for us respecting the origin of the world and of its inhabitants, and especially of man; informing us of his state of innocence, the occasion and consequences of his fall, and the hope of pardon and restoration which his merciful Judge was pleased to give him. It thus opens the way for the gradual development of that plan of salvation which succeeding revelations more fully unfold. Whilst it shows the deep and inveterate depravity into which man sank after his fall, it affords cheering intimations of the early commencement of true religion in the world. It everywhere presents God as Almighty to create and to destroy; as inflexible in his hatred of sin and determination to punish it, yet mercifully forbearing, and ready to forgive the penitent; and as sovereign in his purposes and promises, and faithful in fulfilling them.

This book contains the history of 2369 years according to Usher, or 3619 on Hales's system. It may be divided as follows:—

I. FROM THE CREATION TO THE DELUGE: including the creation of the world, the formation of man in the image of God, the institution of the sabbath and of marriage (ch. i., ii.); the introduction of evil into the world, the sentence upon the tempter and upon man, and God's gracious promise of a Saviour (iii.); the account of Cain and Abel, and of Cain's descendants; the beginning of human occupations, manufactures, and arts (iv.); the genealogy of the patriarchs from Adam to Noah (v.); the universal prevalence of wickedness, and the destruction of the ungodly world by the flood, with the preservation of Noah and his family (vi.—viii.)

II. FROM THE DELUGE TO THE TIME OF ABRAHAM: comprising God's covenant of mercy with the new world, and Noah's prophecy respecting his three sons (ix.); the repeopleing of the earth by Noah's descendants, the origin of national distinctions, and the commencement of the principal ancient empires (x.); the confusion of tongues, and the dispersion of the human family over the earth (xi.)

III. FROM THE CALLING OF ABRAHAM TO THE DEATH OF JOSEPH. In this portion of the book, the general affairs of mankind are only occasionally noticed; and it is chiefly occupied with the patriarch and his descendants, whom God chose and separated from the rest of the world, that from their race the promised Saviour might come; and that in the meantime his church might be upheld in them, while all other people were involved in heathenism. We have the history of Abraham and his family, with incidental notices of the origin and history of some of the most ancient kings and nations (xii.—xxv.); of Isaac and his family (xxvi., xxvii.); of Jacob and his family (xxviii.—xxxv.); and more particularly of Joseph, leading to the introduction of the house of Israel into Egypt for their preservation during a general famine (xxxvii.—xlvii.); followed by Jacob's prophecy respecting his sons and their descendants and the promised Redeemer (xlvi., xlix.) The book concludes with Joseph's commandment concerning his remains, and his death (l.)

1 That implicit faith in every word of God which is necessary to the right use of the Bible is called into exercise by this simple and authoritative record (Heb. xi. 3). Highly poetical versions of the narrative of the creation will be found in Job xxxviii. 4—11; Psa. civ.; cxxxvi. 5—9; Prov. viii. 24—30.

2 The beginning here spoken of refers to a period of undefined antiquity when God created the worlds out of nothing.

3 This represents the condition of the earth just before the six days' work.

4 Or, 'brooded;' a metaphor referring to the life and beauty which the power of the Spirit would produce.

5 That is, upon the earth, which had lately been dark.

6 This is often introduced to intimate that everything as it comes from God is good; and therefore what is evil cannot proceed from him. See James i. 17.

7 The earth was turning on its axis, though the sun was not visible.

8 Or, 'expanse;' the space occupied by the atmosphere which sustains the clouds and supports life.

9 This account appears to refer to the suspension of a portion of the water in the atmosphere.

10 Rather, 'arc.'

11 This word signifies in some places the air; in others, the regions in which the sun, moon, and stars are; and in others again, the unseen dwelling-place of God.

12 Rather, 'luminaries;' not the same word as in ver. 3.

13 Or, 'Let the lights in the firmament of heaven be to divide the day from the night.' This does not necessarily signify that these lights were then first created; but it may mean that they were then made to appear, by the dispersion of the dark and heavy vapours which before hid them from the earth.

14 Probably in the sense of appointed: as in 1 Sam. xii. 6; 2 Chron. xiii. 9; Job xiv. 5; Psa. civ. 19.

15 Large animals of the reptile kind, and fish may be included here. See refs.

them, saying, Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth. And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

24 And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast¹ of the earth after his kind. And it was so.
25 ^aAnd God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

26 And God said, ^bLet us² make man in our image, after our likeness: and ^clet them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image,³ in ^dthe image of God created he him; ^emale and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God said unto them, ^fBe fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth.⁴

29 ^gAnd God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; ^hto you it shall be for meat.⁵ And to ⁱevery beast of the earth, and to every ^kfowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life [a living soul], I have given every green herb for meat. And it was so. And ^lGod saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

2 Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and ^mall the host⁶ of them. ⁿAnd on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made. And God ^oblessed the seventh day, and sanctified⁷ it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made.

Further account of creation; Eden; Adam and Eve in innocence.

4 ^pTHESE are the generations⁸ of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, and every ^qplant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew:⁹ for the LORD God had not ^rcaused it to rain upon the earth, and ^sthere was not a man ^tto till the ground. But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

7 And the LORD God formed man of the ^udust of the ground, and ^vbreathed into his ^wnostrils the breath of life; and ^xman became a living soul.

8 And the LORD God planted ^ya garden ^zeastward¹⁰ in ^aEden;¹¹ and there ^bhe put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow ^cevery tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food; ^dthe tree of life also in the midst of the garden,^f and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.¹²

² Many commentators are of opinion that the plural is here used to indicate the threefold distinction in the Godhead.

³ With those intellectual and moral qualities which fitted him, as God's representative on earth, to govern the lower creatures; and to know, love, and commune with his Creator. God's last and noblest work was man. He first created things which were only material, the heavens and the earth. He then endowed matter with vegetable life, and formed the grass and the trees; then with animal life, bringing forth living creatures, from the lower to the higher orders. Now the material and the animal are united with the spiritual.

⁴ An emphatic rebuke to all those systems of idolatry which consisted in the worship of these creatures.

⁶ Or, 'array;' all that belongs to them.

⁷ God set it apart for special religious use by man (Mark ii. 27). The artificial division of time into weeks, which was prevalent in the earliest ages (Gen. viii. 10, 12; xxix. 27, 28), and the peculiar provision of food for the sabbath, and directions respecting it, before the law was given at Sinai (Exod. xvi. 23), show that the sabbath existed from the beginning; although it has since been subjected to various regulations, first in its temporary adaptation to the Mosaic economy (Exod. xx. 8—11;

xxx. 13, 14), and now as a memorial of the great fact of the Saviour's resurrection, and as set apart for the spiritual worship and services of his disciples (Acts xx. 7; 1 Cor. xvi. 2; Rev. i. 10, etc.)

⁸ Rather, 'This is the history,' or 'account.' Such a phrase commonly indicates the commencement of a new narrative (see ch. v. 1; vi. 9; xi. 10; Matt. i. 1); and frequently a family history. This is a record of the earliest events in man's history.

⁹ Or, 'and before any plant of the field was in the earth, and before any herb of the field grew. For the Lord God, etc.; but there went up a mist, etc.' This is probably another description of the state referred to, ch. i. 2, 6, 7.

¹¹ This region must have been somewhere along the rivers Tigris and Euphrates; but its exact situation cannot be defined. Probably the surface of the country has undergone great changes, so that part of the description would not be applicable now. If, in ver. 10, we substitute 'afterwards' for 'from thence' (an alteration which the original will allow), such a change will appear to be referred to: so that what had originally been one vast stream was afterwards divided into the four great Assyrian rivers, here called 'heads.'

¹² These trees were so named from the uses to which God applied them—appointing the one to be the means of preserving man's life, the other to be the test of his intelligent obedience.

10 And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, 11 and became into four heads. The name of the first is Pison: that is it which 12 compasseth s the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold; and the gold of that 13 land is good: h there is bdellium and the onyx stone. And the name of the second 14 river is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia.¹ And the name of the third river is 'Hiddekel: that is it which goeth toward the east of Assyria [or, eastward to Assyria]. And the fourth river is Euphrates.
 15 And the LORD God took the man [or, Adam],² and put h him into the garden of 16 Eden to dress it and to keep it.³ And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, 17 Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; l but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, m thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof n thou shalt surely die.⁴ 18 And the LORD God said, o It is not good that the man should be alone; p I will 19 make him an help meet for him.⁵ q And out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and r brought them unto Adam [or, the man] to see what he would call them:⁶ and whatsoever Adam called 20 every living creature, that was the name thereof. And Adam gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field. But for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.
 21 And the LORD God caused a s deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept:
 22 and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the LORD God had taken from man, made 7 he a woman, and t brought her 23 unto the man. And Adam said, This is now u bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman [Isha], because she was x taken out of Man [Ish].
 24 y Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his 25 wife: and they shall be one flesh.⁸ z And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not a ashamed.

Temptation and fall of man; the Divine sentence and promise.

3 NOW b the serpent⁹ was more c subtil than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea,¹⁰ hath God said, Ye shall not 2 eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may 3 eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: d but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, e neither shall 4 ye touch it, lest ye die. f And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not 5 surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then g your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods,¹¹ knowing good and evil.¹² 6 And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant h to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, i and did eat,¹³ and gave also unto her husband with her; k and he

² Or, 'Adam.' In our version these two renderings are used indifferently.

³ 'To cultivate it.' Paradise was not a place of exemption from work.

⁴ This is the proper English rendering of the emphatic Hebrew idiom, 'dying thou shalt die.' There is some difference of opinion as to the precise nature of the death here threatened. It seems to have included the loss of all the life that Adam had; and as the moral union of his soul with God, resemblance to Him, and the enjoyment of His presence and favour, may be called his life in its highest sense, the loss of these would be the most awful penalty to which he could be subjected. The terms life and death are frequently used in Scripture in these senses. See John iii. 36; v. 40; Rom. vi. 23; viii. 6, etc. In this sense the punishment instantaneously followed the sin of our first parents. So far as the threatening referred to temporal death—the dissolution of soul and body—it evidently depended upon the will of God, in case the punishment should be incurred, whether it should be consummated at once or be progressive. If it had been instantaneous, we cannot see how there could be room for the exercise of mercy, which God now gloriously manifests both in forbearance and in forgiveness.

⁵ Man, being made a social creature, needed a companion possessing a spiritual nature like his own.

⁶ This showed both man's dominion over the creatures, and the powers of mind with which his Creator had endowed him.

⁷ Or, 'framed.'

⁸ Marriage, like the sabbath, though instituted in man's state of innocency, was not restricted to that. This passage, as quoted by our Lord (Matt. xix. 4-6), forbids both divorce and polygamy; for he uses the word 'twain' (or two), which, though not found in the present Hebrew, remains in the Samaritan copy, and in all the ancient versions.

⁹ In this account of the temptation and fall of man, we have, as in many other of the earlier narratives, only the external circumstances recorded; but from other parts of Scripture we learn that the serpent was used as the instrument of a spiritual enemy (Rev. xii. 9); that in the punishment of man spiritual death was included; that the predicted enmity and struggle between the seed of the woman and the serpent and his seed was that conflict in which Christ was to be the great sufferer, and, at the same time, the conqueror; through whom all his followers also, though afflicted, were to be finally victorious; and that the tempter's doom signified the ultimate defeat and overwhelming disgrace of Satan.

¹⁰ Or, 'indeed!'

¹¹ Or, 'God.'

¹³ The act was her own. Temptation does not exonerate the transgressor from guilt.

- 7 did eat. And ¹the eyes of them both were opened, ^mand they knew that they were naked; and they sewed ¹fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.²
- 8 And they heard ⁿthe voice of the LORD God walking in the garden in the cool of the day: and Adam and his wife ^ohid themselves from the presence of the LORD God amongst the trees of the garden.³ And the LORD God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, ^pand I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself. And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat?⁴ And the man said, ^qThe woman whom thou gavest to be with me,⁵ she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.
- 13 And the LORD God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, ^rThe serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.
- 14 And the LORD God said ^sunto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and ^tdust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life: and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between ^uthy seed and ^vher seed; ^yit shall bruise thy head, ^zand thou shalt bruise his heel.⁶
- 16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; ^ain sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; ^band thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall ^crule over thee.
- 17 And unto Adam he said, ^dBecause thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, ^eand hast eaten of the tree, ^fof which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: ^gcursed is the ground for thy sake; ^hin sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; ⁱthorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and ^kthou shalt eat the herb of the field; ^lin the sweat of thy face⁷ shalt thou eat bread, ^mtill thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: ⁿfor dust thou art, and ^ounto dust shalt thou return.
- 20 And Adam called his wife's name Eve [i. e. living]; because she was ^pthe mother of all living. Unto Adam also and to his wife did the LORD God make coats of ^qskins,⁸ and ^rclothed them.
- 22 And the LORD God said, ^sBehold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil; and now, lest he put forth his hand, ^tand take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, ^uto till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man; and he placed ^vat the east of the garden of Eden ^ycherubim,⁹ and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

Cain and Abel; murder of Abel; Cain's descendants; birth of Seth.

- 4 AND Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain [i. e. gotten, or acquired], and said, I have gotten a man from the LORD.¹⁰ And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep,¹¹ but Cain was ^aa tiller of the ground.
- 3 And in process of time [at the end of days] it came to pass, that Cain brought ^bof the fruit of the ground an offering unto the LORD. And Abel, he also brought ^cof ^dthe firstlings of his flock, and of the fat¹² thereof. And the LORD had ^erespect unto Abel and to his offering: but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect.¹³

1 Or, 'tied.'
2 Rather, 'girdles.'
3 Shame and terror came into the world with sin, and still attend it.

4 God requires of us confession of our sins; not that he may be informed, but that we may be humbled.

5 Thus ungratefully seeking to cast the blame upon God himself.

6 Or, 'he shall wound thee as to the head' (i. e. vitally, incurably), 'and thou shalt wound him as to the heel' (i. e. partially, curably). This brief and originally obscure promise is the fountain-head of that copious stream of prophecy which became broader and more abundant as it flowed onwards.

7 Active exertion in itself is a blessing: its exhausting effects upon the body, which are associated in our ideas with the word 'labour,' are part of the curse. By these outward and sensible mementoes of their fall, our first parents were continually reminded of the melancholy change which had taken place in their condition, and admonished to avail themselves of the gracious provision made for their recovery.

8 The skins used for this purpose were probably skins of animals offered in sacrifice. There are good reasons for believing that sacrifices were now appointed by God, to prefigure the great sacrifice, the only true and efficacious propitiation, which, in the latter ages of the world, should be offered once for all; and that sacrifices were henceforward offered by all true worshippers, as an acknowledgment of their guilt and its just desert, and as an expression of their hope in God's mercy through a Redeemer. See ch. iv. 4; viii. 20, etc. This institution of sacrifices, by a Divine revelation made to the ancestors of the whole race, accounts for the universal prevalence of sacrificial rites among the heathen.

9 The cherubim are supposed to have been either attendants (angelic or redeemed, see Rev. iv. 7—9) upon God, or symbols of His presence. Elsewhere they are introduced in connection with remarkable displays of His mercy or power (see Exod. xxv. 18, 22; Psal. lxxx. 1; xcix. 1), and are generally accompanied with a sword-like flame or a bright cloud (Ezek. i. 4, 13).

10 Or, 'a man with Jehovah;' or, 'I have gotten a man, Jehovah.'

11 Heb., 'a flock;' either sheep or goats.

12 Heb., 'fatnesses;' i. e. the best or finest. So Numb. xviii. 12, 29; Psal. lxxxi. 16; cxlvii. 14.

13 In Heb. xi. 4, we are told that this favour was granted to Abel's faith; which implies that what he did was in accordance with the Divine will. The two brothers

- 25 And Adam knew his wife again; and she bare a son, and ^ccalled his name Seth
 [i. e. appointed, or put]: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed 26 instead of Abel, whom Cain slew. And to Seth, ^dto him also there was born a son; and he called his name Enos. Then began men ^eto call upon the name of the LORD¹¹ [or, to call themselves by the name of the Lord].

Descendants of Adam through Seth to Noah.

- 5 THIS is the ^abook¹² of the generations of Adam. In the day that God created 2 man, in ^bthe likeness of God made he him; ^cmale and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created.
 3 And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son ^din his own
 4 likeness,¹³ after his image; and ^ecalled his name Seth: ^fand the days of Adam were actuated by entirely different principles. Cain offered a meat, or rather food-offering alone; presenting himself and his property to God as if he had not been a sinner needing an atoning sacrifice. Abel offered, according to the Divine appointment, a sin-offering (accompanied probably with the other: see Exod. xxix. 38—41); thus confessing his guilt as a sinner, and declaring his faith in God's promised salvation. In all ages, there have been two such descriptions of worshippers; namely, proud despisers of the Divine method of salvation, and humble believers in it.

¹ This difficult passage may be thus rendered: 'If thou doest right, is there not acceptance [for thee]? and if not, a sin-offering coucheth at the door; and to thee shall he [i. e. either Abel or the sin-offering] be subject, and thou shalt have power over him [or it].' Or, 'If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin' (i. e. the punishment of sin) 'is at the door' (i. e. is ready to overtake thee). 'And unto thee shall be his' (i. e. thy brother's) 'desire, and thou shalt rule over him' (i. e. thou shalt still retain the privilege of thy birthright).

² The Septuagint, the Samaritan, and other versions have, 'Cain said to Abel his brother, Let us go into the field.'

³ Adam and Eve had probably other children, to whose vengeance the fratricide would feel himself obnoxious.

⁴ Rather, 'gave a token;' we know not what.

⁵ That part of the earth, probably, where Adam dwelt, and where the ordinances of religion were maintained.

⁶ That is, 'wandering.'

⁷ That is, stringed and wind instruments.

⁸ Or, 'forger of every tool.'—'Brass,' or copper.

⁹ Or, 'I have killed a man who wounded me, a young man who gave me a stroke.'

¹⁰ This most ancient piece of poetry is obscure from its brevity; but it refers, probably, to a transaction in which Lamech had unintentionally (it may be in self-defence) killed a young man, and claims protection for himself on much stronger grounds than Cain.

¹¹ Or, 'to be called by the name of the Lord.'

¹² Or, 'account of his family.' This is prefixed to every new division of this book, when a fresh individual is mentioned as the head of the family whose history is to be related.

¹³ That is, his own sinful likeness; which is evidently contrasted with the 'likeness of God' (ver. 2) in which after he had begotten Seth were eight hundred years: ^aand he begat sons and 5 daughters: and all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: ^pand he died.

6, 7 And Seth lived an hundred and five years, and ^qbegat Enos: and Seth lived after he begat Enos eight hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters: 8 and all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years: and he died.

9, 10 And Enos lived ninety years, and begat Cainan: and Enos lived after he begat 11 Cainan eight hundred and fifteen years, and begat sons and daughters: and all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years: and he died.

12, 13 And Cainan lived seventy years, and begat Mahalaleel: and Cainan lived after he begat Mahalaleel eight hundred and forty years, and begat sons and daughters: 14 and all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years: and he died.

15, 16 And Mahalaleel lived sixty and five years, and begat Jared: and Mahalaleel lived after he begat Jared eight hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and 17 daughters: and all the days of Mahalaleel were eight hundred ninety and five years: and he died.

18 And Jared lived an hundred sixty and two years, and he begat ^rEnoch: and 19 Jared lived after he begat Enoch eight hundred years, and begat sons and 20 daughters: and all the days of Jared were nine hundred sixty and two years: and he died.

21, 22 And Enoch lived sixty and five years, and begat Methuselah: and Enoch ^swalked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat 23 sons and daughters: and all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five 24 years: and ^tEnoch walked with God: and he was not; ¹for God took him.

25 And Methuselah lived an hundred eighty and seven years, and begat Lamech: 26 and Methuselah lived after he begat Lamech seven hundred eighty and two years, 27 and begat sons and daughters: and all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty and nine years: and he died.

28, 29 And Lamech lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son: and he called his name ^uNoah [i. e. rest, or comfort], saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground ^xwhich the 30 LORD hath cursed. And Lamech lived after he begat Noah five hundred ninety 31 and five years, and begat sons and daughters: and all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years: and he died.

32 And Noah was five hundred ^yyears old: and Noah begat ^zShem, Ham, ^zand Japheth.

3 And the LORD said, ^dMy spirit shall not always strive ⁵with man, ^efor that he also ⁶is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

4 There were ^fgiants ⁷in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.

5 ^gAnd God saw that the ^hwickedness of man was great in the earth, and that 6 every ⁱimagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And ^kit repented ⁸the LORD that he had made man on the earth, and it ^lgrieved him he himself had been created. We are clearly taught elsewhere that Adam's probation in the garden of Eden involved his posterity in its consequences. See Rom. v. 12—21; 1 Cor. xv. 45—47.

¹ That is, was no longer on earth, as explained in Heb. xi. 5: 'Enoch was translated that he should not see death.' This departure of one whose character and activity must have made him well known, was eminently fitted to awaken an ungodly generation to the realities of another world; and to afford to the righteous a cheering pledge of the immortality of the soul, and the glorification of the body.

² Shem was a hundred years old two years after the flood (ch. xi. 10), and consequently was born ninety-seven years before it, and in the five hundred and third year of Noah's age. If Ham were the younger (see ch. ix. 24), it must have been Japheth who was born when Noah was five hundred years of age; and he was therefore the eldest of the three.

³ Either the worshippers of Jehovah (see ch. iv. 26), or the chiefs of the people.

⁴ Either the descendants of Cain, or the people as distinguished from the chiefs.

⁷ Perhaps literally so in stature and strength. The term, however, seems chiefly to refer to the lawless use of brute force. Vers. 1, 2, and 4, are thus paraphrased by Dr. Wall: 'When men began to multiply in the earth, the chief men took wives of all the handsome poor women they chose. There were tyrants on the earth in those days; and also, after the antediluvian days, powerful men had unlawful connections with the inferior women; and the children which sprang from this illicit intercourse were the celebrated heroes of antiquity.'

⁸ This is spoken after the manner of men, as the word 'remembered' is used (ch. viii. 1), and 'look' (ix. 16), and 'came down to see' (xi. 5, 7, etc.) All representations of God's character and doings must be adapted to the understanding of man. Hence, his abhorrence of sin

7 at his heart. And the LORD said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth; ^m both man, and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls
8 of the air; for it repenteth me that I have made them. But Noah ⁿ found grace in the eyes of the LORD.

Noah and his family; construction of the ark by Divine command.

9 THESE are the generations ¹ of Noah: ^o Noah was a just man and ^p perfect [or, upright] in his generations, ² and Noah ^q walked with God. And Noah begat three 10 sons, ^r Shem, Ham, and Japheth. The earth also ³ was corrupt ^s before God, and 11 the earth was 'filled with violence. And God ^t looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; ^u for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

12 And God said unto Noah, ^v The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; ^w and, behold, I will destroy them with the 13 earth [or, from the earth]. ^a Make thee an ark ⁴ of gopher ⁵ wood; rooms shalt 14 thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch. And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of: The length of the ark shall be 15 three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty
16 cubits. A window ⁶ shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it ⁷ above; and the door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof; with lower,
17 second, and third stories shalt thou make it. ^b And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, 18 from under heaven; ^c and every thing that is in the earth shall die. But with thee will I establish my covenant; ⁸ and ^d thou shalt come into the ark, thou, and 19 thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee. And of every living thing of all flesh, ^e two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive
20 with thee; they shall be male and female. Of fowls after their kind, and of cattle after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind, two of 21 every sort ^f shall come unto thee, to keep them alive. And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou shalt gather it to thee; and it shall be for food for thee, and for them.

22 ^g Thus did Noah; ^h according to all that God commanded him, so did ⁹ he.

7 And the LORD said unto Noah, ⁱ Come thou and all thy house into the ark; ² for ^h thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation. Of every ¹ clean ¹⁰ beast thou shalt take to thee by sevens, the male and his female: ^m and of beasts
3 that are not clean by two, ¹¹ the male and his female. Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female; to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.
4 For yet seven days, and I ⁿ will cause it to rain upon the earth ^o forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have made will I destroy from off the face of the earth.

5 ^p And Noah did according unto all that the LORD commanded him.

6 And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the 7 earth. ^q And Noah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with 8 him, into the ark, because of the waters of the flood. Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the 9 earth, there went in two and two unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female,
10 as God had commanded Noah. And it came to pass after seven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth.

and his determination to punish it are spoken of as if they affected him as they would affect us (comp. Numb. xxiii. 19; Mal. iii. 6; James i. 17); whilst his forbearance and forgiveness are represented under the human guise of repentance and putting away of wrath.

1 See note on ch. v. 1.

2 This is a different word in the original from the other; and means, 'in his age,' which was a very corrupt one.

3 Rather, 'But the earth was,' etc., in opposition to ver. 9.

4 The Hebrew word here used is not that which is translated 'ark' [of the covenant]; it occurs again only in Exod. ii. 3, 5. The length of Noah's ark was probably four hundred and fifty feet, the breadth seventy-five, and the height forty-five; consequently it would be equal in size to about six or seven first-rate ships.

5 Probably cypress.

6 Rather, 'brightness;' i. e. 'thou shalt make daylight

in the ark' [by windows or openings]; or it may mean a roof or deck.

7 That is, the ark; bringing its top up to a ridge. Probably the roof of the ark was raised in the middle, and projected over the perpendicular sides of the ark.

8 The word 'covenant,' in Scripture, frequently signifies a special and solemnly declared purpose or promise of God; relating sometimes to the earth and the lower animals (see Gen. ix. 10); but generally to man, in which case it infers correspondent obligations on his part.

9 A remarkable act of faith, recorded with peculiar approbation (Heb. xi. 7).

10 That is, such as were appointed to be offered in sacrifice or used for food.

11 Of these only one pair was to be taken, as being generally less serviceable to man.

12 Probably of the civil Hebrew year, or Marchesvan.

13 was upon the earth forty days and forty nights. In the selfsame day ^uentered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and 14 the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark: ^xthey, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every 15 sort. And they ^ywent in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life. And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh,
 16 ^zas God had commanded him. ^aAnd the LORD shut him in.¹
 17 ^bAnd the flood was forty days upon the earth; and the waters increased, and 18 bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth. And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth; ^cand the ark went upon the face of 19 the waters. And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; ^dand all the 20 high hills, that were under the whole heaven,² were covered. Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail; and the mountains were covered.
 21 ^eAnd all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every
 22 man: all in ^fwhose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, 23 died. ^gAnd every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: ^hand Noah only remained alive, and
 24 they that were with him in the ark. ⁱAnd the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days.
 8 And God ^kremembered³ Noah, and every living thing, ^land all the cattle that was with him in the ark: ^mand God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the
 2 waters assuaged. The ⁿfountains also of the deep and the windows of heaven
 3 were stopped, ^oand the rain from heaven was restrained; and the waters returned from off the earth continually: and after the end ^pof the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.⁴
 4 And the ark rested in the seventh⁵ month, on the seventeenth day of the month,
 5 upon the mountains of Ararat.⁶ And the waters decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.
 6 And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the ^qwindow of 7 the ark which he had made: and he sent forth ^ra raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth. Also he sent forth ^sa dove
 8 from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground; but the dove found ^t'no rest for the sole of her foot,' ^uand she returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his
 10 hand, and took her, and pulled her in unto him into the ark. And he ^xstayed
 11 yet other seven days; and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark; and the dove came in to him in the evening; and, lo, in her mouth was an ^yolive leaf 12 plucked off: so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth. ^zAnd he stayed yet other seven days; and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

Noah leaves the ark; God's covenant with him.

13 AND it came to pass in the six hundredth and first⁷ year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold the face of the ground
 14 was dry. And in the second⁸ month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.
 15, 16 And God spake unto Noah, saying, ^aGo forth of the ark, thou, and ^bthy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee. Bring forth with thee ^cevery living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in 18 the earth, and be ^dfruitful, and multiply upon the earth. And Noah went forth,

1 Or, as the Chaldee reads, 'protected him:' referring to the wonderful providence by which he was preserved during the deluge.

2 These words are sometimes used in a restricted sense. See Deut. ii. 25. By this great event, the general course of nature was interrupted for the infliction of merited punishment, and the exhibition of distinguishing grace. In the deluge we have an earnest of the destruction which awaits the world of the ungodly; while the preservation of the one righteous man and his family manifests God's care over his people, and shadows forth their final salvation by a means provided by God himself.

3 Intimating a special act of Divine interference on his behalf. See note on ch. vi. 6.

4 Or, 'began to abate;' having increased till now.

5 Nisan, or Abib.

6 This region is part of the country since called Armenia. The plural word 'mountains' renders it unnecessary to suppose that the ark rested on the highest peak of the range.

7 That is, of Noah's life. The 'first month' is Tisri.

8 The same month in which he had entered it; having been in the ark one year and ten days according to the Hebrew text, or exactly one year according to the Sept.

20 ^c And Noah builded an altar unto the LORD; and took of ^f every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar. And the LORD smelled ^s a sweet¹ savour; and the LORD said in his heart, I will not again ^h curse the ground any more for man's sake; for [or, though] the ⁱ imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; ^k neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done. ^l While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and ^m day and night shall not cease.²

9 And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, ⁿ Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth. ^o And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea; into your hand are they delivered.³ ^p Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you:⁴ even as the ^q green herb have I given you ^r all things. ^s But flesh with the life thereof, ^t which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat. And surely your blood of your lives will I require; ^u at the hand of every beast will I require it, and ^v at the hand of man; at the hand of every ^w man's brother will I require the life of man.⁵ ^x Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: ^y for in the image of God made he man. And you, ^z be ye fruitful, and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8, 9 And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying, ^b And I, behold, I establish ^c my covenant with you, and with your seed after you; ^d and with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you; from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth. And ^e I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

12 And God said, ^f This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations: ^g I do set my bow⁶ in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud: ^h and I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh. And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember ⁱ the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth. And God said unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant, which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

18 AND the sons of Noah, that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth: and ^h Ham is the father of Canaan. ⁱ These are the three sons of Noah: ^m and of them was the whole earth overspread.

20, 21 And Noah began to be an ⁿ husbandman, and he planted a vineyard: and he drank of the wine, and was ^o drunken; and he was uncovered within his tent. 22 And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, ^p and told his two brethren without. ^q And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, and they saw not their father's nakedness. 24 And Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done unto 25 him. ¹ Literally, 'a savour of rest,' or satisfaction: often used (see Lev. xxvi. 31) to signify that the offering was acceptable to God.

³ To this Divine grant we owe the advantage which results from the labour of the domestic animals, and from the use of their flesh for food.

⁴ Some suppose this to be only a renewal of a former grant, in a form adapted to man's altered condition; whilst others think that animal food had never been eaten previously to this period. Others, again, are of opinion that, from the first institution of sacrifices, a portion of the animals so offered to God was eaten by the offerer, and that this participation in the offerings formed a part of the sacrificial rite; but that the use of animal food had, until this period, been restricted to the flesh of such victims.

⁶ It is not said here that God first formed the rainbow after the flood: the words may be translated, 'I do appoint my bow in the cloud to be a token (or, testimony) of the covenant,' etc. See note on ch. i. 16.

⁷ Perhaps Canaan is mentioned because he had instigated or shared in his father's misconduct; or it may be that we have only that part of Noah's curse recorded which, referring to Canaan, seemed to point to the expulsion of his descendants from the land destined for the Israelites: and the same in vers. 19, 27.

26 his brethren.¹ And he said, 'Blessed be the LORD God of Shem:² and Canaan 27 shall be his servant. God shall enlarge Japheth,³ and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem;⁴ and Canaan shall be his servant.⁴ 28, 29 And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years. And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died.

History of Noah's sons; their dispersion and settlement.

10 NOW these are the generations of the sons of Noah; Shem, Ham, and Japheth:
2 and unto them were sons⁵ born after the flood. The sons of Japheth; Gomer, 3 and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras. And the 4 sons of Gomer; Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah. And the sons of Javan;
5 Elishah, and Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim. By these were the isles of the Gentiles divided in their lands; every one after his tongue, after their families, in their nations.

6, 7 And the sons of Ham; Cush, and Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan. And the sons of Cush; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtechah: and the sons of Raamah; Sheba, and Dedan.

8, 9 And Cush begat Nimrod: he began to be a mighty one in the earth. He was a mighty hunter⁶ before the LORD: wherefore it is said, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD.⁷ And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel 11 [Babylon],⁸ and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. Out of that land went forth Asshur [or, he went out into Assyria], and builded Nineveh, 12 and the city Rehoboth,⁹ and Calah, and Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same is a great city.

13 And Mizraim begat¹⁰ Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim, and 14 Pathrusim, and Casluhim, (out of whom came Philistim,¹¹) and Caphtorim.

15, 16 And Canaan begat Sidon his firstborn, and Heth, and the Jebusite, and the 17 Amorite, and the Girgashite, and the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite, and 18 the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the Hamathite: and afterward were the 19 families of the Canaanites spread abroad. And the border¹² of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comest to Gerar, unto Gaza; as thou goest, unto Sodom, 20 and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Lasha. These are the sons of Ham, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

21 Unto Shem also, the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth 22 the elder, even to him were children born. The children of Shem; Elam, and 23 Asshur, and Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram. And the children of Aram; Uz, and 24 Hul, and Gether, and Mash. And Arphaxad begat Salah; and Salah begat Eber.
25 And unto Eber were born two sons: the name of one was Peleg [i. e. division]; for in his days was the earth divided;¹³ and his brother's name was Joktan.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, and 28 Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah, and Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba, and Ophir, 30 and Havilah, and Jobab; all these were the sons of Joktan. And their dwelling 31 was from Mesha, as thou goest, unto Sephar a mount of the east. These are the

1 That is, his descendants should be slaves of the lowest class to the posterity of Shem and Japheth.

2 Or, perhaps, 'Blessed of Jehovah, my God, be Shem.' This benediction on Shem includes the peculiar religious distinction of his family, and especially the promised Messiah.

3 Some render this, 'and God shall dwell in the tents of Shem.' In the blessing on Japheth there is an assurance of a vast and wide-spreading progeny.

4 The future family of mankind is here viewed as distributed into three great divisions; and the curse laid on Canaan, the blessing associated with Shem, and the power and enlargement assigned to Japheth, have all been realized in the history of the world. These early prophecies give only a general sketch or outline of the subjects to which they relate, corresponding with their great distance of view.

5 Many of the names in this genealogical table are plurals; and several have the formal termination used to designate a tribe. Hence it has been thought that the greater part of them are names of nations; which may, however, have been so called from their founders. These nations were early and frequently intermixed; but it is probable that the descendants of Japheth occupied Armenia, the Caucasus, and Asia Minor, spreading thence through Europe and the northern parts of Asia and India, and perhaps also through America; that the nations descending from Shem settled in the central parts of Asia, extending their colonies into India on the east, and the north of Arabia on the west; and that Ham's family took possession of the south of Mesopotamia and Arabia, whence they passed on to Palestine and Africa.

6 From the chase he went on to war. 'Before the Lord' is probably a strong expression of his very great power.

7 His celebrity in these violent pursuits, and in deeds of rapine and blood, was proverbial in the days of Moses.

8 He founded the kingdom of Babylon, afterwards so famous.

9 Or, 'the city of streets:' so called, perhaps, on account of its size and regularity.

10 He was ancestor of the following nations; these names denoting people, not individuals, as in ch. xxv. 3, etc.

11 Or, 'the Philistines.'

12 This particular account of Canaan's posterity, and of the country they possessed, was probably inserted by Moses as being peculiarly interesting to the Hebrews, for whom this land was destined.

13 The separation of the human race into distinct tribes and nations (see ch. xi.) probably took place about the time of his birth, his name signifying 'division.'

sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues,¹ in their lands, after their 32 nations. ^m These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations; ⁿ and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

Building of Babel; confusion of tongues.

11 AND the whole earth was of one language, and of one speech. And it came to 2 pass, as they journeyed from the ^o east [or, eastward],² that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there.

3 ^p And they said one to another, Go to, let us make brick,³ and burn them 4 thoroughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime⁴ had they for mortar. And they said, Go to, ^q let us build us a city and a tower, ^r whose top may reach unto heaven;⁵ and let us make us a name, ^s lest we be scattered abroad upon the face 5 of the whole earth. And the LORD came down⁶ to see the city and the tower, 6 which the children of men builded. And the LORD said, Behold, "the people is one, and they have all ^t one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing 7 will be restrained from them, which they have imagined ^u to do.⁷ Go to, ^v let us go down, and there confound their language, ^w that they may not understand one 8 another's speech. ^b So the LORD scattered them abroad from thence, ^c upon the 9 face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city. Therefore is the name of it called Babel⁸ [i. e. confusion]; ^d because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.⁹

Shem's descendants to Terah.

10 ^e THESE are the generations of Shem: Shem was an hundred years old, and 11 begat Arphaxad two years after the flood: and Shem lived after he begat Arphaxad 12 five hundred years, and begat sons and daughters. And Arphaxad lived five and 13 thirty years, ^f and begat Salah: and Arphaxad lived after he begat Salah four 14 hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters. And Salah lived thirty 15 years, and begat Eber: and Salah lived after he begat Eber four hundred and 16 three years, and begat sons and daughters. And ^g Eber lived four and thirty 17 years, and begat ^h Peleg: and Eber lived after he begat Peleg four hundred and 18 thirty years, and begat sons and daughters. And Peleg lived thirty years, and 19 begat Reu: and Peleg lived after he begat Reu two hundred and nine years, and 20 begat sons and daughters. And Reu lived two and thirty years, and begat ⁱ Serug:
 21 and Reu lived after he begat Serug two hundred and seven years, and begat sons
 22 and daughters. And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor: and Serug lived 24 after he begat Nahor two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters. And 25 Nahor lived nine and twenty years, and begat ^k Terah: and Nahor lived after he 26 begat Terah an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters. And Terah lived seventy¹⁰ years, and ^l begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran.¹¹

Terah's family; his migration to Haran.

27 NOW these are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and 28 Haran; and Haran begat Lot. And Haran died before his father Terah in the 29 land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees.¹² And Abram and Nahor took them wives: the name of Abram's wife was ^m Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife, ⁿ Milcah, the daughter of Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah.

1 The division according to 'tongues,' or languages, is here mentioned by anticipation; it being consequent upon the events narrated in the next chapter. The fact of the dispersion is attested by profane as well as by sacred history, and supported by the present physiological peculiarities of different nations, and the mutual relations of their languages.

2 Probably these people had settled in Persia first. 'Shinar' is Babylonia.

3 There is no stone in this district; and the ancient bricks and pottery found here are fine and well burned.

4 Bitumen, or asphalt; a natural production of an adhesive quality, which abounds there.

5 An idiomatic expression, meaning a very great height. See Deut. i. 28; Dan. iv. 11. They would erect a structure which might be a centre of union and power.

6 See note on ch. vi. 6.

7 Or, 'Shall they not be restrained in all they have imagined to do?' If this project had been allowed to succeed, the founders of this city—perhaps Cushites, under Nimrod's sway—would have established an universal despotism, suppressing the worship of God, and fostering every crime.

8 Afterwards Babylon.

9 This narrative gives the only satisfactory explanation of the existing variety of languages; the separation of which seems to have been suddenly and violently effected.

10 As in ch. v. 32, this is the date of the birth of the eldest. Comparing ch. xi. 32 with xii. 4, we infer that Terah was one hundred and thirty years old at the birth of Abram. Probably, then, Haran was the eldest; and if, as the Jews affirm, Sarai was the same as Iscah his daughter (xi. 29), it will follow, from ch. xx. 12, that Haran and Abraham were sons of two different wives of Terah.

11 This genealogy, with those in ch. v. and in Matt. i., form together a complete genealogy of Christ, such as cannot be produced of any other person out of this line.

12 The Chaldees appear to have been originally a tribe of warriors from the north-east of Mesopotamia, probably the mountains of Kourdistān. See Habak. i. 6—11. They afterwards overran the south, which from them took the name of Chaldaea, and where they formed the caste of priests and soldiers. 'Ur' is considered to be identical with Orfah, or Urfah, a city near the Euphrates.

Call of Abram; his journeys to Canaan and to Egypt.

12 NOW the ^sLORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house,³ unto a land that I will show thee:
2 'and I will make of thee a great nation, ^uand I will bless thee, and make thy 3 name great; ^xand thou shalt be a blessing:⁴ and ^yI will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: ^zand in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.⁵
4 ^aSo Abram departed, as the LORD had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.
5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and ^bthe souls that they had gotten ^cin Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; ^dand into the land of Canaan they came.
6 And Abram ^epassed through the land unto the place of Sichem,⁶ unto ^fthe
7 plain⁷ of Moreh. ^gAnd the Canaanite⁸ was then in the land. ^hAnd the LORD appeared⁹ unto Abram, and said, ⁱUnto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an ^kaltar¹⁰ unto the LORD, who appeared unto him.
8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain¹¹ on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Hai on the east: and there he 9 builded an altar unto the LORD, and ^lcalled upon the name of the LORD. And Abram journeyed, ^mgoing on still toward the south.¹² 10 And there was ⁿa famine in the land: and Abram ^owent down into Egypt¹³ to when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, 12 Behold now, I know that thou art ^ra fair woman to look upon: therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see¹⁴ thee, that they shall say, This is his 13 wife: and they ^swill kill me, but they will save thee alive. ^tSay, I pray thee, thou art my sister:¹⁵ that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul¹⁶ shall live because of thee.

14 And it came to pass, that, when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians 15 beheld the woman that she was very fair. The princes also of Pharaoh¹⁷ saw her, and commended her before ^uPharaoh: and the woman was ^vtaken into 16 Pharaoh's house.¹⁸ And he ^zentreated Abram well for her sake: and he had sheep, and oxen, and he-asses, and menservants, and maidservants, and she-asses, and 17 camels. And the LORD ^aplagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues, 18 because of Sarai Abram's wife. And Pharaoh called Abram, and said, ^bWhat is this that thou hast done unto me? why didst thou not tell me that she was thy 19 wife? why saidst thou, She is my sister? so I might have taken her to me to 20 wife: now therefore behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way. ^cAnd Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him: and they sent him away,¹⁹ and his wife,

² Properly, 'Charran,' as in Acts vii. 4.

³ Abram's father and other near relations had accompanied him from Chaldea as far as Haran, and had settled there; but he was to proceed further, and to be completely separated from them.

⁴ That is, to others; being a pattern of faith, ancestor of God's people, and progenitor of Christ.

⁶ Or, 'Shechem,' or 'Sychar,' now Nablus, lying between mount Gerizim and mount Ebal.

⁷ Rather, 'oak,' or 'terebinth.' So ch. xiii. 18; meaning a grove of these trees. And so in subsequent passages.

⁸ These nations had already taken possession of the country, having subdued the Anakim and others who were there before. Some parts, however, appear to have been held by the family of Shem.

⁹ In what way we are not told. God sometimes appeared in human form (ch. xviii.); at other times in visions or dreams (ch. xv. 1).

¹⁰ In token of his faith in the promise, and as a pledge of the maintenance of the worship of Jehovah in his family. See ch. xviii. 19.

¹¹ Rather, 'the mountain region.' Beth-el at this time was called Luz. These frequent removals were necessary, in order to obtain fresh pasture for the cattle.

¹² When Abram had arrived in Canaan, he never made any settlement in it. See Heb. xi. 8—10.

¹³ Egypt is, and always has been, the granary of other nations.

¹⁴ Veils were probably not then used; or, at least, they were not so large as since in the East. See ch. xx. 16.

¹⁵ Abram's dissimulation in this instance, and again in ch. xx., arose from want of faith. This narrative affords no excuse for such conduct; but it shows the impartiality of Scripture history.

¹⁶ This word is often used merely for self.

¹⁷ 'Pharaoh' was the title of the Egyptian kings down to the Babylonian conquest; derived from Phre, 'the sun.'

¹⁸ To undergo the purification preparatory to becoming one of his wives. See Esth. ii. 12.

¹⁹ That is, in an honourable way; probably with presents.

Abram's return to Canaan, and separation from Lot.

- 13 AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, ^ainto the south.¹ ^cAnd Abram was very rich [very heavy] in cattle, in silver, and in gold. And he went on his journeys ^ffrom the south even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai; unto the ^eplace of the altar, which he had made there at the first: and there Abram ^hcalled on the name of the LORD.
- 5 And Lot also, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents. And ⁱthe land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together. And there was ^ka strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle.
- 8 (^lAnd the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land.) And Abram said unto Lot, ^mLet there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; ⁿfor we be brethren. ^oIs not the whole land before thee? separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: ^pif thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.²
- 10 And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all ^qthe plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere, before the LORD ^rdestroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, (^s*even* as the garden of the LORD, like the land of Egypt,) as thou comest unto ^tZoar.³ Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan;⁴ and Lot journeyed east.
- 12 And they separated themselves the one from the other. Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot ^udwelled in the cities of the plain, and ^vpitched his tent toward Sodom. But the men of Sodom ^w*were* wicked and ^xsinnners before the LORD exceedingly.

God's promise renewed to Abram.

- 14 AND the LORD said unto Abram, after that Lot ^awas separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art ^bnorthward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: for all the land which thou seest, ^cto thee will I give it, and ^dto thy seed for ever. And ^eI will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered. Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.
- 18 Then Abram removed his tent, and came and ^fdwelt in the plain⁵ of Mamre, ^gwhich is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the LORD.

Invasion of Canaan; capture and rescue of Lot; Melchizedek.

- 14 AND it came to pass in the days of Amraphel king⁶ of ^hShinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of ⁱElam, and Tidal king of nations; that these made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of ^jAdmah, and Shemeber king of Zeboim, and the king of Bela, which is ^kZoar. All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, ^mwhich is the salt sea. Twelve years ⁿthey served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled. And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him, and smote ^othe Rephaims ^pin Ashteroth Karnaim; and ^qthe Zuzims in Ham, ^rand the Emims⁷ in Shaveh Kiriathaim [or, the plain of Kirjathaim], ^sand the Horites⁸ in their Mount Seir, unto ^tEl-paran [or, the plain of Paran], which is ^uKadesh, and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt ^vin Hazezon-tamar.⁹
- 8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboim, and the king of Bela (the same is Zoar); and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim; with Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and

² Although there was every reason for Abram's choosing first, he receded from his right, for peace' sake. Such is the condescension and generosity which earnest faith and love to God will produce in human intercourse.

³ The meaning appears to be, that Lot saw that the plain of Jordan, as far as to Zoar, was well watered, and like Egypt in fertility.

⁴ Lot seems not to have considered the character of the people amongst whom he settled, who abused the fertility of their country to foster pride and idleness. See Ezek. xvi. 49. He soon paid dearly for his unwise choice.

⁵ See note on ch. xii. 6.

⁶ This word is often applied to the ruler of a single town, or the chieftain of a tribe. 'Ellasar' was probably in Media. 'Elam' was the ancient Susiana, a province of Persia, now called Khuzistan. 'Nations' means, probably, the wandering tribes of the Hauran.

⁸ These people appear to have begun the practice, which their successors have continued, of dwelling in the caverns of their mountains.

⁹ Afterwards Engedi, now Ain-Jidy. This route is still taken by the Arabs in similar marauding expeditions.

10 Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five. And the vale of Siddim was full of *slimepits.*¹ And the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there; and 11 they that remained fled ²to the mountain. And they took ^aall the goods of 12 Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way. And they took Lot, Abram's ^bbrother's son, ^cwho dwelt in Sodom, and his goods, and departed.
 13 And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the ^dHebrew;² for ^ehe dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of 14 Aner; ^fand these were confederate with Abram. And when Abram heard that ^ghis brother was taken captive, he armed [or, led forth] his trained servants, ^hborn in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them ⁱunto 15 Dan.³ And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and ^ksmote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of 16 Damascus. And he brought back ^lall the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.⁴ 17 And the king of Sodom ^mwent out to meet him ⁿafter his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him, at the valley of 18 Shaveh, which is the ^oking's dale. And ^pMelchizedek⁵ king of ^qSalem brought 19 forth bread and wine: and he was ^rthe priest of ^sthe most high God. And he ^tblessed him, and said, "Blessed be Abram of the most high God, ^upossessor of 20 heaven and earth: and ^vblessed be the most high God, ^wwhich hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he⁶ gave him tithes ^xof all.
 21 And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the persons, and take the 22 goods to thyself. And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I ^yhave lift up mine 23 hand unto the LORD, the most high God, ^zthe possessor of heaven and earth, that ^aI will not take from a thread even to a shoelatchet, and that I will not take any 24 thing that is thine, lest thou shouldst say, I have made Abram rich: ^bsave only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men ^cwhich went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; ^dlet them take their portion.

God's covenant with Abram solemnly renewed.

15 AFTER these things the word of the LORD came unto Abram ^hin a vision, saying, 'Fear not, Abram: I am thy ^kshield, and thy exceeding ^lgreat reward.'⁷ 2 ^mAnd Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, ⁿseeing I go⁸ childless,
 3 and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus? And Abram said, ^oBehold, to me thou hast given no seed: and, lo, ^pone born in my house⁹ is mine
 4 heir. And, behold, the word of the LORD came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that ^qshall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be 5 thine heir. And he brought him forth abroad, and said, ^rLook now toward heaven, and ^stell the ^tstars, if thou be able to number them: and he said unto 6 him, "So shall thy seed be. And he ^ubelieved in the LORD; and he ^vcounted it to him for righteousness.
 7 And he said unto him, I am the LORD that ^zbrought thee out of ^aUr of the 8 Chaldees, ^bto give thee this land to inherit it. And he said, Lord God, ^cwhereby 9 shall I know that I shall inherit it? And he said unto him, ^dTake me an heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, 10 and a turtledove, and a young pigeon.¹⁰ And he took unto him all these, ^eand divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another; but ^fthe 11 birds divided he not. And when the fowls came down upon the carcases, ^gAbram drove them away.
 12 And when the sun was going down¹¹ a deep ^hsleep¹² fell upon Abram; and, lo, 13 an horror of great darkness fell upon him. And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety ⁱthat thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall

4 Never was any military expedition undertaken and finished more honourably than this of Abram.

5 Probably a Shemitish chief; certainly a worshipper and priest of Jehovah. His name, signifying King of Righteousness, and the name of his kingdom, which makes him to be King of Peace, are referred to in Heb. vii. as illustrations of the peculiar glory of that Kingly Priest of his own order whom he prefigured (see Psa. cx. 4); while, from the circumstance that his race, parentage, time of appointment to the priestly office, and death, are unrecorded, he strikingly represents the kingship and priesthood of our Lord Jesus.

10 These were the animals afterwards appointed to be offered in the Levitical sacrifices. Sacrifice was required by God in making a covenant, to keep men in mind of the great propitiation.

11 Abram seems to have passed the whole day in this solemn transaction.

12 This trance, with its usually attendant awe, was experienced by others to whom Divine revelations were given. See Job iv. 13, 14; Dan. x. 8.

14 ^kserve¹ them; and ^lthey shall afflict them ^mfour hundred² years; and also that nation, whom they shall serve, ⁿwill I judge: and afterward ^oshall they come out with great substance. And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold ^va smoking furnace,⁵ and a burning lamp [a lamp of fire] that ^wpassed between those pieces.

18 In the same day the LORD ^xmade a covenant with Abram, saying, ^yUnto thy seed have I given this land, from the river⁶ of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates; the Kenites, and the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites,⁷ and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaims, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.

Birth of Ishmael.

16 NOW Sarai Abram's wife ^bbare him no children: and she had an handmaid, ^can Egyptian, whose name was ^dHagar. ^eAnd Sarai said unto Abram, Behold now, the LORD ^fhath restrained me from bearing: I pray thee, ^ggo in unto my maid; it may be that I may ^hobtain children by her.⁸ And Abram ⁱhearkened to the voice of Sarai. And Sarai Abram's wife took Hagar her maid the Egyptian, after Abram ^khad dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife. And he went in unto Hagar, and she conceived: and when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress was ^ldespised in her eyes. ^mAnd Sarai said unto Abram, My wrong ⁿbe upon thee: I have given my maid into thy bosom; and when she saw that she had conceived, I was despised in her eyes: ^othe LORD judge between me and thee. ^pBut Abram said unto Sarai, ^qBehold, thy maid is in thy hand; do to her as it pleaseth thee. And when Sarai dealt hardly with her, ^rshe fled from her face.

7 ^sAnd the angel⁹ of the LORD found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness, ^tby the fountain in the way to ^uShur.¹⁰ And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence camest thou? and whither wilt thou go? And she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai. And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Return to thy mistress, and ^vsubmit thyself under her hands. And the angel of the LORD said unto her, ^wI will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude. And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Behold, thou ^xart with child, and shalt bear a son, ^yand shalt call his name Ishmael [i. e. God shall hear]; ^zbecause the LORD ^ahath heard thy affliction. ^bAnd he will be a wild¹¹ man; ^chis hand ^dwill be against every man, and every man's hand against him; ^eand he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren. 1 Or, 'they (the Egyptians) shall enslave them.'

2 That is, about that time. From the birth of Isaac till the departure of the Israelites from Egypt was 405 years.

3 That is, from the going down of Jacob and his family into Egypt. Moses and Caleb were the fourth generation from Levi and Judah.

4 The Amorites being the principal nation among the Canaanites, their name is here used for the whole.

5 This word sometimes means a portable oven used for baking bread; and is often employed to represent the punishment of God's enemies (see Ps. xxi. 9; Mal. iv. 1): whilst 'a burning lamp' is the symbol of deliverance. See Isa. lxii. 1.

6 The Nile and Euphrates represent (as in Isa. xxvii. 12; Jer. ii. 18) the two great kingdoms which were to be the opposite limits of the territories of Israel. The dominions of David and Solomon appear to have extended thus far. Some, however, suppose that this promise is to have its fulfilment in the future restoration of the Jews to Canaan.

7 Some of these tribes had probably merged into others, before the Israelites conquered the land.

8 A practice unhappily common in that country (see ch. xxx. 3), but wrong and mischievous. A secondary wife remained still a slave, if she had been so before.

9 This word is of frequent occurrence in the Bible; and signifies any Divine agent or messenger, whether a providential dispensation, a man, a being of a higher order, or, as here, when called the angel [of] Jehovah, God himself appearing in human form (Exod. xxiii. 20, 21).

10 This was the nearest way to Egypt, her native land.

11 Nothing short of Divine prescience could predict the remarkable nomadic and predatory habits which Ishmael and his posterity, through successive ages, would adopt, and which were the less to be expected as his mother belonged to a civilized and settled nation. This prophecy has been strikingly fulfilled in the history of the various tribes of Arabs, many of whom are descended from Ishmael; and who have, even to the present day, remained a fierce, hardy, distinct, and unsubdued race, subsisting chiefly by plunder.

12 Some translate this, 'Thou art the God that appeareth.' The other part of the verse is obscure, and may mean, 'Do I still live after seeing God?' or, 'Have

2 thou ^p perfect [or, upright ; or, sincere]. And I will make my covenant between 3 me and thee, and ^q will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram ^r fell on his face :
4 and God talked with him, saying, As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee,
5 and thou shalt be ^s a father of many nations.¹ Neither shall thy name any more 6 be called Abram, but ^t thy name shall be Abraham [i. e. father of a great multi-
7 tude] ; ^u for a father of many nations have I made thee. And I will make thee
8 exceeding fruitful, and I will make ^v nations of thee, and ^w kings shall come out of 9 thee. And I will ^x establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after 10 thee in their generations for an everlasting² covenant, ^y to be a God unto thee, and 11 to ^z thy seed after thee. And ^a I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, 12 the land ^b wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, ^c for an everlasting 13 possession ; and ^d I will be their God.

9 And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and 10 thy seed after thee in their generations. This is my covenant, which ye shall 11 keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee ; ^e Every man child among you 12 shall be circumcised.³ And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin ; and 13 it shall be ^f a token of the covenant betwixt me and you. And he that is eight 14 days old ^g shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, 15 ^h he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is 16 not of thy seed. He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy 17 money, must needs be circumcised : and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an 18 everlasting covenant. And the uncircumcised man child whose flesh of his fore-19 skin is not circumcised, that soul ⁱ shall be cut off⁴ from his people ; he hath 20 broken my covenant.

15 And God said unto Abraham, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her 16 name Sarai, but Sarah [i. e. princess] shall her name be. And I will bless her, 17 ^m and give thee a son also of her : yea, I will bless her, and she shall be a mother
18 ⁿ of nations ; kings of people shall be of her.

17 Then Abraham fell upon his face, ^o and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall 18 a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old ? and shall Sarah, that is 19 ninety years old, bear ? And Abraham said unto God, Oh that Ishmael might 20 live⁵ before thee ! And God said, ^p Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed ;
21 and thou shalt call his name Isaac : and I will establish my covenant with him
22 for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him. And as for Ishmael, 23 ^q I have heard thee : Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, 24 and ^r will multiply him exceedingly ; ^s twelve princes shall he beget, ^t and I will 25 make him a great nation. ^u But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, ^v which 26 Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year.

22 And he left off talking with him, and God went up from Abraham. And 23 Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that 24 were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house ;
25 and circumcised the flesh of their foreskin ^y in the selfsame day, as God had said
26 unto him. And Abraham was ninety years old and nine, when he was circum-27 cised in the flesh of his foreskin. And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, 28 when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. In the selfsame day was 29 Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son. And ^z all the men of his house, born 30 in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

The promise repeated ; Abraham's intercession for Sodom.

18 AND the LORD appeared unto him ^a in the plains of Mamre : and he sat in the 2 tent door in the heat of the day ; ^b and he lift up his eyes and looked, and, lo, 3 three men⁶ stood by him ; ^c and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the 4 tent door, and bowed himself toward the ground, and said, My Lord, if now I
5 have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant :
6 let ^d a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet,⁷ and rest yourselves
7 under the tree : and ^e I will fetch a morsel of bread, and ^f comfort ye your hearts ;
8 after that ye shall pass on : ^g for therefore are ye come to your servant. And they 9 said, So do, as thou hast said.

I also here (though away from Abram's tent) beheld Him that appeared to me ?

¹ Abram was the natural progenitor of the Israelites and Edomites, as well as of many Arabian tribes ; and the spiritual father of all believers (Rom. iv. 11, 17).

² That is, irrevocable. As far as the covenant related to spiritual blessings it was properly everlasting.

³ The practice of this rite by the descendants of Abraham would remind them of God's covenant, and of their own obligations to holiness as his people. See refs.

⁴ That is, from all their peculiar privileges ; and, in cases of wilful disobedience, probably with further punishment.

⁵ A word often including all good. See 2 Pet. i. 3.

⁶ Two of whom were angels in human form, and the third Jehovah. See note on ch. xvi. 7. The patriarch, however, was not at first aware of their celestial nature (Heb. xiii. 2) : so that he was performing only an ordinary act of hospitality, such as the Arabs still practise.

6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, Make ready quickly 7 three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth. And Abraham ran unto the herd, and fetched a calf tender and good, and gave it unto 8 a young man; and he hasted to dress it. And ^a he took butter, and milk, and the calf which he had dressed, and set it before them; and he stood by them under the tree, and they did eat.

9 And they said unto him, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, ^a in 10 the tent. And he said, I ^b will certainly return unto thee ^c according to the time of life; and, lo, ^d Sarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard it in the 11 tent door, ^e which was behind him. Now ^f Abraham and Sarah were old and well stricken in age; and it seemed to be with Sarah ^g after the manner of women.
12 Therefore Sarah ^h laughed within herself, saying, ⁱ After I am waxed old shall I 13 have pleasure, my ^j lord being old also? And the Lord said unto Abraham, Wherefore did Sarah laugh, saying, Shall I of a surety bear a child, which am 14 old? ^k Is any thing too hard for the Lord? ^l At the time appointed I will return 15 unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son. Then Sarah denied, saying, I laughed not; for she was afraid. And he said, ^m Nay; but thou didst laugh.

16 And the men rose up from thence, and looked toward Sodom: and Abraham
17 went with them ⁿ to bring them on the way. And the Lord said, ^o Shall I hide 18 from Abraham that thing which I do; ^p seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be ^q blessed in 19 him? ^r For I know him, ^s that he will command his children and his household after him, ^t and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment;
that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And the Lord said, Because ^u the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, ^v and 21 because their sin is very grievous; ^w I will go down now, ^x and see ^y whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me; and if 22 not, ^z I will know. And the men turned their faces from thence, ^a and went toward Sodom: but Abraham ^b stood yet before the Lord.

23 And Abraham ^c drew near, and said, ^d Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with 24 the wicked? ^e Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou 25 also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?
^f That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked: ^g and that the righteous should be as the wicked, that be far from thee:

26 ^h Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right? And the Lord said, ⁱ If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their 27 sakes. And Abraham answered and said, ^j Behold now, I have taken upon me 28 to speak unto the Lord, which am ^k but dust and ashes. Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous: ^l wilt thou destroy all the city for lack of five?

29 And he said, If I find there forty and five, I will not destroy it. And he spake unto him yet again, and said, Peradventure there shall be forty found there. And 30 he said, I will not do it for forty's sake. And he said ^m unto him, Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak! Peradventure there shall thirty be found there.

31 And he said, I will not do it, if I find thirty there. And he said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord. Peradventure there shall be twenty 32 found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for twenty's sake. And he said, ⁿ Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak yet but this once! Peradventure 33 ten shall be found there. ^o And he said, I will not destroy it for ten's sake.
And the Lord went his way, as soon as he had left communing with Abraham:
and Abraham returned unto his place.

Destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah; deliverance and further history of Lot.

19 AND there ^a came two angels to Sodom at even; and Lot sat in the gate ^b of Sodom: and ^c Lot seeing them rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with 2 his face toward the ground; and he said, Behold now, my lords, ^d turn in, I pray you, into your servant's house, and tarry all night, and ^e wash your feet, and ye people travel barefooted, or with open sandals. It is often mentioned in Scripture.

¹ Rather, 'within the tent door.'

² This narrative illustrates the high privilege of the believer in his communion with God. We see, on the one hand, God's approving testimony to Abraham's piety (ver. 19); the gracious revelation of his purposes (vers. 17, 18); and his readiness to hear and answer his servant's prayers (ver. 26, etc.): on the other, Abraham's humble boldness (ver. 23, etc.) and earnest perseverance in pleading not only for the righteous, but even also for the reprobate sinners in Sodom.

³ It is plainly the duty, as well as the interest, of masters of families to instruct and inspect the conduct of all under their control.

⁴ Implying that God's punishments are always indisputably just. See note on ch. vi. 6.

shall rise up early, and go on your ways. And they said, 'Nay; but we will 3 abide in the street all night. And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house; and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat.
4 'But before they lay down, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, com-passed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter:
5 and they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in 6 to thee this night? bring them out unto us, that we may know them. And 7 Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him, and said, I 8 pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly. Behold now, I have two daughters which have not known man, let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes: only unto these men do nothing; for there-9 fore came they under the shadow of my roof.¹ And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn, and he will needs be a judge: now will we deal worse with thee, than with them. And they pressed 10 sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door. But the men put 11 forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door. And they smote the men that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door.
12 And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides? son-in-law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring them out of 13 this place: for we will destroy this place, because the cry of them is waxen great 14 before the face of the Lord; and the Lord hath sent us to destroy it. And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons-in-law, which married his daughters, and said, Up, get you out of this place; for the Lord will destroy this city. But he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons-in-law.
15 And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, which are here; lest thou be consumed in the 16 iniquity [or, punishment] of the city. And while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; the Lord being merciful unto him: and they brought him forth, 17 and set him without the city. And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he said, Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, neither 18 stay thou in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed. And 19 Lot said unto them, Oh! not so, my Lord: behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast showed unto me in saving my life; and I cannot escape to the mountain, lest some evil 20 take me, and I die: behold now, this city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one: Oh! let me escape thither, (is it not a little one?) and my soul shall live.
21 And he said unto him, See, I have accepted thee concerning this thing also, that 22 I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou hast spoken. Haste thee, escape thither, for I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither.² Therefore 23 the name of the city was called Zoar [i. e. little]. The sun was risen upon the earth when Lot entered into Zoar.
24 Then the Lord rained upon Sodom and Gomorrah brimstone and fire from 25 the Lord out of heaven; and he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all 26 the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground. But his wife 27 looked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt. And Abraham 28 gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the Lord: and he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, and, lo, the smoke of the country went up as the smoke of a furnace.
29 And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when he 30 overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt. And Lot went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters with him; for he feared to dwell

1 There is much in this narrative to show that Lot's residence in Sodom had greatly injured his character; and to serve as a solemn warning against evil communications and familiarity with sin. But, sinful as Lot's proposal was, it proved his abhorrence of the wickedness of the Sodomites; and his anxiety to preserve the rights of hospitality, which were then, and are still, regarded in Asiatic countries as of most sacred obligation: so that a man who has taken a stranger under his care is bound to protect him, even at the hazard of his own life.

2 Or, 'were betrothed to.' Lot may have had other daughters married in the city; or, perhaps, the persons here referred to were the intended husbands of the two who escaped.

4 The traces of this awful catastrophe are still visible in the neighbourhood, and afford a perpetual testimony to the truth of Scripture history. Bitumen, sulphur, and salt, with volcanic products, abound. This judgment is often referred to in Scripture as a pattern of the ruin of other remarkably wicked nations (Deut. xxix. 23; Isa. xiii. 19; Jer. xlix. 18; Zeph. ii. 9); and is used as a warning to the ungodly (Matt. x. 15; 2 Pet. ii. 6; Jude 7).

31 in Zoar: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters. ^y And the firstborn said unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth ^z to come in unto us after the manner of all the earth: come, let us make our father ^a drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we ^b may preserve seed of our father. 33 And they made their father drink wine that night: and the firstborn went in, and lay with her father; ^c and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she 34 arose. ^d And it came to pass on the morrow, that the firstborn said unto the younger, Behold, I lay yesternight with my father: let us make him drink wine this night also; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preserve seed of 35 our father. ^e And they made their father drink wine that night also: and the younger arose, and lay with him; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor 36 when she arose. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child by their father. 37 And the firstborn bare a son, and called his name Moab: ^f the same is the father 38 of the Moabites unto this day. And the younger, she also bare a son, and called his name Ben-ammi: ^g the same is the father of the children of Ammon unto this day.

Abraham at Gerar denies his wife.

20 AND Abraham journeyed from ^h thence toward the south country, and dwelled ⁱ between ^j Kadesh and Shur, and ^k sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, ^l She is my sister: and Abimelech ^m king of Gerar sent, and ⁿ took Sarah. 3 But ^o God came to Abimelech ^p in a dream by night, and said to him, ^q Behold, thou art ^r but a dead man, for the woman which thou hast taken; for she is a man's 4 wife. ^s But Abimelech had not come near her: and he said, LORD, ^t wilt thou slay 5 also a righteous nation? Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and she, even she herself said, He is my brother: ^u in the integrity [or, simplicity; or, sincerity] 6 of my heart ^v and innocency of my hands have I done this. And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for ^w I also withheld thee from sinning ^x against me: therefore suffered I thee not 7 to touch her. Now therefore restore the man his wife; ^y for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live: and if thou restore her not, ^z know thou that thou shalt surely die, thou, ^a and all that are thine. 8 Therefore Abimelech rose early in the morning, and called all his servants, and 9 told all these things in their ears: and the men were sore afraid. Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said unto him, ^b What hast thou done unto us? and what have I offended thee, ^c that thou hast brought on me and on my kingdom a great sin? 10 thou hast done deeds unto me ^d that ought not to be done. And Abimelech 11 said unto Abraham, What sawest thou, ^e that thou hast done this thing? And Abraham said, Because I thought, Surely ^f the fear of God is not in this place; 12 and ^g they will slay me for my wife's sake. And yet indeed ^h she is my sister; she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she 13 became my wife. And it came to pass, when ⁱ God caused me to wander from my father's house, that I said unto her, This is thy kindness which thou shalt show unto me; at every place whither we shall come, ^j say of me, He is my brother. 14 And Abimelech ^k took sheep, and oxen, and menservants, and womenservants, and 15 gave them unto Abraham, and restored him Sarah his wife. And Abimelech 16 said, Behold, ^l my land is before thee: dwell where it pleaseth thee. And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given ^m thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: ⁿ behold, he ^o is to thee ^p a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee, and 17 with all other: thus she was ^q reproved. So Abraham ^r prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maidservants; and they bare 18 children. For the LORD ^s had fast closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech, because of Sarah Abraham's wife.

Birth of Isaac; dismissal of Hagar and Ishmael.

21 AND the LORD ^t visited Sarah as he had said, ^u and the LORD did unto Sarah ^v as he had spoken. For Sarah ^w conceived, and bare Abraham a son in his old age, 3 ^x at the set time of which God had spoken to him. And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, ^y Isaac. 4 And Abraham ^z circumcised his son Isaac being eight days old, ^a as God had 5 commanded him. And ^b Abraham was an hundred years old, when his son Isaac 6 was born unto him. And Sarah said, ^c God hath made me to laugh, so that all

1 This narrative is introduced probably because the Moabites and Ammonites were in after ages neighbours, and often enemies of Israel.

2 Abimelech appears to have been not a personal, but a regal name, like Pharaoh in Egypt.

3 It appears from Abimelech's question that the people of Gerar were not such open sinners as their neighbours.

4 Or, 'it (the silver) is for (i. e. to get) a veil for thee.

5 A pledge of the fulfilment of those other promises which required longer time for their accomplishment.

7 that hear ^d will laugh with me. And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children suck? ^e for I have born him a son in his old age. And the child grew, and was weaned: ¹ and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 And Sarah saw the son of Hagar ^f the Egyptian, ^g which she had born unto Abraham, ^h mocking. Wherefore she said unto Abraham, ⁱ Cast out this bondwoman and her son: for the son of this bondwoman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac. And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight ^k because of his son. And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight because of the lad, and because of thy bondwoman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice; for ^l in Isaac shall thy seed be called. 13 And also of the son of the bondwoman will I make ^m a nation, because he is thy seed. And Abraham rose up ⁿ early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle ² of water, and gave it unto Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, and the child, and ^o sent her away.

15 And she departed, and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba. And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child ³ under one of the shrubs. 16 And she went, and sat her down over against him a good way off, as it were a bowshot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over 17 against him, and lift up her voice, and wept. And ^p God heard the voice of the lad; and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is. Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand; for ^q I will make him a great nation. And ^r God opened ⁴ her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink. 20 And God ^s was with the lad; ⁵ and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, ^t and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran: ⁶ and his mother ^u took him a wife out of the land of Egypt.

22 AND it came to pass at that time, that ^x Abimelech and Phichol the chief captain of his host spake unto Abraham, saying, ^y God is with thee in all that thou doest: now therefore ^z swear unto me here by God that thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son: but ^a according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned. ^b And Abraham said, I will swear. ^c And Abraham 25 reproved Abimelech because of a well ⁷ of water, which Abimelech's servants ^d had violently taken away. And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing: neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it, but to-day. And Abraham took sheep and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech; and both of 28 them ^e made a covenant. And Abraham set seven ewe lambs of the flock by 29 themselves. And Abimelech said unto Abraham, ^f What mean these seven ⁸ ewe lambs which thou hast set by themselves? And he said, For these seven ewe lambs shalt thou take of my hand, that ^g they may be a witness unto me, that I 31 have digged this well. Wherefore he ^h called that place Beer-sheba [i. e. The 32 well of the oath]; because there they sware both of them. Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phichol the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of the Philistines. 33 And Abraham planted a grove [or, tree] in Beer-sheba, and ⁱ called there on 34 the name of the LORD, ^k the everlasting God. And Abraham sojourned in the Philistines' land many days.

Abraham, being tried, offers Isaac, and obtains new promises.

22 AND it came to pass ^l after these things that ^m God did ⁿ tempt ⁹ Abraham, and 2 said unto him, Abraham: and he said, Behold, here I am. And he said, Take

¹ Probably when he was three years old.

² Formed of a kid-skin, the legs of which were used to fasten over the shoulder of the bearer.

³ Rather, 'placed the youth.' Ishmael was now seventeen years old, but probably less able than his mother to bear the heat; and so leaned upon her until he sank exhausted under one of the shrubs, the retem, with which this desert still abounds. See 1 Kings xix. 5.

⁴ Directed her attention to that which in her anxiety she had overlooked.

⁵ God protected and prospered him.

⁶ This is the name of a district between Egypt and Edom, and extending from Beersheba nearly to Sinai, which is still inhabited by wandering tribes of Arabs, who boast their descent from Ishmael, and still retain the customs of the patriarchs.

⁷ The possession of wells of good water is a matter of great importance in such a country; and often becomes an occasion of contention between different tribes.

⁸ A number to which peculiar sacredness is still attached, and from which the Hebrew name for an oath is probably derived.

now ^o thy son, ^p thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee ^q into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

3 And Abraham ^r rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him. Then 4 on the third ¹ day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off. And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass; and I and the 5 lad will go yonder and worship, ^s and come again to you. And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering, and ^t laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the 6 fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together. And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the lamb for 7 a burnt offering? And Abraham said, My son, ^u God will provide ² himself a lamb for a burnt offering: so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, ^x and bound Isaac his son, and ^y laid him on the altar upon the wood. And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and 10 took the knife to slay his son. And the angel ³ of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I. And he said, 11 ^z Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for ^a now I know that thou fearest God, ^b seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only 12 son from me. And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him ^c a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son.

14 And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh ⁴ [i. e. The Lord will see, or, provide]; as it is said to this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen. ⁵

15 And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, 16 and said, ^d By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done 17 this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son: ^e that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed ^f as the stars of the heaven, ^g and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and ^h thy seed shall possess 18 ⁱ the gate ⁶ of his enemies; ^k and in thy seed ⁷ shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; ^j because thou hast obeyed my voice.

19 ^m So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they rose up and went together to ⁿ Beer-sheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

Nahor's family; death and burial of Sarah.

20 AND it came to pass after these things, that it was told Abraham, saying, 21 Behold, ^o Milcah, she hath also born children unto thy brother Nahor; ⁸ Huz ^p his firstborn, and Buz his brother, and Kemuel the father ^q of Aram, and Chesed, and 22 Hazo, and Pildash, and Jidlaph, and Bethuel. And ^r Bethuel begat ^s Rebekah: 23 these eight Milcah did bear to Nahor, Abraham's brother. And his concubine, whose name was Reumah, she bare also Tebah, and Gaham, and Thahash, and Maachah.

23 And Sarah was an hundred and seven and twenty years old: these were the 2 years of the life of Sarah. And Sarah died in ^t Kirjath-arba; the same is ^u Hebron in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.

3 And Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spake unto the sons of Heth, 4 saying, ^x I am a stranger and a sojourner with you: ^y give me a possession of a burying-place with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.

5, 6 And the children of Heth answered Abraham, saying unto him, Hear us, my lord: thou art ^z a mighty prince among us: in the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead; none of us shall withhold from thee his sepulchre, but that thou mayest bury thy dead.

7 And Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, even to 8 the children of Heth. And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind

¹ The distance is about fifty miles, and takes more than twenty hours with camels.

² Heb., 'see;' perhaps, 'choose.' See ver. 14.

³ Or, 'Angel-Jehovah.' And so elsewhere.

⁴ Repeating his words, ver. 8. This phrase, modified into the single word Moriah (which has the same meaning), was long retained as the name of the mountain on which the temple was afterwards built by Solomon.

⁵ Or, 'In the mount the Lord will provide,' or, 'will choose:' a proverb similar in meaning to one in frequent use among us, 'Man's extremity is God's opportunity.'

⁶ The place where kings and judges held their courts. The meaning is, 'Thy seed shall rule over their enemies.'

⁷ Or, 'through thy seed.' This, as explained in Gal. iii. 16, intimates that the Messiah should be of the posterity of Abraham.

 9 Ephron the son of Zohar, that he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field; for as much money as it is worth he shall give it me for a possession of a burying-place amongst you.

 11 in at the gate of his city, saying, ^b Nay, my lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the presence of the sons of my people give I it thee: bury thy dead.

 14, 15 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him, My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred ^d shekels of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.
 16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron; and Abraham ^e weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred
 17 shekels of silver, current money with the merchant. And ^f the field of Ephron which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders

 19 And after this, ^g Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Mach-
 20 pelah before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan. And the field, and the cave that is therein, ^h were made sure unto Abraham for a possession of a burying-place² by the sons of Heth.

² A burying-place was the only portion of land Abraham possessed in Canaan: yet it was a sort of earnest of the future possession of the land by his posterity, and would tend to endear it to them.

³ One hundred and forty years of age: Isaac being, at this time, forty.

⁴ Probably Eliezer of Damascus (ch. xv. 2). As in the following narrative, the effect of good example, good instructions, and the worship of God in a family, will generally be seen in the piety, faithfulness, prudence, and affection of its various members.

⁵ A solemn form of attestation. In this chapter we have a representation of customs very different from ours, but for the most part accordant with the present habits of the Arabs. The important commission given to the chief servant; his anxiety for a providential sign; the present of the nose-jewel and armlets, of no little weight; the prompt invitation of Laban, and the part which, as Rebekah's brother, he takes in the transaction; the refusal of the servant to partake of hospitality till the business was settled; the decision of the question without reference to Rebekah's inclinations; her sudden separation from her parents and country, and her mode of presenting herself to her destined husband; with the important assurance that 'he loved her' who thus became his wife—are all lively pictures of eastern life, made the more interesting by the peculiar aspect in which they present the piety of Abraham and of his servant.

⁶ Not to Ur, but to Charran (or Haran), where Abraham's brother had remained. See ch. xi. 31; xii. 1—5.

⁷ Or, 'and all the best things of his master with him.'

without the city by a well of water at the time of the evening, even the time ^a that women go out to draw water.

12 And he said, ^b O LORD God of my master Abraham, I pray thee, ^c send me good 13 speed this day, and show kindness unto my master Abraham. Behold, ^d I stand 14 here by the well of water; and ^e the daughters of the men of the city come out to 15 draw water: and let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, Let 16 down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and she shall say, Drink, and 17 I will give thy camels drink also: let the same be she that thou hast appointed 18 for thy servant Isaac; and ^f thereby ¹ shall I know that thou hast showed kindness 19 unto my master.

20 ^g And it came to pass, ^h before he had done speaking, that, behold, Rebekah 21 came out, (who was born to Bethuel, son of ⁱ Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's 22 brother,) with her pitcher upon her shoulder. And the damsel ^k was very fair 23 to look upon, a virgin, neither had any man known her: and she went down ² to 24 the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up. And the servant ran to meet her,
25 and said, Let me, I pray thee, drink a little water of thy pitcher. ³ And she said, 26 Drink, my lord: and she hastened, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and 27 gave him drink. And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will 28 draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking. And she hastened, 29 and emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again unto the well to draw 30 water, and drew for all his camels. And the man wondering at her held his 31 peace, to wit ³ whether ^m the LORD had made his journey prosperous or not.

32 And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a 33 golden ⁿ earring ⁴ [or, jewel for the forehead] of half a shekel weight, and two 34 bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold; and said, Whose daughter
35 art thou? tell me, I pray thee: is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge
36 in? And she said unto him, ^o I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, 37 which she bare unto Nahor. She said moreover unto him, We have both straw 38 and provender enough, and room to lodge in. And the man ^p bowed down his 39 head, and worshipped the LORD. And he said, ^q Blessed be the LORD God of my 40 master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master of ^r his mercy and his 41 truth; I being in the way, the LORD ^s led me to the house of my master's brethren.

42 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mother's house these things. And 43 Rebekah had a brother, and his name was ^t Laban: and Laban ran out unto the 44 man, unto the well. And it came to pass, when he saw the earring and bracelets 45 upon his sister's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, 46 saying, Thus spake the man unto me; that he came unto the man; and, behold, 47 he stood by the camels at the well. And he said, Come in, ^u thou blessed of the 48 LORD: ⁵ wherefore standest thou without? for I have prepared the house, and 49 room for the camels. And the man came into the house: and he ⁶ ungirded his 50 camels, and ^x gave straw and provender for the camels, and water to wash his 51 feet, and the men's feet that were with him. And there was set meat before him 52 to eat: but he said, ^y I will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he said, 53 Speak on.

34, 35 And he said, I am Abraham's servant. And the LORD ^z hath blessed my master greatly; and he is become great: and he hath given him flocks, and herds, and silver, and gold, and menservants, and maidservants, and camels, and asses.
36 And Sarah my master's wife ^a bare a son to my master when she was old: and 37 ^b unto him hath he given all that he hath. And my master ^c made me swear, 38 saying, Thou shalt not take a wife to my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, 39 in whose land I dwell: ^d but thou shalt go unto my father's house, and to my 40 kindred, and take a wife unto my son. ^e And I said unto my master, Peradven-
41 ture the woman will not follow me. ^f And he said unto me, The LORD, ^g before 42 whom I walk, will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way; and thou 43 shalt take a wife for my son of my kindred, and of my father's house: ^h then 44 shalt thou be clear from this my oath, when thou comest to my kindred; and if 45 they give not thee one, thou shalt be clear from my oath. And I came this day
46 unto the well, and said, ⁱ O LORD God of my master Abraham, if now thou do 47 prosper my way which I go: ^j behold, I stand by the well of water; and it shall 48 come to pass, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her,

3 That is, 'to know.'

4 Rather, 'nose-ring,' an ornament common in some countries. The bracelets are made to slip over the hand, and are worn on the arms. This and other allusions show that the arts necessary to the obtaining and refining of metals were already known and practised. See also Job xxviii. 1—11.

5 The language of the Arabs, to the present day, often expresses a piety and generosity to which, like Laban, they are really strangers.

6 That is, Laban, either personally or by his servants.

44 Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink; and she say to me,
Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels: let the same be the woman
45 whom the LORD hath appointed out for my master's son. ¹ And before I had done
^m speaking in mine heart, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down unto the well, and drew water: and I said unto 46 her, Let me drink, I pray thee. And she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder, and said, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: so I 47 drank, and she made the camels drink also. And I asked her, and said, Whose daughter art thou? And she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I ⁿ put the earring upon her face, and the bracelets 48 upon her hands. ^o And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had led me in the right way 49 to take ^p my master's brother's daughter unto his son. And now if ye will ^q deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.

50 Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, ^r The thing proceedeth from the 51 LORD: we cannot ^s speak unto thee bad or good. Behold, Rebekah ^t is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the LORD hath 52 spoken. And it came to pass, that, when Abraham's servant heard their words, 53 he ^u worshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth. And the servant brought forth ^v jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: ¹ he gave also to her brother and to her mother ^w precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night; and they rose up in the morning, and he said, ^z Send me away unto 55 my master. And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with 56 us ^a a few days, at the least ten; after that she shall go. And he said unto them, ^b Hinder me not, seeing the LORD hath prospered my way; send me away that I 57 may go to my master. And they said, We will call the damsel, and inquire at 58 her mouth. And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with 59 this man? And she said, I will go. ² And they sent away Rebekah their sister, 60 and ^c her nurse, ³ and Abraham's servant, and his men. And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou ^d the mother of thousands of millions, and ^e let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

61 And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and fol-62 lowed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way. And Isaac came from the way of the ^f well Lahai-roi; for he dwelt in the south country.

63 And Isaac went out ^g to meditate [or, to pray] in the field at the eventide: and 64 he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and, behold, the camels were coming. And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, ^h she lighted off the camel.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a 66 ⁱ vail, and covered herself. And the servant told Isaac all things that he had 67 done. And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, ^k and took Rebekah, ^l and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac ^m was comforted after his mother's death. ⁴

Abraham's other sons; his death and burial; Ishmael's family and death.

25 THEN again ⁵ Abraham took a wife, and her name was Keturah. And ⁿ she 2 bare him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah.
3 And Jokshan begat Sheba and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Asshurim, 4 and Letushim, and Leummim. And the sons of Midian; Ephah, and Ephher, and Hanock, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.
5 And ^o Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac. But unto the sons of the con-
6 cubines which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and ^p sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward, ⁶ unto ^q the east country.

7 And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, an 8 hundred threescore and fifteen years. Then Abraham gave up the ghost, ⁷ and ^r died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and ^s was gathered to his 9 people. And ^t his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre;

 26 they called his name Esau. And after that came his brother out, and "his hand took hold on Esau's heel; and "his name was called Jacob. And Isaac was "threescore years old when she bare them.

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was "a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and 28 Jacob was "a plain⁵ man, "dwelling in tents. And Isaac loved Esau, because he 29 did "eat of his venison: "but Rebekah loved Jacob. And Jacob sod pottage:
 30 and Esau came from the field, and he was faint; and Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red⁶ pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his 31 name called Edom [i. e. red]. And Jacob said, Sell me this day thy birthright.
 32 And Esau said, Behold, I am at the point to die: and what profit shall this 33 birthright do to me? And Jacob said, Swear to me this day; and he sware unto 34 him: and "he sold his birthright⁷ unto Jacob. Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles; and "he did eat and drink, and rose up, and went his way:
 thus Esau "despised his birthright.

Isaac at Gerar; his treaty with Abimelech; Esau's first wives.

26 AND there was a famine in the land, beside "the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went unto "Abimelech king of the Philistines unto Gerar.

2 "And the LORD appeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt; dwell 3 in "the land which I shall tell thee of: "sojourn in this land, and "I will be with thee, and "will bless thee; for unto thee, and unto thy seed, "I will give all these countries, and I will perform "the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy 4 father: and "I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will

¹ This account of Ishmael is here added to close the history of Abraham, and to show that God's promise respecting him (ch. xvii. 20) was fulfilled.

² Heb., 'fell;' most probably meaning, had his portion (referring to ch. xvi. 12). That is, the Ishmaelites had their portion in the presence of all their brethren. They intermixed themselves with the Arab tribes (see ch. x. 26—29); and it is now reckoned more honourable to be descended from Ishmael than to be of pure Arab blood.

³ Isaac is now the head of the chosen family, and heir of the great promise.

⁴ Or, 'Is it so' [usually]? How she inquired of the Lord we know not: the ancients supposed it was through Abraham. The Divine answer prophesies the future history, not of her sons, but of their descendants; and is used by the apostle Paul (Rom. ix. 12) to show God's sovereignty in the choice of the Jews to be his nation.

⁵ The Hebrew word is usually rendered 'perfect.' The whole phrase means, 'a mild man, dwelling at home.'

⁶ Heb., 'with that red, red.' Lentiles or pulse, boiled with oil and garlic, make a dark red pottage, still used among the Arabs.

⁷ So far as this birthright consisted of the temporal advantage of a double share in the family property, Jacob does not appear ever to have received it. But the more important religious distinction of inheriting the Divine promise, which Esau profanely despised (Heb. xii. 16), was subsequently conferred upon Jacob; first by his father's blessing (ch. xxviii. 4), and then by immediate Divine communication (ch. xxviii. 13—15, etc.)

give unto thy seed all these countries; ^sand in thy seed shall all the nations of 5 the earth be blessed; ^tbecause that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.
 6, 7 And Isaac dwelt in Gerar: and the men of the place asked him of his wife; and ^uhe said, She is my sister: for ^xhe feared to say, She is my wife; lest, said he, the men of the place should kill me for Rebekah; because she ^y*was* fair to 8 look upon. And it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out at a window, and saw, and, behold, 9 Isaac was sporting with Rebekah his wife. And Abimelech called Isaac, and said, Behold, of a surety she is thy wife: and how saidst thou, She is my sister?
 10 And Isaac said unto him, Because I said, Lest I die for her. And Abimelech said, ^zWhat is this thou hast done unto us? one of the people might lightly have 11 lien with thy wife, and ^athou shouldest have brought guiltiness upon us. And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that ^btoucheth this man or his wife shall surely be put to death.
 12 Then Isaac sowed ¹in that land, and received in the same year ^can hundredfold:
 13 and the LORD ^dblessed him: and the man ^ewaxed great, and went forward, and 14 grew until he became very great: for he had possession of flocks, and possession 15 of herds, and great store of servants: and the Philistines ^fenvied him. For all the wells ^gwhich his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his 16 father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth. And Abimelech said unto Isaac, Go from us; for ^hthou art much mightier than we.
 17 And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and 18 dwelt there. And Isaac digged again the wells of water, which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father; for the Philistines had stopped them ⁱafter the death of Abraham: ^jand he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.
 19 And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and found there a well of springing 20 water. And the herdmen of Gerar ^kdid strive with Isaac's herdmen, saying,
 The water is ours: and he called the name of the well Ezek [i. e. Contention];
 21 because they strove with him. And they digged another well, and strove for that 22 also: and he called the name of it Sitnah [i. e. Hatred]. ^lAnd he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they strove not: and he called the name of it Rehoboth [i. e. Room]; and he said, For now the LORD hath made room for us, and we shall ^mbe fruitful in the land.
 23, 24 And he went up from thence to Beer-sheba. And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, ⁿI am the God of Abraham thy father: ^ofear not, for ^pI am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's 25 sake. And he ^qbuilded an altar there, and ^rcalled upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well.
 26 Then Abimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzath one of his friends, ^sand 27 Phicol the chief captain of his army. And Isaac said unto them, Wherefore 28 come ye to me, seeing ^tye hate me, and have ^usent me away from you? And they said, We saw certainly that the LORD ^xwas with thee: and we said, ^yLet there be now an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a 29 covenant with thee; that thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in 30 peace: ^zthou art now the blessed of the LORD. ^aAnd he made them a feast, and 31 they did eat and drink. And they rose up betimes in the morning, and ^bsware one to another: and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.
 32 And it came to pass the same day, that Isaac's servants came, and told him concerning the well which they had digged, and said unto him, We have found 33 water. And he called it Shebah [i. e. an oath]: ^ctherefore the name of the city is Beer-sheba [i. e. the well of the oath] unto this day.
 34 ^dAnd Esau was forty years old when he took to wife Judith the daughter of 35 Beeri the Hittite, ^eand Bashemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite: which ^fwere a grief of mind unto Isaac and to Rebekah.³

 he could not see, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him, My son: and

¹ This change in Isaac's habits seems to have alarmed the Philistines, as showing a design on his part to settle in their land.

² These women were Canaanites; and Esau's marriage with them was a further proof that he disregarded the peculiar blessings of his family.

³ This shows how little Isaac was at home with the people in the midst of whom he sojourned.

⁴ The ages of Isaac and his son are inferred from a comparison of the following passages: ch. xxx. 25; xxxi. 38, 41; xli. 46, 53, 54; xlv. 6. Supposing Jacob to have been twenty years in Charran, he will be now

2 he said unto him, Behold, here am I. And he said, Behold now, I am old, I 3 ^g know not the day of my death: ^h now therefore take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field, and take [hunt] me some venison;
 4 and make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat;
 5 that my soul ⁱ may bless thee before I die.¹ And Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son. And Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.
 6 And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father
 7 speak unto Esau thy brother, saying, Bring me venison, and make me savoury
 8 meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the LORD before my death. Now 9 therefore, my son, ^k obey my voice according to that which I command thee. Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats; and I will 10 make them ^l savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth: and thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he ^m may bless thee before his death.
 11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, ⁿ Esau my brother is a hairy 12 man, and I am a smooth man: my father peradventure will ^o feel me, and I shall seem to him as a deceiver; and I shall bring ^p a curse upon me, and not a blessing.
 13 And his mother said unto him, ^q Upon me be thy curse, my son: only obey my 14 voice, and go fetch me them. And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother ^r made savoury meat, such as his father loved.
 15 And Rebekah took ^s goodly raiment of her eldest son Esau, which were with 16 her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son: and she put the skins² of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck:
 17 and she gave the savoury meat and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.³
 18 And he came unto his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I;
 19 who art thou, my son? And Jacob said unto his father, ^t I am Esau thy firstborn:
 I have done according as thou badest me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my 20 venison, ^u that thy soul may bless me. And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, ^v Because the LORD⁴ thy 21 God brought it to me. And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that 22 I ^w may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau or not. And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father; and he felt him, and said, The voice is Jacob's 23 voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau. And he discerned him not, because 24 ^x his hands were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands: ^a so he blessed him. And 25 he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, ^b I am. And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, ^c that my soul may bless thee.
 And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he 26 drank. And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my 27 son. And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said,

See, ^d the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the LORD hath blessed:
 28 Therefore ^e God give thee of ^f the dew of heaven, and ^g the fatness of the earth,
 And ^h plenty of corn and wine:
 29 ⁱ Let people serve thee,—and nations bow down to thee:
 Be lord over thy brethren,—and ^k let thy mother's sons bow down to thee:⁵
^l Cursed be every one that curseth thee,—and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

30 And it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his 31 brother came in from his hunting. And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father, and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and ^m eat 32 of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me. And Isaac his father said unto 33 him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy firstborn Esau. And Isaac trembled very exceedingly, and said, Who? where⁶ is he that hath taken venison, seventy-seven, and his father one hundred and thirty-seven; but if we allow forty years for that period (as seems almost necessary), he will be now only fifty-seven, and Isaac one hundred and seventeen.

² The hair of the young of the Syrian goat is peculiarly soft.

³ In this transaction, all the parties were to be blamed: Isaac, for endeavouring to set aside the Divine oracle (ch. xxv. 23); Esau, for wishing to deprive his brother of the blessing he had himself relinquished to him; Rebekah and Jacob, for attempting to secure it by fraudulent means, not trusting to the providence of God. Jacob suffered for his deception in his separation from his mother for the rest of her life; in the endurance of many years of toil and hardship; and in a considerable sacrifice of property to propitiate his brother.

⁴ Deceit and falsehood are the natural parents of profanity.

⁵ In the blessing here pronounced, the spiritual promises are much less explicit than usual. A fertile country, extended power, and superiority in his own family, are the most prominent. The value of the dew in a land which was often without rain for months together is often noticed in Scripture, as well as in other books.

⁶ Or, 'Who then is he?'

and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed 34 him? yea, ^aand he shall be blessed. And when Esau heard the words of his father, ^bhe cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, 35 Bless me, even me also, O my father! And he said, Thy brother came with 36 subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing. And he said, ^cIs not he rightly named Jacob [i. e. a supplanter]? for he hath supplanted me these two times:
^dhe took away my birthright; and, behold, now he hath taken away my blessing.
 And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, ^eBehold, I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and ^fwith corn and wine have I sustained [or, supported] him: and what shall I do now unto thee, my son?
 38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but one blessing, my father? bless me, 39 even me also, O my father! And Esau lifted up his voice, ^gand wept. And Isaac his father answered and said unto him,

Behold, ^hthy dwelling shall be the fatness [or, of the fatness] of the earth,
 And of the dew of heaven from above;

40 And by thy sword shalt thou live,—and ⁱthou shalt serve thy brother;
 And ^jit shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion,
 That thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.¹

Esau's anger; Jacob goes to Haran; Esau's other wives.

41 AND Esau ^khated Jacob because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart, ^lThe days of mourning for my father are at hand; ^mthen will I slay my brother Jacob.

42 And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah: and she sent and called Jacob her younger son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as 43 touching thee, doth ⁿcomfort himself, purposing to kill thee. Now therefore, my 44 son, obey my voice; and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother ^oto Haran; and 45 tarry with him a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away; until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget that which thou hast done to him: ^pthen I will send, and fetch thee from thence: why should I be deprived also of you both in one day?

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, ^qI am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth: ^rif Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such as these which are of the daughters of the land, what good shall my life do me?²

28 And Isaac called Jacob, and ^sblessed him,³ and charged him, and said unto 2 him, ^tThou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan. ^uArise, go to ^vPadan-aram, to the house of ^wBethuel thy mother's father; and take thee a wife
 3 from thence of the daughters of ^xLaban thy mother's brother. ^yAnd God
 Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest 4 be a multitude of people; and give thee ^zthe blessing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy seed with thee; that thou mayest inherit the land ^awherein thou art a 5 stranger, which God gave unto Abraham. And Isaac sent away Jacob: and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's and Esau's mother.

6 When Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sent him away to Padan-aram, to take him a wife from thence; and that as he blessed him he gave him a charge, 7 saying, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan; and that Jacob
 8 obeyed his father ^band his mother, and was gone to Padan-aram; and Esau⁴ see-9 ing ^cthat the daughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac his father; then went Esau unto Ishmael, and took unto the wives which he had ^dMahalath the daughter of Ishmael Abraham's son, ^ethe sister of Nebajoth, to be his wife.⁵

 and he took of the stones of that place, and put ^gthem for his pillows, and lay 12 down in that place to sleep. And he ^hdreamed, and behold, a ladder set up on

2 This was a pretext for sending Jacob away to Haran, which Rebekah managed with her characteristic policy.

3 Not, as before, unwittingly; but designedly, and more fully—making over to him the chief promise (see ver. 4).

4 Or, 'then Esau saw.'

5 There was a similarity of condition, as well as of taste and habits, between the father and the son-in-law.

6 This was a journey of about four hundred miles; undertaken ostensibly for the same purpose as that of Abraham's servant to the same place, many years before; but in circumstances so different (see ch. xxiv. 10, 32), as might have made Jacob feel that he was already under the chastening hand of God.

the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven :¹ and behold, ^a the angels of God 13 ascending and descending on it. ^b And, behold, the LORD stood above it, and said,
^c I am the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac : ^d the land 14 whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed ; and ^e thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spread abroad ^f to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south : and in thee and ^g in thy seed shall all 15 the families of the earth be blessed. And, behold, ^h I am with thee, and will ⁱ keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will ^k bring thee again into this land ; for ^l I will not leave thee, ^m until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.
 16 ⁿ And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely, the LORD is in ^o this 17 place ; and I knew it not. And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place ! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.
 18 And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and ^p set it up for a pillar,² and ^q poured oil upon the top of it.
 19 And he called the name of ^r that place Beth-el [i. e. the house of God] ; but the 20 name of that city was called Luz at the first. ^s And Jacob vowed a vow, saying,
 If ^t God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give 21 me ^u bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that ^x I come again to my father's 22 house in peace ; ^y then³ shall the LORD be my God : and this stone, which I have set for a pillar, ^z shall be God's house : ^a and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee.

Jacob serves Laban for his two daughters ; Jacob's children, and growing wealth.

29 THEN Jacob went on his journey, ^b and came into the land of the people of the 2 east. And he looked, and behold a well in the field, and, lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it ; for out of that well they watered the flocks : and a 3 great stone was upon the well's mouth.⁴ And thither were all the flocks gathered :
 and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put 4 the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place. And Jacob said unto them, 5 My brethren, whence be ye ? And they said, Of Haran are we. And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor ? And they said, We know him.
 6 And he said unto them, ^c Is he well ? And they said, He is well : and, behold, 7 Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep. And he said, Lo, it is yet high day, neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered together : water ye the 8 sheep, and go and feed them. And they said, We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth ; then we water the sheep.
 9 And while he yet spake with them, ^d Rachel came with her father's sheep : for 10 she kept them.⁵ And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near, and ^e rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of 11 Laban his mother's brother. And Jacob ^f kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice, 12 and wept. And Jacob told Rachel that he was ^g her father's brother,⁶ and that 13 he was Rebekah's son : ^h and she ran and told her father. And it came to pass, when Laban heard the tidings of Jacob his sister's son, that ⁱ he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told 14 Laban all these things. And Laban said to him, ^k Surely thou art my bone and my flesh. And he abode with him the space of a month.
 15 And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou art my brother, shouldest thou there-16 fore serve me for nought ? tell me, what shall thy wages be ? And Laban had two daughters : the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger 17 was Rachel. Leah was tender eyed ; but Rachel was beautiful and well favoured.
 18 And Jacob loved Rachel : and said, ^l I will serve thee⁷ seven years for Rachel thy 19 younger daughter. And Laban said, ^m It is better that I give her to thee, than 20 that I should give her to another man : abide with me. And Jacob ⁿ served seven years for Rachel; ^o and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

¹ This was a symbol of God's universal providence, carried on partly through 'ministering spirits.' This dream, with the subsequent Divine promise, would cheer the loneliness of his journey, and keep him from seeking a home in the land of his exile. It has been thought by many that our Lord refers to this, John i. 51.

² Such pillars are frequent in Eastern countries, and it is deemed most offensive and unfortunate to remove one.

³ Rather, 'and [i. e. and if] the Lord will be my God' (referring to God's promise), 'then this stone which I have set for a pillar shall be God's house,' etc.

21 And Jacob said unto Laban, Give me my wife, for my days¹ are fulfilled, that 22 I may ^p go in unto her. And Laban gathered together all the men of the place, 23 and ^q made a feast. And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah² his 24 daughter, and brought her to him; and he went in unto her. And Laban gave 25 unto his daughter Leah Zilpah his maid for an handmaid. And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold, it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast 26 thou beguiled me? And Laban said, It must not be so done in our country, to 27 give the younger³ before the firstborn. ^r Fulfil her week,⁴ and we will give thee this also for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

28 And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week: and he gave him Rachel his daughter 29 to wife also. And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter Bilhah his handmaid to be 30 her maid. And he went in also unto Rachel, and he ^s loved also Rachel more than Leah, and served with him ^t yet seven other years.

31 And when the LORD ^u saw that Leah was hated, he ^x opened her womb: but 32 Rachel was barren. And Leah conceived, and bare a son, and she called his name Reuben [i. e. see a son]: for she said, Surely the LORD hath ^y looked upon my 33 affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.⁵ And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Because the LORD hath heard that I was hated, he hath therefore given me this son also: and she called his name Simeon [i. e. hearing].
34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I have born him three sons: therefore was 35 his name called ^z Levi [i. e. joined]. And she conceived again, and bare a son:
and she said, Now will I praise the LORD: therefore she called his name ^a Judah

30 And when Rachel saw that ^b she bare Jacob no children, Rachel ^c envied her
2 sister; and said unto Jacob, Give me children, ^d or else I die.⁶ And Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel: and he said, ^e Am I in God's stead, who hath with-3 held from thee the fruit of the womb? And she said, Behold ^f my maid Bilhah, go in unto her; ^g and she shall bear upon my knees, ^h that I may also have 4 children by her. And she gave him Bilhah her handmaid ⁱ to wife: and Jacob 5 went in unto her. And Bilhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son. And Rachel 6 said, God hath ^k judged me,⁷ and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a 7 son: therefore called she his name Dan [i. e. judging]. And Bilhah Rachel's 8 maid conceived again, and bare Jacob a second son. And Rachel said, With great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed: and she called his name ^l Naphtali [i. e. my wrestling].

9 When Leah saw that she had left bearing, she took Zilpah her maid, and ^m gave 10 her Jacob to wife. And Zilpah Leah's maid bare Jacob a son. And Leah said, 11 A troop⁸ cometh: and she called his name Gad [i. e. a troop, or, companyⁿ].
12 And Zilpah Leah's maid bare Jacob a second son. And Leah said, Happy am I, 13 for the daughters ^o will call me blessed: and she called his name Asher [i. e. happy].
14 And Reuben went in the days of wheat harvest, and found ^p mandrakes⁹ in the field, and brought them unto his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, ^q Give 15 me, I pray thee, of thy son's mandrakes. And she said unto her, ^r Is it a small matter that thou hast taken my husband? and wouldest thou take away my son's mandrakes also? And Rachel said, Therefore he shall lie with thee to-night for 16 thy son's mandrakes. And Jacob came out of the field in the evening, and Leah went out to meet him, and said, Thou must come in unto me; for surely I have hired thee with my son's mandrakes. And he lay with her that night.

17 And God hearkened unto Leah, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the fifth son.

¹ The days here spoken of may be days of service; meaning that Jacob's seven years of service had expired: but it is more probable that the reference is to the days of betrothment, or of marriage festivity. This latter supposition assumes that the marriage took place at the commencement of the seven years of servitude; and thus affords a longer period before Jacob's departure into Egypt, which seems to be required by the number of his grandchildren. In this case, ver. 20 is to be considered as a parenthesis.

² The bride being wholly concealed by a large veil, this deception was easily practised.

³ A similar prejudice still prevails in the East, and leads to similar impositions.

⁴ That is, her week of marriage festivity. Laban probably practised this deception in order to secure Jacob's valuable services for a longer time.

⁸ Or, 'prosperity.'

19 my husband: and she called his name Issachar [i. e. an hire]. And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son. And Leah said, God hath endued me with a good dowry; now will my husband dwell with me, because I have born him six sons: and she called his name ^s Zebulun [i. e. dwelling]. And afterwards she bare a daughter, and called her name Dinah [i. e. judgment].

22 And God ^t remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her, and ^u opened her womb. And she conceived and bare a son; and said, God hath taken away ^x my reproach: and she called his name Joseph [i. e. adding]; and said, ^y The LORD shall add to me another son.

25 And it came to pass, when Rachel had born Joseph, that Jacob¹ said unto Laban, ^z Send me away, that I may go unto ^a mine own place, and to my country. Give me my wives, and my children, ^b for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for ^c I have learned by experience that the LORD hath blessed me ^d for thy sake. And he said, ^e Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, ^f Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattle was with me. For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now increased unto a multitude; and the LORD hath blessed thee since² my coming: and now when shall I ^g provide for mine own house also?

31 And he said, ^h What shall I give thee?

And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give me any thing: if thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock: I will pass through all thy flock to-day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle, and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats; and ⁱ of such shall be my hire.³ So shall my ^k righteousness answer for me ^l in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face: every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the sheep, that shall be counted stolen with me.

34 And Laban said, Behold, I would it might be according to thy word.

35 And he removed that day the he-goats that were ringstraked and spotted, and all the she-goats that were speckled and spotted, and every one that had some white in it, and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them into the hand of his sons. And he set three days' journey betwixt himself and Jacob: and Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks.

37 And ^m Jacob took him rods of green poplar, and of the hazel and chesnut⁴ tree; and pilled white strakes in them, and made the white appear which was in the rods. And he set the rods which he had pilled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering troughs when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink. And the flocks conceived before the rods, and brought forth cattle ringstraked, speckled, and spotted. And Jacob did separate the lambs, and set the faces of the flocks toward the ringstraked, and all the brown in the flock of Laban; and he put his own flocks by themselves, and put them not unto Laban's cattle. And it came to pass, whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods: but when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in. So the feebler were Laban's and the stronger Jacob's. And the man ⁿ increased exceedingly, and ^o had much cattle, and maidservants, and menservants, and camels, and asses.

31 And he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's; and of that which was our father's hath he gotten all this ^p glory. And Jacob beheld ^q the countenance of Laban, and, behold, it was not ^r toward him ^s as before.

¹ His term of service for his wives being finished.

² Heb., 'at my foot'; i. e. 'by my labour.'

³ Not those already speckled, but those which shall be born so, after these have been removed from the flock. Laban took all the speckled sheep and goats to a distance, and put them under the care of his sons; probably thinking that the advantage was all on his side. Not finding it so, he repeatedly changed the terms of his agreement; sometimes allowing Jacob only the spotted, and sometimes only the streaked. See ch. xxxi. 8.

⁴ More likely, 'almond' and 'plane.' 'Pilled' is now spelt peeled.

8 ^z changed my wages ^a ten¹ times; but God ^b suffered him not to hurt me. If he said thus, ^c The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ringstraked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ringstraked. Thus God hath ^d taken away the cattle of your father, and given ^e them to me. And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, ^e and saw in a dream, and, behold, the rams which leaped upon the cattle were ringstraked, speckled, and grised. And ^f the angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob: and I said, Here am I. And he said, Lift up now thine eyes, and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ringstraked, speckled, and grised: for ^g I have seen ^h all that Laban doeth unto thee. I am the God of Beth-el, ⁱ where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now ^k arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, ^l Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house? Are we not counted of him strangers? for ^m he hath sold us, and hath quite devoured also our money.² For all the riches ⁿ which God hath taken from our father, that is ours, and our children's: now then, whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

17, 18 Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons and his wives upon camels; and he carried away³ all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram, ^o for to go to Isaac his father in the land of Canaan. And Laban went to shear his sheep: and Rachel had stolen the ^p images⁴ that were her father's. And Jacob stole away unawares to Laban the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled. So he fled with all that he had; and he rose up, and passed over the river,⁵ and ^q set his face toward the mount Gilead.

22, 23 ^r And it was told Laban on the third day that Jacob was fled. And he took ^s his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days' journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead. And God ^t came to Laban the Syrian in a dream by night, and said unto him, Take heed that thou ^u speak not to Jacob either good or bad⁶ [Heb. from good to bad]. Then Laban overtook Jacob.

Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead. And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and ^x carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword? Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and steal away from me; and didst not tell me, ^y that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp? and hast not suffered me ^z to kiss my sons and my daughters? ^a thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 ^b It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the ^c God of your father spake unto me ^d yesternight, saying, Take thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad. And now, though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house, yet wherefore hast thou ^e stolen my gods?

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, ^f Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me. With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, ^g let him not live: ^h before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee. For Jacob knew not that Rachel had stolen them.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent, and into the two maid-servants' tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's tent. Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camel's furniture, and sat upon them. And Laban searched all the tent, but found them not. And she said to her father, Let it not displease my lord that I cannot ⁱ rise up⁷ before thee; for the custom of women is upon me. And he searched, but found not the images.

Whereas thou hast searched all my stuff, ^k what hast thou found of all thy household stuff? ^l set it here before my brethren and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both. connection with the worship of Jehovah. They are often mentioned in the subsequent history of the Israelites. See refs.

 40 night. Thus I was; in the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by 41 night;¹ and my sleep departed from mine eyes. Thus have I been twenty years thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto 44 their children which they have born? Now therefore come thou, ^u let us make a

45, 46 And Jacob ^y took a stone, and set it up for a pillar. And Jacob said unto his

48 And Laban said, ^z This heap is a witness between me and thee this day. There-

3 And Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother ^k unto the land of 5 Laban, and stayed there until now: and ⁿ I have oxen, and asses, flocks, and menservants, and womenservants: and I have sent to tell my lord, that ^o I may find grace in thy sight.

6 And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau, and also ^p he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him.

7 Then Jacob was greatly afraid and ^q distressed: and he divided the people that

¹ Jacob's prayer did not make him presume upon God's mercy, apart from his own prudence and diligence. God answers our prayers by teaching us discretion.

² Or 'ford of Jabbok.' The Jabbok is a rapid but narrow stream, which flows into the Jordan from the east.

³ Or, Jehovah himself in a human form (ver. 30). This contest appears to have been partly corporeal (see ver. 25); but that it was also partly spiritual is evident from Hos. xii. 3, 4; where we learn that Jacob 'wept and made supplication' to the angel: nor would he cease till he had obtained his request.

⁴ Reminding Jacob that his success was not owing to his own strength or sufficiency, but to the condescension and kindness of his opponent.

⁵ In begging this blessing he owns his inferiority, though he had prevailed in the struggle.

⁶ Or, 'and with men also thou shalt prevail.' This successful importunity with God is made a pledge of his success with Esau.

⁷ It was the prevailing notion that no one could see any manifestation of the Deity, and live.

⁹ This phrase is used sometimes to give intensity to an expression; as where Moses is said to be 'fair to God' (Acts vii. 20, marg. reading).

to thee; because God hath dealt graciously with me, and because I have ^e enough.
^f And he urged¹ him, and he took it.

- 12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.
 13 And he said unto him, My lord knoweth that the children are tender, and the 14 flocks and herds with young are with me: and if men should overdrive them 15 one day, all the flock will die. Let my lord, I pray thee, pass over before his 16 servant: and I will lead on softly, according as the cattle that goeth before me 17 and the children be able to endure, until I come unto my lord ^g unto Seir. And Esau said, Let me now leave with thee some of the folk that are with me. And he said, What needeth it? ^h let me find grace in the sight of my lord.
 16, 17 So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir. And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle: therefore the name of the place is called Succoth [i. e. booths].

Jacob at Shechem; violence to Dinah; murder of the Shechemites.

- 18 AND Jacob came to Shalem,² a city of ^k Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram; and pitched his tent before the city.
 19 And ^l he bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of 20 the children of ^m Hamor, Shechem's father, for an hundred pieces of money.³ And he erected there an altar, and ⁿ called it El-elohe-Israel [i. e. God the God of Israel].
 34 And ^o Dinah the daughter of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob, ^p went out to 2 see the daughters of the land. And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, ^q saw her, he ^r took her, and lay with her, and defiled 3 [^s humbled]⁴ her. And his soul clave unto Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he 4 loved the damsel, and spake kindly unto the damsel. And Shechem ^t spake unto 5 his father Hamor, saying, Get me this damsel to wife. And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter: now his sons were with his cattle in the field:
 and Jacob ^u held his peace until they were come.
 6 And Hamor the father of Shechem went out unto Jacob to commune with him.
 7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it: and the men were grieved, and they ^v were very wroth, because he ^w had wrought folly in Israel in lying with Jacob's daughter; ^x which thing ought not to be done.
 8 And Hamor communed with them, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth 9 for your daughter: I pray you give her him to wife. And make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.
 10 And ye shall dwell with us: and ^y the land shall be before you; dwell and ^z trade 11 ye therein, and ^a get you possessions therein. And Shechem said unto her father and unto her brethren, Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say 12 unto me, I will give. Ask me never so much ^b dowry and gift, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me: but give me the damsel to wife.
 13 And the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father ^c deceitfully, 14 and said, because he had defiled Dinah their sister: and they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised; for ^d that 15 were a reproach unto us: but in this will we consent unto you: If ye will be as 16 we be, that every male of you be circumcised; then will we give our daughters unto you, and we will take your daughters to us, and we will dwell with you, 17 and we will become one people. But if ye will not hearken unto us, to be circumcised; then will we take our daughter, and we will be gone.
 18, 19 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem Hamor's son. And the young man deferred not to do the thing, because he had delight in Jacob's daughter:
 20 and he was ^e more honourable than all the house of his father. And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto the gate of their city, and communed with the men of 21 their city, saying, These men are peaceable with us; therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein; for the land, behold, it is large enough for them; let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.
 22 Only herein will the men consent unto us for to dwell with us, to be one people, 23 if every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised. Shall not their cattle and their substance and every beast of theirs be ours? only let us consent 24 unto them, and they will dwell with us. And unto Hamor and unto Shechem his son hearkened all that went out of the gate of his city; and every male was circumcised, all that ^f went out of the gate of his city.

1 The acceptance of a present is deemed of peculiar importance in the East, as a ratification of friendship.

2 Rather, 'And Jacob came safe,' or 'in peace.'

3 In the other two places where this Hebrew word occurs (namely, Josh. xxiv. 32; Job xlii. 11), as well as here, it is rendered 'lambs' in the ancient versions. Jacob seems to have been anxious for a possession in Canaan; from which, however, he was soon driven, probably never to revisit it.

4 The Hebrew word commonly implies force.

25 And it came to pass on the third day, when they were sore, that two of the sons of Jacob, ⁱ Simeon and Levi, ¹ Dinah's brethren, took each man his sword, and came upon the city boldly, and slew all the males. And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son with the edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out. The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city, because they had defiled their sister. They took their sheep, and their oxen, and their asses, and that which was in the city, and that which was in the field, and all their wealth, and all their little ones, and their wives took they captive, and spoiled even all that was in the house.²

30 And Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, ^k Ye have ^l troubled me ^m to make me to stink among the inhabitants of the land, among the Canaanites and the Perizzites: ⁿ and I being few in number, they shall gather themselves together against me, and slay me; and I shall be destroyed, I and my house. And they said, Should he deal with our sister as with an harlot?

Jacob fulfils his vow at Bethel; death of Rachel.

35 AND God said unto Jacob, Arise, go up to ^o Beth-el, and dwell there: and make there an altar unto God, ^p that appeared unto thee ^q when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother.³ Then Jacob said unto his ^r household, and to all that were with him, Put away ^s the strange gods that are among you, and ^t be clean,⁴ and change your garments: and let us arise, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar unto God, ^u who answered me in the day of my distress, and ^v was with me in the way which I went. And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their ^y earrings⁵ which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under ^z the oak which was by Shechem. And they journeyed. And ^a the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

6 So Jacob came to ^b Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, that is, Beth-el, he and all the people that were with him. And he ^c built there an altar, and called the place El-beth-el [i. e. The God of Beth-el]; because ^d there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

8 But ^e Deborah Rebekah's nurse died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el under an oak:⁶ and the name of it was called Allon-bachuth [i. e. The oak of weeping].

9 And ^f God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padan-aram, and blessed him. And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: ^g thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, ^h but Israel shall be thy name: and he called his name Israel. And God said unto him, ⁱ I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; ^k a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins; and the land ^l which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee I will give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land. And God ^m went up from him in the place where he talked with him. And Jacob ⁿ set up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink-offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon. And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, ^o Beth-el.

16 And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but ^p a little way to come to Ephrath:⁷ and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labour. And it came to pass, when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, Fear not; ^q thou shalt have this son also. And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing, (^r for she died) that she called his name Ben-oni [i. e. the son of my sorrow]; but his father called him Benjamin⁸ [i. e. the son of the right hand]. And ^s Rachel died, and was buried in the way to ^t Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

20 And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave ^u unto this day.

21 And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond ^x the tower of Edar.

22 And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and ^y lay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Israel heard it.⁹

¹ These two were the leaders; probably accompanied by their servants, and possibly by some of their brothers.

² This narrative shows, in a painful manner, how one sin leads to another. Intimacy with sinners leads either to seduction, or, as in this case, to violence: this produces wrath; wrath thirsts for revenge; and revenge issues in treachery, murder, and lawless depredation.

³ Jacob seems to have forgotten his vow (ch. xxviii. 22), or at least to have too long delayed its performance.

⁴ Personal cleanliness has always been regarded as a natural symbol of moral purity.

⁵ Ornaments representing the objects of idolatrous

worship were, and still are, common among the heathen, and are used as charms. See Hos. ii. 13.

⁶ Or, 'terebinth tree.' This verse implies that Jacob had had some intercourse with his father's house, and that his mother was probably dead.

⁷ Or, 'Ephratah:' see Mic. v. 2.

⁸ The Samaritan has 'Benjamin,' 'the son of days,' or 'of old age;' the Aramaic form of which was 'Benjamin.' As it is not unlikely that Jacob was now accustomed to this dialect, this may perhaps have been his meaning.

⁹ That is, with displeasure, as he afterwards showed by taking away the birthright. See ch. xlix. 4.

Jacob's family; Isaac's death and burial; Esau's descendants and connections.

23 NOW the sons of Jacob were twelve: The sons of Leah; ^a Reuben, Jacob's
24 firstborn, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Zebulun: the sons 25 of Rachel; Joseph, and Benjamin: and the sons of Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid;
26 Dan, and Naphtali: and the sons of Zilpah, Leah's handmaid; Gad, and Asher.
These are the sons of Jacob, which were born to him in Padan-aram.¹

27 And Jacob came unto Isaac his father unto ^a Mamre, unto the ^b city of Arbah, 28 which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned. And the days of Isaac 29 were an hundred and fourscore years. And Isaac gave up the ghost, and died, and ^c was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days: and ^d his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

36 Now these are the generations of Esau,² who ^e is Edom. ^f Esau took his wives
2 of the daughters of Canaan; Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite, and ^g Aholi-
3 bamah the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite; and ^h Bashemath 4 Ishmael's daughter, sister of Nebajoth. And ⁱ Adah bare to Esau Eliphaz; and 5 Bashemath bare Reuel; and Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah:
these are the sons of Esau, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

6 And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his daughters, and all the persons of his house, and his cattle, and all his beasts, and all his substance, which he 7 had got in the land of Canaan; and went into the country from the face of his 8 brother Jacob. ^k For their riches were more than that they might dwell together; and ^l the land wherein they were strangers could not bear them because of their 9 cattle. Thus dwelt Esau in ^m mount Seir: ⁿ Esau is Edom.

9 And these are the generations of Esau the father of the Edomites in mount 10 Seir: these are the names of Esau's sons; ^o Eliphaz the son of Adah the wife of 11 Esau, Reuel the son of Bashemath the wife of Esau. And the sons of Eliphaz 12 were Teman, Omar, ^p Zepho, and Gatam, and Kenaz. And Timna was concubine to Eliphaz, Esau's son; and she bare to Eliphaz ^q Amalek: these were the sons 13 of Adah, Esau's wife. And these are the sons of Reuel; Nahath, and Zerah, 14 Shammah, and Mizzah: these were the sons of Bashemath, Esau's wife. And these were the sons of Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon, Esau's wife: and she bare to Esau Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

15 These were dukes of the sons of Esau: the sons of Eliphaz the firstborn son of 16 Esau; duke Teman, duke Omar, duke Zepho, duke Kenaz, duke Korah, duke Gatam, and duke Amalek: these are the dukes that came of Eliphaz in the land 17 of Edom; these were the sons of Adah. And these are the sons of Reuel, Esau's son; duke Nahath, duke Zerah, duke Shammah, duke Mizzah: these are the 18 dukes that came of Reuel in the land of Edom; these are the sons of Bashemath, Esau's wife. And these are the sons of Aholibamah, Esau's wife; duke Jeush, 19 duke Jaalam, duke Korah: these were the dukes that came of Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, Esau's wife. These are the sons of Esau, who is Edom, and these are their dukes.

20 ^r These are the sons of Seir ^s the Horite, who inhabited the land; Lotan, and 21 Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, and Dishon, and Ezer, and Dishan: these are the 22 dukes of the Horites, the children of Seir, in the land of Edom. And the children 23 of Lotan were Hori and ^t Hemam; and Lotan's sister was Timna. And the children of Shobal were these; ^u Alvan, and Manahath, and Ebal, ^v Shepho, and 24 Onam. And these are the children of Zibeon; both Ajah, and Anah: this was that Anah that found ^w the mules³ in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibeon 25 his father. And the children of Anah were these; Dishon, and Aholibamah the 26 daughter of Anah. And these are the children of Dishon; ^x Hemdan, and Eshban, 27 and Ithran, and Cheran. The children of Ezer are these; Bilhan, and Zaavan, 28 and ^y Akan. The children of Dishan are these; Uz, and Aran. These are the 29 dukes that came of the Horites; duke Lotan, duke Shobal, duke Zibeon, duke 30 Anah, duke Dishon, duke Ezer, duke Dishan: these are the dukes that came of Hori, among their dukes in the land of Seir.

¹ All but Benjamin, who was born in Canaan (16—19).

² Here (as in ch. xxv. 12—18, with respect to Ishmael) the history of Isaac's family is closed with a brief notice of Esau's descendants, who were afterwards intimately connected with the Israelites, either as enemies, or allies, or subjects. Many of the names here given differ somewhat from those found in other passages; but it was common to have several names, and to have a name varied into different forms, retaining the same meaning. The same name, also, was common to many persons; such as Amalek, Eliphaz, Teman, Aholibamah. The 'dukes' were apparently heads of tribes, now called sheikhs; and over the whole were kings. The kingdom was probably, at first, elective; and afterwards hereditary. The Horites of Seir are introduced, as Esau's family intermarried with them; though they afterwards destroyed or expelled them.

31 And ^b these are the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there reigned 32 any king over the children of Israel.¹ And Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom :
 33 and the name of his city was Dinhabah. And Bela died, and Jobab the son of 34 Zerah of Bozrah reigned in his stead. And Jobab died, and Husham of the land 35 of Temani reigned in his stead. And Husham died, and Hadad the son of Bedad, 36 who smote Midian in the field of Moab, reigned in his stead : and the name of his 37 city was Avith. And Hadad died, and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead.
 37 And Samlah died, and Saul of Rehoboth by the river reigned in his stead. And 39 Saul died, and Baal-hanan the son of Achbor reigned in his stead. And Baalhanan the son of Achbor died, and ^c Hadar² reigned in his stead : and the name of his city was Pau ; and his wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab.
 40 And these are the names of ^d the dukes that came of Esau, according to their families, after their places, by their names ; duke Timnah, duke ^e Alvah, duke 41 Jetheth, duke Aholibamah, duke Elah, duke Pinon, duke Kenaz, duke Teman, 43 duke Mibzar, duke Magdiel, duke Iram : these be the dukes of Edom, according to their habitations in the land of their possession : he is Esau the father of the 37 Edomites. And ³ Jacob dwelt in the land ^f wherein his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

Family history of Jacob ; Joseph hated and sold by his brethren.

2 THESE are the generations⁴ of Jacob.
 Joseph⁵ being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren ; and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah, his father's 3 wives : and Joseph brought unto his father ^g their evil report. Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was ^h the son of his old age : and 4 he made him a coat of many ⁱ colours [or, pieces]. And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they ^j hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.
 5 And Joseph dreamed a dream,⁶ and he told it his brethren : and they hated him
 6 yet the more. And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I 7 have dreamed : for, ^k behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright ; and, behold, your sheaves stood round about, 8 and made obeisance to my sheaf. And his brethren said to him, 'Shalt thou indeed reign over us ? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us ? And they 9 hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words. And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more ; and, behold, ^m the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance 10 to me. And he told it to his father, and to his brethren : and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed ? Shall I and thy mother and ⁿ thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to 11 the earth ? And ^o his brethren envied him ; but his father ^p observed the saying.
 12, 13 And his brethren went to feed their father's flock in Shechem. And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem ? ^q come, and I 14 will send thee unto them. And he said to him, Here am I. And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks ; and bring me word again. So he sent him out of the vale of ^r Hebron, 15 and he came to Shechem.⁷ And a certain man found him, and, behold, he was 16 wandering in the field : and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou ? And he said, I seek my brethren : ^s tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.
 17 And the man said, They are departed hence ; for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in 'Dothan.
 18 And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, ^t they 19 conspired against him to slay him. ^u And they said one to another, Behold, this 20 dreamer cometh. ^v Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit, and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him : ^z and we shall see 21 what will become of his dreams. And ^a Reuben heard it, and he delivered him

1 Matthew Henry quaintly observes, that in external prosperity and honour the children of the covenant are often behind others ; but, all things considered, it is better to have Canaan in promise than Mount Seir in possession.

2 Or, 'Hadad.' As his death is not recorded, it is supposed that he was contemporary with Moses, and is the king mentioned in Numb. xx. 14. The name was common, in later times, in the royal families of Edom and Syria.

3 Or, 'But.'

4 Or, 'the family history of Jacob,' who is now the head of the chosen race.

5 The history of Joseph, which is so remarkably divided between his humiliation and his exaltation, affords many interesting analogies to that of the Saviour of the world, and of all his faithful followers.

6 These were significant dreams sent by God ; hastening their own fulfilment by the malice which the narration of them excited.

7 About fifty miles from Hebron. Dothan was probably about twelve or fifteen miles further.

- 22 out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him. And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.
- 23 And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, ^b that they stript
- 24 Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many colours that was on him; and they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.
- 25 ^c And they sat down to eat bread: and they lifted up their eyes and looked, and behold, a company of ^d Ishmeelites¹ came from Gilead with their camels bearing
- 26 spicery and ^e balm and myrrh,² going to carry it down to Egypt. And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and ^f conceal his
- 27 blood? Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmeelites, and ^g let not our hand be upon him; for he is ^h our brother and ⁱ our flesh. And his brethren were content.
- 28 Then there passed by ^j Midianites, merchantmen; and they drew and lifted up Joseph out of the pit, ^k and sold Joseph to the Ishmeelites for ^l twenty pieces of
- 29 silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt. And Reuben returned unto the
- 30 pit; and, behold, Joseph was not in the pit; and he ^m rent his clothes.³ And he returned unto his brethren, and said, The child ⁿ is not; and I, whither shall I go?
- 31 And they took ^o Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the
- 32 coat in the blood; and they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought it to their father; and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy son's
- 33 coat or no. And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat; an ^p evil beast hath
- 34 devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces. And Jacob ^q rent his clothes, and put sackcloth⁴ upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.
- 35 And all his sons and all his daughters ^r rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted; and he said, For ^s I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning. Thus his father wept for him.
- 36 And ^t the Midianites sold him into Egypt⁵ unto Potiphar, an officer⁶ of Pharaoh's, and captain of the guard.⁷

Occurrences in Judah's family.

- 38 AND it came to pass at that time,⁸ that Judah went down from his brethren,
- 2 and ^a turned in to a certain Adullamite, whose name was Hirah. And Judah
- 3 ^b saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite, whose name was ^c Shuah; and he
- 4 took her, and went in unto her. And she conceived, and bare a son; and he
- 5 called his name ^d Er. And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she called
- 6 his name ^e Onan. And she yet again conceived, and bare a son; and called his
- 7 name ^f Shelah: and he was at Chezib, when she bare him.
- 8 And Judah ^g took a wife for Er, his firstborn, whose name was Tamar. And
- 9 ^h Er, Judah's firstborn, was wicked in the sight of the LORD; ⁱ and the LORD
- 10 slew him. And Judah said unto Onan, Go in unto ^j thy brother's wife, and marry
- 11 her,⁹ and raise up seed to thy brother. And Onan knew that the seed should not
- 12 be ^k his; and it came to pass, when he went in unto his brother's wife, that he
- 13 spilled it on the ground, lest that he should give seed to his brother. And the
- 14 thing which he did displeased the LORD: wherefore he slew ^l him also. Then
- 15 said Judah to Tamar his daughter-in-law, ^m Remain a widow at thy father's house,
- 16 till Shelah my son be grown: for he said, Lest peradventure he die also, as his
- 17 brethren did. And Tamar went and dwelt ⁿ in her father's house.
- 18 And in process of time the daughter of Shuah, Judah's wife, died; and Judah
- 19 ^o was comforted, and went up unto his sheepshearers to Timnath, he and his friend
- 20 Hirah the Adullamite. And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold thy father-in-law

¹ In ver. 28, 'Midianites' are mentioned; and these two nations are found united against Israel (Judg. viii. 22, 24). Living in the same wilderness, they were probably soon intermixed. In the Hebrew, ver. 36 has Medianites, which, if not a mere variety of spelling, is the name of another of the Abrahamic tribes. See ch. xxv. 1.

³ A frequent sign of mourning in the East; the outer or inner garment, or both, being torn down the front, from the neck to the girdle. The Jews now make a slit downwards, of a hand's breadth, on the right side.

⁴ Another frequent token of grief, used also by persons professing a special disregard for bodily comfort. See Isa. xx. 2.

⁵ Egypt has always been a great mart for slaves.

⁶ Heb., 'eunuch;' but the word signifies also chamberlains, courtiers, and officers.

⁷ Heb., 'chief of the slaughtermen,' or 'executioners,' an officer of high rank, charged with the punishment of offences against the sovereign. The kapidji-pacha, in the Turkish court, has a similar office.

⁹ The firstborn of such a marriage being reckoned the child of the deceased brother. This custom, which had widely prevailed, was afterwards placed under some restrictions by the law of Moses (Deut. xxv. 5—10).

14 goeth up ⁿ to Timnath to shear his sheep. And she put her widow's garments off from her, and covered her with a vail, and wrapped herself, and ^o sat in an open place, which is by the way to Timnath; for she saw ^p that Shelah was grown, and 15 she was not given unto him to wife. When Judah saw her, he thought her to be 16 an harlot; because she had covered ¹ her face. And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee; (for he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law.) And she said, What wilt thou give me, that 17 thou mayest come in unto me? And he said, ^q I will send thee a kid from the 18 flock. And she said, ^r Wilt thou give me a pledge, till thou send it? And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, ^s Thy signet, ² and thy bracelets, ³ and thy staff that is in thine hand. And he gave it her, and came in unto 19 her, and she conceived by him. And she arose, and went away, and ^t laid by her 20 vail from her, and put on the garments of her widowhood. And Judah sent the kid by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the 21 woman's hand: but he found her not. Then he asked the men of that place, saying, Where is the harlot, that was openly by the way-side? And they said,
 22 There was no harlot in this place. And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, that there was no harlot in this
 23 place. And Judah said, Let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.
 24 And it came to pass about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar thy daughter-in-law hath ^u played the harlot; and also, behold, she is
 25 with child by whoredom. And Judah said, Bring her forth, ^x and let her be burnt. ⁴ When she was brought forth, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, By the man, whose these are, am I with child: and she said, ^y Discern, I pray thee, 26 whose are these, ^z the signet, and bracelets, and staff. And Judah ^a acknowledged them, and said, ^b She hath been more righteous ⁵ than I; because that ^c I gave her not to Shelah my son. And he knew her again ^d no more.
 27 And it came to pass in the time of her travail, that, behold, twins were in her
 28 womb. And it came to pass, when she travailed, that the one put out his hand: and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This 29 came out first. And it came to pass, as he drew back his hand, that, behold, his brother came out: and she said, How hast thou broken forth? this breach be 30 upon thee: therefore his name was called ^e Pharez [i. e. a breach]. And afterward came out his brother, that had the scarlet thread upon his hand: and his name was called Zarah.

39 AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt; and ^f Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, ^g bought him of the hands of the Ishmeelites,
 2 which had brought him down thither. And ^h the LORD was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house ⁶ of his master the Egyptian.
 3 ⁱ And his master saw that the LORD was with him, and that the LORD ^k made all that he did to prosper in his hand. And Joseph ^l found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him ^m overseer over his house, and all that he had he
 5 put into his hand. And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that ⁿ the LORD blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the LORD was upon all
 6 that he had in the house, and in the field. ⁷ And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand; and he knew not aught he had, save the bread ⁸ which he did eat. And Joseph ^o was a goodly person, and well-favoured.
 7 And it came to pass after these things, that his master's wife ^p cast her eyes upon Joseph; and she said, Lie with me. ^q But he refused, and said unto his master's wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and 9 he hath committed all that he hath to my hand; there is none greater in this house than I; neither hath he kept back any thing from me but thee, because thou art his wife: ^r how then can I do this great wickedness, and ^s sin against 10 God? ⁹ And it came to pass, as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not unto her, to lie by her, ^t or to be with her.

 her house, and spake unto them, saying, See he hath brought in an Hebrew unto us to mock us; he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried with a loud voice:
 15 and it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he 16 left his garment with me, and fled, and got him out. And she laid up his garment 17 by her, until his lord came home. And she ^y spake unto him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant, which thou hast brought unto us, came in 18 unto me to mock me: and it came to pass, as I lifted up my voice and cried, that 19 he left his garment with me, and fled out. And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner 20 did thy servant to me; that his ^z wrath was kindled. And Joseph's master took him, and ^a put him into the ^b prison, a place where the king's prisoners were

40 AND it came to pass after these things, that the ^g butler of the king of Egypt
 2 and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt. And Pharaoh was ^h wroth against two of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against 3 the chief of the bakers.³ ⁱ And he put them in ward in the house of the captain 4 of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound. And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them: and they
 5 And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream,⁴ the butler and the baker 6 of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison. And Joseph came in unto 7 them in the morning, and looked upon them, and, behold, they were sad. And he asked Pharaoh's officers that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, 8 saying, Wherefore look ye so sadly to-day? And they said unto him, ^k We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter⁵ of it. And Joseph said unto them, ^l Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.
 9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, In my dream, 10 behold, a vine was before me; and in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof 11 brought forth ripe grapes: and Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's 12 hand. And Joseph said unto him, ^m This is the interpretation of it: The three 13 branches ⁿ are three days: yet within three days shall Pharaoh ^o lift [or, reckon]

 15 for indeed ^r I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews: ^s and here also

 16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said unto Joseph,

 17 and in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of bake-meats for Pharaoh;
 18 and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head. And Joseph answered

21 the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants. And he ^d restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and ^e he gave the cup into Pharaoh's

Joseph interprets Pharaoh's dream.

- 41 AND it came to pass at the end of ^a two full years, that Pharaoh dreamed:
2 and, behold, he stood by ^b the river. And, behold, there came up out of the river ^c 1 3 seven well-favoured kine and fat-fleshed; and they fed in a meadow.² And,
4 behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill-favoured and 5 lean-fleshed; and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river. And the 6 ill-favoured and lean-fleshed kine did eat up the seven well-favoured and fat kine.
7 So Pharaoh awoke. And he slept and dreamed the second time: and, behold, 8 seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk,³ rank [fat] and good. And, behold, 9 seven thin ears and blasted with the east wind⁴ sprung up after them. And the 10 seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, 11 and, behold, it was a dream.

- 8 And it came to pass in the morning⁵ that his spirit was troubled;⁶ and he sent and called for all ^a the magicians of Egypt, and all the ^b wise men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dream; but there was none that could interpret^c them 9 unto Pharaoh. Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember 10 my faults this day: Pharaoh was ^d wroth with his servants, ^e and put me in ward in 11 the captain of the guard's house, both me and the chief baker: and ^f we dreamed a 12 dream in one night, I and he; we dreamed each man according to the interpreta-
13 tion of his dream. And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, 14 ^g servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he ^h interpreted to us
15 our dreams; to each man according to his dream he did interpret. And it came 16 to pass, ⁱ as he interpreted to us, so it was; me he restored⁷ unto mine office, and 17 him he hanged.

- 14 ^j Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they ^k brought him hastily ^l out of the dungeon: and he shaved⁸ himself, and changed his raiment, and came in unto 15 Pharaoh. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: ^m and I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it [or, that when thou hearest a dream, thou canst interpret it].
16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, ⁿ It is not in me: "God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace.

- 17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, ^o In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank
18 of the river: and, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, fat-fleshed
19 and well-favoured; and they fed in a meadow: and, behold, seven other kine 20 came up after them, poor and very ill-favoured and lean-fleshed, such as I never 21 saw in all the land of Egypt for badness: and the lean and the ill-favoured kine 22 did eat up the first seven fat kine: and when they had eaten them up, it could 23 not be known that they had eaten them; but they were still ill-favoured, as at 24 the beginning. So I awoke. And I saw in my dream, and, behold, seven ears 25 came up in one stalk, full and good: and, behold, seven ears, withered, thin, and 26 blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them: and the thin ears devoured 27 the seven good ears. And ^p I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it to me.

- 25 And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: ^q God hath 26 showed Pharaoh what he is about to do.⁹ The seven good kine ^r are seven years;
27 and the seven good ears are seven years: the dream is one. And the seven thin

28 empty ears blasted with the east wind shall be ^s seven years of famine. ^t This is

9 In this way God revealed himself to Pharaoh as the God of providence; and, at the same time, provided for the fulfilment of his promise to Abraham (ch. xv. 13).

the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: What God is about to do he sheweth

 30 the land of Egypt: and there shall ^e arise after them seven years of famine; and

 32 that famine following; for it shall be very grievous. And for that the dream was

 33 God will shortly bring it to pass. Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man 34 discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt. Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint officers over the land, and ^h take up the fifth¹ part of the land of 35 Egypt in the seven plenteous years. And ⁱ let them gather all the food of those good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; that the land ^k perish not through the famine.

 41 people be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou. And Pharaoh 42 said unto Joseph, See, I have ^o set thee over all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh
^p took off his ring³ from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and ^q arrayed 43 him in vestures of fine linen,⁴ and ^r put a gold chain about his neck; and he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; ^s and they cried before him, 44 ^t Bow the knee: and he made him ruler ^u over all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up 45 his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh called Joseph's name Zaphnath-paaneah;⁵ and he gave him to wife Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah priest⁶ [or, prince^x] of On.

46 And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt. And Joseph was thirty years old when he ^v stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from 47 the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt. And in the 48 seven plenteous years the earth brought forth by handfuls.⁷ And he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities: the food of the field, which was round about every city, 49 laid he up in the same. And Joseph gathered corn ^z as the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbering; for it was without number.

50 ^a And unto Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came, which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah priest [or, prince] of On bare unto him.
 51 And Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasseh [i. e. forgetting]:⁸ For God, 52 said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house. And the name of the second called he Ephraim [i. e. fruitful]: For God hath caused me to be ^b fruitful in the land of my affliction.

53 And the seven years of plenteousness, that was in the land of Egypt, were 54 ended. ^c And the seven years of dearth began to come, ^d according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was 55 bread. And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he 56 saith to you, do. And the famine was over all the face of the earth:⁹ and Joseph opened all the storehouses, and ^e sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed 57 sore in the land of Egypt. ^f And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

¹ As, in ordinary times, Egypt exports great quantities of corn, a fifth of the produce of the years of plenty would suffice to provide for the years of famine.

³ Documents being at that time only sealed, and not signed, the bestowment of a signet-ring involved the control of the property or kingdom of him who gave it.

⁴ Rather, 'white cotton;' a description of fine muslin which formed the material of the robe of honour.

⁵ Which, in the Coptic, signifies 'a revealer of secrets;' or, 'the man to whom secrets are revealed.' The meaning 'saviour of the world' is, however, equally probable.

⁶ The priests being the highest caste of nobility and of state-officers in Egypt, it was natural that Pharaoh should connect Joseph with them. Probably, 'Poti-pherah' means priest of On, or the Sun. The city 'On' was called by the Greeks 'Heliopolis,' or the city of the sun.

⁷ Or, 'in full bundles,' or 'sheaves.'

⁸ Joseph's prosperity might make him forget his toil; but it did not make him forget his God.

⁹ Or, 'land:' Egypt, and some neighbouring countries.

The first journey of Jacob's sons into Egypt.

42 NOW when ^g Jacob saw that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, 2 Why do ye look one upon another? And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get you down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we 3 may ^h live, and not die. And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in 4 Egypt. But Benjamin, ⁱ Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; for he said, ^j Lest peradventure mischief befall him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the 6 famine was ^k in the land of Canaan. And Joseph was the governor ^l over the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, 7 and ^m bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth. ⁿ And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake roughly unto them; ¹ and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And 8 they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food. And Joseph knew his brethren, 9 but they knew not him. ² And Joseph ^o remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the 10 land ye are come. And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are 11 thy servants come. We are all one man's sons; ³ we are true men, thy servants
 12 are no spies. And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land 13 ye are come. And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, 14 and one ^p is not. And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, ⁴
 15 saying, Ye are spies: hereby ye shall be proved: ^q By the life of Pharaoh ⁵ ye 16 shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither. Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else by the life of 17 Pharaoh surely ye are spies. And he put them all together into ward three days.
 18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live; ^r for I fear God: if 19 ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison:
 20 go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houses: but ^s bring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die. And they did so.
 21 And they said one to another, ^t We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not 22 hear; ^u therefore is this distress come upon us. And Reuben answered them, saying, ^v Spake I not unto you, saying, Do not sin against the child; and ye 23 would not hear? therefore, behold, also his blood is ^w required. And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for he spake unto them by an interpreter.
 24 And he turned himself about from them, and wept; and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them Simeon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way: and ^z thus 26 did he unto them. And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.
 27 And as ^a one of them opened his sack to give his ass provender in the inn, ⁶ he 28 espied his money; for, behold, it was in his sack's mouth. And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored; and, lo, it is even in my sack: and their heart failed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us?

29 And they came unto Jacob their father unto the land of Canaan, and told him
 30 all that befell unto them; saying, The man, who is the lord of the land, ^b spake 31 roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country. And we said unto him, We 32 are true men; we are no spies: we be twelve brethren, sons of our father; one is 33 not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan. And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us, ^c Hereby shall I know that ye are true men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of 34 your households, and be gone: and bring your youngest brother unto me: then

² It was full twenty years since they had sold him; and his rank and dress, of course, added to his disguise.

³ No man would expose all his sons to such peril.

⁴ A Hebrew form of speech conveying a strong assertion, to be found, with slight variations, in many parts of the Bible. See Matt. xxvii. 11.

⁶ Eastern inns, called khans, are merely large open courts, surrounded with piazzas: no food is provided; but the travellers attend to their own wants. In the days of Joseph, it is likely that even these did not exist; but that the word 'inn' only denotes a place where it was customary for travellers to stop for the night, probably near a well.

shall I know that ye are no spies, but that ye are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall ^d traffic in the land.

- 35 And it came to pass as they emptied their sacks, that, behold, ^e every man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the 36 bundles of money, they were afraid. And Jacob their father said unto them, Me have ye ^f bereaved of my children: Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will 37 take Benjamin away; ^g all these things are against me. And Reuben spake unto his father, saying, Slay my two sons, if I bring him not to thee: deliver him
38 into my hand, and I will bring him to thee again. And he said, My son shall not go down with you; for ^h his brother is dead, and he is left alone: ⁱ if mischief befall him by the way in the which ye go, then shall ye ^k bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

The second journey; Joseph made known to his brethren; Jacob sent for into Egypt.

- 43 AND the famine was ^l sore in the land. And it came to pass, when they had 2 eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto 3 them, Go again, buy us a little food. And Judah spake unto him, saying, The man did solemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not see my face, except your 4 ^m brother be with you. If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down
5 and buy thee food: but if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down: for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.
6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man whether 7 ye had yet a brother? And they said, The man asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the tenor of these words: could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?
8 And Judah said unto Israel his father, Send the lad ¹ with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live, and not die, both we, and thou, and also our little 9 ones. I will be surety for him; of my hand shalt thou require him: ⁿ if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever:
10 for except we had lingered, surely now we had returned this second time.
11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this; take of the best fruits ² in the land in your vessels, and ^o carry down the man a present, a 12 little ^p balm, ³ and a little honey, ⁴ spices, and myrrh, nuts, and almonds: and take ^q double money in your hand; and the money ^r that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again in your hand; peradventure it was an over-
13 sight: take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man: and God
14 Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin. ^s If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved.
15 And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and 16 Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph. And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the ^t ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and slay, and make ready; for these men shall dine with me at 17 noon. And the man did as Joseph bade; and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.
18 And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time are we brought in; that he may seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and 19 take us for bondmen, and our asses. And they came near to the steward of 20 Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house, and said, 21 O sir, ^u we came indeed down at the first time to buy food: and ^x it came to pass, when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and, behold, every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight: ^y and we have 22 brought it again in our hand. And other money have we brought down in our 23 hands to buy food: we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks. And he said, Peace be to you, fear not: your God, and the God of your father, hath given you treasure in your sacks: I had your money. And he brought Simeon out unto them.
24 And the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and ^z gave them water, and 25 they washed their feet; and he gave their asses provender. And they made ready the present against Joseph came at noon: for they heard that they should 26 eat bread there. And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and ^a bowed themselves to him to the

And God sent me before you to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance. So now it was not you that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me ⁷ a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt. Haste ye, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt: come down unto me, tarry not: and ⁸ thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, ⁴ and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast: ⁹ and there will I nourish thee; for yet there are five years of famine; lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty. And behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is ¹⁰ my mouth that speaketh unto you. And ye shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; and ye shall haste and ¹¹ bring down my father hither.

14 And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck. Moreover he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

16 And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come: and it pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beasts; and go, get you unto the land of Canaan; and take your father and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat ¹² the fat of the land. Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you wagons ⁵ out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come. Also regard not your stuff; ⁶ for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.

21 And the children of Israel did so. And Joseph gave them wagons, according to the commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way. To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment; but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and ¹³ five changes of raiment. And to his father he sent after this manner; ten asses laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she-24 asses laden with corn and bread and meat for his father by the way. So he sent

² That is, every wandering shepherd; for Pharaoh and the Egyptians had cattle themselves (ch. xlvii. 6, 18). The dislike of a settled people to the predatory habits of the wandering tribes was, in their case, augmented by the recent oppression of the Hyksos. We learn from ancient historians that Egypt had been overrun and subdued by a wandering pastoral people from the north-east, who were afterwards expelled, probably not long before Joseph was brought thither.

³ Eastern salutations still retain the form, though they have lost the spirit, of religious benediction.

⁶ Ancient records lead us to suppose that, till now, the authority of the Pharaohs over several districts and petty princes of Egypt had been often little more than nominal. Now, however, that monarchy was consolidated by the purchase of the land, which was henceforth to be rented of the crown (see vers. 24, 26); by the provision made for a regular revenue derived from a moderate taxation; and by the formation of cities, as centres both of authority and of wealth.

22 from one end of the borders of Egypt even to the other end thereof.¹ 'Only the land of the "priests [or, princes] bought he not; for the priests² had a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion which Pharaoh gave them: wherefore they sold not their lands. Then Joseph said unto the people, Behold, I have bought you this day and your land for Pharaoh: lo, here is seed for you, and ye shall sow the land. And it shall come to pass in the increase, that ye shall give the ^x fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your households, and for food for your little ones. And they said, ^yThou hast saved our lives: ^zlet us find grace in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants. And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part; ^aexcept the land of the priests [or, princes] only, which became not Pharaoh's.

Jacob gives directions respecting his burial, and blesses Joseph and his two sons.

27 AND Israel ^bdwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and ^cgrew, and multiplied exceedingly. And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years. And the time ^ddrew nigh that Israel must die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, ^eput, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and ^fdeal kindly and truly with me; ^gbury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt:³ but ^hI will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and ⁱbury me in their burying-place. And he said, I will do as thou hast said. And he said, Swear unto me. And he swore unto him. And ^kIsrael bowed himself upon the bed's head.⁴

48 And it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father ^lis sick: and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim. And one told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthened himself, and sat upon the bed. And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at ^mLuz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me, and said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee ⁿfor an everlasting possession. And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and ^rI will bless them. ⁴ The Greek translators, differing only in a vowel point, render the word 'staff.' The idea, however, is the same; as the spear of the warrior and the staff of the chief were set at the bed's head. The patriarch turned himself in a posture of devotion. See Heb. xi. 21.

Jacob prophetically blesses his sons.

- 49 AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, Gather yourselves together, that I may ^l tell you that which shall befall you ^m in the last days.³
- 2 Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; And ⁿ hearken unto Israel your father.
- 3 Reuben, thou art ^o my firstborn,—my might, ^p and the beginning of my strength, The excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:
- 4 Unstable as water, ^q thou shalt not excel:⁴ Because thou ^r wentest up to thy father's bed; Then defiledst thou it: he went up to my couch.
- 5 ^s Simeon and Levi are ^t brethren; ^u Instruments of cruelty are in their habitations.⁵
- 6 O my soul, ^v come not thou into their secret; ^w Unto their assembly, ^x mine honour, be not thou united: For ^y in their anger they slew a man, And in their selfwill they digged down a wall.⁶
- 7 ^z Cursed be their anger, for it was fierce;—and their wrath, for it was cruel: ^a I will⁷ divide them in Jacob,—and scatter them in Israel.
- 8 ^b Judah, thou art ^c he whom thy brethren shall praise:⁸ ^d Thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies;⁹ ^e Thy father's children shall bow down before thee.¹⁰
- 9 Judah is ^f a lion's whelp:—from the prey, my son, thou art gone up: ^g He stooped down, he couched as a lion, And as an old lion;¹¹ who shall rouse him up?
- 10 ^h The sceptre shall not depart from Judah,—nor ⁱ a lawgiver ^j from between his feet, ^k Until Shiloh¹² come;—^l and unto him shall the gathering of the people be.
- 11 ^m Binding his foal unto the vine,—and his ass's colt unto the choice vine;¹³

1 Though Manasseh had more land, Ephraim was always the more powerful tribe, ranking next to Judah; so that the ten tribes, after their separation from the kingdom of Judah, were called collectively by the name of Ephraim. See Hosea, ch. viii., ix.

2 This is supposed by many to refer to an event otherwise unnoticed in Jacob's life, when he had to regain by force the land he had purchased near Shechem.

3 Or, 'hereafter.' This chapter contains prophecies of the future destinies and characters of the tribes, as well as references to their founders. It should be compared with Deut. xxxiii.; and with the allotments of the different tribes, as recorded in Josh. xiii.—xix.

4 No judge, prophet, prince, or person of renown is found of this tribe; nor was the tribe itself ever distinguished for anything good. See Judg. v. 15, 16.

5 Or, 'Their swords are weapons of violence;' but perhaps it is better to read, with the Septuagint and Samaritan, 'They perpetrated wickedness by their schemes.'

6 Or, 'they houghed oxen:' or, perhaps, 'destroyed a prince;' i. e. Hamor or Shechem (ch. xxxiv.)

7 Jacob is said to do that which he predicts. Similar phraseology is common in the prophetic writings.

8 In allusion to the meaning of his name (Praise).

9 Or, 'Over all thine enemies thou shalt be victorious.'

10 The supremacy, and the great promise of Messiah, are separated from the rest of the birthright and given to Judah. See 1 Chron. v. 2, and note on ch. xlviii. 5.

11 Rather, 'lionesess.' These figures, rising in a beautiful climax, indicate the warlike character and power of the tribe. First, it is compared to a lion's whelp; then to a full-grown lion; then to a lionesess, which, when roused in defence of her cubs, exceeds all in fierceness.

12 Some of the most ancient versions give this word the meaning, 'He to whom it (i. e. the sceptre or kingdom) belongs.' But as the text now stands it is better to render it 'peace,' or 'the peaceful one.' Having announced the sovereignty of Judah, the patriarch goes on to declare that it should have no end, until one should come bearing the name of 'Shiloh,' whose sway both Israel and all mankind should acknowledge. The subsequent history presents the fulfilment of this prediction. In the journeyings of the Israelites through the wilderness, and under the theocracy in the promised land, this tribe took the precedence; after the return of the people from Babylon, it absorbed the others, and gave its name to the whole nation; and even under the dominion of the Romans it retained a measure of authority. But, on the appearance of Christ, all this quickly passed away to make room for the spiritual and ultimately universal reign of the Prince of peace.

13 On the hills of Judah the vine was extensively cultivated, and numerous flocks were pastured.

1 The appearance of the people would indicate their happy lot. These verses (11, 12) describe, in poetical terms, the peace and plenty of Messiah's reign.

2 Probably not the city, which lay far to the north, but the territory of the Zidonians: the word 'haven' referring either to the Zidonian ports, or, more probably, to the coast of Zebulun on the sea of Galilee. Tiberias was in this tribe. See Josh. xix. 10—16, and map of Canaan.

3 Or, 'borders.' In the portion of this tribe lay the rich plain of Jezreel, bordered by the range of Carmel and the hills of Galilee. The patient and laborious ass aptly represents an orderly, industrious people, who prefer agricultural pursuits to military or commercial enterprise. The men of Issachar, however, occasionally displayed both valour and wisdom. See Judg. v. 15 ; 1 Chron. xii. 32.

4 So the name 'Dan' signifies. The stealthy character of their warfare (resembling that of the Bedouin) is illustrated in Judg. xviii. ; and aptly represented by the attack of the cerastes, or horned viper, which lies unperceived in the sand.

5 Or, 'I am expecting thy salvation, O Jehovah:' possibly referring to some unrecorded revelations of the great redemption.

6 The words 'troop' and 'overcome' are allusions to the name Gad, whose tribe was much exposed to predatory incursions from the Syrian and Arabian deserts. 'At last' may be rendered 'in the rear,' or 'in return.'

7 Partly from his proximity to the commercial Phœnicians, and partly from the fruitfulness of his own land on the western mountain-slopes.

8 This verse is very obscure ; and may be translated, as by Bochart, from the Greek, 'Naphtali is a spreading (terebinth or oak) tree, producing beautiful branches ;' or, 'Naphtali is a free (or, graceful) hind, bringing forth beautiful young ones (or, occasioning beautiful sayings).'

9 Or rather, as the Samaritan and Syriac, 'by the name of ;' answering to the former part of the parallel, 'by the hands of.' This blessing on Joseph, which was fulfilled in the portions of Ephraim and Manasseh, is the fullest and most elaborate of all. 'Heaven above,' with its rains and dews,—'the deep,' the western sea, the lake of Tiberias, and the Jordan through much of its course,—and 'the everlasting hills,' mount Ephraim, and mount Gilead,—promoted the increase of their families and of their possessions, and made Joseph as a 'fruitful bough by a well.' See Deut. xxxiii. 13—17.

10 Or, 'The blessings of thy father exceed the blessings of the eternal mountains, the desirable things of the everlasting hills.' Comp. Deut. xxxiii. 15.

11 In the first times of Israel, the Benjamites were noted for their courage and success in war. From them sprang Ehud the second judge, and Saul the first king. They were afterwards united with Judah, shared in its privileges, and returned in large numbers from Babylon.

50 And Joseph ^c fell upon his father's face, and ^d wept upon him, and kissed him.

2 And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians ¹ to ^e embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel. And forty days were fulfilled for him; for so

3 are fulfilled the days of those which are embalmed: and the Egyptians ^f mourned for him threescore and ten days. And when the days of his mourning were past,

4 Joseph spake unto ^g the house of Pharaoh, saying, If now I have found grace in your eyes, speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh, saying, ^h

5 My father made me swear, saying, Lo, I die: in my grave ⁱ which I have digged for me in the land of Canaan, there shalt thou bury me. Now therefore let me go up, I pray

6 thee, and bury my father, and I will come again. And Pharaoh said, Go up, and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear.

7 And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all ² the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt, and all

8 the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds, they left in the land of Goshen. And there

9 went up with him both chariots and horsemen: and it was a very great company. And they came to the threshingfloor of Atad, which is beyond ³ Jordan, and there

10 they ^k mourned with a great and very sore lamentation: ^l and he made a mourning for his father seven days. And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites,

11 saw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they said, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called Abel-Mizraim [i. e. the

12 mourning of the Egyptians], which is beyond Jordan. And his sons did unto him according as he commanded them: for ^m his sons carried him into the land of

13 Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham ⁿ bought with the field for a possession of a burying-place of Ephron the Hittite, 14 before Mamre. And Joseph returned into Egypt, he, and his brethren, and all that went up with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

Joseph's assurance to his brethren; his old age, and dying charge.

15 AND when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, ^o they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil

16 which we did unto him. And they sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died, saying, So shall ye say unto Joseph, Forgive,

17 I pray thee now, the trespass of thy brethren, and their sin; ^p for they did unto thee evil: and now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of ^q the God

18 of thy father. And Joseph wept when they spake unto him. And his brethren also went and ^r fell down before his face; and they said, Behold, we ^s be thy

19 servants. And Joseph said unto them, ^t Fear not: ^u for am I in the place of God? ^v but as for you, ye thought evil against me; ^w but ^x God meant it unto good, to 20 bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive. Now therefore fear ye not: ^y I will nourish you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and

21 spake kindly unto them. And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his father's house: and Joseph lived an

22 hundred and ten ⁴ years. And Joseph saw Ephraim's children ^z of the third generation: ^a the children also of Machir the son of Manasseh ^b were brought up

23 upon Joseph's knees. And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die: and ^c God will surely visit you, ⁵ and

24 bring you out of this land unto the land ^d which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. And ^e Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God

25 will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence. So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they ^f embalmed him, and he was

¹ Persons of high rank in Egypt had a number of family physicians, each devoting himself to one class of diseases. In later times, the embalmers formed a distinct class. This art was carried to such perfection by the Egyptians, that their mummies remain to the present day, after a lapse of more than 2000 years. It afforded facilities for their pompous and lengthened funeral ceremonies, of which representations are seen in their tombs.

CHRONOLOGY OF GENESIS.

NOTE ON THE CHRONOLOGY OF THE BOOK OF GENESIS.

THERE is great difference of opinion as to the chronology of the earlier portion of Genesis, arising from variations between the Hebrew and Samaritan texts, the Greek version of the Seventy, and the statements of Josephus, Theophilus, and others, who profess to follow the Scripture as it existed in their time. These authorities generally agree as to the ages which the several patriarchs attained; but they assign the births of some of them to different periods in the lives of their fathers. Thus, Seth is said in the Hebrew (Gen. v. 3) to have been born when Adam was a hundred and thirty years of age; in the Septuagint it is two hundred and thirty. These variations, which apply to six of the patriarchs before the flood, make together a difference of 600 years in that portion of the chronology:—while, after the flood, the name of Cainan, which is not in the Hebrew, is found in the Septuagint (and in Luke iii. 37), thus adding 130 years; and there is an addition of 100 years, as before, in every instance from Arphaxad to Serug, and of 50 years in the case of Nahor; making together 650 (or with Cainan 780) years, after the flood. This amounts to a total difference of 1250 (or 1380) years down to the time of Terah, who was 130 years old at Abraham's birth.

Upon these conflicting data two systems of chronology have been constructed, which are commonly known in this country by the names of their chief supporters, Usher and Hales: the former of whom follows the present Hebrew text, adopting the shorter computation; whilst the latter generally prefers the longer reckoning of the Septuagint and Josephus, which is in part sustained by the Samaritan text. The table below exhibits some of the leading epochs of this period, according to both schemes. The longer chronology adopted by Hales is by many considered to be the best entitled to confidence, and among other reasons for the following:—

1. The Hebrew is deemed the more likely to have been altered; inasmuch as, for some time after the Christian era, its use was almost entirely confined to the Jews (and chiefly to the more learned amongst them), who had a motive for shortening the period between the creation and the birth of Jesus, in order to make it appear that the epoch in the world's history which their expositors had always fixed for the appearance of the Messiah had not yet arrived:—whilst, on the other hand, no motive for lengthening the chronology can be supposed to have existed on the part of the Jewish translators of the Septuagint; nor could there have been an opportunity to alter the Greek text afterwards; for it was in extensive circulation, and in constant public use, both among Jews and Christians. And there is good reason to believe that, from the year 280 B. C., when the Greek version was made, to the end of the first century of the Christian era, these numbers in the Hebrew and Greek texts were identical.

2. The length of time assigned by the Septuagint, the Samaritan text, and Josephus, to the period between the deluge and the birth of Abraham (about 1000 years), is deemed more consistent with historical facts than the shorter time assigned by the Hebrew (about 350 years), which appears insufficient for the great multiplication and extended dispersion of Noah's descendants over immense tracts of country, extending from India and Assyria to Ethiopia, Egypt, and Greece; and for the establishment of the organized and powerful monarchies of Babylon, Nineveh, and Egypt; besides numerous lesser chieftaincies, such as those of Canaan, which seem to have been founded by descendants of Ham, after the expulsion of some other tribes who had previously settled in the country.

3. The longer chronology appears to bring the duration of the successive generations into better proportion to the gradually diminished length of human life, at the several stages of the history.

Those who adhere to the shorter computation urge principally the following considerations:—

1. The authority and accuracy of the original Hebrew text, which has been supposed to have been preserved by the Jews with such jealous care as to exclude all possibility of error. It must, however, be remembered, that the extended researches of modern times have brought to light numerous verbal discrepancies, which, though not affecting a single truth of Scripture, weaken the force of this argument, especially when applied to dates and numbers.

2. The facilities afforded by the shorter genealogy for the safe and rapid transmission of revealed truth in the earliest ages; Lamech being contemporary both with Adam and with Shem, whilst Shem was contemporary with Abraham. This is, however, of little moment, if we suppose more numerous revelations of the Divine will.

3. The coincidence (at least, within a few years) of the date hereby fixed for the creation with a remarkable astronomical epoch, when the major axis of the earth's orbit coincided with the line of the equinoxes. But there is no necessity for supposing the creation to have taken place at this rather than at some other period.

4. The objection drawn from the shortness of the interval between the deluge and the birth of Abraham is met by adducing the rapid increase of mankind in some newly-peopled districts, such as the United States of America, where the population has doubled itself in fifteen years. This, however, is clearly owing, in the case adduced, to extensive immigration and the absence of war.

Upon the whole, the evidence preponderates in favour of the longer period after the deluge; it is more nearly balanced in the antediluvian period, the chronology of which is of less importance.

THE SECOND BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED EXODUS.

THE title 'EXODUS,' signifying 'going out,' was given to this book by the Greek translators, because the departure of the Israelites from Egypt is here related.

By the call of Abraham, and the covenant of circumcision, the people from whom the promised Saviour was to come, and who were to be for many ages the depository of Divine revelation, had been in some measure distinguished from the rest of the world. But, whilst they remained mixed with other nations who had degenerated into idolatry, they were in danger of losing the true religion. God therefore now proceeds to separate them entirely from all other people. To this end, he allows them to be subjected to cruel servitude and oppression, consequent upon the altered policy of the Egyptians—changing their home of plenty into a house of bondage, and causing them to desire deliverance (ch. i.) He prepares for them a deliverer, Moses, who undertook the mission, not by choice and self-will, but in obedience to an immediate call from Jehovah, who revealed himself by his covenant name (ch. ii.—iv.) He shows forth his glory in Israel, by releasing them from their bondage; and Pharaoh, by punishing his opposition to himself and his people (ch. vi.—xv.) Then taking the Israelites under his special guidance and discipline, he manifests himself to them with that material splendour which was most suited to their low spiritual state; and, amidst thunder, lightning, and earthquake, promulgates his law, renews his promises, and solemnly avouches them to be his people; while they avouch him to be their God (ch. xvi.—xx.) And, as their Divine King, he further develops the regulations of his government and the manner of his worship, appoints his ministers, and directs the construction of his dwelling-place among them (ch. xxi.—xl.)

In the moral laws, so clearly enjoined, God shows that his claims are not affected by man's fall; and convinces the sinner of his guilt and misery, and consequent need of a Saviour; whilst he supplies his redeemed people with a rule of life, showing them the path in which they must walk on their way to heaven. The ceremonial institutions were expressive of great truths and principles, presented in a simple and palpable form, adapted to the comparative childhood of the church; and they were, at the same time, types and figures of Christian blessings. In particular, the Passover was an impressive emblem of the sacrifice of Christ, 'the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world.'

This book embraces a period of 145 years; and may be divided into two principal parts:—

I. THE DELIVERANCE OF THE ISRAELITES FROM EGYPT: including their oppressed state after the death of Joseph, and their wonderful increase (ch. i.): the birth, preservation, and history of Moses; and his preparation for his great office (ii.—vi.): the plagues inflicted on Egypt; the departure of the Israelites, and the destruction of their enemies (vii.—xv. 1—21).

II. THE MANIFESTATION OF GOD IN THE MIDST OF ISRAEL, AND THE GIVING OF THE LAW: comprising the entrance of the Israelites into the wilderness, and the miraculous provision made for their guidance and support (xv. 22—xviii. 27): their national covenant with God, made, broken, and renewed; together with judicial laws, and directions respecting the sanctuary, priesthood, and ritual (xix.—xxxiv.): the tabernacle built, and solemnly occupied by God (xxxv.—xl.)

Increase and oppressed state of the Israelites.

1 NOW ^a these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt; 2 every man and his household came with Jacob. Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and 3 Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin, Dan, and Naphtali, Gad, and Asher. 5 And all the souls that came out of the loins of Jacob were ^b seventy souls: for 6 Joseph was in Egypt already. And ^c Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all 7 that generation. ^d And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them. 8 Now there ^e arose up a new ¹ king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph. And 9 he said unto his people, Behold, ^f the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we: ² ^g come on, let us ^h deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our 11 enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land. Therefore they did set over them taskmasters ⁱ to afflict them with their ^h burdens. And they 12 built for Pharaoh treasure cities, Pithom ¹ and Raamses. ³ But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved 13 because of the children of Israel. And the Egyptians made the children of Israel 14 to serve ^m with rigour: and they ⁿ made their lives bitter with hard bondage, ^o in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour. 15 And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives, of which the name of 16 the one was Shiphrāh, and the name of the other Puah: and he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools; if it be a son, then ye shall kill him: but if it be a daughter, then she shall live. 17 But the midwives ^p feared God, and did not ^q as the king of Egypt commanded 18 them, but saved the men children alive. And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said unto them, Why have ye done this thing, and have saved 19 the men children alive? And ^r the midwives said unto Pharaoh, Because the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women; for they are lively, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them. ^sTherefore God dealt well with the midwives. And the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty. And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, ^tthat he made them houses.¹ And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, ^uEvery son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive.

Birth and preservation of Moses, and his flight to Midian.

2 AND there went ^xa man² of the house of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi. And the woman conceived, and bare a son:³ and ^ywhen she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months. And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes,⁴ and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink. ^zAnd his sister⁵ stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him. And the ^adaughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it. And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children. Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee? And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the maid went and called the child's mother. And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, ^band nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it. And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became ^cher son. And she called his name Moses [i. e. drawn out]: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water. And it came to pass in those days, ^dwhen Moses was grown,⁶ that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their ^eburdens:⁷ and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren. And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he ^fslew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand. And ^gwhen he went out the second day, behold two men of the Hebrews strove together: and he said to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow? And he said, ^hWho made thee a prince and a judge over us? intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared, and said, Surely this thing is known. Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, ⁱhe sought to slay Moses. But ^kMoses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian:⁸ and he sat down by ^la well. ^mNow the priest [or, princeⁿ] of Midian had seven daughters: ^oand they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock. And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and ^pwatered their flock. And when they came to ^qReuel⁹ their father, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to-day? And they said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock. And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? call him, that he may ^reat bread. And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses ^sZipporah his daughter. And she bare him a son, and he called his name ^tGershom [i. e. a stranger here]: for he said, I have been ^ua stranger in a strange land.

Divine manifestation and commission to Moses.

23 AND it came to pass ^xin process of time, that the king of Egypt died: and the children of Israel ^ysighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried, and ^ztheir cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage. And God ^aheard¹⁰ their groaning, and God ^bremembered his ^ccovenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. And God ^dlooked upon the children of Israel, and God ^ehad respect unto them.

2 Amram, the son of Kohath, and grandson of Levi. See ch. vi. 18, 20. His wife's name was Jochebed.

3 Jochebed's two other children, Miriam and Aaron, were born, probably, before the last edict of Pharaoh.

4 The papyrus (cyperus papyrus) of which boats were often made. The flags were another kind of cyperus, from which the Red Sea took its Hebrew name.

5 Probably Miriam.

6 Moses was now full forty years old (Acts vii. 23). See general remarks on the Five Books of Moses, p. 1.

7 It is plain, from Heb. xi. 24--27, that Moses now boldly espoused the cause of God's people; renouncing the advantages of his rank among the Egyptians.

8 The Midianites, like some other Oriental nations, were partly settled and partly nomadic; and associated with the Ishmaelites (Gen. xxxvii. 25, 28), the Amalekites (Numb. xxiv. 20; Judg. vii. 12), and the Moabites (Numb. xxii. 7). They frequented the deserts south-east of Palestine. The tribe with which Moses was allied were called Kenites.

9 Perhaps the same as Jethro (ch. iii. 1); or, more likely, Jethro's father.

10 This is spoken after the manner of men; and means that God interposed to deliver them. See note on Gen. vi. 6.

3 Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, ^fthe priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to ^gthe mountain of 2 God,¹ even to Horeb. And ^hthe angel² of the LORD appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned
3 with fire, and the bush was not consumed. And Moses said, I will now turn
4 aside, and see this 'great sight, why the bush is not burnt. And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, God called ^junto him out of the midst of the bush,
5 and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I. And he said, Draw not nigh hither: ^kput off thy shoes³ from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest 6 is holy ground. Moreover he said, ^lI am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for ^mhe was afraid to look upon God.
7 And the LORD said, "I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry ^oby reason of their taskmasters; for ^pI know
8 their sorrows; and ^qI am come down to ^rdeliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land ^sunto a good land⁴ and a large, unto a land 'flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of "the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the 9 Jebusites. Now therefore, behold, ^tthe cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the ^uoppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them. ^vCome now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.
11 And Moses said unto God, ^aWho am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and 12 that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt? And he said, ^bCertainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token⁵ unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ^cye shall serve God upon this mountain.
13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name?⁶ what shall I say unto them?
14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM:⁷ and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, ^dI AM hath sent me unto you.
15 And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob,⁸ hath sent me unto you: this is ^emy name for ever, and 16 this is my memorial unto all generations. Go, and ^fgather the elders⁹ of Israel together, and say unto them, the LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, ^gI have surely visited you, and 17 seen that which is done to you in Egypt: and I have said, ^hI will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt unto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a 18 land flowing with milk and honey. And ⁱthey shall hearken to thy voice: and ^kthou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and ye shall say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath ^lmet with¹⁰ us: and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days' journey into the wilderness, that we may 19 sacrifice to the LORD our God. And I am sure that the king of Egypt ^mwill not let you go, no, not by a mighty hand [or, but by strong hand]. And I will 20 "stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with ⁿall my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and ^pafter that he will let you go. And ^qI will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to pass, that, when 22 ye go, ye shall not go empty: ^rbut every woman shall borrow of her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and

² The Divine Mediator, who is called the 'Messenger of the covenant,' Mal. iii. 1. The fire which did not injure the bush is an expressive symbol of God's omnipotence; which, even when put forth to destroy, can preserve those whom he designs to deliver. But the burning bush has been commonly supposed to represent the church unhurt by the fire of persecution.

³ As is still done in the East, on entering a sacred place, where God is supposed to be especially present.

⁴ Canaan was large compared with Goshen, and was very fruitful (Deut. viii. 7). Few countries have so great a diversity of climate and productions within a similar space.

⁵ This was a token not that it was God who spoke to him, but that he should have Divine help, so as to be enabled to accomplish successfully his great mission.

⁶ This seems to imply that the Israelites had fallen into idolatry, and forgotten the God of their fathers.

⁷ These words were (ch. vi. 3) modified into the name JEHOVAH. This name expresses God's faithfulness and unchangeableness.

4 And Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me,¹ nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The LORD hath not appeared unto thee.

2 And the LORD said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, 'A rod. And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it. And the LORD said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand: that they may believe that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

6 And the LORD said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous² as snow. And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again; and plucked it out of his bosom, and, behold, ²it was turned again as his other flesh. And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign. And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take of the water of the river, and pour it upon the dry land: and ^athe water which thou takest out of the river shall become blood upon the dry land.

10 And Moses said unto the LORD, O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant: but ^bI am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11 And the LORD said unto him, 'Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the LORD? Now therefore go, and I will be ^dwith thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

13 And he said, O my Lord, ^esend, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou wilt send.

14 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, ^fhe cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart. And ^gthou shalt speak unto him, and ^hput words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and ⁱwill teach you what ye shall do. And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and ^kthou shalt be to him instead of God.³ And thou shalt take ^lthis rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.

18 And Moses went and returned to Jethro his father-in-law, and said unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren which are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace.

Moses returns to Egypt; and is joined by Aaron.

19 AND the LORD said unto Moses in Midian, Go, return into Egypt: for ^mall the men are dead which sought thy life. And Moses took his wife and his sons, and set them upon an ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt: and Moses took ⁿthe rod of God in his hand. And the LORD said unto Moses, When thou goest to return into Egypt, see that thou do all those ^owonders before Pharaoh which I have put in thine hand: but ^pI will harden his heart,⁴ that he shall not let the people go. And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD, ^qIsrael is my son, ^r*even* my firstborn:⁵ and I say unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me: and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, ^sI will slay thy son, even thy firstborn.

24 And it came to pass by the way in the inn, that the LORD ^tmet him, and sought to ^ukill him.⁶ Then Zipporah took ^va sharp stone,⁷ and cut off the foreskin of her son, and cast it at his feet, and said, Surely a bloody husband art thou to me. So he let him go: then she said, A bloody husband thou art, because of the circumcision.

¹ The following signs were designed to satisfy, not Moses, but the people.

² The sudden appearance and disappearance of this incurable disease would be a palpable miracle.

³ The Chaldee reads, 'Master.' It may mean, 'thou shalt direct him what he shall say, as God directs thee.'

⁴ In the whole of the transactions which followed in Egypt, we see the controlling agency of God: not interfering with the liberty of Pharaoh, or obliging him to sin; but, in judgment for his previous cruelty and impiety, placing him in circumstances which would have influenced aright a well-disposed mind; while they led a man of his character to the extraordinary course of wickedness and hardihood which he pursued.

⁵ These terms are often used afterwards to express the love which God cherishes towards his people. The threat which follows was literally fulfilled (ch. xii. 29).

⁶ He who neglects a known command is not fit for the service of God. See Gen. xvii. 10—14.

⁷ Sharpened stones were anciently used instead of knives. The word rendered 'husband' is often applied by the Jews to a child when circumcised.

27 And the LORD said to Aaron, Go into the wilderness ^y to meet Moses. And he 28 went, and met him in ^z the mount of God, and kissed him. And Moses ^a told Aaron all the words of the LORD who had sent him, and all the ^b signs which he had commanded him.

29 And Moses and Aaron ^c went and gathered together all the elders of the 30 children of Israel: ^d and Aaron spake all the words which the LORD had spoken
31 unto Moses, and did the signs in the sight of the people. And the people ^e believed: and when they heard that the LORD had ^f visited the children of Israel, and that he ^g had looked upon their affliction, then ^h they bowed their heads and worshipped.

Message to Pharaoh; his reply, and increased cruelty.

5 AND afterward Moses and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold ⁱ a feast unto me in 2 the wilderness. And Pharaoh said, ^k Who is the LORD, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the LORD, ^l neither will I let Israel go.
3 And they said, ^m The God of the Hebrews hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the LORD our God; 4 lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword. And the king of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let ⁿ the people from their 5 works? get you unto your ^o burdens. And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now ^p are many, and ye make them rest from their burdens.

6 And Pharaoh commanded the same day the ^q taskmasters of the people, and 7 their officers, saying, Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as 8 heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves. And the tale of the bricks, which they did make heretofore, ye shall lay upon them; ye shall not diminish ought thereof: for they ^r be idle; therefore they cry, saying, Let us go 9 and sacrifice to our God. Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein; and let them not regard vain words.

10 And the taskmasters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake 11 to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw. Go ye, get you straw where ye can find it: yet not aught of your work shall be 12 diminished. So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of 13 Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw. And the taskmasters hasted them, 14 saying, Fulfil your works, your daily tasks, as when there was straw. And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, ^s and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick both yesterday and to-day, as heretofore?

15 Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, 16 Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants? There is no straw given unto thy servants, and they say to us, Make brick: and, behold, thy servants are 17 beaten; but the fault is in thine own people. But he said, Ye are idle, ye are 18 idle: therefore ye say, Let us go and do sacrifice to the LORD. Go therefore now, and work; for there shall no straw be given to you, yet shall ye deliver the 19 tale of bricks. And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not minish ought from your bricks of your daily task.

20 And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth 21 from Pharaoh: ^t and they said unto them, The LORD look upon you, and judge; because ye have made our savour to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to slay us.

22 And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou so 23 evil entreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me? For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; neither hast 6 thou delivered thy people at all. Then the LORD said unto Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for ^u with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand ^v shall he drive them out of his land.

4 The names of God are expressive of his revealed perfections. The name JEHOVAH had probably been used in common with others; but as his unchanging faithfulness in the fulfilment of his promise was now about to be especially displayed, he chooses that significant title (ch. iii. 14; James i. 17; Rev. i. 8) to designate himself as the God of Israel. In like manner the Divine Redeemer speaks of his 'new name,' Rev. iii. 12.

 5 land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers. And 6 ^a I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians

 17 Moses for anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.¹

 19 Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land. And Moses spake 20 before the LORD, saying, Behold, the children of Israel have not hearkened 21 unto me; how then shall Pharaoh hear me, who am of ^k uncircumcised ² lips?
 22 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, and gave them a charge unto 23 the children of Israel, and unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring the children of 24 Israel out of the land of Egypt.

¹ God has special comforts for times of peculiar suffering; but we need beware lest mistrust should rob us of them.

² This word is frequently applied to that which is displeasing or unfit for use: see refs.

³ This genealogy (vers. 14—27) seems intended not only to exhibit the pedigree of the leaders of Israel, but also to show that God brought the people out of Egypt in the fourth generation, as he had promised (Gen. xv. 16).

⁴ Perhaps, as in the Septuagint and Syriac, 'cousin.'

LORD, when I ¹stretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them.

6 And Moses and Aaron ^udid as the LORD commanded them; so did they. And 7 Moses ^{was} ^xfourscore years old, and Aaron fourscore and three years old, when they spake unto Pharaoh.

8, 9 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, ^yShow a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, ^zTake thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.

10 And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so ^aas the LORD had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, 11 and it ^bbecame a serpent. Then Pharaoh also ^ccalled the wise men¹ and ^dthe sorcerers. Now the magicians of Egypt, they also ^edid in like manner with their 12 enchantments. For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: 13 but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods. ^fAnd he hardened Pharaoh's heart,² that he hearkened not unto them; ^gas the LORD had said.

First plague on Egypt—water turned into blood.

14 AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^hPharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to 15 let the people go. Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he goeth out unto the water; and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come; and ⁱthe

16 rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand. And thou shalt say unto him, ^kThe LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, ^lthat they may serve me in the wilderness: and, 17 behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear. Thus saith the Lord, In this ^mthou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river,³ and ⁿthey shall be turned

18 ^oto blood. And the fish⁴ that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink; and the Egyptians shall ^plothe to drink of the water of the river.

19 And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and ^qstretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their ^rstreams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels⁵ of wood, and in vessels of stone.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the LORD commanded; and he ^slifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the ^twaters that were in the river were turned

21 to blood.⁶ And the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river; and there was blood 22 throughout all the land of Egypt. ^uAnd the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments. And Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he

23 hearken unto them; ^xas the LORD had said. And Pharaoh turned and went 24 into his house, neither did he set his heart to this also. And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink: for they could not drink of 25 the water of the river. And seven days were fulfilled, after that the LORD had smitten the river.

Second plague—frogs.

8 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus 2 saith the LORD, Let my people go, ^ythat they may serve me. And if thou

3 ^zrefuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all thy borders with ^afrogs:⁷ and the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into thine house, and into ^bthy bedchamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy

1 The names of two of them, Jannes and Jambres, are given by the apostle Paul, 2 Tim. iii. 8. It is a question whether these magicians performed real miracles by satanic power; or whether they only practised feats of jugglery, such as the Egyptians still perform. Their failure in the case of the lice, or gnats (ch. viii. 18), seems to render the latter supposition the more probable. But the superiority of Aaron's miracle, as effected by the power of God, was clearly demonstrated; and it sufficiently proved that the demand which had been made (ch. v. 1) was by Divine authority.

2 All the ancient versions and best modern translators render this, 'And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened.' See ver. 22, where the Hebrew expression is the same.

3 The Nile was an object of reverence, and its water is proverbially pleasant and salubrious.

4 Fish were worshipped by many; and they constituted the principal food of a large portion of the people.

5 Rather, cisterns, or reservoirs.

6 As the first miracle, which was merely demonstrative, had been disregarded, those which followed were to be acts of judgment. Of these, the first nine were preparatory to the tenth, the great act of judgment, which, as previously announced (ch. iv. 22, 23), was to carry with it the complete prostration of the adversary, and the deliverance of Israel. They manifested the absolute sovereignty of Jehovah over all creation, especially over the favourite objects of Egyptian idolatry, and whatever they deemed most valuable. There is also discernible in them a gradual ascent from the lower to the higher departments of nature. They probably succeeded each other very rapidly; and were all comprised between January and April.

7 Which the Egyptians revered.

servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy kneading 4 troughs: and the frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.

5 And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, ^cStretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause 6 frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt. And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt; and ^dthe frogs came up, and covered the land of 7 Egypt. ^eAnd the magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

8 Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, ^fIntreat the LORD, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; and I will let the 9 people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD. And Moses said unto Pharaoh, Glory over me: ¹when [or, against when] shall I intreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, to destroy the frogs from thee and thy houses, 10 that they may remain in the river only? And he said, To-morrow. And he said,
Be it according to thy word: that thou mayest know ²that *g*there is none like unto 11 the LORD our God. And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.
12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses ^hcried unto the 13 LORD because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh. And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and the frogs died out of the houses, 14 out of the villages, and out of the fields. And they gathered them together upon 15 heaps: and the land stank. But when Pharaoh saw that there was ⁱrespite, ^khe hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

Third plague—lice.

16 AND the LORD said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice ³throughout all the land of 17 Egypt. And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and ^lit became lice in man, and in beast; all the 18 dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt. And ^mthe magicians did so with their enchantments to bring forth lice, but they ⁿcould 19 not. So there were lice upon man, and upon beast. Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is ^othe finger of God. And Pharaoh's ^pheart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

Fourth plague—flies.

20 AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^qRise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh; lo, he cometh forth to the water; and say unto him, Thus saith 21 the LORD, ^rLet my people go, that they may serve me. Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send swarms ^sof flies ⁴upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.
22 And ^tI will sever in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know that I am 23 the LORD in the midst of the earth: and I will put a division between my 24 people and thy people. To-morrow shall this sign be. And the LORD did so; and ^uthere came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was corrupted [or, destroyed] by reason of the swarm of flies.
25 And Pharaoh called for Moses and for Aaron, and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your 26 God in the land. ^vAnd Moses said, It is not meet so to do; for we shall sacrifice the abomination ⁵of the Egyptians to the LORD our God: lo, shall we sacrifice ^xthe abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone 27 us? we will go ^ythree days' journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the 28 LORD our God, as ^zhe shall command us. And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not 29 go very far away: ^aintreat for me. And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will intreat the LORD that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh,

¹ Or, as the old versions render it, 'Appoint to me a time.'

² The sudden removal of the plague at the fixed time was as strong a proof of God's power as its infliction.

³ A common annoyance of the country intensely aggravated on this occasion. The Greek translators, who lived in Egypt, suppose gnats, or rather mosquitos, to be meant.

⁴ The marginal reading (which is that of the Jews) shows the difficulty of fixing the meaning. Some think that the beetle is here intended, which was one of the sacred animals of the Egyptians, and is extremely voracious, sometimes severely biting men.

⁵ This word is often used in Scripture to represent the objects of heathen worship as hateful to God. Some have inferred from Pharaoh's proposal that he was not a native Egyptian, but one of the shepherd-kings.

from his servants, and from his people, to-morrow: but let not Pharaoh ^b deal deceitfully any more in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the LORD.

30, 31 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and ^cintreated the LORD. And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; there remained not one. And Pharaoh ^dhardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

Fifth plague—murrain of cattle.

9 THEN the LORD said unto Moses, ^eGo in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me. 2 For if thou ^frefuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still, behold, the ^ghand of the LORD is upon thy cattle which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: there shall be a very grievous murrain. And ^hthe LORD shall sever between the cattle of Israel and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all that is the children's of Israel. And the LORD appointed a set time, saying, To-morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and ⁱall the cattle¹ of Egypt died: 7 but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one. And Pharaoh sent, and, behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead.² And ^kthe heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

Sixth plague—boils and blains on man and beast.

8 AND the LORD said unto Moses and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward the heaven in the sight of Pharaoh. And it shall become small dust³ in all the land of Egypt, and shall be ^la boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt. And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became ^ma boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast. And the ⁿmagicians⁴ could not stand before Moses because of the boils; for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians. And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; ^oas the LORD had spoken unto Moses.

Seventh plague—hail and fire.

13 AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^pRise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me. For I will at this time send all my plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people; ^qthat thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth. For now I will⁵ ^rstretch out my hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence; and thou shalt be cut off from the earth. And in very deed for ^sthis cause have I raised thee up, ^tfor to show in thee my power; and that my name may be declared throughout all the earth. ^uAs yet exaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go? Behold, to-morrow about this time I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail,⁶ such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof even until now. Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field; for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.

20 ^vHe that feared the word of the LORD among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses: and he that regarded not the word of the LORD left his servants and his cattle in the field.

22 And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be ^whail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt. And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven: and ^xthe LORD sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground; and the LORD rained hail upon the land of Egypt. So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation. And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field, both man and

¹ That is, there was death among all the cattle of Egypt; no kind was spared.

² Showing that the plague was from Jehovah.

³ The irritation produced by dust and heat occasions many purulent diseases in Egypt, especially ophthalmia.

⁴ The preceding Divine judgments had been principally directed against the objects of idolatrous worship. This plague affected the chief supporters of this idolatry, who now retire, and do not appear again in the history.

⁵ Rather, 'I might stretch out,' etc.; 'and thou shouldst be cut off from the earth. But in very deed,' etc. Pharaoh was not destroyed at once, that God might make the more varied and signal displays of his power.

⁶ Hail is almost unknown in Lower Egypt.

beast; and the hail ^asmote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of 26 the field. ^bOnly in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

27 And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, ^cI have sinned this time: ^dthe LORD is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.
28 ^eIntreat the LORD (for it is enough) that there be no more mighty thunderings [voices of God^f] and hail; and I will let you go, and ye shall stay no longer.
29 And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will ^gspread abroad my hands unto the LORD; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know how that the ^hearth is the 30 LORD's. But as for thee and thy servants, ⁱI know that ye will not yet fear the LORD God.

31 And the flax and the barley was smitten: ^kfor the barley was in the ear, and 32 the flax was bolled.¹ But the wheat and the rye were not smitten: for they were not grown up.

33 And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and ^lspread abroad his hands unto the LORD: and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured 34 upon the earth. And when Pharaoh saw that the rain and the hail and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart, he and his 35 servants. And ^mthe heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go; as the LORD had spoken by Moses.

Eighth plague—locusts.

10 AND the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: ⁿfor I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants, ^othat I might show these my signs before 2 him: and that ^pthou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, and of thy son's son, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my signs which I have done among them; ^qthat ye may know how that I am the LORD.

3 And Moses and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to ^rhumble thyself 4 before me? let my people go, that they may serve me. Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to-morrow will I bring the ^slocusts into thy ^tcoast:² 5 and they shall cover the face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth:
and ^uthey shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field:
6 and they ^vshall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. ^xAnd he turned himself and went out from Pharaoh.

7 And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, How long shall this man³ be ^ya snare unto us? let the men go, that they may serve the LORD their God: knowest thou 8 not yet that Egypt is destroyed? And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the LORD your God: but who are 9 they that shall go? And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds 10 will we go; for ^zwe must hold a feast unto the LORD. And he said unto them, Let the LORD be so with you, as I will let you go, and your little ones: ^alook to 11 it; for evil is before you. Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the LORD; for that ye did desire. And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.

12 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^bStretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and ^ceat every 13 herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left. And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, ^dand the LORD brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought 14 the locusts. And the ^elocusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they; ^fbefore them there were no 15 such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such. For they ^gcovered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; ^hand they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

1 'Bolled' means risen to a stalk. In the case of the barley and the flax, the stalk being stiff was broken by the hail. The wheat and rye (rather spelt) had not shot; and the blade would yield, and so escape serious injury. This fixes the time of this plague to February.

2 The word 'coast,' in old English, means district, or border.

der, without any reference to the sea and land. See refs.

3 The word 'man' is not in the Hebrew. Some render it, 'How long shall this course of conduct be a snare to us?' referring to Pharaoh's obstinate opposition.

4 As is the case even with ordinary swarms of locusts. These, however, were unusual in size and number.

16 Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, 'I have sinned
17 against the LORD your God, and against you. Now therefore forgive, I pray 18 thee, my sin only this once, and ^hintreat the LORD your God, that he may take 19 away from me this death only. And he ⁱwent out from Pharaoh, and intreated 20 the LORD. And the LORD turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them ^minto the Red Sea; there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt. But the Lord ⁿhardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

Ninth plague—three days' darkness; the tenth plague threatened.

21 AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^oStretch out thy hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt.
22 ^pAnd Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a ^qthick 23 darkness ¹in all the land of Egypt three days: ²they saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: ^rbut all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

24 And Pharaoh called unto Moses, and ^ssaid, Go ye, serve the LORD; only let your 25 flocks and your herds be stayed: let your ^tlittle ones also go with you. And Moses said, Thou must give us also sacrifices and burnt offerings, that we may sacrifice 26 unto the LORD our God. Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not an hoof be left behind; for thereof must we take to serve the LORD our God; and we know not with what we must serve the LORD, until we come thither.

27 But the LORD ^uhardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.
28 And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face 29 no more; for in that day thou seest my face thou shalt die. And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well, ^xI will see thy face again no more.

11 And ³the LORD said unto Moses, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt; ^yafterwards he will let you go hence: ^zwhen he shall 2 let you go, he shall surely thrust you out hence altogether. Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man borrow ⁴of his neighbour, and every woman 3 of her neighbour, ^ajewels of silver, and jewels of gold. ^bAnd the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover the man ^cMoses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people.

4 And Moses said, Thus saith the LORD, ^dAbout midnight will I go out into the 5 midst of Egypt: and ^eall the firstborn in the land of Egypt shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the firstborn of the 6 maidservant that is behind the mill; ⁵and all the firstborn of beasts. ^fAnd there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like 7 it, nor shall be like it any more. ^gBut against any of the children of Israel ^hshall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast: that ye may know how 8 that the Lord doth put ⁱa difference between the Egyptians and Israel. And ^hall these thy servants shall come down unto me, and bow down themselves unto me, saying, Get thee out, and all the people that follow thee: and after that I will go out. And he went out from Pharaoh in a great anger.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, ⁱPharaoh shall not hearken unto you; that ^mmy wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

10 And Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh: ⁿand the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

1 Obscuring the sun, which was one of the chief objects of Egyptian worship. See Gen. xli. 45, and note.

2 The thick mists and vapours which might 'be felt' (ver. 1) probably rendered all artificial light useless.

3 The first three verses are to be taken as a parenthesis; either repeating what God had said to Moses before his last interview with Pharaoh, or recording a secret revelation made to him while in the monarch's presence, which, after a short silence, he begins to utter in ver. 4.

4 See note on ch. xii. 35.

5 The lowest slaves in the household ground the corn for the family, in a hand-mill made of two stones.

6 Or, 'had spoken;' certainly before the tenth of the month. Probably these full instructions respecting the Passover had been given while the earlier miracles were being wrought, so that the Israelites might be prepared.

7 Abib, or Nisan, the seventh civil month, beginning in March or April, was now made the first of the sacred year.

8 The Jewish practice was, that not fewer than ten, nor more than twenty, should partake of one lamb.

him and his neighbour next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be ^a without blemish, a male of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats: and ye shall keep it up until the ^r fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening¹ [between the two evenings^s].

7 And they shall take of ^t the blood, and strike it on the two side posts and on the upper door post of the houses,² wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and ^u unleavened bread; and with ^v bitter herbs they shall eat it. Eat not of it raw,³ nor sodden at all with water, but ^x roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof. ^y And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and

11 that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire. And thus shall ye eat it; ^z with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet,⁴ and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste: ^a it is the LORD's passover.⁵

12 For I ^b will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and ^c against all the gods⁶ [or, princes^d] of Egypt I will execute judgment: ^e I am the LORD. And the blood shall be to you for ^f a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

14 And this day shall be unto you ^g for a memorial;⁷ and ye shall keep it a ^h feast to the LORD throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast ⁱ by an ordinance for ever.⁸ ^k Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread;⁹ even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, ^l that soul shall be cut off from

16 Israel.¹⁰ And in the first day there shall be ^m an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you; no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every man must eat, that only may be done of

17 you. And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for ⁿ in this selfsame day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt: therefore shall ye observe this day in your generations by an ordinance for ever. ^o In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened

19 bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even. ^p Seven days shall there be no leaven found in your houses: for whosoever eateth that which is leavened, ^q even that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether 20 he be a stranger, or born in the land. Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread.

The Passover kept.

21 THEN Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them, ^r Draw out and take you a lamb according to your families, and kill the passover. ^s And ye shall take a bunch of ^t hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and

23 ^u strike the lintel and the two side posts with the blood that is in the basin; and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning. ^v For the LORD will pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side posts, the LORD will pass over the door, and

24 ^x will not suffer ^y the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you. And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee and to thy sons for ever.

25 And it shall come to pass, when ye be come to the land which the LORD will give you, ^z according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service. ^a And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this

¹ At the end of the fourteenth day, just before evening twilight, when the fifteenth began, the Passover was killed.

² That it might be a ceremonial expiation for all who should eat of the lamb in that house. This reminded them that they were distinguished from the Egyptians by God's mercy, not because of their own righteousness.

³ These prohibitions probably refer to some practices of the Egyptians at their idolatrous festivals.

⁴ That is, as travellers; for in the house the robe was usually left loose, and the sandals taken off. This part of the institution does not appear to have been permanent.

⁵ This word represents the meaning of the Hebrew 'Pesach,' or Chaldee 'Pascha,' which, however, includes the idea of protection. See ver. 27.

⁶ This may mean either princes (see Isa. xix. 1), or the objects of idolatrous worship; but, perhaps, it rather signifies powers in general, referring to whatever constituted the chief objects of their dependence.

⁷ The Passover was both a memorial of Israel's preservation and deliverance out of Egypt, and a remarkable type of the great Sacrifice by which an infinitely greater deliverance was to be accomplished, of which this redemption from Egypt was a pledge and type.

¹⁰ Certainly from the privileges of an Israelite; probably with some other mark of Divine anger—perhaps death.

27 service? that ye shall say, ^b It is the sacrifice of the LORD's passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses.

28 And the people ^c bowed the head and worshipped. And the children of Israel went away, and ^d did as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

Death of the firstborn of the Egyptians; departure of the Israelites; sanctification of the firstborn.

29 ^e AND it came to pass, that at midnight ^f the LORD smote all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, ^g from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sat on his throne unto the firstborn of the captive that was in the dungeon; and all the firstborn of cattle.

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a ^h great cry in Egypt; for there was not a house¹ where there

31 was not one dead. And ⁱ he called for² Moses and Aaron by night, and said, Rise up, and get you forth from among my people, ^k both ye and the children of Israel;

32 and go, serve the LORD, as ye have said. ^l Also take your flocks and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone; and ^m bless me also.

33 ⁿ And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, ^o We be all dead men. And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their kneading troughs being bound up

35 in their clothes upon their shoulders. And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses; and they borrowed³ of the Egyptians ^p jewels⁴ of silver,

36 and jewels of gold, and raiment: ^q and the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required.⁵

And ^r they spoiled the Egyptians.

37 And ^s the children of Israel journeyed from ^t Rameses to Succoth,⁶ about ^u six 38 hundred thousand on foot that were men, beside children. And ^v a mixed multitude⁷ went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, for it was not leavened; because ^w they were thrust out of Egypt, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victual.

40 Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was ^x four 41 hundred and thirty years.⁸ And it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the selfsame day it came to pass, that all ^y the hosts of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt.

42 It is ^z a night to be much observed unto the LORD for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: this is that night of the LORD to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations.

43 And the LORD said unto Moses and Aaron, This is ^a the ordinance of the pass-

44 over: There shall no stranger eat thereof: but every man's servant that is bought for money, when thou hast ^b circumcised him, then shall he eat thereof. ^c A

46 foreigner and an hired servant shall not eat thereof. ^d In one house shall it be eaten; thou shalt not carry forth aught of the flesh abroad out of the house;

47 ^e neither shall ye break a bone thereof.⁹ ^f All the congregation of Israel shall

48 keep it. And ^g when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the pass-over to the LORD, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised

49 person shall eat thereof. ^h One law shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you.¹⁰

50 Thus did all the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

51 ⁱ And it came to pass the selfsame day, that the LORD did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt ^j by their armies.

1 This word often means 'family.' This was a solemn act of retributive justice: see ch. i. 22.

2 Or, 'sent to:' see ch. x. 29.

3 The words 'borrowed' and 'lent,' in this and the parallel verses, may be better translated 'asked' and 'granted;' as in the early English versions. The same Hebrew word here rendered 'borrow,' is in Psa. cxxii. 6 translated 'pray for.'

4 Or, 'vessels.'

5 Thus God took care that the Israelites should obtain their hard-earned wages from their oppressors, and should be well provided for their journey.

6 Or, 'booths.' This was their first station. The whole number of the Israelites was probably upwards of two millions; a wonderful increase in 215 years.

7 The 'mixed multitude' were probably in part Egyptians, and children of mixed marriages (Lev. xxiv. 10, 11).

8 From the first calling of Abraham (Gen. xii.) to this time, exactly four hundred and thirty years elapsed. The Greek and Samaritan read, 'The sojourning of the children of Israel and of their fathers in the land of Canaan, and in the land of Egypt, was four hundred and thirty years.' See note on Gen. xv. 13; and Gal. iii. 17.

9 This command was added probably because the Passover was intended to be typical as well as commemorative. By making the sprinkling of the blood the only preservative from death, God taught the Hebrews to look to the great Atonement, one peculiarity of which is here distinctly prefigured: see John xix. 33, 36.

10 This taught the Jews that their dedication to God, rather than their descent from Abraham, entitled them to their privileges. See Matt. iii. 9.

- 13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, "Sanctify unto me all the firstborn,¹ 2 whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and of beast: it is mine.
3 And Moses said unto the people, "Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of bondage; for ^pby strength of hand the LORD
4 brought you out from this place: ^qthere shall no leavened bread be eaten. ^rThis
5 day came ye out in the month Abib. And it shall be when the LORD shall ^sbring

 Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he ^tsware unto thy fathers to give thee, a land flowing with milk and honey, ^uthat thou shalt keep this service in this month.
6 ^vSeven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh day shall be a 7 feast to the LORD. Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days; and there shall ^wno leaven bread be seen with thee, neither shall there be leaven seen with 8 thee in all thy quarters. And thou shalt ^xshow thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the LORD did unto me when I came forth out of 9 Egypt. And it shall be for ^ya sign unto thee upon thine hand, and for a

10 with a strong hand hath the Lord brought thee out of Egypt. ^zThou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in his season from year to year.
11 And it shall be when the LORD shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, 12 as he sware unto thee and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee, ^cthat thou shalt set apart unto the LORD all that openeth the matrix, and every firstling that 13 cometh of a beast which thou hast; the males shall be the LORD's. And ^devery firstling of an ass³ thou shalt redeem with a lamb; and if thou wilt not redeem it, then thou shalt break his neck: and all the firstborn of man among thy 14 ^fAnd it shall be when thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What is this? that thou shalt say unto him, ^gBy strength of hand the LORD brought us 15 out from Egypt, from the house of bondage: and it came to pass, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that ^hthe LORD slew all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both the firstborn of man, and the firstborn of beast: therefore I sacrifice to the LORD all that openeth the matrix, being males; but all the firstborn of 16 my children I redeem. And it shall be for ⁱa token upon thine hand, and for frontlets between thine eyes: for by strength of hand the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt.

Journey of the Israelites; Pharaoh pursues, and is destroyed, with his army.

- 17 AND it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them ^knot through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near;⁴ for God said, Lest peradventure the people ^lrepent when they see war, and ^mthey return 18 to Egypt: but God ⁿled the people about, through the way of the wilderness of the Red Sea. And the children of Israel went up harnessed⁵ out of the land of Egypt.
19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: for he had straitly sworn the children of Israel, saying, ^oGod will surely visit you; and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.
20 And ^pthey took their journey from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the 21 edge of the wilderness. And ^qthe LORD went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud,⁶ to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them 22 light; to go by day and night: he took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.
14 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel,
² ^rthat they turn⁷ and encamp before ^sPi-hahiroth,⁸ between ^tMigdol and the sea,

¹ This applied only, as afterwards explained (vers. 12, 15), when the mother's first child was a son.

² This figurative command is derived from the Egyptian custom of wearing jewels upon the hand and forehead. The Jews, however, of later times, have interpreted it literally, and wear passages of the Law written on parchment, called phylacteries.

³ The ass is probably put for all domestic animals (of which it was the chief), not fit for sacrifice.

⁴ Namely, the route by Gaza, which would have taken very few days. Thus God mercifully proportions his people's trials to their strength.

⁵ That is, 'in an orderly manner;' having assembled, and arranged their march, at Rameses or Succoth.

⁶ This symbol of the Divine presence, called the Shekinah, seems to have had the appearance of a lofty column.

⁸ This word, if it be Hebrew, means 'the mouth of the hollow,' or 'caverns.' But if, as is likely, it be Egyptian, it means 'a place where grass grows.' The place where the Israelites crossed the sea is generally supposed to have been south of Suez; and probably to the north of the promontory now called Ras Ataka. It is evident that nothing short of a miracle could give a dry passage to the Hebrews over the very place where, in a few hours afterwards, the Egyptian army was overwhelmed. The gulf was at that time broader and deeper than it is now.

- 3 over against Baal-zephon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea. For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, ^aThey are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in. And ^aI will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; and I ^awill be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; ^athat the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD. And they did so.
- 5 And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and ^athe heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us? And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him: and he took ^bsix hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots¹ of Egypt, and captains over every one of them. And the LORD ^chardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel. And ^dthe children of Israel went out with an high hand:² but the ^eEgyptians pursued after them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army, and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.
- 10 And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel ^fcried out unto the LORD. ^gAnd they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt? ^hIs not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.
- 13 And Moses said unto the people, ⁱFear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will show to you to-day: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to-day, ^kye shall see them again no more for ever. ^lThe LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall ^mhold your peace.³
- 15 And the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward: but ⁿlift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea. And I, behold, I will ^oharden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will ^pget me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen. And the Egyptians ^qshall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.
- 19 And the angel of God, ^rwhich went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them: and it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and ^sit was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.
- 21 And Moses ^tstretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind⁴ all that night, and ^umade the sea dry land, and the waters were ^vdivided. And ^wthe children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were ^za wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.
- 23 And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, ^aeven all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen. And it came to pass, that in the morning watch ^bthe LORD looked upon the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians, and took off their chariot wheels, that they drave them heavily: so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel; for the LORD ^cfighteth for them against the Egyptians. And the LORD said unto Moses, ^dStretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen. And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea ^ereturned to his strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it; and the LORD ^foverthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea. And ^gthe waters returned, and ^hcovered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host⁵ of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there remained not so much as one of them. But ⁱthe children of Israel walked upon

² As conquerors rather than as fugitives.

³ That is, 'leave it to Him.' The frequent murmurings and rebellions of the Israelites are pathetically commemorated in Psa. cvi. and forcibly contrasted with God's mercies in Psa. lxxviii.

⁴ The use of intermediate agents may be observed in many miracles both of the Old and New Testaments.

⁵ So that their bodies could not be embalmed; which would be a further dishonour to all the nation. This entire overthrow of the Egyptian army freed the Hebrews from all apprehensions from that quarter during their journeyings; whilst the fame of it among surrounding nations aided their subsequent conquests: see ch. xv. 16; Josh. ii. 9—11.

Moses' song of praise.

- 15 THEN sang ⁿ Moses and the children of Israel this song¹ unto the LORD, and spake, saying,

I will ^o sing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously:
The horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

- 2 The LORD is my strength and ^p song,—and he is become my salvation:
^q He is my God, and I will prepare him ^r an habitation;²
My ^s father's God, and I ^t will exalt him.

- 3 The LORD is a man of ^u war:³ the LORD is his ^x name.

- 4 ^y Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea:

^z His chosen captains also are drowned in the Red Sea.

- 5 ^a The depths have covered them:—^b they sank into the bottom as a stone.

- 6 ^c Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious in power:

^d Thy right hand, O LORD, hath dashed in pieces the enemy.

- 7 And in the greatness of thine ^e excellency thou hast overthrown them that rose up against thee:

Thou sentest forth thy wrath, which ^f consumed them ^g as stubble.

- 8 And ^h with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together,

ⁱ The floods stood upright as an heap,

And the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

- 9 ^k The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake,
I will ^l divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them;
I will draw my sword, my hand shall destroy them.

- 10 Thou didst ^m blow with thy wind, ⁿ the sea covered them:

- 15 ^a Then ^b the dukes of Edom shall be amazed;

^c The mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them;

^d All the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.

- 16 ^e Fear and dread shall fall upon them;

By the greatness of thine arm they shall be as still ^f as a stone;

Till thy people pass over, O LORD,

Till the people pass over, ^g which thou hast purchased.

- 17 Thou shalt bring them in, and ^h plant them in the mountain⁵ of thine inheritance,

- 18 ^k The LORD shall reign for ever and ever.

- 19 For the ^l horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and ^m the LORD brought again the waters of the sea upon them; but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

- 20 And Miriam⁶ ⁿ the prophetess, ^o the sister of Aaron, ^p took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her ^q with timbrels and with dances.

1 When books were almost unknown, national histories were preserved in songs. God, therefore, on this as on other occasions (see Deut. xxxii.), directed Moses to use this mode of perpetuating the remembrance of his mercies.

2 Rather, 'I will glorify him.' So it is rendered in the old English versions, in accordance with the Greek, Syriac, Latin, etc., and with the parallelism of the passage.

3 We should now say 'warrior.'

4 The Philistines, who were among the most warlike of the enemies of Israel. See ch. xiii. 17; 1 Sam. iv., xxxi.

5 The whole of Canaan was hilly; but this seems prophetically to designate the site of the future temple.

6 Or, 'Mary;' it being the same name. She is called a prophetess, as speaking under Divine direction, though not necessarily inspired to utter predictions.

7 Rather, 'led the response;' the women singing the following words as a chorus to the various parts of the preceding ode.

Entrance into the wilderness; Marah and Elim.

- 22 SO Moses brought Israel from the Red Sea, and they went out into the wilderness of ¹Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.²
- 23 And when they came to ^aMarah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter:³ therefore the name of it was called Marah [i. e. bitterness⁴].
- 24 And the people ^ymurmured⁴ against Moses, saying, What shall we drink? And he ^zcried unto the LORD; and the LORD showed him a tree,⁵ ^awhich when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet. There he ^bmade for them
- 26 a statute⁶ and an ordinance, and there ^che proved them, and said, ^dIf thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these ^ediseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD ^fthat healeth thee.
- 27 ^gAnd they came to Elim,⁷ where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm trees: and they encamped⁸ there by the waters.

Gift of manna and of quails.

- 16 AND they ^htook their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto the wilderness of ⁱSin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the
- 2 land of Egypt. And the whole congregation of the children of Israel ^kmurmured
- 3 against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness: and the children of Israel said unto them, ^lWould to God we had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, ^mwhen we sat by the flesh pots, and when we did eat bread to the full;⁹ for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger.
- 4 Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold, I will rain ⁿbread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather a certain rate every day [the portion of a day in ^ohis day], that I may ^pprove them, whether they will walk in my
- 5 law, or no. And it shall come to pass, that ^qon the sixth day¹⁰ they shall prepare that which they bring in; and ^rit shall be twice as much as they gather daily.
- 6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, ^sAt even, then ye
- 7 shall know that the LORD hath brought you out from the land of Egypt: and in the morning, then ye shall see ^tthe glory of the LORD; for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: and ^uwhat are we, that ye murmur against us?
- 8 And Moses said, This shall be, when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that ^xthe LORD heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: and what are we? your murmurings
- 9 are not against us, but ^yagainst the LORD. And Moses spake unto Aaron, Say unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, ^zCome near before the LORD: for he hath heard your murmurings.
- 10 And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of the
- 11 LORD ^aappeared in the cloud. And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^bI have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel: speak unto them, saying, ^cAt even ye shall eat flesh, and ^din the morning ye shall be filled with bread; and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God.
- 13 And it came to pass, that at even ^ethe quails¹¹ came up, and covered the camp:

² Here the Israelites entered upon a course of training exactly suited to their condition and destiny; one great object of which was to give them a better knowledge of God's character and of their own. See Hos. ii. 14, 15.

⁴ If our praises proceed only from gratified self-love, they will soon be changed into murmurs when our circumstances alter. See Ps. cvi. 12—14.

⁵ In some countries, water is purified naturally by similar means; but neither Moses, who was well acquainted with this part of the desert, nor its present Arab inhabitants, to whom such a remedy would be invaluable, appear to know anything of it. Some have supposed that the tree was the ghurkud, which is found near the bitter springs of Arabia, and bears a refreshing berry, which might make water palatable. But these berries are not ripe at the time of year when the Israelites were at Marah. 'Marah' is probably the modern Hawarah.

⁶ A special command, occasioned by the recent murmuring, to confide in His provision and guidance.

⁷ Probably Wady Ghurundel—a fertile valley.

⁸ That is, for some days. The places of encampment mentioned through the subsequent narrative were probably the head quarters of Moses and the priests; the people spreading themselves over the neighbourhood, wherever they could find pasturage. A list of the principal encampments will be found in Numbers, ch. xxxiii.

⁹ A striking example of the manner in which discontent unduly praises the past, and vilifies the present.

¹⁰ This is an indication that the Sabbath was known among the Hebrews before the Law was given at Sinai.

14 and in the morning ^f the dew lay round about the host. And when the dew that lay was gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderness there lay ^g a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost on the ground. And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, *It is manna:*¹ for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, ^h This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat. This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating, ⁱ an omer² for every man, according to the number of your persons; take ye every man for them which are in his tents. And the children of Israel did so, and gathered, some more, some less. And when they did mete it with an omer, ^k he that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack; they gathered every man according to his eating.³ And Moses said, ^l Let no man leave of it till the morning. Notwithstanding they hearkened not unto Moses; but some of them left of it until the morning, and it bred worms, and stank: and Moses was wroth with them. And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted.

22 And it came to pass, that ^m on the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.⁴ And he said unto them, This is that which the LORD hath said, To-morrow is ⁿ the rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD: bake that which ye will bake to-day, and seethe that ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning. And they laid it up till the morning, as Moses bade: and it did not ^o stink, neither was there any worm therein. And Moses said, Eat that to-day; for to-day is a sabbath unto the LORD: ^p to-day ye shall not find it in the field. ^q Six days ye shall gather it; but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none. And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none. And the LORD said unto Moses, How long ^r refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws? See, for that the LORD hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days; abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day. So the people rested on the seventh day. And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna: and ^s it was like coriander seed, white; and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

32 And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth, Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt. And Moses said unto Aaron, ^t Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations. As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up ^u before the Testimony,⁵ to be kept. And the children of Israel did eat manna ^v forty years, ^w until they came to a land inhabited; they did eat manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan. Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

God sends water out of the rock.

17 AND ^x all the congregation of the children of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the LORD, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink. ^y Wherefore the people did chide with Moses, and said, Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said unto them, Why chide ye with me? wherefore do ye ^z tempt the LORD? And the people thirsted there for water; and the people ^a murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst? And Moses ^b cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to ^c stone me. And the LORD said unto Moses, ^d Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod,

¹ Rather, 'What is this?' This provision began just when other food failed, accompanied the Hebrews in all their forty years' wanderings, and ceased on the day after they had eaten the corn of Canaan: it was doubled and preserved every sixth day, and withheld every Sabbath. It was, therefore, clearly a miraculous production, entirely different from the ordinary 'mann,' or manna, of that neighbourhood, with which the Hebrews were undoubtedly acquainted, as the tree which produces it grows spontaneously in Egypt.

² 'Omer' is probably the name of a bowl or vessel in common use (vers. 18, 33). As a measure, it occurs only in this chapter; and must be distinguished from the homer, of which it was the hundredth part. An omer contained about five pints, English measure.

³ Each gathered according to the number of persons he had to eat of it.

⁴ Of the double quantity that was found, evidently to obtain his directions as to the supply for the Sabbath.

⁵ That is, the Ark of the testimony, which was soon afterwards made. This book being written after the ark was made, the fact is anticipated in the history.

6 wherewith ^s thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and go. ^h Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, ⁱ that the people may drink.¹ And Moses
7 did so in the sight of the elders of Israel. And he called the name of the place ^k Massah [i. e. temptation], and Meribah, [i. e. chiding, or, strife], because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord, saying, Is the Lord among us, or not?

Victory over the Amalekites.

8 'THEN came Amalek,² and fought with Israel in Rephidim. And Moses said
9 unto ^m Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to-morrow I 10 will stand on the top of the hill with ⁿ the rod of God³ in mine hand. So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and 11 Hur went up to the top of the hill. And it came to pass, when Moses ^c held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek pre-12 vailed. But Moses' hands were heavy;⁴ and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur ^p stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the 13 going down of the sun. And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the 14 edge of the sword. And the Lord said unto Moses, ^q Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for ^r I will utterly put out the 15 remembrance of Amalek from under heaven. And Moses built an ^s altar, and 16 called the name of it JEHOVAH-nissi [i. e. the Lord my banner]: for he said, Because⁵ the Lord hath sworn that the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

Jethro's visit and advice.

18 WHEN ^t Jethro,⁶ the priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law, heard of all that ^u God had done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the Lord had 2 brought Israel out of Egypt; then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took Zipporah, 3 Moses' wife, ^v after he had sent her back,⁷ and her ^w two sons, (of which the ^x name of the one was Gershom [i. e. a stranger there]); for he said, I have been 4 an alien in a strange land: and the name of the other was Eliezer [i. e. my God is an help]; for the God of my father, said he, was mine help, and delivered me 5 from the sword of Pharaoh,) and Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, came with his sons and his wife unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at ^a the 6 mount of God: and he said⁸ unto Moses, I, thy father-in-law Jethro, am come 7 unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her. And Moses ^b went out to meet his father-in-law, and did obeisance, and ^c kissed him; and they asked each other of their welfare; and they came into the tent.
8 And Moses told his father-in-law all that the Lord had done unto Pharaoh and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, ^d and all the travail that had come upon 9 them by the way, and how the Lord ^e delivered them. And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodness which the Lord had done to Israel, whom he had delivered out 10 of the hand of the Egyptians. And Jethro said, ^f Blessed be the Lord, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh, 11 who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians. ^g Now I know that the Lord is ^h greater than all gods: ⁱ for in the thing wherein they 12 dealt ^k proudly he was above them. And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took a burnt offering and sacrifices for God: and Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel, to eat bread⁹ with Moses' father-in-law ^j before God.
13 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people: and 14 the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening. And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that

1 As the people remained in this neighbourhood a whole year, it is probable that the water thus miraculously produced yielded them a constant supply.

2 The tribes of the Amalekites appear to have wandered through the wilderness of Paran (now called Et-Tyh), which occupied the table-land between Horeb and Palestine. It appears, from Deut. xxv. 17, 18, that this attack was marked by peculiar craftiness and cruelty.

3 Reminding the Hebrews that this victory was as much the work of Jehovah as were the other wonders wrought with the rod of Moses. The lifting up the hands (vers. 11, 12) evidently implies prayer to God: see Ps. cxli. 2.

4 Our Divine Mediator in heaven faints not, nor becomes weary.

5 The Hebrew text, as it stands, is somewhat obscure; but a slight change in it affords a meaning more agreeable to the context: 'For it shall be known as my banner [or signal] of the war of Jehovah with Amalek,' etc.

6 Jethro's visit probably occurred some time during the Israelites' stay at Sinai; and is inserted here (its exact date not being important) that the subsequent account of the giving of the Law might not be interrupted. See vers. 13, 16; Deut. i. 6, 9.

7 Probably after the occurrence recorded in ch. iv. 25.

8 That is, by a messenger. See note on ch. xii. 31.

9 A thanksgiving feast. Friendship should be sanctified by united worship.

thou doest to the people? why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand 15 by thee from morning unto even? And Moses said unto his father-in-law, 16 Because ^m the people come unto me to inquire of God: when they have ⁿ a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between one and another, and I do ^o make them know the statutes of God, and his laws.

17 And Moses' father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good.
 18 Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; ^p thou art not able to perform it thyself alone.
 19 Harken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and ^q God shall be with thee: Be thou ^r for the people to God-ward, that thou mayest ^s bring the causes 20 unto God: and thou shalt ^t teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt show them 21 ^u the way wherein they must walk, and ^v the work that they must do. Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people ^y able men, ¹ such as ^z fear God, ^a men of truth, ^b hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, 22 and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens: and let them judge the people ^c at all seasons: ^d and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier 23 for thyself, and ^e they shall bear the burden with thee. If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee so, then thou shalt be ^f able to endure, and all this people shall also go to ^g their place in peace.

24 So Moses hearkened to the voice of his father-in-law, and did all that he had 25 said. And ^h Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of 26 tens. And they ⁱ judged the people at all seasons: the ^k hard causes they brought 27 unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves. And Moses let his father-in-law depart; and ^l he went his way into his own land.

Encampment at Sinai; the ten commandments.

19 IN the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the 2 land of Egypt, the same day ^m came they into the wilderness of Sinai.² For they were departed from ⁿ Rephidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had 3 pitched in the wilderness; and there Israel camped before ^o the mount. And ^p Moses went up unto God, and the LORD ^q called unto him out of the mountain, saying,³ Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;
 4 ^r Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how ^s I bare you on eagles'
 5 wings, and brought you unto myself. Now ^t therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant,⁴ then ^u ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me 6 above all people: for ^v all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a ^y kingdom of priests, and an ^z holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their 8 faces all these words which the LORD commanded him. And ^a all the people answered together, and said, All that the LORD hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the LORD.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee ^b in a thick cloud, ^c that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and ^d believe thee for ever. And 10 Moses told the words of the people unto the LORD. And the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and ^e sanctify⁵ them to-day and to-morrow, and let 11 them ^f wash their clothes, and be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD ^g will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.
 12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it: ^h whoso-

² Probably either Wady esh Shiekh, or Wady Feiran. Here the Israelites remained nearly a year.

was called (ver. 10); a summary of the Law was given, first orally (ch. xx.), then through Moses (ch. xx. 22—xxiii. 33); and the covenant was ratified, first with blood (ch. xxiv. 6), and then by a Divine vision, and a sacred feast (vers. 9—11). After this, Moses twice ascended the mountain to meet God; and went often into the tabernacle of the congregation to receive his instructions.

⁴ The Jews, as a nation, broke this covenant; and God afterwards promised to make with them a new and better covenant: see Jer. xxxi. 33; xxxii. 40; Heb. viii. 7—10. This national covenant must be distinguished from that covenant of grace, the blessings of which are personal, and limited to true believers.

13 ever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death: there shall not an hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned, or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: when the trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.

14 And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and ^ksanctified the people; and they washed their clothes. And he said unto the people, 'Be ready against the third day: ^mcome not at your wives.

16 And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were ⁿthunders and lightnings, and a ^othick cloud upon the mount, and the ^pvoice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp ^qtrembled. And ^rMoses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount. And ^smount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the LORD descended upon it 'in fire: "and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and ^tthe whole mount quaked greatly. And ^uwhen the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, ^vMoses spake,¹ and ^wa God answered him by a voice. And the LORD came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the LORD called Moses up to the top of the mount; and Moses went up.

21 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go down, charge the people, lest they break through unto the LORD ^bto gaze, and many of them perish. And let the priests² also, which come near to the LORD, ^csanctify themselves, lest the LORD ^dbreak forth upon them. And Moses said unto the LORD, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai: for thou chargedst us, saying, ^e'Set bounds about the mount, and sanctify it. And the LORD said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people break through to come up unto the LORD, lest he break forth upon them. So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

20 And God spake ^fall these words,³ saying,

2 ^gI am the LORD thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, ^hout of the house of bondage.⁴ ⁱThou shalt have no other gods before⁵ me.

4 ^kThou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness⁶ of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: 'thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am ^ma jealous God, ⁿvisiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children⁷ unto the third and fourth generation of them that ^ohate me; and ^pshowing mercy unto thousands⁸ of them that ^qlove me, and keep my commandments.

7 ^rThou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain;⁹ for the LORD ^swill not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

8, 9 'Remember¹⁰ the sabbath day, to keep it holy. "Six days shalt thou labour,

1 Saying, 'I exceedingly fear and quake' (Heb. xii. 21). The allusion to this awfully august scene in Heb. xii. 18—24 shows how far the sublimest material display of the power of Jehovah is surpassed by the spiritual glory of the gospel. Its effect upon the minds of the people is described in Deut. xviii. 16.

2 These were probably the chiefs of families, who, in patriarchal times, discharged the duties of priests.

3 That is, down to ver. 17. The manner in which these commandments were delivered is sufficient to prove their pre-eminent importance—being spoken immediately by the voice of God; while the rest of the Divine directions were communicated privately to Moses, and by him given to the people. They were fundamental laws; and were selected not only on account of their intrinsic and universal importance, by which they are distinguished from the ceremonial and political regulations afterwards given; but also probably because the Israelites and their Egyptian and Canaanitish neighbours were peculiarly prone to the sins here specifically forbidden. Upon these and other subjects, our Saviour's commandments are contained in the sermon on the mount (Matt. ch. v.—vii.). In these commandments a natural order is observable. They present (1) JEHOVAH as the sole object of worship; (2) the mode of worship, accordant with his spiritual nature; (3) the intelligent reverence, and (4) the constant regularity required in worship. They then provide rules for our social life; beginning with (5) its foundation in family relations; and forbidding any actions injurious to (6) the life, (7) the personal purity, (8) the property, and (9) the reputation of others; as well as (10) all selfish and irregular desires. It is further to be noticed, that though most of these laws specify actions, the ninth refers to words, and the tenth extends to the thoughts and desires of the heart.

4 The peculiar claims of Jehovah here mentioned are, (1) His covenant-relation to his people, 'Thy God;' (2) His marvellous deliverance of them.

5 Rather, 'besides me.' Jehovah alone is God.

6 As the Egyptians did of the sun, the bull, the crocodile, etc. All material representations of himself are as much condemned by God as the worship of other gods. See Deut. iv. 15—19.

7 This is not spoken of eternal condemnation, but of the temporal consequences of sin; and is to be understood as modified by the repentance of either parents or children. See Ezek. ch. xviii.

8 That is, unto thousands of generations; or, in other words, for ever. See Ps. cxxxvii.

9 Referring not only to profanity and false swearing, but probably to unmeaning repetitions in Divine worship (see Matt. vi. 7), instead of a thoughtful and reverential use of God's name, or names.

10 The word 'remember' seems to imply that the Sabbath was an ancient, though perhaps neglected and almost forgotten institution; and that the command required

- 10 and do all thy work : but the ^xseventh day is the sabbath of the LORD thy God :
in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, ^ynor thy stranger that is within 11 thy gates : for ^z*in* six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day : wherefore the LORD blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.
 12 ^aHonour thy father and thy mother : ^bthat thy days may be long¹ upon the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.
 13 ^cThou shalt not kill.
 14 ^dThou shalt not commit adultery.
 15 ^eThou shalt not steal.
 16 ^fThou shalt not bear false witness against thy ^gneighbour.
 17 ^hThou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, ⁱthou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.
 18 And ^kall the people ^lsaw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain ^msmoking : and when the people saw it, they 19 removed, and stood afar off. And they said unto Moses, ⁿSpeak thou with us, 20 and we will hear : but ^olet not God speak with us, lest we die.² And Moses said unto the people, ^pFear not : ^qfor God is come to prove you, and ^rthat his 21 fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not. And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto ^sthe thick darkness, where God was.

 23 Israel, Ye have seen that I have talked with you ^tfrom heaven. Ye³ shall not constant attention. The variations in the language of this command on the various occasions on which it was given (see refs.) appear to indicate that there is no necessary connection between the seventh day and the rest day, and that therefore, quite consistently with the spirit and design of the law, the day of the week might be changed, upon the introduction of a new dispensation. The Sabbath among the Jews had ceremonial regulations connected with it which were of temporary duration : but these are clearly distinguishable from the original law, which was regarded and enforced by our Lord ; and the observance of which all experience shows to be indispensable to the welfare of mankind.

¹ See Eph. vi. 2, 3 ; which, as addressed to Gentiles (ch. ii., iii. 1), shows that this promise, though primarily made to the Jews, was not limited to them as part of their national covenant, but has an extensive meaning and application. A peculiar blessing, even in temporal things, usually rests on obedient, and the reverse on disobedient children : and the stability of nations has been found to be closely connected with the maintenance of filial reverence and family order.

³ From ch. xx. 22 to the end of ch. xxiii., we have a summary of a code of laws, civil, political, and ceremonial, afterwards given in detail. It is impossible to study them without observing their great superiority to all the known maxims and practices of the ancient world, and their suitableness to prepare the way for the still higher principles of Christianity. And it is worthy of remark, that, in the repetition of the law which was given at the end of the forty years which the Israelites spent in the wilderness, some of these laws appear in an enlarged and more spiritual form (see the book of Deuteronomy throughout) ; whilst in the prophetic writings in subsequent ages we find a still nearer approximation to the perfect development of morality and holiness given in the gospel. It is important to observe the distinction between the moral law, which requires spiritual and perfect obedience, and the punishments and rewards of which God himself inflicts ; and the political law, which had reference to the outward conduct, and the violation of which was cognizable by the civil magistrate. The latter, by restrictive enactments, aimed to diminish the frequency and to remedy the mischiefs of existing evil practices, which have since been emphatically condemned in the New Testament. See Matt. xix. 8, 9.

⁵ Selling himself through poverty, or being sold for theft. Slavery was at that time almost universal in the world ; and the Jewish law interposed to limit it, and to ameliorate the condition of the slave.

1 The boring of the ear, in sign of servitude, which was customary in Syria and other countries, denoted the strict and close obedience which such a servant was to render to his master.

2 By giving new rights to the slave-wife, this law both protected her and restricted the practice of polygamy.

3 This evidently means designedly.

4 That is, by his Providence.

5 These injuries to the 'eye' and to the 'tooth' seem to be mentioned in this law as the greatest and the least,

including by implication all other personal injuries.

6 The greater amount of restitution required in this case than in that in ver. 4 seems to arise from the perseverance in the crime shown by the man proceeding to sell or kill, and the consequently increased difficulty, and perhaps expense, of discovering and proving the theft.

7 Or, 'breaking in,' which is commonly done in Eastern countries by digging through the mud wall. The mild spirit of these laws is shown in the criminality attached to taking even a burglar's life, except in case of night robbery, which was more dangerous and difficult to resist, and likely to involve undesigned injury to the assailant.

1 This frequently occurs in hot climates, from negligence in allowing fire to communicate to long grass, etc.

2 This appears a most just punishment for carelessness, which may prove as injurious, though not so criminal, as malice prepense.

3 That is, some part of the animal; as the horns, hoofs, etc.

4 All pretensions to witchcraft involve the guilt of doing homage to supernatural powers other than God.

5 Under the Jewish theocracy, idolatry was treason.

6 Such persons having often no earthly protector, Jehovah will take their cause specially into his own hands.

7 In the East, the hyke, or cloak, is often the poor man's only bed and covering at night.

8 Meaning perhaps God, the King of Israel; referring to murmuring against his laws or officers. See note, ch. xxi. 6.

9 Heb., 'tear;' i. e. the oil or wine pressed from fruit; and perhaps the valuable gums 'frankincense and myrrh.' See Matt. ii. 11.

- evil; ^b neither shalt thou speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgment: ^c neither shalt thou countenance ¹ a poor man in his cause.
- ⁴ If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again. ^e If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, and wouldest forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him [or, wilt thou cease to help him? or, and wouldest cease to leave thy business for him; thou shalt surely leave it to join with him].²
- ^{6, 7} Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor in his cause. ^f Keep thee far from a false matter; ^g and the innocent and righteous slay thou not: for ⁱ I will not justify the wicked. And ^h thou shalt take no gift: for the gift blindeth the wise, and perverteth the words of the righteous.
- ⁹ Also ^j thou shalt not oppress a stranger: for ye know the heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.
- ¹⁰ And ^m six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof: ⁿ but the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy oliveyard.
- ¹² Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed.
- ¹³ And in all things that I have said unto you ^o be circumspect: and ^p make no mention of the name of other gods,³ neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.
- ^{14, 15} Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year. ^r Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: (thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded thee, in the time appointed of the month Abib; for in it thou camest out from Egypt: ^s and none shall appear before me empty;) ^t and the feast of harvest, the firstfruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in thy field: and ^u the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field. ^v Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord God.
- ¹⁸ Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread; ^w neither shall the fat of my sacrifice remain until the morning.
- ¹⁹ The first of the firstfruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the Lord thy God.
- ^b Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.⁴

Promises of guidance, protection, and prosperity.

- ^c BEHOLD, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared. Beware of him, and obey his voice, ^d provoke him not; for he will ^e not pardon your transgressions: for ^f my name is in him.⁵ But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then ^g I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an adversary unto thine adversaries.
- ^h For mine Angel shall go before thee, and ⁱ bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites: and I will cut them off. Thou shalt not ^k bow down to their gods, nor serve them, ^l nor do after their works: ^m but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images. And ye shall ⁿ serve the Lord your God, and ^o he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and ^p I will take sickness away from the midst of thee. ^q There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren, in thy land. The number of thy days I will ^r fulfil. I will send ^s my fear before thee, and will ^t destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their backs unto thee. And ^u I will send hornets⁶ before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite, from before thee. ^v I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee. By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

¹ Heb., 'adorn,' or 'honour,' signifying either a due respect, as in Lev. xix. 32, or partiality, as here, and in Lev. xix. 15.

² Though the grammatical construction of this sentence is difficult, the sense is plain. It is very interesting to observe, even in this earlier dispensation, the principles which we usually regard as peculiar to the morality of the New Testament.

³ The very names of heathen deities are associated with,

and suggestive of, all that is unholy and demoralizing.

⁵ That is, 'My attributes are his.'

⁶ Perhaps this was to be understood literally; but it may have been only figurative: the hornets representing the fears of the Canaanites. See Josh. ii. 9.

Ratification of the covenant; Moses ascends the mountain.

24 AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the LORD, thou and Aaron, ^d Nadab, ^e and Abihu, ^f and seventy of the elders of Israel. And worship ye afar off. And Moses ^g alone shall come near the LORD: but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people go up with him.

3 And Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, ^h All the words which the LORD hath said will we do.

4 And Moses ⁱ wrote all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve ^j pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel. And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt offerings, and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen unto the LORD. And Moses ^k took half of the blood, and put it in basins; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar. And he ^l took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, ^m All that the LORD hath said will we do, and be obedient. And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people,³ and said, Behold ⁿ the blood of the covenant, which the LORD hath made with you concerning all these words.

9 Then ^o went up Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel: and they ^p saw the God of Israel:⁴ and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a ^q sapphire stone, and as it were the ^r body of heaven in his clearness.⁵ And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he ^s laid not his hand:⁶ also ^t they saw God, and did ^u eat and drink.

12 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^v Come up to me into the mount,⁷ and be there: and I will give thee ^w tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them. And Moses rose up, and ^x his minister Joshua: and Moses ^y went up into the mount of God. And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and, behold, Aaron and Hur are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

15 And Moses went up into the mount, and ^b a cloud covered the mount. And ^c the glory of the LORD abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

17 And the sight of the glory of the LORD was like ^d devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel. And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount: and ^e Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.

25 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, 2 that they bring me an ^f offering: ^g of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering. And this is the offering which ye shall take of 4 them; gold,⁸ and silver, and brass,⁹ and blue, and purple, and scarlet,¹⁰ and fine 5 linen [or, silk^h], and goats' hair, and rams' skins dyed red, and badgers'¹¹ skins, 6 and shittim¹² wood, ⁱ oil for the light, spices, ^k for anointing oil, and for ^l sweet 7 incense, onyx stones, and stones to be set in the ^m ephod, and in the ⁿ breastplate.

² This means from the desert of Shur or Paran, on the south of Judea, to the river Euphrates. This extent of domain was actually possessed only in the reigns of David and Solomon. See note on Gen. xv. 18; and 1 Kings iv. 21.

⁴ That is, the bright symbol of his presence: rendered by the Chaldee version, 'the glory of the God of Israel;' by the Greek, 'the place where the God of Israel stood.'

⁵ Or rather, 'a work of brilliant sapphire, even like heaven itself for brightness.'

⁶ That is, not to destroy them. Part of the sacrifices was eaten by the elders of Israel, in token of friendship with God.

⁷ Still higher on the mount than the others.

⁸ The people had probably acquired considerable wealth in gold and silver from the gifts of the Egyptians, and the spoil of those who were drowned at the Red Sea.

⁹ Rather, 'copper:' as also in ch. xxxi. 4.

¹⁰ That is, some materials dyed of those colours, which were very costly.

¹¹ This word is variously rendered 'crimson,' 'blue,' or 'black leather;' and as meaning the skin of either the badger, the dolphin, or the seal.

¹² This was probably the acacia vera, still called 'shunt' by the Arabs, which produces gum-arabic. The wood, though very light, is durable, not rotting with wet; it is dark red, and capable of a fine polish.

- 8 And let them make me a ^asanctuary; that ^pI may dwell among them. ^qAccording to all that I show thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the instruments thereof, even so ¹shall ye make it.
- 10 ^rAnd they shall make an ark ²of shittim wood: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof. And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, within and without shalt thou overlay it, and shalt make upon it a crown ³of gold round about. And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof; and two rings shall be in the one side of it, and two rings in the other side of it. And thou shalt make staves ⁴of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold. And thou shalt put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them. ⁵The staves shall be in the rings of the ark: they shall not be taken from it. And thou shalt put into the ark ⁶the testimony ⁴which I shall give thee.
- 17 And ⁷thou shalt make a mercy seat ⁵of pure gold: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof. And thou shalt make two cherubim ⁶of gold, ⁷of beaten work shalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy seat. And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end: even of the mercy seat shall he make the cherubim on the two ends thereof. And ⁸the cherubim shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another; toward the mercy seat shall the faces of the cherubim be. ⁹And thou shalt put the mercy seat above upon the ark; and ¹⁰in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee. And ¹¹there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from ¹²between ⁷the two cherubim which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel.
- 23 ¹³Thou shalt also make a table ⁸of shittim wood: two cubits shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof. And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown of gold round about. And thou shalt make unto it a border of an hand breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown to the border thereof round about. And thou shalt make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof. Over against the border shall the rings be for places of the staves to bear the table. And thou shalt make the staves ⁹of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be borne with them. And thou shalt make ¹⁰the dishes ⁸thereof, and spoons thereof, and covers thereof, and bowls thereof, to cover withal [or, to pour out withal]: ¹¹of pure gold shalt thou make them. And thou shalt set upon the table ¹²shewbread ⁹before me alway.
- 31 ¹⁴And thou shalt make a candlestick ¹⁰of pure gold: ¹¹of beaten work shall the candlestick be made: his shaft, and his branches, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers, shall be of the same. And six branches shall come out of the sides of it; three branches of the candlestick out of the one side, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side: three bowls made like unto almonds, with a knop and a flower in one branch; and three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick. And in the candlestick shall be four bowls made like unto almonds, with their knops and their flowers. And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two

1 In such ordinances, the minutest parts may have a symbolical meaning, and should be carefully observed.

2 Rather, 'chest,' or 'box.' It was about four feet long, by about two and a half feet broad and deep.

3 Or, 'rim;' and at ver. 24.

4 That is, the tables of the decalogue, which was called the testimony, because it bore witness to God's displeasure against sin.

5 This was a lid or cover of solid gold; and derived its Hebrew name from the blood of atonement sprinkled on it. It was the 'throne of grace' (Heb. iv. 6), where God's sovereign mercy was displayed in the bright cloud which rested upon it (ver. 22). The Greek name of the mercy-seat is applied to Christ in Rom. iii. 25.

6 This was probably a symbolical representation of the Divine presence, with special reference to the manifestation of mercy. See Psa. lxxx. 1; and note on Gen. iii. 24.

7 Hence God is frequently spoken of, and addressed in prayer, as dwelling 'between the cherubim:' see refs.

8 Probably to put the bread in. The other articles are spoons or cups for the frankincense (Lev. xxiv. 7); and bowls for wine for the drink-offerings, as well as to hold the blood of the sacrifices, which was to be sprinkled within the sanctuary.

9 Heb., 'bread of faces,' or 'of presence;' from its being placed in the presence of the Lord. The shewbread was the offering of the Israelites to their Divine King (Lev. xxiv. 8); the twelve loaves having reference to the number of the tribes.

10 Rather, 'lamp,' or 'candelabrum.' A representation of the candlestick in the second temple is found on the arch of Titus at Rome. The word rendered 'bowl' may designate the cup of a flower. The Jews say that the 'knops' resembled pomegranates, and the 'flowers' lilies. With reference to the symbolical meaning of the candlestick, see Zech. iv. 2, 3, 12—14; Rev. i. 12, 20; iv. 5; xi. 4.

branches of the same, according to the six branches that proceed out of the 36 candlestick. Their knops and their branches shall be of the same: all of it shall 37 be one beaten work of pure gold. And thou shalt make the seven lamps thereof:
 and ^g they shall light the lamps thereof, that they may ^h give light over against 38 it. And the tongs¹ thereof, and the snuff-dishes thereof, shall be of pure gold.
 39 Of a talent of pure gold² shall he make it, with all these vessels. And ⁱ look that 40 thou make them after their pattern, which was showed thee in the mount.

26 Moreover ^k thou shalt make the tabernacle³ with ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with cherubim of cunning work⁴ shalt 2 thou make them. The length of one curtain shall be eight and twenty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and every one of the curtains shall 3 have one measure. The five curtains shall be coupled together one to another;
 4 and other five curtains shall be coupled one to another. And thou shalt make loops of blue upon the edge of the one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling; and likewise shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of another curtain, in the 5 coupling of the second. Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the 6 second; that the loops may take hold one of another. And thou shalt make fifty taches⁵ of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches: ^l and it shall be one tabernacle.

7 And ^m thou shalt make curtains of goats' hair⁶ to be a covering upon the 8 tabernacle: eleven curtains shalt thou make. The length of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven 9 curtains shall be all of one measure. And thou shalt couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in 10 the forefront of the tabernacle. And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the 11 curtain which coupleth the second. And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put the taches into the loops, and couple the tent [or, covering] together, 12 that it may be one. And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remaineth, shall hang over the backside of the tabernacle.
 13 And a cubit on the one side, and a cubit on the other side of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle on this side and on that side, to cover it.

14 And ⁿ thou shalt make a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers' skins.

15 And thou shalt make boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood standing up.
 16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the 17 breadth of one board. Two tenons shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south 19 side southward. And thou shalt make forty sockets of silver under the twenty boards; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under 20 another board for his two tenons. And for the second side of the tabernacle on 21 the north side there shall be twenty boards: and their forty sockets of silver; two 22 sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board. And for the sides 23 of the tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards. And two boards shalt 24 thou make for the corners⁷ of the tabernacle in the two sides. And they shall be coupled together beneath, and they shall be coupled together above the head

¹ Or, 'snuffers,' or 'lamp-scissors.'

about eighteen. It was so constructed as to be easily taken apart and carried from place to place. Its symbolical references may be seen in Heb. ix. 14, 24. The ark of God had no more substantial dwelling-place till the building of the temple. It was the seat and symbol of the Divine kingdom upon earth. With evident reference to the ancient tabernacle it is written, 'The Word was made flesh, and dwelt [tabernacled] among us' (John i. 14). See also John ii. 19; 2 Cor. vi. 16; Eph. ii. 22; Col. i. 19; ii. 9; Heb. viii. 2; ix. 11, 24.

⁴ Heb., 'the work of an artist;' i. e. embroiderer: probably what we call damask.

⁵ Heb., 'hooks,' or 'clasps.'

⁶ A coarse sort of cloth made of goats' hair is still used in the East for covering tents. The Asiatic goat has longer and finer hair than the European.

⁷ These are not easily explained; but were probably intended either to cut off the corner slantwise, or to strengthen the joining.

of it unto one ring: thus shall it be for them both; they shall be for the two 25 corners. And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver, sixteen sockets; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 And thou shalt make bars of shittim wood; five for the boards of the one side 27 of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle, for the two sides west-28 ward. And the middle bar in the midst of the boards shall reach from end to 29 end. And thou shalt overlay the boards with gold, and make their rings of gold for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt rear up the tabernacle ^aaccording to the fashion thereof which was showed thee in the mount.

31 And ^pthou shalt make a vail ¹*of* blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined 32 linen of cunning work: with cherubim shall it be made: and thou shalt hang it upon four pillars of shittim wood overlaid with gold: their hooks shall be of gold, 33 upon the four sockets of silver. And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches, that thou mayest bring in thither within the vail ^qthe ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between ^rthe holy place and the most 34 holy. And ^sthou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark of the testimony in the 35 most holy place. And ^tthou shalt set the table without the vail, and ^uthe candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side.

36 And ^xthou shalt make an hanging for the door of the tent, of blue, and purple, 37 and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework. And thou shalt make for the hanging ^yfive pillars of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, and their hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them.

27 And thou shalt make ^zan altar ²*of* shittim wood, five cubits long, and five cubits broad; the altar shall be foursquare: and the height thereof shall be three 2 cubits. And thou shalt make the ^ahorns of it upon the four corners thereof: his 3 horns shall be of the same: and ^bthou shalt overlay it with brass. And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and his shovels, and his basins, and his fleshhooks, and his firepans: all the vessels thereof thou shalt make of brass.
4 And thou shalt make for it a grate of network of brass; and upon the net shalt 5 thou make four brasen rings in the four corners thereof. And thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of 6 the altar. And thou shalt make staves for the altar, staves of shittim wood, and 7 overlay them with brass. And the staves shall be put into the rings, and the 8 staves shall be upon the two sides of the altar, to bear it. Hollow with boards shalt thou make it: ^cas it was showed thee in the mount, so shall they make it.

9 And ^dthou shalt make the court of the tabernacle: for the south side southward there shall be hangings for the court of fine twined ³linen of an hundred 10 cubits long for one side: and the twenty pillars thereof and their twenty sockets shall be of brass; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver.
11 And likewise for the north side in length there shall be hangings of an hundred cubits long, and his twenty pillars and their twenty sockets of brass; the hooks 12 of the pillars and their fillets of silver. And for the breadth of the court on the west side shall be hangings of fifty cubits: their pillars ten, and their sockets 13 ten. And the breadth of the court on the east side eastward shall be fifty cubits.
14 The hangings of one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits: their pillars three,
15 and their sockets three. And on the other side shall be hangings fifteen cubits:
16 their pillars three, and their sockets three. And for the gate of the court shall be an hanging of twenty cubits, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework: and their pillars shall be four, and their sockets

1 The vail of separation between the holy place, where the priests ministered daily, and the most holy, into which the high priest alone entered once a year, seems to represent the concealment of God's brightest glory from the view of man; as well as to intimate that, except through the future Atonement, the infinitely holy Majesty of God must be inaccessible to sinful man. When a further revelation of the Divine character was made, and the plan of redemption was completed by the death of Christ, the vail was rent from top to bottom (Matt. xxvii. 51).

2 This was a hollow wooden chest plated with copper, about nine feet square, and five feet in height; with a grating inside, upon which the sacrifices and the fuel were laid, and an ash-pan underneath. Upon the horns of the altar the blood of the victim was put with the priest's finger (Lev. iv. 25, 30); and sacrifices were sometimes bound to them (Psa. cxviii. 27).

3 Or, 'netted': it appears to have been open work, except at the entrance. The court was about one hundred and seventy-five feet in length, and eighty-seven in breadth. It was entirely uncovered. The entrance was on the east side, and was thirty-five feet broad. As the people at large were not permitted to enter the tabernacle, on account of its peculiar sacredness, this court was constructed in connection with it, that the worshippers might here personally appear before God, and hold communion with him as present among them.

17 four. All the pillars round about the court shall be filleted with silver; their hooks shall be of silver, and their sockets of brass. The length of the court shall be an hundred cubits, and the breadth fifty every where, and the height five cubits of fine twined linen, and their sockets of brass. All the vessels of the tabernacle in all the service thereof, and all the pins thereof, and all the pins of the court, shall be of brass.

20 And ^ethou shalt command the children of Israel, that they bring thee pure oil olive beaten¹ for the light, to cause the lamp to burn always.² In the tabernacle of the congregation³ ^fwithout the vail, which is before the testimony, ^gAaron and his sons shall order it from evening to morning before the LORD: ^h*it shall be* a statute for ever unto their generations on the behalf of the children of Israel.

Directions for the appointment of the priests; their garments, and consecration.

28 AND take thou unto thee ⁱAaron thy brother,⁴ and his sons with him, from among the children of Israel, ^kthat he may minister unto me in the priest's office, 2 even Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons. And ^lthou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother for glory and for beauty.⁵ 3 And ^mthou shalt speak unto all that are wisehearted,ⁿ whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, 4 that he may minister unto me in the priest's office. And these are the garments which they shall make; ^oa breastplate, and ^pan ephod, and ^qa robe, and ^ra brodered coat, ^sa mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priest's 5 office. And they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen. 6 ^tAnd they shall make the ephod⁶ of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, 7 and fine twined linen, with cunning work. It shall have the two shoulder-pieces 8 thereof joined at the two edges thereof; and so it shall be joined together. And the curious [or, embroidered] girdle of the ephod, which is upon it, shall be of the same, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and 9 scarlet, and fine twined linen. And thou shalt take two onyx stones, and ^ugrave 10 on them the names of the children of Israel: six of their names on one stone, and 11 the other six names of the rest on the other stone, according to their birth. With the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet, shalt thou engrave the two stones with the names of the children of Israel: thou shalt make 12 them to be set in ouches⁷ of gold. And thou shalt put the two stones upon the shoulders of the ephod for stones of memorial⁸ unto the children of Israel: and ^vAaron shall bear their names before the LORD upon his two shoulders ^wfor a 13 memorial. And thou shalt make ouches of gold; and two chains of pure gold at 14 the ends; of wreathen work shalt thou make them, and fasten the wreathen chains to the ouches. 15 And ^xthou shalt make the breastplate of judgment⁹ with cunning work; after the work of the ephod thou shalt make it; of gold, of blue, and of purple, and 16 of scarlet, and of fine twined linen, shalt thou make it. Foursquare it shall be being doubled; a span shall be the length thereof, and a span shall be the breadth 17 thereof. ¹ Heb., 'pure oil of olive beaten.'

² The words 'always' here, and 'continually' in Lev. xxiv. 2, mean every night, as explained in ver. 21, and in ch. xxx. 7, 8, where the dressing the lamps in the morning is distinguished from the lighting them in the evening. See also 1 Sam. iii. 3. It is probable that during the day the outer vail of the tabernacle was drawn up, as in ordinary tents, so as to give sufficient light for the ministrations of the sanctuary.

³ Or, 'tent of assembly;' i. e. at which the people assembled to worship Jehovah.

people, were to draw near to God, and to minister in sacred things. The office was to be wholly hereditary in Aaron's family; the head of which (not always the eldest representative of the eldest branch) was high priest. Whilst it was typical of the priesthood of Christ, it was in many points contrasted with it: on which see Heb. vii. These ordinances of the priesthood prescribe (1) their official dress, ch. xxviii.; (2) and their consecration, ch. xxix. 1—37.

⁵ The richness and beauty of the high priest's dress befitted the splendid ceremonial which shadowed forth the spiritual glories of the Redeemer and of the gospel.

⁶ This priestly garment is represented in ancient Egyptian paintings. It was a close vest, reaching from under the shoulders nearly to the knees, fastened around with a girdle (ver. 8), and above with straps (ver. 7), chained and clasped with two engraved onyx stones set in gold.

⁷ 'Settings,' or 'sockets.'

⁸ Thus Aaron appeared before God as the representative of the people whose names he bore.

⁹ So called, because worn when the high priest obtained from God oracular decisions.

¹⁰ It is hardly possible to ascertain what some of these gems were.

the first row shall be a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row. And the second row shall be an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond. And the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst. And the fourth row a beryl, and an onyx, and a jasper: they shall be set in gold in their inclosings. And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet; every one with his name shall they be according to the twelve tribes. And thou shalt make upon the breastplate chains at the ends of wreathen work of pure gold. And thou shalt make upon the breastplate two rings of gold, and shalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breastplate. And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breastplate. And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt fasten in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod before it. And thou shalt make two rings of gold, and thou shalt put them upon the two ends of the breastplate in the border thereof, which is in the side of the ephod inward. And two other rings of gold thou shalt make, and shalt put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart thereof, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod. And they shall bind the breastplate by the rings thereof unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it may be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate be not loosed from the ephod. And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, ^b for a memorial before the LORD continually.

And ^c thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgment the Urin and the Thummim; ¹ and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the LORD: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the LORD continually.

And ^d thou shalt make the robe ² of the ephod all of blue. And there shall be an hole in the top of it, in the midst thereof: it shall have a binding of woven work round about the hole of it, as it were the hole of an habergeon, ³ ^e that it be not rent. And beneath upon the hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates ⁴ of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about: a golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about. And it shall be upon Aaron to minister: and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the LORD, and when he cometh out, that he die not.

And ^f thou shalt make a plate ⁵ of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD. ⁶ And thou shalt put it on a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre; ⁷ upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be. And it shall be upon Aaron's forehead, that Aaron may ⁸ bear the iniquity of the holy things, which the children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts; and it shall be always upon his forehead, that they may be ^h accepted before the LORD.

And thou shalt embroider the coat of fine linen, and thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen, and thou shalt make the girdle of needlework.

And for Aaron's sons thou shalt make coats, and thou shalt make for them girdles, and bonnets shalt thou make for them, for glory and for beauty. And thou shalt put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him; and shalt ⁱ anoint them, and ^j consecrate ⁸ them, and sanctify them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office. And thou shalt make them ^m linen breeches to cover their nakedness; from the loins even unto the thighs they shall reach: and they shall be upon Aaron, and upon his sons, when they come in unto the tabernacle of the congregation, or when they come near ⁿ unto the altar to minister in the holy place; that they ^o bear not iniquity, and die: ^p it shall be a statute for ever unto him and his seed after him.

¹ These words mean light and perfection; or, according to the Septuagint, revelation and truth. It is perhaps impossible to determine what these were. It is, however, evident that they were essential to the proper use of the breastplate; though probably only to qualify the high priest to appear before Jehovah and to receive his answer. The Divine response of the Urim appears to have given place, in after ages, to the oracles of the prophets.

³ A thick coat, probably covered with metal plates.

⁴ The peculiar form of the pomegranate rendered it particularly suitable for imitation in carved work.

⁵ Or, 'flower.'

⁶ This was evidently symbolical of the holiness necessary to him who mediates between man and God.

⁷ Or, 'turban': so 'bonnet' in ver. 40.

⁸ The Hebrew word here translated 'consecrate' literally means, to 'fill the hand'; in the Septuagint it is rendered by the same Greek word which is translated 'made perfect' in Heb. ii. 10; v. 9; vii. 28; where it is evidently used with allusion to these passages.

- 29 And this is the thing that thou shalt do unto them to hallow them, to minister unto me in the priest's office: ^qTake one young bullock, and two rams without blemish, and ^runleavened bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oil, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flour shalt thou make them.
- 3 And thou shalt put them into one basket, and bring them in the basket, with the 4 bullock and the two rams. And Aaron and his sons thou shalt bring unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, ^sand shalt wash them with water.
- 5 ^tAnd thou shalt take the garments, and put upon Aaron the coat, and the robe of the ephod, and the ephod, and the breastplate, and gird him with ^uthe curious girdle of the ephod: ^vand thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and put the 6 holy crown upon the mitre. Then shalt thou take the anointing ^woil, and pour it upon his head, and anoint him.¹
- 8, 9 And ^xthou shalt bring his sons, and put coats upon them. And thou shalt gird them with girdles, Aaron and his sons, and put the bonnets on them: and ^athe priest's office shall be theirs for a perpetual statute: and thou shalt ^bconsecrate Aaron and his sons.
- 10 And thou shalt cause a bullock to be brought before the tabernacle of the congregation: and ^cAaron and his sons shall put their hands² upon the head of 11 the bullock. And thou shalt kill the bullock before the LORD by the door of the 12 tabernacle of the congregation. And thou ^dshalt take of the blood of the bullock, and put it upon ^ethe horns of the altar with thy finger, and pour all the blood 13 beside the bottom of the altar. And ^fthou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul that is above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the 14 fat that is upon them, and burn them upon the altar. But ^gthe flesh of the bullock, and his skin, and his dung, shalt thou burn with fire without the camp: it is a ^hsin offering.
- 15 ⁱThou shalt also take one ram; and Aaron and his sons shall ^kput their hands 16 upon the head of the ram. And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take his 17 blood, and sprinkle it round about upon the altar. And thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and wash the inwards of him, and his legs, and put them unto his 18 pieces, and unto his head. And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar: it is a burnt offering unto the LORD: it is a ^l'sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.
- 19 ^mAnd thou shalt take the other ram; and Aaron and his sons shall put their 20 hands upon the head of the ram. Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the 21 right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about. And thou shalt take of the blood that is upon the altar, and of ⁿthe anointing oil, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him: and ^ohe shall be hallowed, and his garments, and 22 his sons, and his sons' garments with him. Also thou shalt take of the ram the fat and the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder; 23 for it is a ram of consecration: ^pand one loaf of bread, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread that is before the 24 LORD: and thou shalt put all in the hands of Aaron, and in the hands of his sons; 25 and shalt ^qwave³ them for a wave offering before the LORD. ^rAnd thou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn them upon the altar for a burnt offering, for ^sa sweet savour before the LORD: it is an offering made by fire unto the 26 LORD. And thou shalt take ^tthe breast of the ram of Aaron's consecration, and 27 wave it for a wave offering before the LORD: and ^uit shall be thy part. And thou shalt sanctify ^xthe breast of the wave offering, and the shoulder of the heave offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up, of the ram of the consecration, 28 even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons: and it shall be Aaron's and his sons' ^yby a statute for ever from the children of Israel: for it is an heave offering: and ^zit shall be an heave offering from the children of Israel of the sacrifice of their peace offerings, even their heave offering unto the LORD.

¹ These ceremonies are highly significant. (1) The ablution indicates the need of personal purity in one who appears on behalf of sinners. (2) The investiture with the sacred robes shows the dignity of the mediator's office. (3) The unction of the high priest represents the qualifying gifts and grace of the Holy Spirit. (4) The triple sacrifice—sin-offering, burnt-offering, and consecration-offering, whose blood, mixed with the holy oil, was applied to each of the priests—shows that the removal of all legal disability from guilt is indispensable. And (5) the concluding feast exhibits the friendship with God resulting from the priest's work.

And ^g they shall eat those things wherewith the atonement was made, to consecrate and to sanctify them: ^h but a stranger¹ shall not eat thereof, because they are holy. And if aught of the flesh of the consecrations, or of the bread, remain unto the morning, then thou shalt burn the remainder with fire: it shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

35 And thus shalt thou do unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to all things which I have commanded thee, ⁱ Seven days shalt thou consecrate them. And thou shalt offer every day a bullock for a sin offering for atonement: and thou shalt cleanse the altar, when thou hast made an atonement for it, ^m and thou shalt anoint it, to sanctify it. Seven days thou shalt make an atonement for the altar, and sanctify it; ⁿ and it shall be an altar most holy: ^o whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy.

38 NOW this is that which thou shalt offer upon the altar; ^p two lambs of the first year ^q day by day continually. The one lamb thou shalt offer ^r in the morning; and the other lamb thou shalt offer at even: and with the one lamb a tenth deal² of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beaten oil;³ and the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering. And the other lamb thou shalt ^s offer at even, and shalt do thereto according to the meat offering of the morning, and according to the drink offering thereof, for a sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the Lord. This shall be ^t a continual burnt offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the Lord: ^u where I will meet you, to speak there unto thee. And there I will meet with the children of Israel, and the tabernacle [or, Israel] ^x shall be sanctified by my glory. And I will sanctify the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar: I will ^y sanctify also both Aaron and his sons, to minister to me in the priest's office. 30 AND thou shalt make ^c an altar ^d to burn incense upon: of shittim wood shalt thou make it. A cubit shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof; foursquare shall it be: and two cubits shall be the height thereof:⁴ the horns thereof shall be of the same. And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, the top thereof, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns thereof; and thou shalt make unto it a crown of gold round about. And two golden rings shalt thou make to it under the crown of it, by the two corners thereof, upon the two sides of it shalt thou make it; and they shall be for places for the staves to bear it withal. And thou shalt make the staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold. And thou shalt put it before the vail that is by the ark of the testimony, before the ^e mercy seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee. And Aaron⁵ shall burn thereon ^f sweet incense every morning: when he dresseth the lamps, he shall burn incense upon it. And when Aaron lighteth the lamps at even [between the two evens^h], he shall burn incense upon it, a perpetual incense before the Lord throughout your generations. Ye shall offer no ⁱ strange incense thereon, nor burnt sacrifice, nor meat offering; neither shall ye pour drink offering thereon. And ^k Aaron shall make an atonement⁶ upon the horns of it once in a year with the blood of the sin offering of atonements: once in the year shall he make atonement upon it throughout your generations: it is most holy unto the Lord.

⁵ Or, one of his sons; for this was no part of the high priest's duties, though regarded as the most honourable function of a common priest, who, when he came out, blessed the people. See Luke i. 9, 10: from which it also appears that it became the practice of the people to pray in the outer court of the temple at the time of offering incense. The daily offering of sweet-smelling incense, morning and evening, represented the advocacy of Him who 'ever liveth to make intercession for us.' See Rev. viii. 3, 4.

⁶ Showing that sacrifice is required in order to give efficacy to intercession.

11, 12 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 'When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel after their number, then shall they give every man ^m a ransom ¹ for his soul unto the LORD, when thou numberest them; that there be no ⁿ plague among them, when thou numberest them. ^o This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered, half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary: (^p a shekel is twenty gerahs:) ^q an half shekel shall be the offering of the LORD. 1 All the people were to pay equally to the maintenance of the service, that they might feel that all of every rank equally needed and equally benefited by the atonement and offerings. The amount was small, being little more than a shilling.

2 As the sacrifices represented the atonement of Christ, so the laver with its rites represented the 'washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost.' No one is permitted to approach God without undergoing the double purification of the altar and the laver—the blood and the Spirit of Jesus. There were two washings of the priests: the one general and entire, performed once for all on their consecration and admission to the sanctuary (ch. xxix. 4); the other partial, and daily repeated within the court of the tabernacle. See Heb. x. 19—22.

3 Probably a shallow basin to receive the waste water.

4 The hands being in constant use, and the feet exposed to dust, particularly required frequent cleansing (Matt. xv. 2; John xiii. 10).

5 This highly fragrant perfume seems to represent the gracious communications of the Holy Spirit, both enlightening (1 John ii. 20) and cheering (Psa. xlv. 7, 8), as well as qualifying for official work (Isa. lxi. 1—3). Hence it was used to inaugurate priests (ver. 30) and kings (1 Kings i. 39). Prophets also were anointed (1 Kings xix. 16).

6 That is, not upon other men's; as perfumes were commonly used as a welcome to guests, and for personal comfort.

7 For incense. See ver. 1.

8 That which is peculiarly God's must not be used as a common thing.

9 That is, 'specially appointed.' See Isa. xlv. 3.

The idolatry and punishment of the people.

32 AND when the people saw that Moses ^y delayed⁵ to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, ^z Up, make us gods,⁶ which shall ^a go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.
 2 And Aaron said unto them, Break off the ^b golden earrings, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.
 3 And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and 4 brought them unto Aaron. ^c And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf:⁷ and they said, These 5 be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. And when Aaron saw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made ^d proclamation, 6 and said, To-morrow is a feast to the LORD. And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the ^e people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.⁸ 7 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^f Go, get thee down; for thy people, which 8 thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, ^g have corrupted themselves: they have turned aside quickly out of the way which ^h I commanded them: they have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, and said, ⁱ These be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the 9 land of Egypt. And the LORD said unto Moses, ^j I have seen this people, and,
 10 behold, it is a stiffnecked people: now therefore ^k let me alone, that ^l my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them: and ^m I will make of thee a great nation.
 11 ⁿ And Moses besought the LORD his God, and said, LORD, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou hast brought forth out of the land of 12 Egypt, with great power, and with a mighty hand? ^o Wherefore should the

¹ This expression sometimes means the bestowment of any extraordinary endowment, and does not necessarily suppose personal holiness. See ver. 6; 1 Sam. x. 6, 10.

² The sabbath is here connected with the peculiar constitution of the chosen nation, so as to intimate that its observance is essentially promotive of holiness.

³ Or, 'was satisfied with his work.' See note on Gen. vi. 6.

⁴ Intimating that these laws were framed by God alone.

⁵ Moses had been absent from the camp for more than a month. This narrative shows how deeply the Hebrews had been tainted with Egyptian idolatry.

⁶ Rather, 'a god.' So vers. 4, 8.

⁷ Probably it was roughly cast, and then finished by hand. The calf was the representation of the principal deity of Egypt; and this was designed to represent Jehovah. See ver. 5.

⁸ They gave themselves up to the wanton licentiousness which accompanied heathen festivals.

Egyptians speak, and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from 13 thy fierce wrath, and ^qrepent of this evil against thy people. Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy servants, to whom thou ^rswarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, ^sI will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have spoken of will I give unto your seed, and they 14 shall inherit it for ever. And the LORD ^trepented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

15 And ^uMoses turned, and went down from the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand: the tables were written on both their sides; on the 16 one side and on the other were they written. And the ^xtables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables. And when ^yJoshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said unto Moses,
 18 There is a noise of war in the camp. And he said, It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for being over-
 19 come: but the noise of them that sing do I hear. And it came to pass, as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that ^zhe saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses' anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath
 20 the mount. ^aAnd he took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strawed it upon the water, ^band made the children of Israel drink of it.¹

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, ^cWhat did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them? And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord 22 wax hot: ^dthou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief. For they said unto me, ^eMake us gods which shall go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of 24 him. And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off. So they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there ^fcame out² this calf.

25 And when Moses saw that the people were ^gnaked,³ (for Aaron ^hhad made them naked unto their shame among their enemies,) then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on the LORD's side? let him come unto me. And 27 all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him. And he said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and ⁱslay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour. And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the 29 people that day about three thousand men. ^kFor Moses had said, Consecrate⁴ yourselves to-day to the LORD, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

Moses intercedes for the people; removes the tabernacle; beholds the glory of the Lord.

30 AND it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, ^lYe have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the LORD; ^mperadventure I shall ⁿmake an atonement⁵ for your sin. And Moses ^oreturned unto the LORD, and said, Oh! this people have sinned a great sin, and have ^pmade them gods of 32 gold. Yet now, ^qif thou wilt forgive their sin—; ^rand if not, ^sblot me, I pray thee, ^tout of thy book which thou hast written. And the LORD said unto Moses, 34 ^uWhosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book. Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: ^vbehold, mine Angel⁷ shall go before thee: nevertheless ^xin the day when I visit I will visit their sin upon them.

35 And the LORD plagued⁸ the people, because ^ythey made the calf, which Aaron made.

33 And the LORD said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou ^zand the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I swear unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, ^aUnto thy seed will I give
 2 it: ^band I will send an angel before thee; ^cand I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite:

¹ As they had no other water to drink.

² The vain excuse of conscious guilt.

³ The word rather means disorderly, reckless, or licentious. See ver. 6; 1 Cor. x. 7, 8.

⁴ That is, 'Show yourselves devoted to God's service by this act of holy indignation.'

⁵ Having manifested his displeasure at their crime, Moses shows his tender concern for their welfare; apparently offering to bear their sin himself: see ver. 32.

No one, however, except the Divine Redeemer, 'who gave himself for us,' is allowed, or is able, to make an atonement for sin.

⁶ The unfinished sentence shows the strength of emotion.

⁷ In opposition to 'myself.' See ch. xxxiii. 2, 3. Their special privilege in having the Divine presence seemed only to increase their danger.

⁸ Probably with some disease. Aaron and the people were alike guilty.

- 3 ^d unto a land flowing with milk and honey: ^e for I will not go up in the midst of thee, for thou art a ^f stiffnecked people; lest ^g I consume thee in the way.
- 4 And when the people heard these evil tidings, ^h they mourned: ⁱ and no man did put on him his ornaments. For the Lord had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, ^k Ye are a stiffnecked people: I will come up ^l into the midst of thee in a moment, and consume thee: ^m therefore now put off thy ornaments ⁿ from thee, that I may ^o know what to do unto thee. And the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.
- 7 And Moses took the tabernacle, ^p and pitched it without the camp, ^q afar off from the camp, ^r and called it the Tabernacle of the congregation. And it came to pass, that every one which ^s sought the Lord went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which was without the camp. ^t And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man ^u at his tent door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.
- 9 And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD ^v talked with Moses. And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle door: ^w and all the people rose up and ^x worshipped, every man in his tent door. And ^y the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. ^z And he turned again into the camp: but ^{aa} his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young ^{ab} man, departed not out of the tabernacle.
- 12 And Moses said unto the Lord, See, ^{ac} thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, ^{ad} I know thee by name, ^{ae} and thou hast also found grace in my sight.
- 13 Now therefore, I pray thee, ^{af} if I have found grace in thy sight, ^{ag} show me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy sight: and consider ^{ah} that this nation is ^{ai} thy people. And he said, ^{aj} My presence shall go with thee, ^{ak} and I will give thee ^{al} rest. And he said unto him, ^{am} If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence. For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? ^{an} is it not in that thou goest with us? so ^{ao} shall we be separated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth.
- 17 And the Lord said unto Moses, ^{ap} I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken: ^{aq} for ^{ar} thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name. And he said, ^{as} I beseech thee, show me ^{at} thy glory. ^{au} And he said, ^{av} I will make all my goodness pass before thee, ^{aw} and I will proclaim the name of the Lord before thee; ^{ax} and will be ^{ay} gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will show mercy on whom I will show mercy. And he said, Thou canst not see my face: for ^{az} there shall ^{ba} no man see me, and live. And the Lord said, Behold, there is a place by me, ^{bb} and thou shalt stand upon a rock: and it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee ^{bc} in a cleft of the rock, and will ^{bd} cover thee with my hand while I pass by: and I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts: but my face shall ^{be} not be seen. ^{bf}

Moses again ascends the mountain; the covenant renewed.

- 34 AND the Lord said unto Moses, ^{cg} Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first: ^{ch} and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables, ^{ci} which thou brakest. And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning ^{ck} unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me ^{cl} in the top of the mount. And no man shall ^{cm} come up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount; neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.
- 4 And he hewed two tables of stone like unto the first; and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the Lord had commanded him, ^{cn} and took in his hand the two tables of stone. And the Lord ^{co} descended in the 1 As criminals in expectation of punishment.

 2 This, which is mentioned before the tabernacle constructed according to the directions given at Sinai, was probably the tent in which Moses transacted the duties of his office, and where he held intercourse with God. Its removal without the camp intimated the withdrawal of God's special presence.
 3 They were to show their abhorrence of the idolatry of the rest by separating from them.
 4 Not that Moses actually saw God, for 'no man hath seen God at any time' (John i. 18); but this expression signifies freedom and familiarity of intercourse.
 5 Joshua was young as compared with Moses; but the term 'young man' often means servant.

6 That is, 'I have particular regard for thee.'
 7 The privilege which had been taken away (ch. xxxii. 34) is restored, in answer to the prayer of Moses.
 8 A special display of some of the Divine attributes. This was granted, though with an intimation that it is impossible for any man, whilst on earth, to see the glory of God as it is revealed in heaven: see vers. 20, 23.
 9 God will have us to know him by the glory of his mercy, even more than by the glory of his power.
 10 'Face,' 'hand,' and 'back,' are figurative expressions in this as in many other passages of Scripture (see note on Gen. vi. 6). The passage evidently means that God would reveal to Moses so much of his glory, and chiefly of his moral perfections, as he could endure.

- 6 cloud, and stood with him there, and ^aproclaimed the name of the LORD.¹ And ^bthe LORD passed by before him, and proclaimed, The LORD, The LORD ^cGod, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in ^dgoodness and ^etruth, ^fkeeping mercy for thousands, ^gforgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and ^hthat will by no means clear the guilty; ⁱvisiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth ^jgeneration.² And Moses made haste, and ^kbowed his head toward the earth, and ^lworshipped. And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O Lord, ^mlet my Lord, I pray thee, go among us; for ⁿit is a stiffnecked³ people; and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for ^othine inheritance.
- 10 And he said, Behold, ^pI make a covenant: before all thy people I will ^qdo marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all the people among which thou art shall see the work of the LORD: for it is ^ra ^sterrible⁴ thing that I will do with thee. ^tObserve thou that which I command thee this day: behold, ^uI drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite. ^vTake heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither ^wthou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee; but ye shall ^xdestroy their altars, break their images, and ^ycut down their groves: for thou shalt worship ^zno other god: for the LORD, whose ^{aa}name is Jealous, is a ^{ab}jealous God: ^{ac}lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they ^{ad}go a whoring⁵ after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and ^{ae}one ^{af}call thee, and thou ^{ag}eat of his sacrifice; and thou take of ^{ah}their daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters ^{ai}go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods. ^{aj}Thou shalt make thee no molten gods.
- 18 The feast of ^{ak}unleavened bread shalt thou keep. Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, as I commanded thee, in the time of the month Abib: for in the ^{al}month Abib thou camest out from Egypt. ^{am}All that openeth the matrix is mine; and every firstling among thy cattle, whether ox or sheep, that is male. ^{an}But ^{ao}the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a lamb: and if thou redeem ^{ap}him not, then shalt thou break his neck. ^{aq}All the firstborn of thy sons thou shalt redeem. And none shall appear before me ^{ar}empty.
- 21 ^{as}Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest: ^{at}in earing time and in harvest thou shalt rest.⁶
- 22 ^{au}And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, of the firstfruits of wheat harvest, and the feast of ingathering at the year's end.
- 23 ^{av}Thrice in the year shall all your men children appear before the Lord God, the God of Israel. For I will ^{aw}cast out the nations before thee, and ^{ax}enlarge thy borders: ^{ay}neither shall any man desire thy land, when thou shalt go up to appear before the LORD thy God thrice in the year.⁷
- 25 ^{az}Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leaven; ^{ba}neither shall the sacrifice of the feast of the passover be left unto the morning. ^{bb}The first of the firstfruits of thy land thou shalt bring unto the house of the LORD thy God. ^{bc}Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.
- 27 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write thou ^{bd}these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel. ^{be}And he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water. And ^{bf}he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

¹ That is, He declared his perfections. This was by the words uttered in vers. 6, 7.

² Or, perhaps, 'keeping mercy to a thousand generations; forgiving iniquity, transgression, and sin; and acquitting even him who is not innocent; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, to the third or to the fourth generation only.' The thousand generations, to whom mercy is extended, are put in contrast with the third and fourth generation, upon whom iniquity is visited.

³ Jehovah had given this as his reason for not going with them (ch. xxxiii. 3): but Moses inverts the argument; alleging that such a people peculiarly needed a Leader so merciful and forgiving as God had just declared himself to be.

⁴ Or, 'stupendous.'

⁵ This figure is often used to represent unfaithfulness to Jehovah as the God of Israel. The precepts in vers. 12—26 respect the worship of God, and appear to be pointed at the late sin of the people.

⁶ Even in ploughing and in reaping time, the busiest seasons of the year. All work, however urgent, will prosper the better for the religious observance of the holy rest.

⁷ Thus often would they have indubitable proofs of the Divine origin of their religion, while they continued to observe the sacred festivals.

30 Moses wist not that ^ε the skin of his face shone¹ while he talked with him. And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to come nigh him. And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them. And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: ⁴ and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai. And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put ^ι a vail on his face. 34 But ^κ when Moses went in before the LORD to speak with him, he took the vail off, until² he came out. And he came out, and spake unto the children of Israel ³⁵ that which he was commanded. And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face shone: and Moses put the vail upon his face again, until he went in to speak with him.

35 AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, 'These are the words which the LORD hath commanded, that ye should do them. ^μ Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD: ^ν whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death. ^ο Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath day.

4 And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, 5 *'This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying, Take ye from among you an offering unto the LORD: ^ρ whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the LORD; ³ gold, and silver, and brass, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim wood, and oil for the light, ^τ and spices for anointing oil, and for the sweet incense, and onyx stones, and stones to be set for the ephod, and for the breastplate. And ^σ every wise hearted among you shall come, and make all that the LORD hath commanded; ^ι the tabernacle, his tent, and his covering, his taches, and his boards, his bars, his pillars, and his sockets, ^υ the ark, and the staves thereof, with the mercy seat, and the vail of the covering, ^ϕ the table, and his staves, and all his vessels, ^ψ and the shewbread, ^ζ the candlestick also for the light, and his furniture, and his lamps, with the oil for the light, ^α and the incense altar, and his staves, ^β and the anointing oil, and ^ε the sweet incense, and the hanging for the door at the entering in of the tabernacle, ^δ the altar of burnt offering, with his brasen grate, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot, ^θ the hangings of the court, his pillars, and their sockets, and the hanging for the door of the court, the pins⁴ of the tabernacle, and the pins of the court, and their cords, ^ς the cloths of service, to do service in the holy place, the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office.*

20 And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses. And they came, every one ^ε whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the LORD's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments. And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing hearted, and brought bracelets, and earrings,⁵ and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered offered an offering of gold unto the LORD.

23 And ^κ every man, with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.

24 Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass brought the LORD's offering: and every man, with whom was found shittim wood for any work of the service, brought it. And all the women that were ^ι wise hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen. And all the women whose heart stirred them up in wisdom spun goats' hair. And ^κ the rulers brought onyx stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breastplate; and ^ι spice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense. The children of Israel brought a ^μ willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the LORD had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses.

1 Literally, 'shot out rays.' Probably this was designed to support Moses' authority.

2 The old versions supply 'when,' instead of 'until;' intimating that, when delivering the Divine message, Moses was unveiled.

3 There was room for almost every person to testify his zeal by some offering; for, while the wealthy could bring gold and precious stones, the poorer class might furnish the skins and the hair of goats: and the women spun the goats' hair for the tent coverings (ver. 26); as is done to this day by the females among the Bedouins.

30 And Moses said unto the children of Israel, See, ⁿthe LORD hath called by 31 name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah; and he hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, 32 and in all manner of workmanship; and to devise curious works, to work in gold,
 33 and in silver, and in brass, and in the cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving 34 of wood, to make any manner of cunning work. And he hath put in his heart that he may teach, both he, and ^oAholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of 35 Dan. Them hath he ^pfilled with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of those that devise cunning work.

Construction of the tabernacle, and the sacred vessels and vestments.

36 THEN wrought Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every ^qwise hearted man, in whom the LORD put wisdom and understanding to know how to work all manner of work for the service of the ^rsanctuary, according to all that the LORD had com-2 manded. And Moses called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, in whose heart the LORD had put wisdom, even every one ^swhose heart stirred 3 him up to come unto the work to do it: and they received of Moses all the offering, which the children of Israel ^thad brought for the work of the service of the sanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free 4 offerings every morning. And all the wise men, that wrought all the work of 5 the sanctuary, came every man from his work which they made; and they spake unto Moses, saying, "The people bring much more than enough for the service of 6 the work, which the LORD commanded to make. And Moses gave commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary.
 7 So the people were restrained from bringing. For the stuff they had was sufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.

8 ^xAnd every wise hearted man among them that wrought the work of the tabernacle made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and 9 scarlet: with cherubim of cunning work made he them.¹ The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits:
 10 the curtains were all of one size. And he coupled the five curtains one into 11 another: and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another. And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling: like-12 wise he made in the uttermost side of another curtain, in the coupling of the second. ^yFifty loops made he in one curtain, and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the second: the loops held one curtain 13 to another. And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches: ^zso it became one tabernacle.

14 ^aAnd he made curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle: eleven 15 curtains he made them. The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four 16 cubits was the breadth of one curtain: the eleven curtains were of one size. And 17 he coupled five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves. And he made fifty loops upon the uttermost edge of the curtain in the coupling, and fifty 18 loops made he upon the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second. And he made fifty taches of brass to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

19 ^bAnd he made a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering of badgers' skins above that.

20 ^cAnd he made boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood, standing up. The 21 length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and a half.
 22 One board had two tenons, equally distant one from another: thus did he make 23 for all the boards of the tabernacle. And he made boards for the tabernacle; 24 twenty boards for the south side southward: and forty sockets of silver he made under the twenty boards; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and 25 two sockets under another board for his two tenons. And for the other side of 26 the tabernacle, which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards, and their forty sockets of silver; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under 27 another board. And for the sides of the tabernacle westward he made six boards.
 28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides. And 29 they were coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring:
 30 thus he did to both of them in both the corners. And there were eight boards; and their sockets were sixteen sockets of silver, under every board two sockets.

31 And he made ^dbars of shittim wood; five for the boards of the one side of the 33 five bars for the boards of the tabernacle for the sides westward. And he made 34 the middle bar to shoot through the boards from the one end to the other. And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

35 And he made ^ca vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen :
 36 with cherubim made he it of cunning work. And he made thereunto four pillars of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold : their hooks were of gold ; and he cast for them four sockets of silver.

37 And he made an ^fhanging for the tabernacle door of blue, and purple, and

37 And Bezaleel made ^gthe ark of shittim wood : two cubits and a half was the length of it, and a cubit and a half the breadth of it, and a cubit and a half the 2 height of it : and he overlaid it with pure gold within and without, and made a 3 crown of gold to it round about. And he cast for it four rings of gold, to be set by the four corners of it ; even two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon 4 the other side of it. And he made staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with 5 gold. And he put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

g ch. 25. 10—18.

6 And he made the ^hmercy seat of pure gold : two cubits and a half was the 7 length thereof, and one cubit and a half the breadth thereof. And he made two cherubim of gold, beaten out of one piece made he them, on the two ends of the 8 mercy seat ; one cherub on the end on this side, and another cherub on the other end on that side : out of the mercy seat made he the cherubim on the two ends 9 thereof. And the cherubim spread out their wings on high, and covered with their wings over the mercy seat, with their faces one to another ; even to the mercy seatward were the faces of the cherubim.

h ch. 25. 17—22.

10 And he made ⁱthe table of shittim wood : two cubits was the length thereof, 11 and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof : and he overlaid it with pure gold, and made thereunto a crown of gold round about.
 12 Also he made thereunto a border of an handbreadth round about ; and made a 13 crown of gold for the border thereof round about. And he cast for it four rings of gold, and put the rings upon the four corners that were in the four feet thereof.
 14 Over against the border were the rings, the places for the staves to bear the table.
 15 And he made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold, to bear 16 the table. And he made the vessels which were upon the table, his ^kdishes, and his spoons, and his bowls, and his covers to cover withal, of pure gold.

17 And he made the ^lcandlestick of pure gold : of beaten work made he the candlestick ; his shaft, and his branch, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers, were 18 of the same : and six branches going out of the sides thereof ; three branches of the candlestick out of the one side thereof, and three branches of the candlestick 19 out of the other side thereof : three bowls made after the fashion of almonds in one branch, a knop and a flower ; and three bowls made like almonds in another branch, a knop and a flower : so throughout the six branches going out of the 20 candlestick. And in the candlestick were four bowls made like almonds, his 21 knops, and his flowers : and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, 22 according to the six branches going out of it. Their knops and their branches 23 were of the same : all of it was one beaten work of pure gold. And he made his 24 seven lamps, and his snuffers, and his snuffdishes, of pure gold. Of a talent of pure gold made he it, and all the vessels thereof.

 26 of it ; the horns thereof were of the same. And he overlaid it with pure gold, both the top of it, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns of it : also he 27 made unto it a crown of gold round about. And he made two rings of gold for it under the crown thereof, by the two corners of it, upon the two sides thereof, 28 to be places for the staves to bear it withal. And he made the staves of shittim 29 wood, and overlaid them with gold. And he made ⁿthe holy anointing oil, and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the apothecary.

 5 beneath unto the midst of it. And he cast four rings for the four ends of the 6 grate of brass, to be places for the staves. And he made the staves of shittim
 7 wood, and overlaid them with brass. And he put the staves into the rings on the sides of the altar, to bear it withal; he made the altar hollow with boards.
 8 And he made ^p the laver of brass, and the foot of it of brass, of the looking-glasses¹ of the women assembling;² ^q which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.
 9 And he made ^r the court: on the south side southward the hangings of the court
 10 were of fine twined linen, an hundred cubits: their pillars were twenty, and their brasen sockets twenty; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver.
 11 And for the north side the hangings were an hundred cubits, their pillars were twenty, and their sockets of brass twenty; the hooks of the pillars and their

 18 laying of their chapiters of silver; and all the pillars of the court were filleted with silver. And the hanging for the gate of the court was needlework, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: and twenty cubits was the length, and the height in the breadth was five cubits, answerable to the hangings of the 20 of silver, and the overlaying of their chapiters and their fillets of silver. And all the ^s pins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about, were of brass.

 21 This is the sum of the tabernacle, even of ^t the tabernacle of testimony, as it was counted, according to the commandment of Moses, for the service of the Levites,
 22 ^u by the hand of Ithamar, son to Aaron the priest. And ^x Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the LORD commanded Moses.
 23 And with him was Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and fine linen.
 24 All the gold that was occupied for the work in all the work of the holy place, even the gold of the offering, was twenty and nine talents, and seven hundred and thirty shekels, after ^y the shekel of the sanctuary.
 25 And the silver of them that were numbered of the congregation was an hundred talents,³ and a thousand seven hundred and threescore and fifteen shekels, after 26 the shekel of the sanctuary; ^z a bekah for every man, that is, half a shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary, for every one that went to be numbered, from twenty years old and upward, for ^a six hundred thousand and three thousand and five 27 hundred and fifty men. And of the hundred talents of silver were cast ^b the sockets of the sanctuary, and the sockets of the vail; an hundred sockets of the 28 hundred talents, a talent for a socket. And of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels he made hooks for the pillars, and overlaid their chapiters, and filleted them.
 29 And the brass of the offering was seventy talents, and two thousand and four 30 hundred shekels. And therewith he made the sockets to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the brasen altar, and the brasen grate for it, and 31 all the vessels of the altar, and the sockets of the court round about, and the sockets of the court gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court round about.

¹ Brazen (or, copper) or other metallic mirrors were a common female ornament among the Egyptians and Israelites.

² Perhaps 'of the *servi*ng' or ministering 'women, who served at the gate of the tabernacle of the congregation.' The same Hebrew word is used with reference to the services of the priests: see Numb. iv. 23, 35, 39, etc.;

viii. 25. A Jewish commentator, Aben Ezra, says, 'They came daily to the tabernacle to pray, and to hear the words of the law.' See 1 Sam. ii. 22; Luke ii. 37.

³ The talent being three thousand shekels, this exactly agrees with ver. 26. The value of the gold and silver was about 200,000*l.*; towards which the parting gifts of the Egyptians no doubt contributed largely.

it in the blue, and in the purple, and in the scarlet, and in the fine linen, with 4 cunning work. They made shoulder-pieces for it, to couple it together: by the 5 two edges was it coupled together. And the curious girdle of his ephod, that was upon it, was of the same, according to the work thereof; of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen; as the LORD commanded Moses.

6 ^s And they wrought onyx stones inclosed in ouches of gold, graven, as signets 7 are graven, with the names of the children of Israel. And he put them on the shoulders of the ephod, that they should be stones for a ^h memorial to the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses.

8 ⁱ And he made the breastplate of cunning work, like the work of the ephod;
 9 of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen. It was foursquare; they made the breastplate double: a span was the length thereof, and a span the 10 breadth thereof, being doubled. ^h And they set in it four rows of stones: the 11 first row was a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this was the first row. And 12 the second row, an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond. And the third row, a 13 ligure, an agate, and an amethyst. And the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a 14 jasper: they were inclosed in ouches of gold in their inclosings. And the stones were according to the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet, every one with his name, according to the 15 twelve tribes. And they made upon the breastplate chains at the ends, of 16 wreathen work of pure gold. And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold 17 rings; and put the two rings in the two ends of the breastplate. And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breastplate.
 18 And the two ends of the two wreathen chains they fastened in the two ouches, 19 and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod, before it. And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breastplate, upon the border of 20 it, which was on the side of the ephod inward. And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the fore part of it, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the 21 ephod. And they did bind the breastplate by his rings unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate might not be loosed from the ephod; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22, 23 ⁱ And he made the robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue. And there was an hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band 24 round about the hole, that it should not rend. And they made upon the hems of 25 the robe pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen. And they made ^m bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates upon 26 the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates; a bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the LORD commanded Moses.

27 ⁿ And they made coats of fine linen of woven work for Aaron, and for his sons, 28 and a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and ^p linen breeches 29 of fine twined linen, and a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, of needlework; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 ^r And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.
 31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre; as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished:
 and the children of Israel did ^s according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

33 And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, 34 his taches, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets, and the covering of rams' skins dyed red, and the covering of badgers' skins, and the vail of the 35 covering, the ark of the testimony, and the staves thereof, and the mercy seat, 36 the table, and all the vessels thereof, and the shewbread, the pure candlestick, 37 with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be set in order, and all the vessels 38 thereof, and the oil for light, and the golden altar, and the anointing oil, and the 39 sweet incense, and the hanging for the tabernacle door, the brasen altar, and his 40 grate of brass, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot, the hangings of the court, his pillars, and his sockets, and the hanging for the court gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the vessels of the service of the tabernacle, for the 41 tent of the congregation, the cloths of service to do service in the holy place, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons' garments, to minister in the 42 priest's office. According to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so the children 43 of Israel made all the work. And Moses did look upon all the work, and, behold, they had done it as the LORD had commanded, even so had they done it: and Moses ^ablessed them.

The tabernacle set up, and filled with the glory of the Lord.

40 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, On the first day of the ^xfirst month
3 shalt thou set up ^ythe tabernacle¹ of the tent of the congregation. And ^zthou shalt put therein the ark of the testimony, and cover² the ark with the vail.
4 And ^athou shalt bring in the table, and ^bset in order the things that are to be set in order upon it; ^cand thou shalt bring in the candlestick, and light the 5 lamps thereof. ^dAnd thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense before the 6 ark of the testimony, and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle. And thou shalt set the altar of the burnt offering before the door of the tabernacle of 7 the tent of the congregation. And ^ethou shalt set the laver between the tent of 8 the congregation and the altar, and shalt put water therein. And thou shalt set 9 up the court round about, and hang up the hanging at the court gate. And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and ^fanoint the tabernacle, and all that is therein, 10 and shalt hallow it, and all the vessels thereof: and it shall be holy. And thou shalt anoint the altar of the burnt offering, and all his vessels, and sanctify the 11 altar: and ^git shall be an altar most holy. And thou shalt anoint the laver and 12 his foot, and sanctify it. ^hAnd thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door 13 of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water. And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, ⁱand anoint him, and sanctify him; that he 14 may minister unto me in the priest's office. And thou shalt bring his sons, and 15 clothe them with coats: and thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office: for their anointing shall surely be ^kan everlasting³ priesthood throughout their generations.
16 Thus did Moses: according to all that the LORD commanded him, so did he.
17 And it came to pass in the first month, in the second year,⁴ on the first day of the 18 month, that the ^ltabernacle was reared up. And Moses reared up the tabernacle, and fastened his sockets, and set up the boards thereof, and put in the bars thereof, 19 and reared up his pillars. And he spread abroad the tent⁵ over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the LORD commanded Moses.
20 And he took and put ^mthe testimony⁶ into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, 21 and put the mercy seat above upon the ark: and he brought the ark into the tabernacle, and ⁿset up the vail of the covering, and covered the ark of the testimony; as the LORD commanded Moses.
22 ^oAnd he put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the 23 tabernacle northward, without the vail. ^pAnd he set the bread in order upon it before the LORD; as the LORD had commanded Moses.
24 ^qAnd he put the candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the 25 table, on the side of the tabernacle southward. And ^rhe lighted the lamps before the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.
26 ^sAnd he put the golden altar in the tent of the congregation before the vail:
27 ^tand he burnt sweet incense thereon; as the LORD commanded Moses.
28 ^uAnd he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle. ^xAnd he put the 29 altar of burnt offering by the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation, and ^yoffered upon it the burnt offering and the meat offering; as the LORD commanded Moses.
30 ^zAnd he set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and 31 put water there, to wash withal. And Moses and Aaron and his sons washed 32 their hands and their feet thereat: when they went into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near unto the altar, they washed; ^aas the LORD commanded Moses.
33 ^bAnd he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court gate. So Moses finished the work.
34 ^cThen a cloud⁷ covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the LORD
35 filled the tabernacle. And Moses ^dwas not able to enter into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the LORD filled the 36 tabernacle. ^eAnd when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the 37 children of Israel went onward in all their journeys: but ^fif the cloud were not 38 taken up, then they journeyed not till the day that it was taken up. For ^gthe cloud of the LORD was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

THE THIRD BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED LEVITICUS.

THIS book is entitled 'Leviticus,' because it contains the laws relating to Divine worship, of which the Levites were the appointed ministers. Its enactments, ceremonial, civil, and judicial, are unrivalled by those of any nation of antiquity, for their pure morality—the wisdom, justice, and beneficence of their provisions—and the dignity and impressiveness of their rites.

The ceremonial institutions, which occupy so large a portion of this book, had, among others, the following important designs:—

1. They were evidently in some respects sanitary regulations. This was one purpose of the laws relating to various purifications, the separation of lepers, and the distinction of meats, etc.

2. They also served to perpetuate among the Israelites the knowledge of the true God, to maintain reverence for holy things, and to call forth and exercise religious feelings in the midst of their daily conduct, and in all the relations of life. The sacred festivals, in particular (ch. xxiii.), were valuable for these purposes, as well as for keeping up the remembrance of the distinguished benefits which had been conferred upon the nation.

3. They had the effect, further, of preventing the Israelites from becoming closely connected or associating with surrounding nations (see Eph. ii. 14); and thus of guarding them from the idolatry and corruption which reigned universally in the world; and preserving them as an entirely distinct nation, until the time came when this barrier should no longer be necessary, because the gospel should be sent 'to every creature which is under heaven.'

4. These ceremonial observances had another important use connected with their symbolical meaning. In condescension to the moral and intellectual state of the people, who were not yet capable of readily apprehending Divine truth, spiritual things were represented by outward and visible objects. For instance, ideas of moral purity and of the Divine holiness were communicated and cherished by the repeated ablutions of their persons and dwellings; by the selection of clean animals for sacrifice; by the unblemished perfection required in the victims to be offered; and by the restriction of the priestly functions to a class of men who were specially set apart for these duties, and upon whom repeated purifications were enjoined. Further, by the death of the atoning victim, to which the worshipper had transferred his sins by laying his hands upon its head, and by the presentation to God of the blood, which represented the life, the important truth was taught that the desert of sin was that extreme and irremediable punishment called 'the second death,' which could be averted only by the substitution of a vicarious sacrifice. Thus, by means of impressive symbols, the worshippers were constantly reminded of the justice and sanctity of the violated law, and of their own guiltiness and need of Divine mercy; and, when these services were performed in a right spirit, their minds would be inspired with a humble hope of mercy, leading to corresponding gratitude, obedience, and love.

5. These various institutions also prefigured greater and better things to come. We learn, from the inspired commentary on this book contained in the Epistle to the Hebrews, that the priesthood, the sacrifices, and the whole ritual, formed a grand typical prophecy of the person and work of the Great Deliverer, who had been announced from the very era of the fall, and of that complete and everlasting redemption which he was to accomplish when 'the fulness of the time was come.'

This book may be divided into four principal sections:

I. The laws concerning the several kinds of SACRIFICES: the burnt-offering (ch. i.); meat-offering (ii.); peace-offering (iii.); offering for sins of ignorance (iv.); trespass-offering (v., vi. 1—7); and instructions to the priests concerning the offerings (vi. 8—30; vii.)

II. The institution of the PRIESTHOOD, and the consecration of Aaron and his sons; together with the sin and punishment of Nadab and Abihu (viii.—x.)

III. Laws relating to PURIFICATIONS (xi.—xxii.)

IV. Laws concerning the SACRED FESTIVALS, VOWS, and TITHES (xxiii.—xxvii.)

The law of the burnt-offering.

1 AND the LORD ^acalled unto Moses, and spake unto him ^bout of the tabernacle
2 of the congregation, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them,
3 If any man of you bring an offering unto the LORD, ^cye shall bring your offering

4 If his offering ^dbe ^ea burnt sacrifice of the herd, ^flet him offer a male ^g'without

1 Various kinds of sacrifices, with different ceremonies, were prescribed, in order to give as complete a representation as possible of all the great truths respecting the sinner's reconciliation to God; and to afford suitable expression to the diversified wants and feelings of the worshippers.

2 This was evidently a voluntary offering, like those in ch. ii., iii.; but it was to be wholly consumed. It might be made under a deep sense of general sinfulness (as distinguished from the sin and trespass offerings, ch. iv., v.), or as an expression of special and entire devotion to God.

3 The three classes of victims here mentioned, viz., bullocks (ver. 3), sheep or goats (ver. 10), and fowls (ver. 14), were suited to the means of different classes of persons; for God accepteth according to what a man hath (2 Cor. viii. 12). The discretion thus permitted would also tend to direct attention to the substance as distinguished from the mere type.

4 Or, 'for his acceptance before Jehovah.'

5 That is, the offerer, taking some ostensible part in what was chiefly done by the practised Levites.

6 By this act, the life of the victim was considered as presented to God.

- 8 priest shall put fire upon the altar, and ^u lay the wood in order upon the fire: and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall lay the parts, the head, and the fat, in order upon the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar: but his inwards and his legs shall he wash in water: and the priest shall burn all on the altar, to be a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a ^o sweet savour unto the LORD.
- 10 And if his offering be of the flocks, namely, of the sheep, or of the goats, for a burnt sacrifice, he shall bring it a male ^p without blemish. ^q And he shall kill it on the side of the altar northward before the LORD: and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall sprinkle his blood round about upon the altar. And he shall cut it into his pieces, with his head and his fat: and the priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar: but he shall wash the inwards and the legs with water: and the priest shall bring it all, and burn it upon the altar: it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.
- 14 And if the burnt sacrifice for his offering to the LORD be of fowls, then he shall bring his offering of ^r turtledoves, or of young pigeons. And the priest shall bring it unto the altar, and ^s wring off his head, and burn it on the altar; and the blood thereof shall be wrung out at the side of the altar: and he shall pluck away his crop with his feathers, and cast it ^t beside the altar on the east part, by the place of the ashes. And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but ^u shall not divide it asunder: and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: ^v it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

- 2 AND when any will offer ^y a meat ¹ offering unto the LORD, his offering shall be of fine flour; and he shall pour oil upon it, and put ^z frankincense thereon: and he shall bring it to Aaron's sons the priests: and he shall take thereout his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof; and the priest shall burn ^a the memorial of it ² upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: and ^b the remnant of the meat offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': ^c it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.
- 4 And if thou bring an oblation of a meat offering baken in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers ^d anointed with oil.
- 5 And if thy oblation be a meat offering baken in a pan [or, on a flat plate or slice³], it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil. Thou shalt part it in pieces, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat offering.
- 7 And if thy oblation be a meat offering baken in the fryingpan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil. And thou shalt bring the meat offering that is made of these things unto the LORD: and when it is presented unto the priest, he shall bring it unto the altar. - 12 ^k As for the oblation of the firstfruits, ye shall offer them unto the LORD: but they shall not be burnt on the altar for a sweet savour.
- 13 And every oblation of thy meat offering ^l shalt thou season with salt; neither shalt thou suffer ^m the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat offering: ⁿ with all thine offerings thou shalt offer salt.

¹ Or rather meal, or wheaten offering. The word never refers to flesh in the Levitical offerings; nor was this properly a sacrifice. The greater part of it was to be used for food, not to be burned. It consisted principally of flour, or flour made into cakes; to which was added a suitable quantity of wine for a drink-offering. See Exod. xxix. 40, 41; Lev. xxiii. 13; Numb. xv. 5, 10, etc. When presented alone, it appears to have been an expression of gratitude for ordinary providential blessings; though its reception through the intervention of the priest, and the oblation of part of it by fire, keep in view the mediation of Christ as the only acceptable way of offering praise. See Heb. xiii. 15, 16. The various forms in which it was allowed to be made (vers. 2, 4, 5, 7) were suited to the diversified circumstances of the people.

² That is, a part as representing the whole.

³ The Arabs of the desert use a plate of iron, or a grid-iron, for cooking their cakes, which are often very thin.

⁴ The acid lees of wine, or dough kept till it became sour, was the leaven used by the Hebrews. In this, therefore, the corruption to which all sweet things are liable had already begun; and having passed its best state, it was unfit to be presented to God. Salt, on the contrary, as a preservative of animal substances from decay, was the emblem of purity, perfection, and perpetuity; and for this reason, as well as from being eaten with every meal, it was a symbol of friendship. 'Honey' includes all that is sweet, and is forbidden because it turns sour.

1 These offerings differ from those in ver. 12, being of ears of corn, not flour.

2 In this as in other cases, what was offered to God was to be the best of its kind.

3 The peace-offering was the only sacrifice of which the people were permitted to eat the flesh. God was supposed to partake of the feast with the offerer and his friends; thus giving a religious character to social festivities, and indicating the completeness of the Divine reconciliation. The need of an atoning sacrifice, in order to such reconciliation, is kept prominently in view in these offerings. The feelings of a true worshipper in presenting the sacrifices and offerings prescribed in this and the two preceding chapters are beautifully set forth in Psa. lvi. 13—20.

4 Here we see the same gradation in the offerings, adapted to the means of different classes of persons, as in the burnt-offering and the meat-offering: viz., the bullock or heifer (ver. 1), the lamb (ver. 6), and the goat (ver. 12).

5 Representing the transference of the guilt of the offerer to the sacrifice.

6 The part which was consumed upon the altar in this case was not very valuable.

7 The tail of many Eastern sheep is broad and fat, and is reckoned the finest part.

8 That is, neither the fat or suet within (vers. 14, 15), nor the blood of the larger vessels. The heathen sometimes drank the blood of their sacrifices: see Psa. xvi. 4.

9 As distinguished from sins of presumption (Numb. xv. 22, 28); that is, deliberately and wilfully committed, for which there was no atonement. The word 'ignorance' allows us to include sins of thoughtlessness, and urgent or plausible temptation, as well as of absolute ignorance. On account of the scarcity of books and of public instructors, this class of sins would probably be very numerous. The penalty is proportioned to the supposed advantages of the offender; and consequently falls most heavily upon the high priest, whose victim was to be as costly as that of the whole congregation; and was, like that, to be offered with the peculiar solemnity of the sevenfold sprinkling, and to be wholly consumed without the camp, as if he required a new consecration.

4 without blemish unto the LORD for a sin offering. And he shall bring the bullock ^k unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD; and shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head, and kill the bullock before the LORD.

8 And he shall take off from it all the fat of the bullock for the sin offering; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away, ^o as it was taken off from the bullock of the sacrifice of peace offerings: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar of the burnt offering. ^p And the skin of the bullock, and all his flesh, with his head, and with his legs, and his inwards, and his dung, even the whole bullock shall he carry forth without the camp ^q unto a clean place, ^r where the ashes are poured out, and ^s burn him on the wood with fire: where the ashes are poured out shall he be burnt.

13 And ^t if the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance, ^u and the thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty; ³ when the sin, which they have sinned against it, is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation. And the elders of the congregation ^x shall lay their hands upon the head of the bullock before the LORD: and the bullock shall be killed before the LORD. ^y And the priest that is anointed shall bring of the bullock's blood to the tabernacle of the congregation: and the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD, even before the vail. And he shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar which is before the LORD, that is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour out all the blood at the bottom of the altar of the burnt offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar. And he shall do with the bullock as he did ^z with the bullock for a sin offering; so shall he do with this: ^a and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them. And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is a sin offering for the congregation.

22 When a ruler hath sinned, and ^b done somewhat through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD his God concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty; or ^c if his sin, wherein he hath sinned, come to his knowledge; he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a male without blemish: and ^d he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt offering before the LORD: it is a sin offering. ^e And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt offering. And he shall burn all his fat upon the altar, as ^f the fat of the sacrifice of peace offerings: ^g and the priest shall make an atonement for him as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 And ^h if any one of the common people sin through ignorance, while he doeth somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty; or ⁱ if his sin, which he hath sinned, come to his knowledge: then he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a female ⁴ without blemish, for his sin which he hath sinned. ^k And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin offering, and slay the sin offering in the place of the burnt offering. And the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar. And ^l he shall take away all the fat thereof, ^m as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace offerings; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar for a ⁿ sweet savour unto the LORD; ^o and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

6 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, If a soul sin, and ^d commit a trespass against the LORD, and ^e lie unto his neighbour in that ^f which was delivered him to keep, ¹ or in fellowship [or, in dealing], or in a thing taken away by violence, or hath ^g deceived his neighbour; or ^h have found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and ⁱ sweareth falsely; in any of all these that a man doeth, ² sinning therein: then it shall be, because he hath sinned and is guilty, that he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found, or all that about which he hath sworn falsely; he shall even ^k restore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, and give it unto him to whom it appertaineth, in the day of his trespass offering. And he shall bring his trespass offering unto the LORD, ^l a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass offering, unto the priest: ^m and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD: and it shall be forgiven him for any thing of all that he hath done in trespassing therein.

Regulations as to the foregoing offerings.

8, 9 ⁿ AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ³ Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the burnt offering: It is the burnt offering, ⁴ because of the burning upon the altar all night unto the morning, and the fire of the altar shall be burning in it. ^o And the priest shall put on his linen garment, and his linen breeches shall be put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes which the fire hath consumed with the burnt offering on the altar, and he shall put them ^p beside the altar. And ^q he shall put off his garments, and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes without the camp ^r unto a clean place. And the fire ⁵ upon the altar shall be burning in it; it shall not be put out: and the priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and lay the burnt offering in order upon it; and he shall burn thereon ^s the fat of the peace offerings. The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar; it shall never go out.

14 ^t And this is the law of the meat offering: ⁶ the sons of Aaron shall offer it before the LORD, before the altar. And he shall take of it his handful, of the flour of the meat offering, and of the oil thereof, and all the frankincense which is upon the meat offering, and shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour, even the ^u memorial of it, unto the LORD. And ^x the remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons ⁷ eat: ^y with unleavened bread shall it be eaten ⁸ in the holy place; in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation they shall eat it. ^z It shall not be baked with leaven. ^a I have given it unto them for their portion of my offerings made by fire; ^b it is most holy, as is the sin offering, and as the trespass offering. 18 ^c All the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it. ^d It shall be a statute for ever in your generations concerning the offerings of the LORD made by fire: ^e every one that toucheth them shall be holy. ⁹

19, 20 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^f This is the offering of Aaron and of his sons, which they shall offer unto the LORD in the day ¹⁰ when he is anointed; the tenth part of an ^g ephah of fine flour for a meat offering perpetual, half of it in the morning, and half thereof at night. In a pan it shall be made with oil; and when it is baken, thou shalt bring it in: and the baken pieces of the meat offering shalt thou offer for a sweet savour unto the LORD. And the priest of his sons ^h that is anointed in his stead shall offer it: it is a statute for ever unto the LORD; ⁱ it shall be wholly burnt. For every meat offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt: it shall not be eaten.

¹ A proved offence of this kind, without confession, was punished by manifold restitution (Exod. xxii. 7, 15).

² This includes a failure to restore anything borrowed; or the false denial of having received anything belonging to another; or the appropriation of it to one's self.

³ These instructions respect the duties and rights of the priests with reference to the foregoing sacrifices.

⁴ Or, 'As for the burnt-offering, with respect to the burning upon the altar,' etc. The remains of the evening burnt-offering were to be left upon the altar all night; and the fire was to be kept alive.

⁵ It is generally supposed that the fire sent down from heaven (ch. ix. 24) was kept alight for this purpose.

⁶ This refers to the flour-offering of the daily oblation; not that mentioned in ch. ii. 1, 2.

⁷ By this and other offerings, part of which belonged to the priests, those who gave attendance in turn at the tabernacle were maintained during their absence from their own cities.

⁸ Rather, 'unleavened shall it be eaten;' the words 'with' and 'bread' not being in the Hebrew.

⁹ He must not only be a priest by descent from Aaron, but must be personally free from ceremonial pollution.

¹⁰ The Arabic renders, 'from the day;' which seems to agree with the rest of the verse. The Jews accordingly regard this as a daily offering of the high priest.

is killed shall the sin offering be killed before the Lord: ^m it is most holy.

26 ⁿ The priest that offereth it for sin shall eat it: ^o in the holy place shall it be

27 eaten, in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation. ^p Whatsoever shall touch the flesh thereof shall be holy. And when there is sprinkled of the blood

28 thereof upon any garment, thou shalt wash that whereon it was sprinkled in the holy place: but the earthen vessel¹ wherein it is sodden ^q shall be broken: and if it be sodden in a brasen pot, it shall be both scoured and rinsed in water.

29 ^r All the males among the priests shall eat thereof: ^s it is most holy. ^t And no

30 sin offering, whereof any of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of the congregation to reconcile withal in the holy place, shall be eaten: it shall be burnt in the fire.

7 Likewise ^u this is the law of the trespass offering: ^v it is most holy. ^w In the

2 place where they kill the burnt offering shall they kill the trespass offering:

3 and the blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar. And he shall offer of it ^x all the fat thereof; the rump, and the fat that covereth the 4 inwards, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the caul that is above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away:

5 and the priest shall burn them upon the altar for an offering made by fire unto

6 the Lord: it is a trespass offering. ^y Every male among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: ^z it is most holy.

7 As the sin offering is, so is ^a the trespass offering: there is one law for them:

8 the priest that maketh atonement therewith shall have it. And the priest that offereth any man's burnt offering, even the priest shall have to himself the skin

9 of the burnt offering which he hath offered. And ^b all the meat offering that is baken in the oven, and all that is dressed in the fryingpan, and in the pan, shall

10 be the priest's that offereth it. And every meat offering, mingled with oil, and dry, shall all the sons of Aaron have, one as much as another.

11 And ^c this is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which he shall offer

12 unto the Lord. If he offer it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, and unleavened wafers ^d anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour, fried.

13 Besides the cakes, he shall offer for his offering ^e leavened bread² with the 14 sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace offerings. And of it he shall offer one out of the whole oblation for ^f an heave offering unto the Lord, ^g and it shall be the 15 priest's that sprinkleth the blood of the peace offerings. ^h And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings for thanksgiving shall be eaten the same day³ that 16 it is offered; he shall not leave any of it until the morning. But ⁱ if the sacrifice of his offering be a vow, or a voluntary offering, it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice: and on the morrow also the remainder of it shall be

17 eaten: but the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day shall be

18 burnt with fire. And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings be eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be ^j imputed unto him that offereth it: it shall be an ^k abomination, and the soul that eateth

19 of it shall bear his iniquity. And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten; it shall be burnt with fire: and as for the flesh, all that be 20 clean shall eat thereof. But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, that pertain unto the Lord, ^l having his uncleanness upon him,

21 even that soul ^m shall be cut off from his people. ⁿ Moreover the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as ^o the uncleanness of man, or any ^p unclean beast, or any ^q abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace offerings, which pertain unto the Lord, even that soul ^r shall be cut off from his people.

22, 23 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel,

24 saying, ^s Ye shall eat no manner of fat,⁴ of ox, or of sheep, or of goat. And the fat of the ^t beast that dieth of itself, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts,

25 may be used in any other use: but ye shall in no wise eat of it. For whosoever eateth the fat of the beast, of which men offer an offering made by fire unto the 26 Lord, even the soul that eateth it shall be cut off from his people. ^u Moreover ye shall eat no manner of blood, whether it be of fowl or of beast, in any of your 27 dwellings. Whatsoever soul it be that eateth any manner of blood, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

28, 29 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, "He that offereth the sacrifice of his peace offerings unto the Lord shall bring his oblation unto the Lord of the sacrifice of his peace offerings. ^b His own hands shall bring the offerings of the Lord made by fire, the fat with the breast, it shall he bring, that ^c the breast may be waved for a wave offering before the Lord. ^d And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar: ^e but the breast shall be Aaron's and his sons'. And ^f the right shoulder shall ye give unto the priest for an heave offering of the sacrifices of your peace offerings. He among the sons of Aaron, that offereth the blood of the peace offerings, and the fat, shall have the right shoulder for his part. For ^g the wave breast and the heave shoulder have I taken of the children of Israel from off the sacrifices of their peace offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest and unto his sons by a statute for ever from among the children of Israel. This is the portion of the anointing of Aaron, and of the anointing of his sons, out of the offerings of the Lord made by fire, in the day when he presented them to minister unto the Lord in the priest's office; which the Lord commanded to be given them of the children of Israel, ^h in the day that he anointed them, by a statute for ever throughout their generations.

37 This is the law ⁱ of the burnt offering, ^k of the meat offering, ^l and of the sin offering, ^m and of the trespass offering, ⁿ and of the consecrations, and ^o of the sacrifice of the peace offerings; which the Lord commanded Moses in mount Sinai, in the day that he commanded the children of Israel ^p to offer their oblations unto the Lord, in the wilderness of Sinai.

Aaron and his sons are consecrated as priests; their offerings consumed by fire from heaven.

8 AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, ^q Take Aaron and his sons with him, ^r and ^s the garments, and ^t the anointing oil, and a bullock for the sin offering, and ^u two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread; and gather thou all the congregation ^v together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And Moses did as the Lord commanded him; and the assembly was gathered together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

5 And Moses said unto the congregation, This is the thing which the Lord ^w commanded to be done. 14 ^{am} And he brought the bullock for the sin offering: and Aaron and his sons ^{an} laid their hands upon the head of the bullock for the sin offering. ¹ That is, of the tabernacle court; for they were not allowed to live in the holy place.

² Here are specified all the different kinds of offerings, except the trespass-offering, which would probably not be needed on this occasion. Here is the sin-offering; a twofold burnt-offering; the peace-offering; and, lastly, a meat (or meal) offering, mingled with oil.

³ Aaron is now deemed fit to minister for the people.

⁴ The sin was laid upon the victim, or imputed to it: hence the expression in 2 Cor. v. 21.

- brought the burnt offering, and offered it ^y according to the manner [or, ordinance].
 17 And he brought ^z the meat offering, and took an handful thereof, and burnt it 18 upon the altar, ^a beside the burnt sacrifice of the morning. He slew also the bullock and the ram for ^b a sacrifice of peace offerings, which was for the people:
 and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled upon the altar 19 round about, and the fat of the bullock and of the ram, the rump, and that which 20 covereth the inwards, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver: and they 21 put the fat upon the breasts, ^c and he burnt the fat upon the altar: and the breasts and the right shoulder Aaron waved ^d for a wave offering before the LORD; as Moses commanded.
 22 And Aaron lifted up his hand toward the people, and ^e blessed them, and came down from offering of the sin offering, and the burnt offering, and peace offerings.
 23 And Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and came out, and blessed the people. ^f And the glory of the LORD appeared unto all 24 the people. And ^g there came a fire out from before the LORD, and consumed upon the altar the burnt offering¹ and the fat: which when all the people saw, ^h they shouted, and fell on their faces.

- 10 AND ⁱ Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, ^k took either of them his censer, and put fire² therein, and put incense thereon, and offered ^l strange fire before the 2 LORD, which he commanded them not. And there ^m went out fire from the LORD, 3 and devoured³ them, and they died before the LORD. Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the LORD spake, saying, ⁿ I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be ^o glorified. ^p And Aaron held 4 his peace.⁴ And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of ^q Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said unto them, Come near, ^r carry your brethren from before 5 the sanctuary out of the camp. So they went near, and carried them in their coats out of the camp; as Moses had said.
 6 And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons,
^s Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes;⁵ lest ye die, and lest ^t wrath come upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole house of 7 Israel, bewail the burning which the LORD hath kindled. ^u And ye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: ^v for the anointing oil of the LORD is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses.
 8, 9 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, saying, ^y Do not drink wine⁶ nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations:
 10 and that ye may ^z put difference between holy and unholy, and between unclean 11 and clean; ^a and that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the LORD hath spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.
 12 And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons that were left, Take ^b the meat offering that remaineth of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and eat it without leaven beside the altar: for ^c it is most 13 holy: and ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy due, and thy sons' 14 due, of the sacrifices of the LORD made by fire: for ^d so I am commanded. And ^e the wave breast and heave shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee: for they be thy due, and thy sons' due, which are given out of the sacrifices of peace offerings of the children of Israel.
 15 ^f The heave shoulder and the wave breast shall they bring with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it for a wave offering before the LORD; and it shall be thine, and thy sons' with thee, by a statute for ever; as the LORD hath commanded.

¹ God thus solemnly testified his acceptance of the worship offered to him at the altar and in the tabernacle. The same scene was renewed subsequently at the consecration of the temple (2 Chron. vii. 1). The priests were charged not to let the fire on the altar go out (Lev. vi. 12, etc.); and they were not allowed to use any other fire in offering incense or sacrifices (Lev. x. 1).

² Not the holy fire from the altar, but common fire.

³ Rather, 'slew;' for their bodies and garments were unconsumed: see ver. 5. Such a presumptuous infraction of the ritual service, by those whose special duty it was to maintain its sacredness, required a signal punishment.

⁴ Aaron's complete resignation is most apparent when contrasted with the prevailing custom in Eastern countries of making loud lamentation for the dead.

⁶ From this it seems probable that Nadab and Abihu had been elated by wine. The service of God demands the unimpaired exercise of the mind and affections.

The law of clean and unclean animals for food.

11 AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying unto them, Speak unto 2 the children of Israel, saying, ^oThese are the beasts³ which ye shall eat. Among 3 all the beasts that are on the earth, whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is cloven-4 footed, and cheweth the cud,⁴ among the beasts, that shall ye eat. Nevertheless these shall ye not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof:
 as the camel,⁵ because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is un-5 clean unto you. And the coney,⁶ because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not 6 the hoof; he is unclean unto you. And the hare, because he cheweth the cud, 7 but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you. And the swine,⁷ though he divide the hoof, and be clovenfooted, yet he cheweth not the cud; ^phe is unclean that have not fins and scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move⁹ in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters, they shall be an ^sabomi-

 12 of their flesh, but ye shall have their carcases in abomination. Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

1 This deviation from the law alarmed Moses; but the peculiar affliction of the family was allowed as an excuse for it. This event, so painful to Aaron, would be, both to the priests and to the people, an impressive lesson on the necessity of strict obedience to the Divine law. See Heb. xii. 29.

2 Whilst God jealously watches and punishes wilful disregard of any of his institutions, he is graciously mindful of any impediments that may be in the way of those who heartily desire to observe them.

3 Rather, 'These are the living creatures which ye may eat. Of all large beasts (or, cattle) that are on the earth, whatsoever parteth the hoof,' etc. This distinction between animals clean and unclean must not be supposed to put a stigma upon any of God's creatures: but it was designed to strengthen the barriers between the Israelites and other nations, and especially to prevent their participation in idolatrous festivals; also, probably, to promote health and cleanliness. The animals allowed for food included all those whose flesh is universally deemed most wholesome and nutritious.

4 A clean animal must have all these marks. The division of the hoof must not be into more than two parts; nor must it, like the camel's, be incomplete.

5 Both its flesh and its milk are used by the Arabs.

6 This means either the jerboa, or more probably the wabber, an animal about the size of a hare.

7 Swine appear not to have been eaten by Orientals generally; and by the Egyptians only at some idolatrous feasts. Eating swine's flesh in those countries is said to produce cutaneous diseases.

8 Fish that have both fins and scales are wholesome and nutritious.

9 Rather, 'all that swarm in the waters.'

10 Instead of a general rule being given here, the exceptions are specified; probably including, in each, all birds of similar kind. Many of these cannot now be ascertained: but they were most likely all carnivorous.

11 'The owl' should probably be rendered 'the ostrich.'

12 Rather, 'flying creatures;' meaning insects.

13 These four kinds are all of the same genus. Locusts are much used as food by the poor in some countries.

nor cheweth the cud, are unclean unto you: every one that toucheth them shall 27 be unclean. And whatsoever goeth upon his paws, among all manner of beasts that go on all four, those are unclean unto you: whoso toucheth their carcase 28 shall be unclean until the even. And he that beareth the carcase of them shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: they are unclean unto you.

29 These also shall be unclean unto you among the creeping things that creep upon 30 the earth; the weasel,¹ and ²the mouse, and the tortoise after his kind, and the 31 ferret, and the chameleon, and the lizard, and the snail, and the mole. These are unclean to you among all that creep: whosoever doth touch them, when they be 32 dead, shall be unclean until the even. And upon whatsoever any of them, when they are dead, doth fall, it shall be unclean; whether it be any vessel of wood, or raiment, or skin, or sack, whatsoever vessel it be, wherein any work is done, ³it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the even; so it shall be 33 cleansed. And every earthen vessel, whereinto any of them falleth, whatsoever 34 is in it shall be unclean; and ⁴ye shall break it. Of all meat which may be eaten, that on which such water cometh shall be unclean: and all drink that may 35 be drunk in every such vessel shall be unclean. And every thing whereupon any part of their carcase falleth shall be unclean; whether it be oven, or ranges for pots, they shall be broken down: for they are unclean, and shall be unclean 36 unto you. Nevertheless a fountain or pit, wherein there is plenty of water, shall 37 be clean: but that which toucheth their carcase shall be unclean. And if any part of their carcase fall upon any sowing seed which is to be sown, it shall be 38 clean. But if any water be put upon the seed, and any part of their carcase fall thereon, it shall be unclean unto you.

39 And if any beast, of which ye may eat, die; he that toucheth the carcase thereof 40 shall be unclean until the even. And ⁵he that eateth of the carcase of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: he also that beareth the carcase of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

41 And every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth shall be an abomination;
42 it shall not be eaten. Whatsoever goeth upon the belly, and whatsoever goeth upon all four, or whatsoever hath more feet among all creeping things² that creep 43 upon the earth, them ye shall not eat; for they are an abomination. ⁶Ye shall not make yourselves abominable with any creeping thing that creepeth, neither shall ye make yourselves unclean with them, that ye should be defiled thereby.
44 For I am the LORD your God: ye shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and ⁷ye shall be holy; for I am holy: neither shall ye defile yourselves with any manner 45 of creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. ⁸For I am the LORD that bringeth you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: ⁹ye shall therefore be holy,³ for I am holy.

46 This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowls, and of every living creature that 47 moveth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth: ¹⁰to make a difference between the unclean and the clean, and between the beast that may be eaten and the beast that may not be eaten.

the days of her purifying be fulfilled. But if she bear a maid child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation: and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying threescore and six days.

she shall bring a lamb of the first year for a burnt offering, and a young pigeon, or a turtledove, for a sin offering, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congre-

Laws concerning leprosy and its cleansing.

13 AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying, When a man shall have in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy; ¹ ^q then he shall be brought turned white, and the plague in sight be deeper than the skin of his flesh, it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and pronounce him unclean.

⁴ If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be not turned white; then the priest shall ⁵ shut up him that hath the plague ² seven days: and the priest shall look on him the seventh day: ³ and, behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay, and the plague spread not in the skin; then the priest shall shut him up seven days more:
⁶ and the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague be somewhat dark, and the plague spread not in the skin, the priest shall pronounce him clean: it is but a scab: and he ^r shall wash his clothes, and be ⁷ clean. But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been ⁸ seen of the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen of the priest again: and if

¹ The name 'leprosy' was given to a class of diseases of the skin very prevalent in Egypt and in Asia. It was inflicted sometimes as a special judgment for sin; and is hence called a plague, or stroke: see Num. xii. 10; 2 Kings v. 27; 2 Chron. xxvi. 20. Leprosy is an apt symbol of sin and its effects; to which there are many striking references in the process of cleansing: see ch. xiv., xv.

² Or, 'shall bind up the wound:': so the Syriac.

³ Three varieties are mentioned, only two of which are malignant; and of these, one is not at first sight distinguishable from a harmless eruption. Hence the need of repeated inspection.

⁴ This is supposed to refer to cases in which a local affection, as a boil, had developed a constitutional tendency to leprosy.

⁵ This case resembles the preceding; except that a scald or burn is supposed to bring out the latent disease.

upon him the seventh day: and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the 28 priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy. And if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not in the skin, but it be somewhat dark; it is a rising of the burning,¹ and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation of the burning.

29, 30 If a man or woman have a plague upon the head or the beard; then the priest shall see the plague: and, behold, if it be in sight deeper than the skin; and there be in it a yellow thin hair; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean:
 31 it is a dry scall, even a leprosy upon the head or beard. And if the priest look on the plague of the scall, and, behold, it be not in sight deeper than the skin, and that there is no black hair in it; then the priest shall shut up him that hath 32 the plague of the scall seven days. And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the plague: and, behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow 33 hair, and the scall be not in sight deeper than the skin; he shall be shaven, but the scall shall he not shave. And the priest shall shut up him that hath the scall 34 seven days more: and in the seventh day the priest shall look on the scall: and, behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin, nor be in sight deeper than the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him clean: and he shall wash his clothes, 35 and be clean. But if the scall spread much in the skin after his cleansing; then 36 the priest shall look on him: and, behold, if the scall be spread in the skin, the 37 priest shall not seek for yellow hair; he is unclean. But if the scall be in his sight at a stay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the scall is healed, he is clean: and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 If a man also or a woman have in the skin of their flesh bright spots, even 39 white bright spots; then the priest shall look: and, behold, if the bright spots in the skin of their flesh be darkish white; it is a freckled spot that groweth in the skin; he is clean.

40 And the man whose hair is fallen off his head, he is bald; yet is he clean.
 41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is 42 forehead bald: yet is he clean. And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, a white reddish sore; it is a leprosy sprung up in his bald head, or his bald fore-43 head. Then the priest shall look upon it: and, behold, if the rising of the sore be white reddish in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth 44 in the skin of the flesh; he is a leprous man, he is unclean: the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean; his plague is in his head.

45 And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent,² and his head bare, and he shall ^x put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, ^y Unclean, 46 unclean. All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: ^z he shall dwell alone; ^a without the camp shall his habitation be.

47 ^b The garment⁴ also that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be a woollen 48 garment, or a linen garment; whether it be in the warp, or woof; of linen, or of 49 woollen; whether in a skin, or in any thing made of skin; and if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be showed unto 50 the priest: and the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath 51 the plague seven days: and he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of skin; the plague is ^c a fretting leprosy; it 52 is unclean. He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp or woof, in woollen or in linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leprosy; it shall be burnt in the fire.

53 And if the priest shall look, and, behold, the plague be not spread in the gar-
 54 ment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; then the priest shall command that they wash the thing wherein the plague is, and he shall shut 55 it up seven days more: and the priest shall look on the plague, after that it is washed: and, behold, if the plague have not changed his colour, and the plague be not spread; it is unclean; thou shalt burn it in the fire; it is fret inward, whether it be bare within or without [whether it be bald in the head thereof, or 56 in the forehead thereof]. And if the priest look, and, behold, the plague be

³ Lest he should infect others. There are still, in some countries of the East, separate houses, and even villages, for lepers. So strictly was this regulation enforced, that even Miriam, the sister of Moses, was not exempted from it (Numb. xii. 15): nor, at a later period, was king Uzziah (2 Chron. xxvi. 19—21). See also 2 Kings vii. 3; Luke xvii. 12.

⁴ From the difficulty of determining the meaning of the leprosy of garments and of houses (ch. xiv. 33—53), some have supposed that it was peculiar to the Israelites; although it is not expressly said to be supernatural.

¹ Leprosy being regarded as an expressive token of sin, its removal was to be accompanied with purifying ceremonies and offerings, uniting confession of guilt and pollution with grateful acknowledgment of God's mercy.

² The dismissal of the living bird resembles the sending away of the scapegoat (ch. xvi. 10, 22).

³ Intimating that the whole man was cleansed; as afterwards the application of the oil to these same parts

(vers. 17, 18) intimated that the whole man, with all his powers, was consecrated to God his Saviour. The combination of these ceremonies (vers. 13—18) reminds us, that whenever the blood of Christ is applied to the sinner for justification, the anointing of the Spirit is granted for sanctification. These two are inseparable; and both are necessary to our acceptance with God. See Heb. x. 22; 1 John ii. 20.

offering, and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave offering 25 before the LORD. And he shall kill the lamb of the trespass offering, f and the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right 26 hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot. And the priest shall pour of the 27 oil into the palm of his own left hand: and the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the LORD:
 28 and the priest shall put of the oil that is in his hand upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the place of the blood of the trespass offering:
 29 and the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall put upon the head of 30 him that is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before the LORD. And he shall offer the one of g the turtledoves, or of the young pigeons, such as he can 31 get; even such as he is able to get, the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, with the meat offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed before the LORD.
 32 This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get h that which pertaineth to his cleansing.
 33, 34 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, i When ye be come unto the land of Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, h and I put the 35 plague of leprosy in a house ¹ of the land of your possession; and he that owneth

 36 were 'a plague in the house: then the priest shall command that they empty [or, prepare] the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague, that all that is 37 in the house be not made unclean. And afterward the priest shall go in to see the house: and he shall look on the plague, and, behold, if the plague be in the walls of the house with hollow strakes, greenish or reddish, which in sight are lower 38 than the wall, ² then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, 39 and shut up the house seven days. And the priest shall come again the seventh day, and shall look: and, behold, if the plague be spread in the walls of the 40 house; then the priest shall command that they take away the stones in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city.
 41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place:
 42 and they shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones; and he 43 shall take other mortar, and shall plaister the house. And if the plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, 44 and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plaistered; then the priest shall come and look, and, behold, if the plague be spread in the house, it is ^m a 45 fretting leprosy in the house: it is unclean. And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house; and he 46 shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place. Moreover he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut up shall be unclean until the 47 even. And he that lieth in the house shall wash his clothes; and he that eateth in the house shall wash his clothes.
 48 And if the priest shall come in, and look upon it, and, behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plaistered: then the priest shall pro-49 nounce the house clean, because the plague is healed. And ⁿ he shall take to cleanse
 50 the house two birds, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop: and he shall kill 51 the one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water: and he shall take the cedar wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird, and in the running water, and sprinkle the house 52 seven times: and he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the running water, and with the living bird, and with the cedar wood, and with the 53 hyssop, and with the scarlet: but he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and ^o make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.
 54, 55 This is the law for all manner of plague of leprosy, and ^p scall, and for the 56 ^q leprosy of a garment, ^r and of a house, and ^s for a rising, and for a scab, and for a 57 bright spot: to ^t teach when it is unclean, and when it is clean: this is the law of leprosy.

 20 And when he hath made an end of ^s reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat: and Aaron shall ^t lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all

¹ The annual fast of atonement was one of the most solemn observances of the Jews. The high priest, laying aside his splendid robes of office, put on a plain white dress, similar to that of the ordinary priests (prefiguring Him who, in his state of humiliation, offered to God the sacrifice which has obtained our eternal redemption); and then offered sacrifices, 'first for his own sins, and then for the people's:' see Heb. vii. 27. The second victim, which was not killed, but sent away by an instructed person (ver. 21) into the desert, implied that the sins confessed and atoned for were 'laid on him' (Isa. liii. 6), and thus 'removed' from the people (Psa. ciii. 12), and for ever 'put away' (Heb. ix. 26). The last quoted chapter shows in detail that the priest, the victim, and all the transactions of this solemn expiation, formed one grand type of the atonement made by Him who 'once [for all] in the end of the world hath appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.'

² Two were necessary to represent both the atonement by shedding blood, and the forgiveness by putting away sin.

³ Heb., 'for Azazel.' The exact meaning of this word, which occurs only in this chapter, is not certainly known; but the text, 'scape,' or escape, gives the ancient and the most probable rendering.

⁴ This annual entrance of the high priest, enveloped in a cloud of incense, within the vail, and carrying in his hand the blood of the sacrifice, was an image of the Redeemer's entrance into heaven, to present before the Father his atoning blood and effectual intercession. And the resumption of the gorgeous dress before the high priest came out of the holy place, to complete the services of the day (ver. 24), aptly represented the passing away of the Saviour's temporary humiliation, and the glory in which he is to appear the second time (Heb. ix. 28).

⁵ Signifying that his only hope of safety was in the revealed mercy of God, through the great propitiation.

⁶ That is, on the eastern side of the mercy-seat, on which he stood, looking westward towards it. From ver. 15, it appears that he was to sprinkle the mercy-seat itself, as well as the ground in front of it.

⁷ Not even any of the priests who ordinarily ministered within the sanctuary. This injunction makes the typical character of the high priest very conspicuous as representing Him who performed alone the whole work of our atonement.

⁸ This means evidently the altar of sacrifice in the outer court, not the altar of incense within the sanctuary; the holy place and the most holy having been purified already.

the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, "putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the 22 hand of a fit man into the wilderness: and the goat shall ^a bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited [or, of separation]: and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, ^y and shall put off the linen garments, which he put on when he went into the holy place, and 24 shall leave them there. And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, ^z and offer his burnt offering, and the burnt offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the 25 people. And ^a the fat of the sin offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the scapegoat shall wash his clothes, ^b and bathe
27 his flesh in water, ¹ and afterward come into the camp. ^c And the bullock for the sin offering, and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth without the camp; and 28 they shall burn in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung. And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 And this shall be a statute for ever unto you: that ^d in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict ² your souls, ^e and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you:
30 for on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to ^f cleanse you, that
31 ye may be clean from all your sins before the LORD. ^g It shall be a sabbath of 32 rest unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, by a statute for ever. ^h And the priest whom he shall anoint, and whom he shall ⁱ consecrate to minister in the priest's office in his father's stead, shall make the atonement, and ^k shall put on 33 the linen clothes, even the holy garments: and ^l he shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar, and he shall make an atonement for the priests,
34 and for all the people of the congregation. ^m And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, ⁿ to make an atonement for the children of Israel for all their ^o sins once a year.

1 The uncleanness of the victims was communicated to those who had to do with them: see ver. 24.

2 Or, 'humble,' by fasting and confession. The sense of sin in the minds of the people was to be deepened by every available means, and to be brought out in becoming forms of penitential grief.

3 It is doubted whether this refers to animals killed for sacrifice or for food. See Deut. xii. 13—15. If the Israelites were required to bring every animal slain for food to the door of the tabernacle, it must have been only during their journeying in the wilderness; it could not have applied after their settlement in Canaan. But, whichever way it be understood, the law appears to have been intended to prevent unauthorized religious ceremonies, which would open the way to idolatry. There was little animal food eaten on common occasions, in Eastern countries; its use being chiefly confined to festival days: hence these restrictions were not burdensome.

4 The word translated 'devils,' means 'rough or hairy ones;' and signifies 'goats,' or 'satyrs,' in which form the false gods of the heathen were often represented.

5 See note on Exod. xxxiv. 15. The Israelites had repeatedly gone after idols during their sojourn in Egypt, and they still manifested a tendency to this sin: see refs.

¹ These laws against crimes which human nature instinctively abhors confer a Divine sanction on those feelings of shame and disgust which are so universally felt. It is interesting to observe the coincidence between God's will, as promulgated in his written laws, and as manifested in the physical or constitutional laws of our nature.

² That is, 'Though thou dost not fear the deaf and the blind, who cannot help themselves; yet remember that God will aid the helpless, and plead their cause.'

³ Referring to the rising up in court of accusers and witnesses.

⁴ He who suffers sin to pass unreprieved becomes partaker of it, and does unkindness to his brother.

⁵ This is the second great commandment of God's universal law (Matt. xxii. 39).

⁶ Several of the precepts in this chapter have reference to idolatrous ceremonies and practices; and they were given to keep the Israelites a separate people.

⁷ Heb., 'there shall be scourging,' i. e. of the man.

24 shall it be as uncircumcised unto you: it shall not be eaten of. But in the fourth 25 year all the fruit thereof shall be holy ⁱ to praise the LORD withal. And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the LORD your God.

26 ^k Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood: ^l neither shall ye use enchantment, 27 nor observe times. ^m Ye shall not round the corners of your heads, neither shalt 28 thou mar the corners of thy beard. Ye shall not ⁿ make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: ¹ I am the LORD.

29 ^o Do not prostitute thy daughter, to cause her to be a whore; lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

30 ^p Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and ^q reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

31 ^r Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the LORD your God.

32 ^s Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and ^t fear thy God: I am the LORD.

33 And ^u if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex [or, oppress]
 34 him. ^x But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and ^y thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

35 ^z Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in meteyard, in weight, or in 36 measure. ^a Just balances, just weights, a just ephah, and a just hin, shall ye have: ^b I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt.

37 ^c Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them:
 I am the LORD.

20 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^d Again, thou shalt say to the 2 children of Israel, ^e Whosoever he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn in Israel, that giveth any of his seed unto Molech; ² he shall surely 3 be put to death: ^f the people of the land shall stone him with stones. And ^g I will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people; because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to ^h defile my sanctuary, and ⁱ to 4 profane my holy name. And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and ^k kill him not:
 5 then ^l I will set my face against that man, and ^m against his family, and will cut him off, and all that ⁿ go a whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, 6 from among their people. And ^o the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people.
 7 ^p Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the LORD your 8 God. ^q And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: ^r I am the LORD which sanctify you.

9 ^s For every one that curseth his father or his mother shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father or his mother; ^t his blood shall be upon him.

10 And ^u the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, (even he that committeth adultery with his neighbour's wife,) the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.

11 ^x And the man that lieth with his father's wife hath uncovered his father's nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

12 ^y And if a man lie with his daughter-in-law, both of them shall surely be put to death: ^z they have wrought confusion; their blood shall be upon them.

13 ^a If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

14 ^b And if a man take a wife and her mother, it is wickedness: they shall be burnt with fire, ³ both he and they; that there be no wickedness among you.

15 ^c And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall 16 slay the beast. And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman, and the beast: they shall surely be put to death;
 their blood shall be upon them.

17 ^d And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and see her nakedness, and she see his nakedness; it is a wicked thing; and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people: he hath uncovered his

³ This means, not the husband, but every priest.

⁴ Another instance of the perfection required in Divine worship. It was, moreover, usual for the priests of some heathen deities to maim themselves disgracefully.

Only he shall not go in unto the vail, nor come nigh unto the altar, because he hath a blemish; that ^ahe profane not my sanctuaries: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

24 And Moses told it unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel.

22 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,¹ Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, 2 that they ^bseparate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and that they ^cprofane not my holy name in those things which they ^dhallow unto me: I am the LORD. And ^xthey shall not profane the holy things of the children of 16 Israel, which they offer unto the LORD; or suffer them ^yto bear the iniquity of trespass, when they eat their holy things: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

1 The numerous rules and observances enjoined for the preservation of the holiness of the priesthood, would tend to maintain in perpetual exercise the feeling of reverence for the holiness of God.

2 Or, 'guest'; a person not of the priestly race: and so in ver. 12.

3 This law shows, in a remarkable manner, the unity which properly belongs to a household; the servants, as well as the children, being treated as a part of it.

4 The worship of God would be dishonoured, and the glorious and perfect Antitype would be misrepresented, if any such were offered in sacrifice.

5 That is, the same rule shall apply to a stranger's offering as to that of an Israelite.

The sacred festivals enumerated and enjoined.

23 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel,
2 and say unto them, Concerning ^u the feasts¹ of the LORD, which ye shall ^v proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are my feasts.

3 ^w Six days shall work be done: but the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein: it is the sabbath of the LORD in all your dwellings.

4 ^x These are the feasts of the LORD, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons.

5 ^a In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the LORD's passover.

6 ^b And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread

7 unto the LORD: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread. ^c In the first day ye

8 shall have an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein. But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD seven days: in the seventh day is an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

9, 10 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ^d When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a sheaf [omer, or, handful] of 11 ^e the firstfruits of your harvest unto the priest: and he shall ^f wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the sabbath² the 12 priest shall wave it. And ye shall offer that day when ye wave the sheaf ^g an he-

13 lamb without blemish of the first year for a burnt offering unto the LORD. ^h And the meat offering thereof shall be two tenth deals of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire unto the LORD for a sweet savour: ⁱ and the drink offering 14 thereof shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin. And ye shall eat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until the selfsame day that ye have brought an offering unto your God. It shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

15 And ^k ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave offering; seven sabbaths shall be com-

16 plete: even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number ^l fifty

17 days;³ and ye shall offer ^m a new meat offering⁴ unto the LORD. Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave loaves of two tenth deals: they shall be of fine

flour; they shall be baked with leaven;⁵ they are ⁿ the firstfruits unto the LORD.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt offering unto the LORD, with their meat offering, and their drink offerings, even an offering

¹ Or, 'appointed times' (for one of them was a fast), or 'assemblies'; so called as being the occasions on which assemblies were to be held for religious purposes. One design of these sacred assemblies was to maintain the unity of the nation, both politically, and, still more, religiously; as the people were to present themselves before Jehovah as one body, and to bind themselves in allegiance to him and in fellowship with each other.

² This was to be done on the first day after the pass-over sabbath. A sheaf of barley was usually presented, as that was the first grain reaped. After this, the produce might be used, the whole harvest having been consecrated to God by the offering of the first-fruits. See Rom. xi. 16. It was on the morning of the same day upon which the high priest waved before the Lord the first ripe sheaf that the great Head of the church arose from the dead—the 'first-fruits of them that slept' (1 Cor. xv. 20).

In Exod. xxiii. 16, it is called the 'feast of harvest' and the 'feast of first-fruits' (see Numb. xxviii. 26; Deut. xxvi.); because on that occasion the first-fruits of the wheat harvest were presented to God. These were offered in the form, not of ears of corn, but of baked loaves. The form of confession and thanksgiving in Deut. xxvi. was commonly used on these occasions. The accounts of modern travellers show that the harvest in the plains would be over by this time; though in some of the mountainous districts it could hardly be finished till two or three weeks later. This festival is said by the Jews to have commemorated the covenant at Mount Sinai, seven weeks after their exodus from Egypt; and is therefore called by them 'the day of the giving of the law:' and it is commonly regarded by Christians as having prefigured the outpouring of the Holy Ghost, fifty days after Christ, our Passover, had been sacrificed for us. This festival was largely attended in the later times of Jewish history: see Acts ii. 1, 9—11, etc.; and Josephus.

1 The feast of trumpets (in the seventh month of the sacred year) was the beginning of the civil year; according to which all civil contracts and transactions were regulated. Many suppose this to have been the beginning of the year as reckoned from the creation of the world, which they regard this festival as commemorating.

2 See notes on ch. xvi.

3 This feast was so named from the booths (tents or arbours, see vers. 40—43) which the Hebrews made to dwell in during its continuance. It was also called the 'feast of ingathering' (Exod. xxiii. 16; xxxiv. 22; Deut. xvi. 13); for it was held after the labours, not only of the harvest, but also of the vintage and the fruit season generally, were concluded. It naturally became a most joyous festival, both as it came very shortly after the day of expiation, when the great atonement, with its attendant blessings, had been exhibited; and as it commemorated the Israelites' life in the wilderness, followed by their happy settlement in a fruitful land, the ingathering of whose rich produce it also celebrated. More victims were offered at this feast than at any other: see Numb. xxix. 12—38. In later ages, it was the custom to pour profusely upon the temple courts water drawn from the pool of Siloam, amidst great rejoicings, and the singing of Psalms cxiii. —cxviii.; and, in the evening, to illuminate the court of the women, whilst Psalms cxx.—cxxxiv. were sung. Many suppose that these ceremonies are alluded to in Isa. xii. 3; John vii. 37—39; viii. 12; and that this festival, rather than the Pentecost, typified the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Others regard it as having reference to the happy times when the 'fulness of the Gentiles' shall be brought into the church (Zech. xiv. 16).

¹ There were many such persons among the Hebrews; and they occasioned no little mischief. The notice of this man's parentage shows the bad consequences which commonly follow such mixed marriages. Children are apt, in such cases, to take after the worse side.

² He spoke disrespectfully of Jehovah. This heinous sin was treason under the theocracy, and was punished by death.

³ The sabbatic year and the jubilee seem to have had two objects: (1) To keep before the minds of the people God's claim as sole proprietor of the land, which they held only as his gift, upon certain conditions; two of which were, that it should be permanently inalienable from the family of the owner (see 1 Kings xxi. 3), and that it should not be exhausted by over-cropping. (2) To remind them of their own equality, as sons of Israel and subjects of Jehovah: for which reason no servitude or personal liability could be prolonged beyond the specified period, except by a voluntary public act on the part of the servant. It is doubtful whether the sabbatic year began with the civil or the sacred year; whether the three years mentioned in ver. 21 were three full years, or parts of three consecutive years; and whether the jubilee was the forty-ninth or the fiftieth year—or, rather, whether it was part of each of those years, as beginning with Tisri, which was the first month of the civil and the seventh of the sacred year, while the sabbatic year began with Abib, the first month of the sacred year.

and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant, and for thy stranger that sojourneth 7 with thee, and for thy cattle, and for the beast that are in thy land, shall all the

 8 And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and 9 nine years. Then shalt thou cause ^r the trumpet of the jubilee to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month, ^s in the day of atonement shall ye make the 10 trumpet sound throughout all your land. And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and ^t proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof:
 it shall be a jubilee unto you; ^u and ye shall return every man unto his posses-11 sion, and ye shall return every man unto his family. A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you: ^x ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself 12 in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undressed. For it is the jubilee; it 13 shall be holy unto you: ^y ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field. ^z In 14 the year of this jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession. And if thou sell aught unto thy neighbour, or buyest aught of thy neighbour's hand, 15 ^a ye shall not oppress one another: ^b according to the number of years after the jubilee thou shalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of years thou shalt diminish the price of it: for according to the number of the years of the fruits doth he sell unto thee.

 17 ^c Ye shall not therefore oppress one another; ^d but thou shalt fear thy God:
 18 for I am the LORD your God. ^e Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my 19 judgments, and do them; ^f and ye shall dwell in the land in safety. ^g And the

 21 not sow, nor gather in our increase: then I will ^l command my blessing¹ upon 22 you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years. ^m And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat yet of ⁿ old fruit until the ninth year; until her fruits come in ye shall eat of the old store.
 23 ^o The land shall not be sold for ever: for ^p the land is mine; for ye are 24 ^q strangers and sojourners with me. And in all the land of your possession ye shall 25 grant a redemption for the land. ^r If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away some of his possession, and if ^s any of his kin come to redeem it, then shall 26 he redeem that which his brother sold. And if the man have none to redeem it, 27 and himself be able to redeem it; then ^t let him count the years of the sale thereof, and restore the overplus² unto the man to whom he sold it; that he may 28 return unto his possession. But if he be not able to restore it to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the hand of him that hath bought it until the year of jubilee: ^u and in the jubilee it shall go out, and he shall return unto his possession.
 29 And if a man sell a dwelling house³ in a walled city, then he may redeem it 30 within a whole year after it is sold; within a full year may he redeem it. And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house that is in the walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it throughout his 31 generations: it shall not go out in the jubilee. But the houses of the villages which have no wall round about them shall be counted as the fields of the 32 country: they may be redeemed, and they shall go out in the jubilee. Notwithstanding ^x the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their posses-33 sion, may the Levites redeem at any time. And if a man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession, ^y shall go out in the year of jubilee: for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession 34 among the children of Israel. But ^z the field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold; for it is their perpetual possession.
 35 And if thy brother be waxen poor,⁴ and fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt ^a relieve [strengthen] him: yea, though he be ^b a stranger, or a sojourner; that he 36 may live with thee. ^c Take thou no usury of him, or increase: but ^d fear thy 37 God; that thy brother may live with thee. Thou shalt not give him thy money
 38 upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase. ^e I am the LORD your God,

² That is, he shall pay a sum equal to the value of the income for the years still remaining until the jubilee; but if he be unable to pay this, still his family inheritance shall be restored to him in the year of jubilee (ver. 28).

³ This exception gave opportunity for Gentile proselytes and others to settle under the beneficent sway of the King of Israel.

- 39 And ^fif thy brother that dwelleth by thee be waxen poor, and be sold¹ unto 40 thee; thou shalt not compel him to serve as a bondservant: but as an hired ser-
 41 vant, and as a sojourner, he shall be with thee, and shall serve thee unto the year
 42 of jubilee: and then shall he depart from thee, both he and his children ^gwith
 43 him, and shall return unto his own family, and ^hunto the possession of his fathers 44 shall he return. For they are ⁱmy servants, which I brought forth out of the 45 land of Egypt: they shall not be sold as bondmen. ^kThou shalt not rule over 46 him ^lwith rigour; but ^mthalt fear thy God. Both thy bondmen and thy bond-47 maids, which thou shalt have, shall be of the heathen that are round about you;

 49 the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their 50 families that are with you, which they begat in your land: and they shall be

 59 may redeem him, or any that is nigh of kin unto him of his family may redeem
 60 him; or if ^she be able, he may redeem himself. And he shall reckon with him 61 that bought him from the year that he was sold to him unto the year of jubilee:
 62 and the price of his sale shall be according unto the number of years, ^taccording
 63 to the time of an hired servant shall it be with him. If there be yet many years
 64 behind, according unto them he shall give again the price of his redemption out 65 of the money that he was bought for. And if there remain but few years unto 66 the year of jubilee, then he shall count with him, and according unto his years
 67 shall he give him again the price of his redemption. And as a yearly hired
 68 servant shall he be with him: and the other shall not rule with rigour over him

¹ Slavery already existed in a modified form; and, although not at once absolutely forbidden, it was put by these laws under great restraints as a preparation for its ultimate suppression.

² These being national laws, the sanctions are of a corresponding nature. Hence the promises relate chiefly to national prosperity; and the threatenings to national calamities.

³ The increase of population and extension of cultivation tend to produce the extermination of noxious animals.

- 16 ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant: I also will do this unto you;¹ I will even appoint over you ^aterror, ^bconsumption, and the burning ague, that shall ^cconsume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and ^dye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it. And ^eI will set my face against you, and ^fye shall be slain before your enemies: ^gthey that hate you shall reign over you; and ^hye shall flee when none pursueth you.
- 17 And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you ⁱseven times more for your sins. And I will ^jbreak the pride of your power; and I ^kwill make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass:² and your ^lstrength shall be spent in vain: for ^myour land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.
- 18 And if ye walk contrary unto me, and will not hearken unto me; I will bring ⁿseven times more plagues upon you according to your sins. ^oI will also send wild beasts among you, ^pwhich shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattle, and make you few in number; and ^qyour high ways shall be desolate.
- 19 And if ye ^rwill not be reformed by me by these things, but will walk contrary unto me; ^sthen will I also walk contrary unto you, and will punish you yet ^tseven times for your sins. And ^uI will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant: and when ye are gathered together within your cities, ^vI will send the pestilence among you; and ye shall be delivered into the hand ^wof the enemy. ^xAnd when I have broken the staff of your bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven,³ and they shall deliver you your bread again by weight: and ^yye shall eat, and not be satisfied.
- 20 And ^zif ye will not for all this hearken unto me, but walk contrary unto me; then I will walk contrary unto you also ^ain fury; and I, even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins. ^bAnd ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat.⁴ And ^cI will destroy your high places, and cut down your images, and ^dcast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols, and my soul shall ^eabhor you. ^fAnd I will make your cities waste, and ^gbring your sanctuaries unto desolation, and ^hI will not smell the savour of your sweet odours. ⁱAnd I will bring the land into desolation: and your enemies which dwell therein shall be ^jastonished at it. And ^kI will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you: and your land shall be desolate, and your cities waste. ^lThen shall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye be in your enemies' land; even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths. As long as it lieth desolate it shall rest; because it did not rest in your ^msabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it.
- 21 And upon them that are left alive of you ⁿI will send a faintness into their hearts in the lands of their enemies; and ^pthe sound of a shaken [driven] leaf shall chase them; and they shall flee, as fleeing from a sword; and they shall fall when none pursueth. And ^qthey shall fall one upon another, as it were before a sword, when none pursueth: and ^rye shall have no power to stand before your enemies. ^sAnd ye shall perish among the heathen, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up. ³ The supply of food would be so scanty, that, instead of every family having an oven for itself (as is usual in the East), the bread of several families would be baked in one oven; when each would take care not to lose the smallest portion of their share.

- 45 But I will ^l for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, ^m whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt ⁿ in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the Lord.
- 46 ^o These are the statutes and judgments and laws, which the Lord made between him and the children of Israel ^p in mount Sinai by the hand of Moses.

Laws respecting vows and tithes.

- 27 AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, ² and say unto them, ^q When a man shall make a singular vow, ² the persons shall ³ be for the Lord by thy estimation. And thy estimation shall be of the male from twenty years old even unto sixty years old, even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, ^r after the shekel of the sanctuary. And if it be a female, then thy estimation shall be thirty shekels. And if it be from five years old even unto twenty years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels. And if it be from a month old even unto five years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male five shekels of silver, and for the female thy estimation shall be three shekels of silver. And if it be from sixty years old and above; if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels. But if he be poorer than thy estimation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him; according to his ability that vowed shall the priest value him.
- 9 And if it be a beast, whereof men bring an offering unto the Lord, all that any man giveth of such unto the Lord shall be holy. He shall not alter it, nor change it, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good: and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it and the exchange thereof shall be holy. And if it be any unclean beast, of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the Lord, then he shall present the beast before the priest: and the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: as thou valuest it, who art the priest, so shall it be. ^s But if he will at all redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.
- 14 And when a man shall sanctify his house to be holy unto the Lord, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand. ^t And if he that sanctified it will redeem his house, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.
- 16 And if a man shall sanctify unto the Lord some part of a field of his possession, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof: an homer [or, the land of an homer] of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver. If he sanctify his field from the year of jubilee, according to thy estimation it shall stand. But if he sanctify his field after the jubilee, then the priest shall ^u reckon unto him the money according to the years that remain, even unto the year of the jubilee, and it shall be abated from thy estimation. ^v And if he that sanctified the field will in any wise redeem it, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him. And if he will not redeem the field, or if he have sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more. But the field, ^w when it goeth out in the jubilee, shall be holy unto the Lord, as a field ^x devoted; ^y the possession thereof shall be the priest's.
- 22 And if a man sanctify unto the Lord a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of ^b his possession; ^c then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth of thy estimation, even unto the year of the jubilee: and he shall give thine estimation in that day, as a holy thing unto the Lord. ^d In the year of the jubilee the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought, even to him to whom the possession of the land did belong. And all thy estimations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: ^e twenty gerahs shall be the shekel.
- 26 Only the ^f firstling of the beasts, which should be the Lord's firstling, no man shall sanctify it; ³ whether it be ox, or sheep: it is the Lord's. And if it be of an unclean beast, then he shall redeem it according to thine estimation, ^g and shall add a fifth part of it thereto: or if it be not redeemed, then it shall be sold according to thy estimation.

¹ Intimating that the nation should still continue in existence; as we see at this day.

² Heb., 'separate a vow.' This was the solemn dedication of a man's person, or child, or any part of his property, to the service of God. See Gen. xxviii. 20, 22; Judg. xi. 30, 31; 1 Sam. i. 11, 28. This law is generally understood as providing a redemption price, which might be substituted for the person or property so consecrated. Some, however, suppose that this amount of money was to be paid in addition to the offering of the person, as a visible declaration of his having devoted himself to God.

³ As firstlings were to be offered in sacrifice (Exod. xiii. 15), it would have been a mere mockery to make them the subject of a vow.

28 ^hNotwithstanding no devoted thing, that a man shall devote unto the LORD of all that he hath, both of man and beast, and of the field of his possession, shall be 29 sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the LORD. 'None devoted, which shall be devoted of men,¹ shall be redeemed; but shall surely be put to death.
30 And ^hall the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit
31 of the tree, is the LORD's: it is holy unto the LORD. 'And if a man will at all 32 redeem ought of his tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof. And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever ^mpasseth under 33 the rod,² the tenth shall be holy unto the LORD. He shall not search whether it be good or bad, ⁿneither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.
34 ^oThese are the commandments, which the LORD commanded Moses for the children of Israel in mount Sinai.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED NUMBERS.

THIS book derives its title from the numberings of the people of Israel, recorded in ch. i.—iv., xxvi. The first of these was made at Sinai, in the beginning of the second year after their departure from Egypt; the second was made thirty-eight years afterwards, in the land of Moab, just before their entrance into Canaan. The repetition of the census, and the mode in which it was taken, tended to promote attention to the family registers; and, by distinguishing those of pure Hebrew descent, to prevent admixture with their vicious and idolatrous neighbours. It also especially served to show the lineage of the Messiah, the promised 'Seed of Abraham.'

These two numberings are important, further, as illustrating, on comparing them together, the sad consequences of the criminal distrust and cowardice of the Israelites, which not only excluded a whole generation of them from the promised land, and delayed their national settlement for thirty-eight years, but also brought upon them repeated inflictions of judgment; so that their extraordinary increase which had gone on, even under their oppressions in Egypt, was suddenly arrested, and they were less numerous at the end of this period than they had been at the beginning: see note on ch. xxvi. 2.

We see in this history, on the one hand, the unceasing and tender care of the Almighty over his chosen people during their wanderings; and, on the other, the murmurings and rebellions by which they offended their heavenly Protector, drew down upon them repeated marks of his just displeasure, and provoked him to say that they should 'not enter into his rest,' because of their unbelief. See Heb. iii. 19. 'All these things happened unto them for ensamples, and were written for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are come' (1 Cor. x. 1—11).

This book may be divided into five principal sections:—

I. THE FIRST NUMBERING OF THE ISRAELITES: their classification according to their descent; the arrangement of the camp; the numbers and offices of the Levites; and the redemption of the firstborn (ch. i.—iv.)

II. VARIOUS LAWS AND OBSERVANCES: viz., the purification of the camp; the trial of jealousy (v.); the law concerning Nazarites (vi. 1—21); form of blessing (22—27); the offerings of the princes (vii.); the consecration of the Levites (viii.); the passover, the pillar of cloud and of fire, and the silver trumpets (ix., x. 1—10).

III. THE JOURNEY FROM SINAI TO THE BORDERS OF CANAAN. The people leave Sinai, and resume their journey (x. 11—36); they despise the manna, lust for flesh, and are punished (xi.); Aaron and Miriam murmur at Moses (xii.); the spies, and their report (xiii.); the rebellion of the people, and the consequent rejection of that whole generation (xiv.)

IV. TRANSACTIONS BETWEEN THE TURNING BACK OF THE ISRAELITES FROM THE BORDERS OF CANAAN, AND THEIR RETURN THITHER ABOUT THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AFTERWARDS: including, various ordinances (xv.); the rebellion and death of Korah and his party (xvi.); the budding of Aaron's rod, and the duties and portions of the priests and Levites (xvii., xviii.); the law of the water of purification (xix.)

V. CONCLUSION OF THE MARCH THROUGH THE WILDERNESS, AND COMMENCEMENT OF THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN. The people come to the desert of Zin; at Kadesh they murmur for water, and are supplied from the smitten rock (xx. 1—13); a passage through Edom is refused (14—21); Aaron dies, and is succeeded by Eleazar (22—29); attack by Canaanites in the south; renewed murmurings of the people; the fiery serpents, and the serpent of brass (xxi. 1—9); further journeys, and victories over Sihon and Og (10—35); Balaam and his prophecies (xxii.—xxiv.); the Israelites are ensnared by the Midianites, and are punished (xxv.); the second numbering of the people on the plains of Moab (xxvi.); the law of inheritance of daughters (xxvii. 1—11); Moses is warned of his death, and Joshua appointed his successor (12—23); laws concerning offerings and vows (xxviii.—xxx.); victory over the Midianites (xxxi.); the partition of the conquered land east of Jordan (xxxii.); recapitulation of the stations in the wilderness (xxxiii.); the boundaries of the promised land (xxxiv.); the cities of the Levites, and cities of refuge (xxxv.); law respecting heiresses (xxxvi.)

¹ The result of this census (ver. 46) had been stated by anticipation, Exod. xxxviii. 26. From the number of males above the age of twenty, it may be inferred that the total was nearly two millions. The persons numbered would be fit for labour as well as war, constituting the effective strength of the nation.

³ That is, wrath from God; who will not suffer the profaners of his worship to go unpunished. The preventing of sin is the preventing of wrath.

⁴ The tribes were to pitch around the tabernacle. It is the Oriental usage to place the monarch and his chief officers in the centre of the camp. There are very various opinions respecting the ensigus of the tribes; but nothing is known with certainty about them.

- 17 Then the tabernacle of the congregation shall set forward with the camp of the Levites in the midst of the camp: as they encamp, so shall they set forward, every man in his place by their standards.
- 18 On the west side shall be the standard of the camp of Ephraim according to their armies: and the captain of the sons of Ephraim shall be Elishama the son of Ammihud. And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty thousand and five hundred. And by him shall be the tribe of Manasseh: and the captain of the children of Manasseh shall be Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur. And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred. Then the tribe of Benjamin: and the captain of the sons of Benjamin shall be Abidan the son of Gideon. And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were thirty and five thousand and four hundred. All that were numbered of the camp of Ephraim were an hundred thousand and eight thousand and an hundred, throughout their armies. ^f And they shall go forward in the third rank.
- 25 The standard of the camp of Dan shall be on the north side by their armies: and the captain of the children of Dan shall be Ahiczer the son of Ammishaddai. And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred. And those that encamp by him shall be the tribe of Asher: and the captain of the children of Asher shall be Pagiel the son of Ocran. And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and one thousand and five hundred. Then the tribe of Naphtali: and the captain of the children of Naphtali shall be Ahira the son of Euan. And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.
- 31 All they that were numbered in the camp of Dan were an hundred thousand and fifty and seven thousand and six hundred. ^g They shall go hindmost with their standards.
- 32 These are those which were numbered of the children of Israel by the house of their fathers: ^h all those that were numbered of the camps throughout their hosts were six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty. But ⁱ the Levites were not numbered among the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses. And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses: ^j so they pitched by their standards, and so they set forward, every one after their families, according to the house of their fathers.¹
- The priests and Levites; their selection, offices, and number according to their families.*
- 3 THESE also are the generations² of Aaron and Moses in the day that the LORD spake with Moses in mount Sinai. And these are the names of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the ^k firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. These are the names of the sons of Aaron, ^l the priests which were anointed, whom he consecrated to minister in the priest's office. ^m And Nadab and Abihu died before the LORD, when they offered strange fire before the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: and Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office in the sight of Aaron their father.
- 5, 6 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ⁿ Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him. And they shall keep his charge, and the charge of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of the congregation, to do ^o the service of the tabernacle. And they shall keep all the instruments of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel, to do the service of the tabernacle. And ^p thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron and to his sons: they are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel. And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, ^q and they shall wait on their priest's office: ^r and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.
- 11, 12 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, And I, behold, ^s I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel instead of all the firstborn that openeth the matrix among the children of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine; because ^t all the firstborn are mine; ^u for on the day that I smote all the firstborn

² In this enumeration of the Levites, observe: (1) The family of Aaron, as priest, stands first; whilst the sons of Moses are not mentioned, as they were simply Levites. (2) All the males from a month old are reckoned, as consecrated to God. It appears, however, afterwards, that little more than a third part of them were fit to be employed in the service of the tabernacle: see ch. iv. 47, 48.

(3) The tribe of Levi is divided into the three families of Gershon, Kohath, and Merari; to each of which separate duties are assigned. (4) This tribe was much smaller than any other, and did not amount to the number of the firstborn males of the whole nation at that time, in whose stead it was taken for the peculiar service of God. The redemption of the overplus of the firstborn is specially provided for in ver. 46.

in the land of Egypt I hallowed unto me all the firstborn in Israel, both man and beast: mine shall they be: I am the LORD.

14 And the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, Number 15 the children of Levi after the house of their fathers, by their families: ^x every 16 male from a month old and upward shalt thou number them. And Moses numbered them according to the word of the LORD, as he was commanded.
17 ^y And these were the sons of Levi by their names; Gershon, and Kohath, and 18 Merari. And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families; 19 ^z Libni, and Shimei. And the sons of Kohath by their families; ^a Amram, and 20 Izehar, Hebron, and Uzziel. ^b And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli, and Mushi. These are the families of the Levites according to the house of their fathers.

21 Of Gershon was the family of the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites:
22 these are the families of the Gershonites. Those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbered of them were seven thousand and five hundred.
23 ^c The families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.
24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonites shall be Eliasaph the 25 son of Lael. And ^d the charge of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation shall be ^e the tabernacle,¹ and ^f the tent, ^g the covering thereof, and ings of the court, and ^k the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and ^l the cords of it for all the service thereof.

27 ^m And of Kohath was the family of the Amramites, and the family of the Izeharites, and the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites:
28 these are the families of the Kohathites.² In the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were eight thousand and six hundred, keep-29 ing the charge of the sanctuary. ⁿ The families of the sons of Kohath shall 30 pitch on the side of the tabernacle southward. And the chief of the house of the father of the families of the Kohathites shall be Elizaphan the son of Uzziel.

31 And ^o their charge shall be ^p the ark, and ^q the table, and ^r the candlestick, and ^s the altars, and the vessels of the sanctuary wherewith they minister, and ^t the 32 hanging, and all the service thereof. And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest shall be chief over the chief of the Levites, and have the oversight of them that keep the charge of the sanctuary.

33 Of Merari was the family of the Mahlites, and the family of the Mushites:
34 these are the families of Merari. And those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were 35 six thousand and two hundred. And the chief of the house of the father of the families of Merari was Zuriel the son of Abihail: ^u these shall pitch on the side 36 of the tabernacle northward. And ^v under the custody and charge of the sons of Merari shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and the sockets thereof, and all the vessels thereof, and all that serveth 37 thereto, and the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords.

38 ^y But those that encamp before the tabernacle toward the east, even before the tabernacle of the congregation eastward, shall be Moses, and Aaron and his sons, ^z keeping the charge of the sanctuary ^a for the charge of the children of Israel;
39 and ^b the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death. ^c All that were numbered of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the LORD, throughout their families, all the males from a month old and upward, were twenty and two thousand.³

40 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^d Number all the firstborn of the males of the children of Israel from a month old and upward, and take the number of their

3 This, which is evidently the correct number (see vers. 43, 46), is three hundred less than the sum of the three families. Some have supposed that an error may have crept into one of the smaller numbers; but others explain the difference by remarking, that there were three hundred of the Levites, who, being themselves firstborn sons, could not be accepted as substitutes.

4 The cattle of the Levites were not to be taken from them, or to be offered in sacrifice; but both they and their cattle were to be presented before the Lord, that they might be set apart for God's service, and their cattle for their use and support as God's ministers.

and upward, of those that were numbered of them, were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44, 45 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^fTake the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of 46 their cattle; and the Levites shall be mine: I am the LORD. And for those that old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the

¹ In allusion perhaps to this, Christians are said to be redeemed, not 'with corruptible things, as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ' (1 Pet. i. 18).

² This is reconciled with ch. viii. 24, by supposing that, for the first five years of their service, the Levites were learning their duties, and occupied only in inferior departments. Under the new arrangements which David made, their service began at the age of twenty: see 1 Chron. xxiii. 24—32, and note.

³ After which, though in attendance, they were relieved from the heavier duties.

⁴ Which was probably slung between two persons, as in ch. xiii. 23.

⁵ The prohibition against the Levites entering the most holy place only applied while the cloud rested upon it. The sacred utensils were to be covered by the priests, the sons of Aaron, before they were taken by the Kohathites: see vers. 17—20. These coverings were designed to insure security and respect, as well as concealment: signifying both the reverence due to sacred things, and the comparative obscurity of that dispensation.

1 While the Israelites were journeying, the Kohathites were to carry the sacred things of the tabernacle—including the brazen altar, the ark, the vessels of the sanctuary, etc. The Gershonites were charged with all the drapery, or lighter upholstery, of the tabernacle—the curtains, hangings, etc. And the duty of the Merarites was to convey the more bulky and heavy materials—the boards, bars, pillars, etc., which were delivered to them by name.

The things which each class had to carry, upon their journey, were the same that they had under their care in their ordinary service (ver. 31). By the large number of persons employed, the tabernacle would be put up and taken down in a very short time.

2 Although the family of Merari was the smallest of the three, it possessed the largest number of available men.

2 This repetition of Lev. vi. 2—6 seems to be made in order to add the provision in ver. 8.

3 The absence of oil or frankincense in this offering probably implied the baseness of the crime; and showed that it was not an oblation, but an 'offering of memorial' to the LORD, calling upon him to punish the accused, if guilty.

4 God here directs a solemn appeal to be made to himself; engaging, when it was properly done, to bring to light hidden crime, or to vindicate suspected innocence.

All the actions prescribed had only a symbolical value. The water with the dust in it, and the writing materials of the curse, had no natural tendency to produce these effects on the woman, even when guilty; and could only do so by special Divine interposition. This law, therefore, totally differs from the ordeals by fire, boiling water, etc., which have been devised by human superstition; from which it was scarcely possible for the innocent to escape uninjured.

22 LORD doth make thy thigh to rot, and thy belly to swell; and this water that causeth the curse ^p shall go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to swell, and thy thigh to rot. ^q And the woman shall say, Amen, amen. And the priest shall write these curses in a book,¹ and he shall blot them out with the bitter water: and he shall cause the woman to drink the bitter water that causeth the curse: and the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter.

25 Then the priest shall take the jealousy offering out of the woman's hand, and shall wave the offering before the LORD, and offer it upon the altar: and the priest shall take an handful of the offering, even the memorial thereof, and burn it upon the altar, and afterward shall cause the woman to drink the water.

27 And when he hath made her to drink the water, then it shall come to pass, that, if she be defiled, and have done trespass against her husband, that the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter, and her belly shall swell, and her thigh shall rot: and the woman shall be a curse among her people.

28 And if the woman be not defiled, but be clean; then she shall be free, and shall conceive seed.

29 This is the law of jealousies, when a wife goeth aside to another ^u instead of her husband, and is defiled; or when the spirit of jealousy cometh upon him, and he be jealous over his wife, and shall set the woman before the LORD, and the priest shall execute upon her all this law. Then shall the man be guiltless from iniquity, and this woman ^x shall bear her iniquity.

The law of the Nazarites.

6 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When either man or woman shall ^y separate themselves to vow a vow of a Nazarite² [or, make themselves Nazarites], to separate themselves unto the LORD: ^z he shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes, or dried. All the days of his separation [or, Nazariteship] shall he eat nothing that is made of the vine tree, from the kernels even to the husk. All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no ^a razor come upon his head: until the days be fulfilled in the which he separateth himself unto the LORD, he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow. All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD ^b he shall come at no dead body. ^c He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die: because the consecration [separation]³ of his God is upon his head. All the days of his separation he is holy unto the LORD. And if any man die very suddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his consecration; then he shall ^d shave his head in the day of his cleansing; on the seventh day shall he shave it. And ^e on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons, to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the priest shall offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned by the dead, and shall hallow his head that same day. And he shall consecrate unto the LORD the days of his separation, and shall bring a lamb of the first year ^f for a trespass offering: but the days that were before shall be lost, because his separation was defiled.

13 And this is the law of the Nazarite, ^g when the days of his separation are fulfilled. He shall be brought unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and he shall offer his offering unto the LORD, ^h one he-lamb of the first year without blemish for a burnt offering, and one ewe-lamb of the first year without blemish for a sin offering,⁴ and one ram without blemish ^k for peace offerings, and a basket of unleavened bread, ^l cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread ^m anointed with oil, and their meat offering, and their ⁿ drink offerings. ¹ Or, 'scroll'; or, 'writing.'

² Nazarite means 'separated.' Such vows were already made (Lev. xxvii.): but here regulations are prescribed with respect to them, partly to prevent superstitious practices, and partly to insure faithfulness in keeping them. They might be made either for a limited period or for life. They were undertaken by some, as by Samson and John the Baptist, in obedience to Divine appointment before their birth; and by others, as the family of the Rechabites, through several ages, in compliance with the injunctions of their ancestor (Jer. xxxv. 2—19). But generally the vow was a voluntary one, which any person might make, of peculiar separation from the world, and devotedness to the exercises of religion. And it is to be presumed that the abstinence from wine, and other observances of an external kind, did not form their whole peculiarity; but that many of the Nazarites rendered to God a spiritual as well as an outward service, and were distinguished for real piety. It was considered a great public blessing, when God prompted many to consecrate themselves in this way to him: see Amos ii. 11.

³ That is, the distinguishing mark of his God upon his head.

⁴ When the period of his separation had been fulfilled, he still needed a sin-offering. There is iniquity in our best and holiest services which requires propitiation.

17 offer his sin offering, and his burnt offering: and he shall offer the ram for a sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread: 18 the priest shall offer also his meat offering, and his drink offering. ^o And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, and put it 19 in the fire which is under the sacrifice of the peace offerings. And the priest shall take the ^p sodden shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and ^q shall put them upon the hands of the 20 Nazarite, after the hair of his separation is shaven: and the priest shall wave them for a wave offering before the LORD: ^r this is holy for the priest, with the wave breast and heave shoulder: and after that the Nazarite may drink wine. 21 This is the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, and of his offering unto the LORD for his separation, beside that that his hand shall get: according to the vow which he vowed, so he must do after the law of his separation.

The form of blessing the people.

22, 23 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto Aaron and unto his sons, saying, On this wise ^s ye shall bless the children of Israel, saying unto them, ^t 24 The LORD ^u bless thee, and ^v keep thee: 25 The LORD ^x make his face shine upon thee, and ^y be gracious unto thee: 26 ^z The LORD lift up his countenance upon thee, and ^a give thee peace. 27 ^b And they shall put my name upon the children of Israel; and ^c I will bless them.

The offerings of the princes at the dedication of the tabernacle.

7 AND it came to pass on the day that Moses had fully ^d set up the tabernacle, and had anointed it, and sanctified it, and all the instruments thereof, both the altar and all the vessels thereof, and had anointed them, and sanctified them; 2 that ^e the princes of Israel, heads of the house of their fathers, who were the 3 princes of the tribes, and were over them that were numbered, offered: ² and they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered wagons, ³ and twelve oxen; a wagon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox: and they brought 4 them before the tabernacle. And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Take it of 5 them, that they may be to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou shalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his service. 6 And Moses took the wagons and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites. Two 7 wagons and four oxen ^f he gave unto the sons of Gershon, according to their 8 service: ^g and four wagons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, ⁴ according unto their service, ^h under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the 9 priest. But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none: because ⁱ the service of the sanctuary belonging unto them ^h was that they should bear upon their shoulders. 10 And the princes offered for ⁱ dedicating of the altar in the day that it was 11 anointed, even the princes offered their offering before the altar. And the LORD said unto Moses, They shall offer their offering, each prince on his day, for the dedicating of the altar. 12 And he that offered his offering the first day was ^m Nahshon the son of Am- 13 minadab, of the tribe of Judah: and his offering was one silver charger, the weight thereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after ⁿ the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them were full of fine flour 14 mingled with oil for a ^o meat offering: one spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of 15 ^p incense: ^q one young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt 16 offering: one kid of the goats for a ^r sin offering: ⁵ and for ^a a sacrifice of peace 17 offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Nahshon the son of Amminadab. 18 On the second day ^t Nethaneel the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar, did offer: he 19 offered for his offering one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the

1 This beautiful and comprehensive benediction is supposed to have been used at various times; and especially when the priest who had offered incense returned from the sanctuary to the people. See Luke i. 22. It often furnished materials for prayer to the pious Hebrews. See the passages referred to in the margin. Its triple form has led many to infer a reference to the Trinity.

2 This was a solemn act of acknowledgment, that the authority with which the princes were invested was held by delegation from the invisible King of Israel, for whose special service these offerings were presented. The repetition of the homage through twelve successive days was peculiarly impressive.

3 The wagon was a rare and probably a rude article, necessary only for some peculiar use, such as that to which these were put.

4 Double the number was given to the Merarites, because their charge consisted of the bulkier and heavier parts of the tabernacle. See note on ch. iv. 33.

5 It is observable, that these offerings were accompanied by all the ordinary kinds of sacrifices, including a sin-offering.

¹ This seems to be a general statement, not referring to any particular time.

² Which the Jews say was done by fire from the altar; the middle lamp being first lighted, and the rest from that.

³ That is, to the part of the tabernacle opposite to the candlestick, which stood on the south side, and which was the only means of lighting the interior when the curtains in front were let down.

⁴ Probably by their representatives; either the elders or some of the firstborn, in whose place the Levites were consecrated.

⁵ Heb., 'wave the Levites for a wave-offering.' See Exod. xxix. 24. This was probably done by some significant gestures, similar to those used with the ordinary wave-offering. The apostle Paul is thought to refer to this transaction in Rom. xii. 1.

12 the service of the LORD. ⁱ And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, unto the LORD, to make an atonement for the Levites.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer

14 them for an offering unto the LORD. Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from 15 among the children of Israel: and the Levites shall be ^k mine. And after that shall the Levites go in to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation:

16 and thou shalt cleanse them, and ^l offer them for an offering. For they are wholly given unto me from among the children of Israel; ^m instead of such as open every womb, even instead of the firstborn of all the children of Israel, have I taken

17 them unto me. ⁿ For all the firstborn of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast: ^o on the day that I smote every firstborn in the land of Egypt I sanctified them for myself. And I have taken the Levites for all the firstborn of 18 the children of Israel. And ^p I have given the Levites as a gift to Aaron and to his sons from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel in the tabernacle of the congregation, and to make an atonement for ^q the children of Israel: ^r that there be no plague among the children of Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

21 the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them. ^s And the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes; ^t and Aaron offered them as an offering before the LORD; and Aaron made an atonement for them to cleanse them. ^u And after that went the Levites in to do their service in the tabernacle of the congregation before Aaron, and before his sons: ^v as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

23, 24 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: ^x from twenty and five years old and upward they shall go in to wait upon the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and from the age of fifty years they shall cease waiting upon the service thereof, and shall serve no more:

26 but shall minister with their brethren in the tabernacle of the congregation, ^y to keep the charge, and shall do no service. Thus shalt thou do unto the Levites touching their charge.

The passover celebrated; a second allowed.

9 AND the LORD spake ^z unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Let the children of Israel also keep ^a the passover at his appointed season. In

3 the fourteenth day of this month, at even [between the two evenings ^a], ye shall keep it in his appointed season: according to all the rites of it, and according

5 children of Israel, that they should keep the passover. And ^b they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

6 And there were certain men, who were ^c defiled by the dead body of a man, that they could not keep the passover on that day: ^d and they came before Moses

7 and before Aaron on that day: and those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer an 8 offering of the LORD in his appointed season among the children of Israel? And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and ^e I will hear what the LORD will command concerning you.

² Or, 'Now the Lord had spoken:' for this was previous to the transactions last related; and it is mentioned here on account of what follows in vers. 6—14. The provision there made is a clear instance of the subordination of non-essentials to the spirit of a religious institution. It was found of great use on an important occasion in the reign of Hezekiah: see 2 Chron. xxx. 2.

sojourn among you, and will keep the passover unto the Lord; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: ye shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

The march directed by the cloud and by the trumpets.

15 AND ¹on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and ²at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning. So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night. And when the cloud ³was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents. At the commandment of the Lord the children of Israel journeyed, and at the commandment of the Lord they pitched. ⁴As long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they rested in their tents: and when the cloud tarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the children of Israel ⁵kept the charge of the Lord, and journeyed not. And so it was, when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the Lord they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the Lord they journeyed. And so it was, when the cloud abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed. Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Israel ⁶abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed. At the commandment of the Lord they rested in the tents, and at the commandment of the Lord they journeyed: they ⁷kept the charge of the Lord, at the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

10 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Make thee two¹ trumpets of silver; of a whole piece shalt thou make them: that thou mayest use them for the ²calling of the assembly, and for the journeying of the camps. And when ³they shall blow with them, all the assembly shall assemble themselves to thee at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And if they blow but with one trumpet, then the princes, which are ⁴heads of the thousands of Israel, shall gather themselves unto thee. When ye blow ⁵an alarm, then ⁶the camps that lie on the east parts shall go forward. When ye blow an alarm the second time, then the camps that lie on ⁷the south side shall take their journey: they shall blow an alarm for their journeys.² But when the congregation is to be gathered together, ⁸ye shall blow, but ye shall not ⁹sound an alarm. ¹⁰And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you for an ordinance for ever throughout your generations. And ¹¹if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that ¹²oppresseth you, then ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be ¹³remembered before the Lord your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies. Also ¹⁴in the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings; that they may be to you ¹⁵for a memorial before your God. I am the Lord your God.

² The Greek version contains directions for the marching of the two other parts of the camp: 'And when you blow a third alarm, the camps on the west shall begin their march; and when you blow a fourth alarm, the camps on the north shall begin their march.'

³ The Samaritan version has, in this place, nearly the words of Deut. i. 6—8: 'And Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying, Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount: turn and take your journey,' etc.

⁴ The time occupied in the various consecrations and dedications is thus calculated:—The tabernacle was erected on the first day of the first month of the second year after the departure from Egypt. Seven days were spent in the consecration of the tabernacle and its furniture. On the eighth day, Moses began the consecration of Aaron and his sons, which lasted seven days. On the fourteenth, began the passover, which lasted till the twenty-second. The rest of the month may have been occupied in receiving and delivering the laws contained in the book of Leviticus. On the first day of the second month, Moses began to number the people; which might occupy three days. On the fourth, the Levites were numbered. On the fifth, they were presented to God, and given to the priests. On the sixth, they were consecrated. On the seventh, their several charges were given to them. After this, the princes began their offerings; which lasted from the eighth to the nineteenth: and on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, the people removed from Sinai.

12 And the children of Israel took ^p their journeys out of the ^q wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in the ^r wilderness of Paran.¹ And they first² took their journey ^s according to the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

14 ^t In the first place went the standard of the camp of the children of Judah according to their armies: and over his host was ^u Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

15 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Issachar was Nethanceel the son of Zuar. And over the host of the tribe of the children of Zebulun was Eliab the

17 son of Helon. And ^v the tabernacle was taken down; and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set forward, ^w bearing the tabernacle. And ^x the standard of the camp of Reuben set forward according to their armies: and over his host

19 was Elizur the son of Shedeur. And over the host of the tribe of the children of Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai. And over the host of the tribe of

21 the children of Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel. And the Kohathites set forward, bearing the ^a sanctuary: and ^b the other did set up the tabernacle³ against

22 they came. And ^c the standard of the camp of the children of Ephraim set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elishama the son of Ammihud.

23 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Manasseh was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur. And over the host of the tribe of the children of Benjamin was

25 Abidan the son of Gideon. And ^d the standard of the camp of the children of Dan set forward, which was the rereward of all the camps throughout their hosts:

26 and over his host was Abiezer the son of Ammishaddai. And over the host of the tribe of the children of Asher was Pagiel the son of Ocran. And over the 28 host of the tribe of the children of Naphtali was Ahira the son of Enan. ^e Thus were the journeyings of the children of Israel according to their armies, when they set forward.

29 And Moses said unto Hobab,⁴ the son of Jethro the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, ^f I will give it you: come thou with us, and ^g we will do thee good: for ^h the Lord hath spoken

30 good concerning Israel. And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred. And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou

32 mayest be to us ⁱ instead of eyes.⁵ And it shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that ^k what goodness the Lord shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

33 And they departed from ^l the mount of the Lord three days' journey: and the ark of the covenant of the Lord ^m went before them in the three days' journey, to search out a resting place for them. And ⁿ the cloud of the Lord was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

35 And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, ^o Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.

36 And when it rested, he said, Return,⁶ O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel.

The people murmur, and are punished; elders are appointed to assist Moses; the desire for flesh gratified and punished.

11 AND ^p when the people complained, it displeased⁷ the Lord: and the Lord heard it; ^q and his anger was kindled; and ^r the fire of the Lord burnt among

2 them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp.⁸ And ^s the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses ^t prayed unto the Lord, the fire

3 was quenched. And he called the name of the place ^u Taberah [i. e. a burning]: because the fire of the Lord burnt among them.

4 And ^v the mixed multitude that was among them fell a lusting: and ^w the children of Israel also wept again, and said, ^x Who shall give us flesh to eat?

1 The name 'Paran' seems to be applied to the sandy desert now called er-Ramleh, as well as the great central desert of the peninsula named et-Tyh. See ch. xii. 16; xiii. 3. The Israelites probably crossed its eastern side, where the route is always dreary, and often very harassing.

2 The first time after all the new arrangements.

3 As they were with Judah's division, which led the van.

4 Hobab had probably remained behind with Moses, when his father Jethro left the camp. As the Israelites were now removing from Sinai, and going to a distance from his own country, he wished to leave them, and return home. His answer to Moses' request is not recorded; but, from Judg. i. 16; iv. 11; and 1 Sam. xv. 6, it appears probable that Hobab complied.

5 Though the pillar of cloud would mark the direction and the length of their daily journeys, the people would still need information as to the nature of the ground, the situation and qualities of the springs and pasturages, the collection of fuel, and many other particulars. Hobab's presence would also facilitate any intercourse they might need to hold with neighbouring tribes.

6 Or, 'Cause to rest.' These verses, perhaps, served as watch-words; and are a beautiful summary of the intercessions of the captain of Israel.

7 Or, 'were complaining wickedly in the ears of the Lord.' The cause of their complaining was probably the fatigues and trials of their march in the desert: but the daily journeys were short, the supply of food constant and certain, and the Divine guidance and protection evident. The murmurings and rebellions of the people were peculiarly sinful and displeasing to God after the proofs they had received of his care and bounty, and the revelations he had given to them at Sinai of himself and his covenant relation to them.

8 Probably disorderly people who resorted there to associate with the 'mixed multitude' that joined them.

5 ^a We remember¹ the fish,² which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and 6 the melons, and the leeks,³ and the onions, and the garlick: but now ^b our soul is 7 dried away: there is nothing at all, beside this manna, before our eyes. (And 8 ^c the manna was as coriander seed,⁴ and the colour thereof as the colour of 9 ^d bdellium. And the people went about, ^e and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and ^f the taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.⁵ And ^g when the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.) 10 Then Moses heard the people ^h weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent; and ⁱ the anger of the LORD was kindled greatly; ^k Moses 11 also was displeased. ^l And Moses said unto the LORD, Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that 12 thou layest the burden of all this people upon me? Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldest say unto me, ^m Carry them in thy bosom, as a ⁿ nursing father beareth the sucking child, unto the land which 13 thou ^o swarest unto their fathers? ^p Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.
14 ^q I am not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.
15 And if thou deal thus with me, ^r kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not ^s see my wretchedness.⁶ 16 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^t Gather unto me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and ^u officers over them;
and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there 17 with thee. And I will ^x come down and talk with thee there: and ^y I will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; ^z and they shall bear 18 the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone. And say thou unto the people, ^a Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow, and ye shall eat flesh: for ye have wept ^b in the ears of the LORD, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? ^c for it was well with us in Egypt: therefore the LORD will give you flesh, 19 and ye shall eat. Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither 20 ten days, nor twenty days; ^d but even a whole month, until it come out at your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you: ^e because that ye have despised the LORD which is among you, and have wept before him, saying, ^f Why came we forth out 21 of Egypt? And Moses said, ^g The people, among whom I am, are six hundred thousand footmen; and thou hast said, I will give them flesh, that they may eat 22 a whole month. ^h Shall the flocks and the herds be slain for them, to suffice them? or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, to suffice them?
23 And the LORD said unto Moses, ⁱ Is the LORD's hand waxed short? thou shalt see now whether ^j my word shall come to pass unto thee or not.
24 And Moses went out, and told the people the words of the LORD, and ^k gathered the seventy men of the elders of the people, and set them round about the taber-25 nacle. And the LORD ^l came down in a cloud, and spake unto him, and took of the spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the seventy elders: and it came to pass, that, ^m when the spirit rested upon them, ⁿ they prophesied, and did not 26 cease.⁸ But there remained two of the men in the camp, the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad: and the spirit rested upon them; and they were of them that were written, but ^o went not out unto the tabernacle: and 27 they prophesied in the camp. And there ran a young man, and told Moses, and 28 said, Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp. And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Moses, one of his young men, answered and said, My lord Moses, 29 ^p forbid them. And Moses said unto him, ^q Enviest thou for my sake? ^r would

1 They now forgot the brick-kilns and the taskmasters of Egypt (Exod. ii. 23; vi. 9). This discontent was the more inexcusable as they not only had an abundant supply of wholesome and nutritious food, but they had the prospect of being, in a few months, in possession of the promised land.

2 Fish is particularly valued in the hotter seasons in Egypt, and is eaten with the condiments here mentioned.

3 Perhaps, rather, the lotus.

4 That is, like in shape, being round: 'bdellium' was probably a whitish gum.

5 The variety of cooking and the pleasantness of taste are adduced as proofs of the unreasonableness of the people's complaint.

6 Eminent as Moses was for meekness, he spoke unbecomingly upon this occasion; undervaluing the honour God had conferred upon him in making him the minister of his power; losing sight of the obligation he was under by the Divine commission; magnifying his own doings, and forgetting that God did, in effect, ease him of his burden, and that his grace could make him equal to still greater requirements.

7 God is righteous in making that loathsome to men which they have inordinately lusted after.

8 The words translated 'did not cease,' are by some supposed to intimate that these seventy were favoured with a permanent gift of inspiration, and formed the first Sanhedrim, or council of elders. But we find no trace of such a council for more than a thousand years afterwards. Others, translating the words 'did not add,' infer that the prophetic influence lasted only for the time. Others, again, by a slight alteration in the text, connect the words with the next verse, thus: 'And two of the men did not assemble themselves, but remained in the camp.'

God that all the LORD's people were prophets, ^s and that the LORD would put his 30 spirit upon them! And Moses gat him into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.
 31 And there went forth ^a a wind from the LORD, and brought ¹ quails from the sea, and let them fall ² by the camp, as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp, and as it were 32 two cubits high upon ³ the face of the earth. And the people stood up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten ⁴ homers: ⁴ and they spread them all abroad ⁵ for 33 themselves round about the camp. And while the ^x flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath ⁶ of the LORD was kindled against the people, 34 and the ^y LORD smote the people with a very great plague. ⁷ And he called the name of that place ^z Kibroth-hattaavah [i. e. The graves of lust]: because there they buried the people that lusted.
 35 ^a And the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth; and abode at Hazeroth.

1 In this, as in many other miracles, God did not entirely dispense with the operation of secondary causes.

2 More literally, 'sent them forth (or dispersed them) over the camp.'

3 Or, 'above.' Wearied with their long flight over the sea, they flew within easy reach of the people.

4 If literally so, it is more than eighty bushels; and it can hardly be supposed that he gathered only for his own use. The word is rendered 'heaps' in Exod. viii. 14.

5 In order to dry them; having learned to cure them, probably, from the Egyptians.

6 This signal judgment appears to have left a very strong impression upon the people: see refs.

7 Perhaps some bodily disease, the effect of their surfeit.

8 Or, 'woman of Cush.' It is likely that this was Ziporah; as the Midianites (to whom, as a Kenite, she belonged) settled in the Arabian Cush, and connected themselves with the Amalekites, most of whom were Cushites. Her return to Moses at Sinai, and the influence of her brother Hobab, might awaken the jealousy of Miriam and

Aaron, who had before enjoyed the highest consideration.

9 This clause was probably inserted when the Pentateuch was finished, after the death of Moses. It aggravates the crime of Miriam and Aaron; and shows why God took up the matter, though Moses did not.

10 Rather, 'Not so my servant Moses (who is faithful in all my house); with him will I speak,' etc. The distinguished honour here given by God to his servant Moses is appropriately used in the Epistle to the Hebrews (ch. iii. 3—6), to enhance the honour of the Son of God.

11 That is, 'If her father had thus signified his displeasure against her, would she not be so troubled and concerned at it as to shut herself up for some time, being ashamed of her folly?' Spitting in a person's presence was a mark of extreme displeasure.

12 It appears, from Deut. i. 22—25, that this proposal to search the land before entering it came from the people, though sanctioned by God. They were now at Kadesh-barnea, at the southern border of the promised land, between the deserts of Paran (et-Tyh) and Zin (el-Arabah)

3 tribe of their fathers shall ye send a man, every one a ruler among them. And Moses by the commandment of the Lord sent them ^dfrom the wilderness of Paran: all those men were heads of the children of Israel. And these were their names: of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur. Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of Hori. ^eOf the tribe of Judah, ^fCaleb the son of Jephunneh. Of the tribe of Issachar, Igal the son of Joseph. Of the tribe of Ephraim, ^gOshea the son of Nun. Of the tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu. Of the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son of Sodi. Of the tribe of Joseph, ^h*namely*, of the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi the son of Susi. Of the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son of Gemalli. Of the tribe of Asher, Sethur the son of Michael. Of the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi. Of the tribe of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi. These are the names of the men which Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called ⁱOshea ^jthe son of Nun Jehoshua.

17 And Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said unto them, Get you up this way ^ksouthward, ^land go up into ^mthe mountain: and see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak; few or many; and what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strong holds; and what the land is, whether it be ⁿfat or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not. And ^o*be ye* of good courage, and bring of the fruit of the land.

21 Now the time was the time of the ^pfirstripe grapes. ^qSo they went up, and searched the land ^rfrom the wilderness of Zin ^sunto ^tRehob, ^uas men come to Hamath. And they ascended by the south, and came unto ^vHebron; ^wwhere Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, ^xthe children of Anak, ^y*were*. (Now ^zHebron was built seven years before ^{aa}Zoan in Egypt.) ^{ab}And they came unto the brook [or, ^{ac}valley⁷] of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff; ^{ad}and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs. The place was called the brook [or, valley] Eshcol [i. e. a cluster of grapes], because of the cluster of grapes which the children of Israel cut down from thence.

25, 26 And they returned from searching of the land after forty days. And they went and came to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, ^{ae}unto the wilderness of Paran, to ^{af}Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and showed them the fruit of the land. And they told him, and said, We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with ^{ag}milk and honey; ^{ah}and this is the fruit of it. Nevertheless ^{ai}the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very ^{aj}great; and moreover we saw ^{ak}the children of Anak there. ^{al}The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south: and the Hittites, and the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains: and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan.

30 And ^{am}Caleb ^{an}stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it. ^{ao}But the men that went up with him said, We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we. And they ^{ap}brought up an evil report ^{aq}of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and ^{ar}all the people that we saw in it are men of a great stature. And there we saw the giants, ^{as}the sons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own sight ^{at}as grasshoppers, and so we were ^{au}in their sight.

on the borders of Edom, a little north-west of Mount Hor. It was afterwards the south-eastern point of the portion of Judah. If this be borne in mind, it will elucidate several portions of the subsequent history.

² Not southward from the place where they were now encamped, but into the southern part of Canaan.

³ It was probably about August.

⁴ On the south-east of Palestine. It is the long, desert valley stretching from the Elanitic Gulf, at Elath, or Ezion-geber, to the Dead Sea, and is now called el-Ghor and el-Arabah. Kadesh lies on its border.

⁵ Rehob is on the north of Palestine; a city and chieftaincy of Syria, near Mount Hermon. Hamath is a large city on the river Orontes, lying still further north.

⁶ The Anakim were descended from Arba, who gave his name to Kirjath-arba, or Hebron. The date of the foundation of Hebron indicates the time when the Anakim had taken possession of the district. This race of giants seems to have been numerous at this period. In the time of David only a few individuals of them remained.

⁷ Now called a wady. The water of these valleys is soon exhausted in the dry season.

⁸ Lest the weight of the cluster should injure the berries. The grapes of Palestine are still very large; and bunches have been known to weigh twelve pounds each.

⁹ Implying that it was therefore hopeless to attempt to conquer the land. They forgot what God had already done for them, and his solemn promise to put them in possession of the land.

¹⁰ And Joshua with him: see ch. xiv. 30.

¹¹ It seems that they now altered their story, and represented the land as unfertile, or unhealthy.

14 And all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried; and ^o the people wept
2 that night. ^p And all the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron: and the whole congregation said unto them, Would God that we had died 3 in the land of Egypt! or ^q would God we had died in this wilderness! ¹ And wherefore hath the LORD brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, ^r that our wives and our children should be a prey? were it not better for us to return 4 into Egypt? And they said one to another, ^s Let us make a captain, and ^t let us return into Egypt.

5 Then ^u Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the con-6 gregation of the children of Israel. ^x And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of them that searched the land, ^y rent their clothes:
7 and they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying. ^z The land,
8 which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land. If the LORD
^a delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; ^b a land which 9 floweth with milk and honey. Only ^c rebel not ye against the LORD, ^d neither fear ye the people of the land; for ^e they are bread ² for us: their defence is 10 departed from them, ^f and the LORD is with us: fear them not. ^g But all the congregation bade stone them with stones.

And ^h the glory of the LORD appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation 11 before all the children of Israel. And the LORD said unto Moses, How long will this people ⁱ provoke me? and how long will it be ere they ^k believe me, for all 12 the signs which I have showed among them? ^l I will smite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and ^m will make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

13 And ⁿ Moses said unto the LORD, ³ Then the Egyptians shall hear it, (for thou 14 broughtest up this people in thy might from among them:) and they will tell it to the inhabitants of this land; ^o for they have heard that thou LORD art among this people, that thou LORD art seen face to face, and that ^p thy cloud standeth over them, and that thou goest before them, by day time in a pillar of a cloud, 15 and in a pillar of fire by night. Now if thou shalt kill all this people as one man, then the nations which have heard the fame of thee will speak, saying, 16 Because the LORD was not ^q able to bring this people into the land which he swore 17 unto them, therefore he hath slain them in the wilderness. And now, I beseech thee, let the power of my LORD be great, according as thou hast spoken, saying, 18 The LORD is ^r longsuffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing the guilty, ^s visiting the iniquity of the fathers 19 upon the children unto the third and fourth generation. ^t Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people ^u according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and ^x as thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.

20, 21 And the LORD said, I have pardoned ^y according to thy word: ^z but as truly 22 as I live, ^a all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD. ⁴ ^b Because all those men which have seen my glory, and my miracles, which I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, ^c have tempted me now ^d these ten ⁵ times, and have not 23 hearkened to my voice; ^e surely they shall not see the land which I swore unto 24 their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked me see it: but my servant
^f Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and ^g hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land whereinto he went; and his seed shall possess it.
25 Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwell ⁶ in the valley. To-morrow turn you, ^h and get you into the wilderness by the way of the Red Sea.

26, 27 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, ⁱ How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, which murmur against me? ^k I have heard the 28 murmurings of the children of Israel, which they murmur against me. Say unto them, ^l As truly as I live, saith the LORD, ^m as ye have spoken in mine ears, so 29 will I do to you: ⁿ your carcases shall fall in this wilderness; and ^o all that were numbered of you, according to your whole number, from twenty years old and

¹ Their impious prayer was heard and granted; and the settlement of the people in the promised land was postponed for a whole generation.

² That is, so easily, and with so much advantage to ourselves, shall we master them.

³ On this, as on a former occasion (Exod. xxxii., xxxiii.), Moses appears in a most interesting aspect. On part of his reasoning (vers. 15, 16) it might possibly be remarked, that God could and did find means to fulfil his promise, whilst he destroyed all the murmurers. But he successfully appeals (vers. 17, 18) to Jehovah's manifestation of his great power in a way of mercy (see Exod. xxxiii. 18; xxxiv. 6); and his disinterested and fervent intercession, offered with special regard to the honour of the Divine name, is evidently acceptable to God (ver. 20).

⁴ This may mean either, 'I will pardon in such a way as to make my glory the more manifest, by uniting justice with forbearance;' or, 'as truly as I live, and as all the earth shall be filled with my glory, because,' etc.

⁵ That is, many: a definite for an indefinite number.

land, concerning which I sware to make you dwell therein, ^p save Caleb the son 31 of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun. ^q But your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall know the land which ^r ye 32 have despised. But as for you, ^s your carcases, they shall fall in this wilderness.
 33 And your children shall ^t wander in the wilderness ^u forty years, ¹ and ^x bear your 34 whoredoms, ² until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness. ^y After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even ^z forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, ^a and ye shall know my breach of 35 promise ³ [or, altering of my purpose]. ^b I the LORD have said, I will surely do it unto all ^c this evil congregation, that are gathered together against me: in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and there they shall die.
 36 ^d And the men, which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the 37 land, even those men that did bring up the evil report upon the land, ^e died by 38 the plague before the LORD. ^f But Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still.
 39 And Moses told these sayings unto all the children of Israel: ^g and the people 40 mourned greatly. And they rose up ⁴ early in the morning, and gat them up into the top of the mountain, saying, Lo, ^h we be here, and will go up unto the place 41 which the LORD hath promised: for we have sinned. And Moses said, Wherefore now do ye transgress ⁱ the commandment of the LORD? But it shall not prosper.
 42 ^k Go not up, for the LORD is not among you; that ye be not smitten before your 43 enemies. ^l For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, ⁵ and ^m ye shall fall by the sword: ⁿ because ye are turned away from the LORD, therefore the LORD will not be with you.
 44 ^o But they presumed to go up unto the hill top. Nevertheless the ark of the 45 covenant of the LORD, and Moses, departed not out of the camp. ^p Then the Amalekites came down, and the Canaanites which dwelt in that hill, and ^q smote them, and discomfited them, even unto ^r Hormah. ⁶

Laws respecting the meat and drink-offerings, and other sacrifices.

 2 and say unto them, When ye be come into the land ⁸ of your habitations, which I
 3 give unto you, and ^t will make an offering by fire unto the LORD, a burnt offering, or a sacrifice ^u in performing [separating ^v] a vow, or in a freewill offering, or ^x in your solemn feasts, to make a ^y sweet savour unto the LORD, of the herd, or of 4 the flock: then ^z shall he that offereth his offering unto the LORD bring ^a a meat offering of a tenth deal of flour mingled ^b with the fourth part of an hin of oil.
 5 ^c And the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink offering shalt thou prepare 6 with the burnt offering or sacrifice, for one lamb. ^d Or for a ram, thou shalt prepare for a meat offering two tenth deals of flour mingled with the third part 7 of an hin of oil. And for a drink offering thou shalt offer the third part of an hin
 8 of wine, for a sweet savour unto the LORD. And when thou preparest a bullock for a burnt offering, or for a sacrifice in performing a vow, or ^e peace offerings

 10 deals of flour mingled with half an hin of oil. And thou shalt bring for a drink

 11 the LORD. ^g Thus shall it be done for one bullock, or for one ram, or for a lamb, 12 or a kid. According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every 13 one according to their number. All that are born of the country shall do these things after this manner, in offering an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour 14 unto the LORD. And if a stranger ^h sojourn with you, or whosoever be among you in your generations, and will offer an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto

Ex. 12. 49.

1 This includes the whole time of 'wandering,' from the departure out of Egypt to the entrance into Canaan.

2 This term is frequently used to express unfaithfulness to the Divine covenant, especially by idolatry.

3 This may be rendered 'disannulling,' or 'vengeance;' but more probably 'forsaking.' From this generation God withheld his favour.

4 This is a remarkable instance of the close connection between unbelief and presumption.

5 It was almost impossible to force this pass against an army in possession of it, except by superhuman power.

6 Called elsewhere Zephath (now es-Sufah): see refs.

7 The events recorded in ch. xv.—xix. occurred at various times during the thirty-seven years of wanderings in the desert. The precise date of each is not stated.

8 As the fulfilment of this precept would hardly be possible in the wilderness, it was not to be observed till the Israelites came into the promised land. It was probably an addition to the previous laws of sacrifices. The wheat-offering was to be proportioned to the victim, and so to the means of the offerer. The completion of these arrangements in the wilderness would tend to confirm the faith of the people in the ultimate fulfilment of the Divine promise respecting the possession of Canaan.

9 These regulations both encouraged devout foreigners to settle in Canaan and to embrace the faith and worship of Jehovah, and tended to prevent the introduction of heathen usages.

- congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.
- 16 One law and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.
- 17, 18 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ⁱ Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land whither I bring you, then it shall be, that, when ye eat of ^k the bread of the land, ye shall offer up an heave offering unto the LORD. ^l Ye shall offer up a cake of the first of your dough for an heave offering: as ye do ^m the heave offering of the threshing floor, so shall ye heave it.
- 21 Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the LORD an heave offering in your generations.

- 27 And ^t if any soul sin through ignorance, then he shall bring a she-goat of the

- 32 AND while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, ^b they found a man
- 33 that gathered sticks⁴ upon the ^c sabbath day. And they that found him gathering sticks brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation.
- 34 And they put him ^d in ward, because it was not declared what should be done to him. And the LORD said unto Moses, ^e The man shall be surely put to death: all the congregation shall ^f stone him with stones without the camp. And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, and he died; as the LORD commanded Moses.

² This also probably refers to positive institutions, such as the sabbath (see vers. 32—36). In disobeying them, a man directly denied the authority of the God of Israel.

³ The principle of this punishment was not peculiar to the Mosaic economy, but reappears in Christianity in a still more severe and awful form. See Matt. xii. 31, 32; Acts v. 1—10; Heb. vi. 4—8; 1 John v. 16. Under both dispensations there is excommunication for the wilful and presumptuous offender: but it is carried out, in the one case, by the infliction of temporal death; in the other, by delivering him up to the judgment of eternal death.

⁴ This instance of the sabbath-breaker appears to be mentioned as an example of the presumptuous sins spoken of in vers. 30, 31.

⁵ Or, 'flowers.'

⁶ Or, 'line;' or, 'lace,' as in Exod. xxviii. 28, 37. These were of the same colour as the high priest wore on his breastplate and mitre: and it is supposed that they were designed to indicate that the Hebrews were, as priests, consecrated to God, and to prevent their sinning through forgetfulness. See Exod. xix. 6; 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9.

The rebellion and death of Korah and his party; murmuring and punishment of the people.

- 16 NOW ^m Korah,¹ the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, and Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took ² men: and they rose up before Moses, with certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, ⁿ famous in the congregation, men of ³ renown: and ^o they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, Ye take too much upon you, seeing ^p all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and ^q the LORD is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the LORD?
- 4, 5 And when Moses heard it, ^r he fell upon his face:³ and he spake unto Korah and unto all his company, saying, Even to-morrow the LORD will show who are his, and who is ^s holy; and will cause him to come near unto him: even him whom 6 he hath ^t chosen will he cause to ^u come near unto him. This do; Take you 7 censers, Korah, and all his company; and put fire therein, and put incense in them before the LORD to-morrow: and it shall be that the man whom the LORD doth choose, he shall be holy: ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.
- 8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi: seemeth it but ^v a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath ^w separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them?
- 10 And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with 11 thee: and seek ye the priesthood also? For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together ^x against the LORD: ^a and what is Aaron, that ye murmur against him?
- 12 And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab: which said, We 13 will not come up: ^b is it a small thing that thou hast brought us up out of a land that floweth with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, except thou ^c make thyself altogether a prince over us? Moreover thou hast not brought us into ^d a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards: wilt thou put out the eyes of these men? we will not come up.
- 15 And Moses was ^e very wroth, and said unto the LORD, ^f Respect not thou their offering: ^g I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them.
- 16 And Moses said unto Korah, ^h Be thou and all thy company ⁱ before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron, to-morrow: and take every man his censer, and put incense in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his censer, two hundred and fifty⁴ censers; thou also, and Aaron, each of you his censer.
- 18 And they took every man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon, and stood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation with Moses and Aaron. And Korah gathered all⁵ the congregation against them unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And ^k the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the congregation.
- 20, 21 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, ^l Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may ^m consume them in a moment. And they ⁿ fell upon their faces, and said, O God, ^o the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall ^p one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation? And the 24 LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the congregation, saying, Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.
- 25 And Moses rose up and went unto Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of Israel 26 followed him. And he spake unto the congregation, saying, ^q Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest ye be consumed in all their sins. So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, on every side: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children.
- 28 And Moses said, ^r Hereby ye shall know that the LORD hath sent me to do all 29 these works; for I have not done them ^s of mine own mind. If these men die the common death of all men, or if they be ^t visited after the visitation of all men; 30 then ^u the LORD hath not sent me. But if the LORD make ^v a new thing, and the ¹ Korah was first cousin to Moses and Aaron: see Exod. vi. 18, 20, 21. The Kohathites and the Reubenites, having their camps near to each other (ch. ii. 10; iii. 29), could the more easily conspire together: and the princes of Reuben, as descendants of Jacob's eldest son, might be displeased at losing the precedence usually connected with the birthright. As On is not mentioned afterwards, it is supposed that he withdrew from the conspiracy.

² Rather, took counsel; conspired.

³ Under an overwhelming sense of the evil of this matter. See ch. xiv. 5.

⁴ If the head of every family, or even of every division, had officiated as a priest before the appointment of Aaron, it would not be difficult to find so many censers.

⁵ Probably not absolutely all the people. But the whole narrative shows that many were inclined to side with the conspirators; from whom, however, they separated themselves when the danger became imminent: see vers. 27, 41.

earth open her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they ^ygo down quick¹ into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men 31 have provoked the LORD. ^zAnd it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, that the ground clave asunder that was under them:
 32 and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and 33 ^aall the men that appertained unto² Korah, and all their goods. They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed 34 upon them: and ^bthey perished from among the congregation. And all Israel that were round about them fled at the cry of them: for they said, Lest the earth
 35 swallow us up also. And there ^ccame out a fire from the LORD, and consumed ^dthe two hundred and fifty men that offered incense.
 36, 37 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the burning, and scatter
 38 thou the fire yonder; for ^ethey are hallowed. The censers of these ^fsinners against their own souls, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the altar: for they offered them before the LORD, therefore they are hallowed: ^gand they shall be a sign unto the children of Israel.³ And Eleazar the priest took the
 39 brasen censers, wherewith they that were burnt had offered; and they were made broad plates for a covering of the altar: to be a memorial unto the children
 40 of Israel, ^hthat no stranger, which is not of the seed of Aaron, ⁱcome near to offer incense before the LORD; that he be not as Korah, and as his company: as the LORD said to him by the hand of Moses.
 41 But on the morrow ^kall the congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, Ye have killed the people of the LORD.
 42 And it came to pass, when the congregation was gathered against Moses and against Aaron, that they looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation: and,
 43 behold, ^lthe cloud covered it, and ^mthe glory of the LORD appeared. And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of the congregation. And the LORD spake
 44 unto Moses, saying, ⁿGet you up from among this congregation, that I may consume them as in a moment. And ^othey fell upon their faces.
 46 And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and ^pmake an atonement for them: ^qfor there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is 47 begun. And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put 48 on incense, and made an atonement for the people.⁴ And he stood between the 49 dead and the living: and the plague was stayed. Now they that died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, beside them that died about 50 the matter of Korah. And Aaron returned unto Moses unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the plague was stayed.

The tribe of Levi chosen by the budding of Aaron's rod; the priests to bear the people's sins.

17 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod⁵ according to the house of their fathers, of all their princes according to the house of their fathers twelve rods: write thou
 3 every man's name upon his rod. And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the 4 rod of Levi: for one rod shall be for the head of the house of their fathers. And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation before the testi-
 5 mony, ^rwhere I will meet with you. And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod, ^swhom I shall choose, shall blossom: and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, ^twhereby they murmur against you.
 6 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes gave him a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their fathers' houses,
 7 even twelve rods: and the rod of Aaron was among their rods. And Moses laid up the rods before the LORD in ^uthe tabernacle of witness.
 8 And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness; and, behold, the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi was ^xbudded, and 9 brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds. And Moses

¹ The word 'quick' is used here and elsewhere in Scripture in its old English sense, meaning alive.

² Or, 'took part with.' Some, at least, of his family, who probably remained in his tent in the Kohathites' quarter, were not involved in his doom; for the prophet Samuel, and the singers his descendants, were of this family: comp. 1 Sam. i. 1, with 1 Chron. vi. 33—38. See also title of Ps. lxxxiv., and note.

³ This would keep the people in mind of the fate of the conspirators, and tend to prevent future rebellion.

⁴ In this interposition, Aaron appears a remarkable type of Christ; who, by his atonement and intercession, has averted from all who live by him the penalty which their sins have deserved.

brought out all the rods from before the LORD unto all the children of Israel: and they looked, and took every man his rod.

10 And the LORD said unto Moses, Bring ^y Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept ^z for a token against the rebels; ^a and thou shalt quite take away 11 their murmurings from me, that they die not. And Moses did so: as the LORD commanded him, so did he.

12 And the children of Israel spake unto Moses, saying, Behold, we die, we 13 perish, we all perish. ^b Whosoever cometh any thing near unto the tabernacle of the LORD shall die: ¹ shall we be consumed with dying?

18 And the LORD said ² unto Aaron, ^c Thou and thy sons and thy father's house with thee shall ^d bear the iniquity of the sanctuary: and thou and thy sons with 2 thee shall bear the iniquity of your priesthood. And thy brethren also of the tribe of Levi, the tribe of thy father, bring thou with thee, that they may be
^e joined unto thee, and ^f minister unto thee: but ^g thou and thy sons with thee
3 shall minister before the tabernacle of witness. And they shall keep thy charge, and ^h the charge of all the tabernacle: ⁱ only they shall not come nigh the vessels
4 of the sanctuary and the altar, ^k that neither they, nor ye also, die. And they shall be joined unto thee, and keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregation, for all the service of the tabernacle: ^l and a stranger shall not come nigh 5 unto you. And ye shall keep ^m the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of 6 the altar: ⁿ that there be no wrath any more upon the children of Israel. And I, behold, I have ^o taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel: ^p to you they are given as a gift for the LORD, to do the service of the 7 tabernacle of the congregation. Therefore ^q thou and thy sons with thee shall keep your priest's office for every thing of the altar, and ^r within the vail; and ye shall serve: I have given your priest's office unto you as a service of gift: and ^s the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

The duties and portions of the priests and Levites.

8 AND the LORD spake unto Aaron, Behold, ^t I also have given thee the charge of mine heave offerings of all the hallowed things ³ of the children of Israel: unto thee have I given them ^u by reason of the anointing, and to thy sons, by an 9 ordinance for ever. This shall be thine of the most holy things, reserved from the fire: every oblation of theirs, every ^x meat offering of theirs, and every ^y sin offering of theirs, and every ^z trespass offering of theirs, which they shall render 10 unto me, shall be most holy for thee and for thy sons. ^a In the most holy place shalt thou eat it; every male shall eat it: it shall be holy unto thee. And this is
11 thine; ^b the heave offering of their gift, with all the wave offerings of the children of Israel: I have given them unto ^c thee, and to thy sons and to thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: ^d every one that is clean in thy house shall eat
12 of it. ^e All the best of the oil, and all the best of the wine, and of the wheat, ^f the firstfruits of them which they shall offer unto the LORD, them have I given
13 thee. And whatsoever is first ripe in the land, ^g which they shall bring unto the LORD, shall be thine; ^h every one that is clean in thine house shall eat of it.
14 ⁱ Every thing devoted in Israel shall be thine. Every thing that openeth ^k the matrix in all flesh, which they bring unto the LORD, whether it be of men or 15 beasts, shall be thine: nevertheless ^l the firstborn of man shalt thou surely redeem, and the firstling of unclean beasts shalt thou redeem. And those that 16 are to be redeemed from a month old shalt thou redeem, ^m according to thine estimation, for the money of five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, 17 ⁿ which is twenty gerahs. ^o But the firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not redeem; they are holy: ^p thou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar, and shalt burn their fat for an offering made
18 by fire, for a sweet savour unto the LORD. And the flesh of them shall be thine, 19 as the ^q wave breast and as the right shoulder are thine. ^r All the heave offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the LORD, have I given thee, and thy sons and thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever; ^s it is a covenant of salt ⁴ for ever before the LORD unto thee and to thy seed with thee.

¹ The awful judgments of God seem to have produced despondency rather than penitence.

² These commands were given with renewed strictness, that the priests and Levites might be on the watch to prevent future danger; also, perhaps, to remind both them and the people that the honour of their ministry was attended with corresponding responsibility.

³ The priests had no share at all of the land, and the Levites had little beside their cities; an arrangement obviously intended to keep up their peculiar position in the community. The Levites, however, had a tithe of the produce, out of which they reserved one-tenth for the priests. The priests had also reserves from the various offerings; some being shared among them all, and some appropriated to those who were actually on service. It is probable, however, that out of their dues they had to provide the requisites of the tabernacle worship.

⁴ A 'covenant of salt' signifies an everlasting covenant (see 2 Chron. xiii. 5); probably in reference to the preserving quality of salt.

20 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land, neither shalt thou have any part among them: I am thy part and thine inheritance among the children of Israel. And, behold, I have given the children of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance, for their service which they serve, even ^x the service of the tabernacle of the congregation. ^y Neither must the children of Israel henceforth come nigh the tabernacle of the congregation, ^z lest they bear sin, and die. ^a But the Levites shall do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they shall bear their iniquity: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, that ^b among the children of Israel they have no inheritance. ^c But the tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer as an heave offering unto the LORD, I have given to the Levites to inherit: therefore I have said unto them, ^d Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.

25, 26 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes which I have given you from them for your inheritance, ^e then ye shall offer up an heave offering of it for the LORD, even ^f a tenth part of the tithe. ^g And this your heave offering shall be reckoned unto you, as though it were the corn of the threshingfloor, and as the fulness of the winepress. Thus ye also shall offer an heave offering unto the LORD of all your tithes, which ye receive of the children of Israel; and ye shall give thereof the LORD's heave offering to Aaron the priest. Out of all your gifts ye shall offer every heave offering of the LORD, of all the best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof out of it. Therefore thou shalt say unto them, When ye have heaved the best thereof from it, ^h then it shall be counted unto the Levites as the increase of the threshingfloor, and as the increase of the winepress. And ye shall eat it in every place, ye and your households: for it is ⁱ your reward for your service in the tabernacle of the congregation.

32 And ye shall ^k bear no sin by reason of it, when ye have heaved from it the best of it: neither shall ye ^l pollute the holy things of the children of Israel, lest ye die.

The law of the water of purification.

19 AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD hath commanded, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring thee a red heifer without spot, ¹ wherein is ^m no blemish, ⁿ and upon which never came yoke: and ye shall give her unto Eleazar ² the priest, that he may bring her ^o forth without the camp, and one shall slay her before his face: and Eleazar the priest shall take of her blood with his finger, and ^p sprinkle of her blood directly before the tabernacle of the congregation seven times: and one shall burn the heifer in his sight; ^q her skin, and her flesh, and her blood, with her dung, shall he burn: and the priest shall take ^r cedar wood, and hyssop, and scarlet, and cast it into the midst of the burning of the heifer. ^s Then the priest shall wash his clothes, and he shall bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until the even. And he that burneth her shall wash his clothes in water, and bathe his flesh in water, and shall be unclean until the even. And a man that is clean shall gather up ^t the ashes of the heifer, and lay them up without the camp in a clean place, and it shall be kept for the congregation of the children of Israel ^u for a water of separation: ³ it is a purification for sin. And he that gathereth the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: and it shall be unto the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among them, for a statute for ever.

11 ^x He that toucheth the dead ⁴ body of any man shall be unclean seven days.

12 ^y He shall purify himself with it on the third day, and on the seventh day he shall be clean: but if he purify not himself the third day, then the seventh day

¹ That is, without a spot of any other colour.

² It must not be done by the high priest, as he was to avoid all pollutions. As Eleazar, who took the heifer's blood on his finger, and the man who burnt her, and the man who gathered her ashes, all contracted uncleanness by so doing, it was hereby signified that sin had been laid upon the animal.

³ The 'water of separation,' or of purification, was formed by mixing in spring water the ashes of the heifer, together with other ingredients (ver. 6) which were also used in the cleansing of lepers (Lev. xiv. 6, 7). The blood of this victim was not brought into the sanctuary, as it represented the pollution from which the ashes mixed in spring water were to purify the unclean. It is nowhere stated how frequently this sacrifice was offered;

but it was probably done whenever a fresh supply of ashes was needed. It is said that, after the settlement of the people in Canaan, some of the ashes were kept in every town. They must have been in constant requisition; as it is scarcely possible that a person could die and be buried without some of his family or attendants coming into contact with the body. The sprinkling of the blood, and of the water containing the ashes, was a type of the work of Christ, probably representing the combined justification and sanctification of the believer. See Heb. ix. 13, 14.

⁴ This ordinance would prevent unnecessary or superstitious practices with the dead, and insure speedy burial: it also served to keep before the people the connection between sin and death.

- 13 he shall not be clean. Whosoever toucheth the dead body of any man that is dead, and purifieth not himself, ^adefileth the tabernacle of the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from Israel: ¹because ^athe water of separation was not sprinkled upon him, he shall be unclean; ^bhis uncleanness is yet upon him.
- 14 This is the law, when a man dieth in a tent: all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent, shall be unclean seven days. And every ^copen vessel, which hath no covering bound upon it, is unclean. And ^dwhosoever toucheth one that is slain with a sword in the open fields, or a dead body, or a bone of a man, or a grave, shall be unclean seven days.
- 17 And for an unclean person they shall take of the ^eashes of the burnt heifer of purification for sin, and running water [or, living waters^f] shall be put thereto in a vessel: and a clean person shall take ^ghyssop, and dip it in the water, and sprinkle it upon the tent, and upon all the vessels, and upon the persons that were there, and upon him that touched a bone, or one slain, or one dead, or a grave: and the clean person shall sprinkle upon the unclean on the third day, and on the seventh day: ^hand on the seventh day he shall purify himself, and wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and shall be clean at even. But the man that shall be unclean, ⁱand shall not purify himself, that soul shall be cut off from among the congregation, because he hath ^kdefiled the sanctuary of the LORD: the water of separation hath not been sprinkled upon him; he is unclean.
- 21 And it shall be a perpetual statute unto them, that he that sprinkleth the water of separation shall wash his clothes; and he that toucheth the water of separation shall be unclean until even. And ^lwhatsoever the unclean person toucheth shall be unclean; and ^mthe soul that toucheth it shall be unclean until even.

The people murmur for water; the rock smitten.

- 20 THEN² came ⁿthe children of Israel, even the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in Kadesh. And ^oMiriam died there, and was buried there.
- 2 ^pAnd there was no water for the congregation: ^qand they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron. And the people ^rchode with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died ^swhen our brethren died before the LORD! And ^twhy have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there? And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us in unto ^uthis evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.
- 6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and ^vthey fell upon their faces: and ^wthe glory of the LORD appeared unto them. And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^xTake the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou, and Aaron thy brother, and ^yspeak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and ^zthou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.
- 9 And Moses took the rod ^afrom before the LORD, as he commanded him. And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, ^bHear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock? And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he ^csmote the rock twice: and ^dthe water came out abundantly; and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.
- 12 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because ^eye believed me not, ³to ^fsanctify⁴ me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ⁵ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.
- 13 ⁶This is the water of Meribah [i. e. strife⁷]; because the children of Israel strove with the LORD, and he was ^msanctified in them.

The Israelites refused a passage through Edom.

¹ Though the pollution contracted was only ceremonial, yet the neglect of the purification prescribed would make the ceremonially unclean man morally guilty.

² After about thirty-seven years' wanderings in the wilderness, the Israelites now advanced again towards Canaan, and came to Kadesh. The names of the principal intermediate encampments are given in ch. xxxiii.

³ In both the actions and the language of Moses and Aaron on this occasion, there are indications of a petu-lance inconsistent with that calm faith in God which they commonly display. See Exod. xvii. 1—6, and Psal. cvi. 33. In some things, too, they departed from the instructions given to them. Moses smote the rock twice; which, at this time, he was not directed to do at all. God's displeasure with his servants presents a solemn admonition to Christians not to 'speak unadvisedly.'

⁴ That is, 'to treat me as the Holy One of Israel.' So in ver. 13.

15 ^p how our fathers went down into Egypt, ^q and we have dwelt in Egypt a long 16 time; ^r and the Egyptians vexed us, and our fathers: and ^s when we cried unto the LORD, he heard our voice, and ^t sent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt: and, behold, we are in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost of thy border: 17 ^u let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells:
 we will go by the king's high way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to 18 the left, until we have passed thy borders. And Edom said unto him, Thou 19 shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword. And the children of Israel said unto him, We will go by the high way: and if I and my cattle drink of thy water, ^x then I will pay¹ for it: I will only, without doing 20 any thing else, go through on my feet. And he said, ^y Thou shalt not go through.
 And Edom came out against him with much people, and with a strong hand.
 21 Thus Edom ^z refused to give Israel passage through his border: wherefore Israel
^a turned away from him.²

Aaron dies at mount Hor; and is succeeded by Eleazar.

22 AND the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, journeyed from ^b Kadesh, ^c and came unto mount Hor.³
 23 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the 24 land of Edom, saying, Aaron shall be ^d gathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because ^e ye 25 rebelled against my word at the water of Meribah. ^f Take Aaron and Eleazar 26 his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor: and strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, 27 and shall die there. And Moses did as the LORD commanded. And they went 28 up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation. ^g And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; ^h and ⁱ Aaron died there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.
 29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron ⁱ thirty days, even all the house of Israel.

The Israelites are attacked by Canaanites at Arad; the people, murmuring, are visited with fiery serpents; the brazen serpent.

21 AND when ^k king Arad⁵ the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south, heard tell that Israel came ^l by the way of the spies; ^m then he fought against Israel, and 2 took some of them prisoners. ⁿ And Israel vowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then ^o I will utterly 3 destroy⁷ their cities. And the LORD hearkened to the voice of Israel, and delivered up the Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their cities:
 and he called the name of the place Hormah [i. e. utter destruction].
 4 And ^p they journeyed from mount Hor by the way of the Red Sea,⁸ to ^q compass the land of Edom: and the soul of the people was much discouraged [or, 5 grieved] because of the way. And the people ^r spake against God, and against Moses, ^s Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness?
 for there is no bread, neither is there any water; and ^t our soul loatheth this light bread.
 6 And ^u the LORD sent fiery⁹ serpents among the people, and they bit the people;
 7 and much people of Israel died. ^v Therefore the people came to Moses, and said,
 We have sinned, for ^w we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee; ^x pray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for

¹ Water being scarce and valuable in that district, the permission to use it is often purchased.

² As the Israelites had refused to enter Canaan from the south, and were not now to be allowed to do so, the nearest route from Kadesh to the point at which they were to commence the invasion of the land was eastward through Idumea. But the passes through the mountains of Seir were very few and difficult, being mere ravines; so that they might be easily defended. Had the Israelites been allowed, as they requested, to march through one of these, they would quickly have reached the edge of the Great Desert on the eastern side of Idumea. But the refusal of Edom compelled them to travel along the western border of Idumea to Ezion-geber (see ch. xxi. 4); and then, crossing the mountain-ridge at a depression in the range (probably the pass of Wady el-Ithm), to go along its eastern side to the land of Moab. See map.

³ On the east of the desert of Zin (el-Arabah), and west of Petra; now called, from the event here related, Djebel

Nebi Harûn; or, 'the mount of the prophet Aaron.'

⁴ The investiture of Eleazar before the death of Aaron seems to indicate the perpetuity of the priestly office; and reminds us of Him who 'ever liveth to make intercession' for us (Heb. vii. 25).

⁵ Rather, 'the Canaanite king of Arad.' Arad was a city in the south of Palestine (Josh. xii. 14).

⁶ The Heb. word 'Atharim,' here rendered 'the spies,' is better read as a proper name: 'by the way of Atharim.'

⁷ Or, 'devote to destruction;' and so in ver. 3. This is supposed to have been accomplished soon afterwards by Joshua. See Josh. x. 41; xii. 14; Judg. i. 17.

⁸ That is, to Ezion-geber, at the head of the eastern gulf. This road, along the Arabah, is peculiarly rough and wearisome.

⁹ So called, perhaps, from the inflammation attending their bite. Though this desert abounds with venomous serpents and scorpions, the Israelites had not been seriously molested by them till they murmured against God.

10 AND the children of Israel set forward,² and ^d pitched in Oboth.
11 And they journeyed from Oboth, and ^e pitched at Ije-abarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, toward the sunrising.
12, 13 ^f From thence they removed, and pitched in the valley of Zared. From thence they removed, and pitched on the other side of Arnon, which is in the wilderness that cometh out of the coasts of the Amorites: for ^g Arnon is the border of Moab, 14 between Moab and the Amorites.³ Wherefore it is said in the book⁴ of the wars of the LORD,

What he did in the Red Sea [or, Vaheb in Suphah],

15 And in the brooks of Arnon,—and at the stream of the brooks That goeth down to the dwelling of Ar,—^h and lieth upon the border of Moab.
16 And from thence *they went*⁵ to Beer: that is the well whereof the LORD spake unto Moses, Gather the people together, ⁱ and I will give them water.
17 'Then Israel sang this song,

Spring up, O well; sing ye unto it:

18 The princes digged⁶ the well,—the nobles of the people digged it, By the direction of^m the lawgiver, with their staves.
19 And from the wilderness they went to Mattanah: and from Mattanah to 20 Nahaliel: and from Nahaliel to Bamoth: and from Bamoth in the valley, that is in the country of Moab, to the top of Pisgah [or, the hill], which looketh ⁿ toward Jeshimon [or, the wilderness].

21, 22 And ^o Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, saying, ^p Let me pass through thy land: we will not turn into the fields, or into the vineyards; we will not drink of the waters of the well: but we will go along by the king's 23 high way, until we be past thy borders. ^q And Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness: ^r and he came to Jahaz, and fought against 24 Israel. And ^s Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from Arnon unto Jabbok, even unto the children of Ammon: for the border
25 of the children of Ammon was strong. And Israel took all these cities: and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all the villages
26 thereof. For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites,⁷ who had fought against the former king of Moab, and taken all his land out of his hand, 27 even unto Arnon. Wherefore they that speak in proverbs⁸ say,

Come into Heshbon,—let the city of Sihon be built and prepared:

28 For there is 'a fire gone out of Heshbon,—a flame from the city of Sihon: It hath consumed ^t Ar of Moab,—and the lords of the high places of Arnon.

1 This had evidently no natural tendency to cure the disease, but derived all its value and efficacy from Divine appointment. It is used by our Lord to represent his work; and admirably illustrates the perfect freeness and accessibility of the gospel remedy for sin, as well as the simplicity of its application by faith in Christ (John iii. 14, 15). A superstitious use was afterwards made of this brazen serpent, which had been preserved as a memorial of this judgment and deliverance: see 2 Kings xviii. 4.

2 Northwards, along the route east of the hills of Edom.

3 The Amorites had formerly, in the time of Abraham, been located on the western side of Jordan (Gen. xiv. 7); but after that period they appear to have extended their conquests across the Jordan, and to have wrested from the Moabites all that portion of their country which lay north of the Arnon.

4 The whole of this passage (vers. 14—20) is extremely obscure. If the book is rightly named, it might be a poetical history of God's deliverances of Israel from their Egyptian and other enemies, resembling Deut. xxxii., and Ps. lxxviii., cv.; and intended to be learned and sung by the people. But many divide the sentence thus: 'in the book of the wars; Jehovah came with him to Suph;' or, 'took Vaheb in a storm;' or, 'showed himself in a whirlwind.' Probably the extract refers to the borders of Moab, upon which Israel was not to enter.

5 The words 'they went,' supplied by the translators, are a very questionable addition. Vers. 16—20 seem to be a continuation of the preceding poetical quotation; as the places here mentioned are not enumerated among the encampments of the Israelites; but they were most likely towns or villages on the frontier between the Moabites and the Amorites.

6 In the fertile districts on the east of the Jordan, on the edge of the desert, water may be found, on turning up the sand, at the depth of a few inches.

7 This is mentioned to show the right of the Israelites to Heshbon (the Amorites being descendants of Canaan); though they were not allowed by God to take any of the cities then possessed by the Moabites, who were descendants of Lot. See Deut. ii. 18, 19. As a further proof, a passage is quoted (vers. 27—30) from a poet of that country, describing the invasion of the land, the burning of the Moabite cities of Heshbon and Ar, the erection of new Amorite cities in their place, and the complete subjugation of the country by the invaders. Respecting the importance of this, see Judg. xi. 13—27.

8 Or rather, 'poems.'

9 Chemosh was the idol worshipped by the Moabites and Ammonites. This is quoted in Jer. xlviii. 45, 46.

He hath given his sons that escaped,—and his daughters, into captivity Unto Sihon king of the Amorites.

30 We have shot at them;—Heshbon is perished even ^y unto Dibon,
And we have laid them waste even unto Nophah,—which reacheth unto ^z Medeba.

31, 32 Thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amorites. And Moses sent to spy out ^a Jaazer; and they took the villages thereof, and drove out the Amorites that were there.

33 ^b And they turned and went up by the way of Bashan: and Og the king of Bashan went out against them, he, and all his people, to the battle ^c at Edrei.

34 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^d Fear him not: for I have delivered him into thy hand, and all his people, and his land; and ^e thou shalt do to him as thou

35 didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon. ^f So they smote him, and his sons, and all his people, until there was none left him alive: and they possessed his land.

9 ^t And God came unto Balaam, and said, What men are these with thee?

10 And Balaam said unto God, Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, hath sent unto me, saying, Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which

11 covereth the face of the earth: come now, curse me them; peradventure I 12 shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out. And God said unto Balaam, Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed.

13 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and said unto the princes of Balak, Get you into your land: for the Lord refuseth to give me leave to go with you.

14 And the princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, Balaam refuseth to come with us.

15 And Balak sent yet again princes, more, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor,

17 Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me: for I will promote thee unto very great honour, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest unto me: ^x come

3 This means perhaps the people of Balak, who, as a Moabite, was a descendant of Terah.

4 Many passages of Scripture show that sometimes God uses for his purposes, and therefore qualifies with special gifts, persons of whom, nevertheless, he does not approve. Balaam seems to have known something of God, and to have felt his subjection to him, and to have had some restraints from his conscience; but he loved the 'wages of unrighteousness' more than the approval of God. Some suppose that Balaam was the last of the Divinely-inspired prophets of the patriarchal dispensation, under which men had now generally lapsed into idolatry; and that as such he was brought, under the overruling Providence of God, to bear testimony to his newly-constituted church, and to foretell its future greatness and glory.

5 Balaam's second inquiry shows how obstinately he was set upon going. It is very offensive to God, and most plainly shows the corruption of the heart, to ask or to desire permission to sin.

call thee, rise up, and go with them;¹ but 'yet the word which I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do.

- 21 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the 22 princes of Moab. And God's anger was kindled because he went:^d and the 23 angel² of the LORD stood in the way for an adversary against him. Now he was 24 riding upon his ass, and his two servants were with him. And 'the ass saw the 25 angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and 26 the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field: and Balaam smote 27 the ass to turn her into the way. But the angel of the LORD stood in a path of 28 the vineyards, a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side. And when the 29 ass saw the angel of the LORD, she thrust herself unto the wall, and crushed 30 Balaam's foot against the wall: and he smote her again. And the angel of the 31 LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place, where was no way to turn 32 either to the right hand or to the left. And when the ass saw the angel of the 33 LORD, she fell down under Balaam: and ^fBalaam's anger was kindled, and he 34 smote the ass with a staff. And the LORD ^gopened the mouth of the ass, and she

 36 three times? And Balaam said unto the ass, Because thou hast mocked me: I 37 would there were a sword in mine hand,^h for now would I kill thee. ⁱAnd the 38 ass said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, upon which thou hast ridden ever since 39 I was thine unto this day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? And he said, 40 Nay. Then the LORD ^kopened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the 41 LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he ^lbowed 42 down his head, and fell flat on his face. And the angel of the LORD said unto 43 him, Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? behold, I went 44 out to withstand thee, because thy way is ^mperverse ⁿbefore me: and the ass 45 saw me, and turned from me these three times: unless she had turned from me, 46 surely now also I had slain thee, and saved her alive. And Balaam said unto 47 the angel of the LORD, ^oI have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the 48 way against me: now therefore, if it displease thee, I will get me back again.
 49 And the angel of the LORD said unto Balaam, Go with the men:³ ^pbut only the 51 the princes of Balak.

- 52 And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, ^qhe went out to meet him unto 53 a city of Moab, ^rwhich is in the border of Arnon, which is in the utmost coast.
- 54 And Balak said unto Balaam, Did I not earnestly send unto thee to call thee?
 55 wherefore camest thou not unto me? am I not able indeed ^sto promote thee to 56 honour? And Balaam said unto Balak, Lo, I am come unto thee: ^thave I now

¹ The former prohibition of the journey had respect to its avowed and sole object, the cursing of Israel (see vers. 6, 11, 12). Here, while Balaam is permitted to go, the design of the journey is again expressly forbidden; though he doubtless hoped that, having got leave to go, he should in some way gain his own ends. At first, in mercy to Balaam, he is forbidden to take a course that would lead him to destruction; and the permission which he afterwards obtains resembles that which God may be said to give to the determined sinner, when He in anger (ver. 22) removes the obstacles to his crime.

² This is, undoubtedly, a plain narrative of a miraculous event; and is referred to, as such, in 2 Pet. ii. 16.

³ Balaam was evidently going with the secret hope that he might succeed in cursing Israel; and so gratify Balak, and obtain his rewards. As, however, God designed not only that he should not curse, but that he should bless, he is commanded to proceed on his journey.

⁴ Or, 'killed': making a great feast.

⁵ This was the name of the chief Syrian and Phœnician deity; which represented the sun and the vivifying powers of nature. It bore among the Moabites the name Baal-Peor; and its worship here, as at Babylon, was exceedingly obscene. Balaam's expectation that sacrifices offered at such a place could propitiate Jehovah, shows how much superstition may be mixed with some knowledge of the true God.

⁶ A sacred number.

6 Balaam's mouth, and said, Return unto Balak, and thus thou shalt speak. And he returned unto him, and, lo, he stood by his burnt sacrifice, he, and all the 7 princes of Moab. And he ^etook up his parable,¹ and said,

Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from ^fAram,
Out of the mountains of the east, saying,

^gCome, curse me Jacob,—and come, ^hdefy Israel.

8 ⁱHow shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed?

Or how shall I defy, whom the LORD hath not defied?

9 For from the top of the rocks I see him,—and from the hills I behold him:

Lo,² ^hthe people shall dwell alone,³

And ⁱshall not be reckoned among the nations.

10 ^mWho can count the dust of Jacob,—and the number of ⁿthe fourth part of Israel?
Let me die ^othe death of the righteous,—and let my last end be like his!

11 And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done unto me? ^pI took thee to 12 curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether. And he answered and said, ^qMust I not take heed to speak that which the LORD hath 13 put in my mouth? And Balak said unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place, from whence thou mayest see them: thou shalt see but the utmost 14 part of them, and shalt not see them all: and curse me them from thence. And he brought him into the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah [or, the hill], ^rand 15 built seven altars, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar. And he said unto Balak, Stand here by thy burnt offering, while I meet the LORD yonder.
16 And the LORD met Balaam, and ^sput a word in his mouth, and said, Go again 17 unto Balak, and say thus. And when he came to him, behold, he stood by his burnt offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said unto him, 18 What hath the LORD spoken? And he took up his parable, and said, ^tRise up, Balak, and hear;—hearken unto me, thou son of Zippor:

19 ^uGod is not a man, that he should lie;

Neither the son of man, that he should repent:

Hath he said, and shall he not do it?

Or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bless:

And ^xhe hath blessed; and ^yI cannot reverse it.

21 ^zHe⁴ hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob,

Neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel:

^aThe LORD his God is with him,—^band the shout of a king is among them.

22 ^cGod brought them out of Egypt;—he hath as it were ^dthe strength of an unicorn.⁵

23 Surely there is ^eno enchantment against Jacob,

Neither is there any divination against Israel:

According⁶ to this time it shall be said of Jacob,

And of Israel, ^fWhat hath God wrought!

24 Behold, the people shall rise up ^gas a great lion,—and lift up himself as a young lion:

^hHe shall not lie down until he eat of the prey,—and drink the blood of the slain.

25 And Balak said unto Balaam, Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all.

26 But Balaam answered and said unto Balak, Told not I thee, saying, ⁱAll that the LORD speaketh, that I must do?

1 Or, 'poetic prophecy.' The poetical structure of the first clause appears more clearly in the Hebrew, which stands nearly thus:—

'From Aram, Balak hath brought me,
The king of Moab, from the mountains of the east.'

2 The Israelites are pronounced blessed (1) in their separation from other nations; (2) in their multiplied numbers; (3) in their future hopes. The last head pathetically suggests the dismal uncertainty then prevalent among heathen nations concerning the state of man after death, and shows how much light had been thrown upon it by revelation, even before the gospel of Christ 'brought life and immortality to light.' The death of God's people was cheered by the enjoyment of his favour, by satisfaction in reviewing the past, and by bright anticipations of the future destinies of their race: whilst their 'last end'—their after state—was believed to be supremely happy. But Balaam's desire for this was vain; regarding only the end, without any care for the way of attaining it.

M

3 In other passages (see Deut. xxxiii. 28; Jer. xlix. 31) this expression is used in connection with 'in safety.' As long as the Israelites continued separate in spirit and conduct from the heathen, they were preserved in safety from hostile attacks.

4 The Samaritan, Syriac, and all the Targums, render this, 'I have not beheld.' The Targums, with the Septuagint and Vulgate, make the 'iniquity' and 'perverseness' to refer specifically to idolatry. Some critics, however, translate the words thus: 'He will not see (i. e. permit) injury to Jacob, nor allow a plot against Israel.'

5 The Hebrew word 'reem,' here and elsewhere translated 'unicorn,' has been supposed to mean the rhinoceros; but it is more probably the oryx.

6 Perhaps rather, 'Already it is said of Jacob,' etc. Or the whole verse may be rendered thus: 'Surely there is no soothsaying in Jacob; neither is there any divination in Israel: [but] at the [proper] time it is told to Jacob and to Israel what God doth.'

27 And Balak said unto Balaam, ^k Come, I pray thee, I will bring thee unto another place; peradventure it will please God that thou mayest curse me thence.
28 And Balak brought Balaam unto the top of Peor, that looketh
29 ^l toward Jeshimon. And Balaam said ¹ unto Balak, ^m Build me here seven altars, 30 and prepare me here seven bullocks and seven rams. And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

24 And when Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he went not, as at ⁿ other times, to seek for ² enchantments, but he set his face toward the wilderness. And Balaam lifted up his eyes, and he saw Israel ^o abiding in his tents
3 according to their tribes; and ^p the spirit of God came upon him. ^q And he took up his parable, and said,

Balaam the son of Beor hath said,
And the man whose eyes are open [or, who had his eyes shut, but now opened] hath said:

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God,³
^r Which saw the vision of the Almighty,
^s Falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:
5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob!—and thy tabernacles, O Israel!
6 As the valleys are they spread forth,—as gardens by the river's side,
^t As the trees of lign aloes ⁴ which the LORD hath planted,
And as cedar trees beside the waters.
7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets,—and his seed shall be ^x in ⁵ many waters,
And his king shall be higher than ^y Agag,⁶—and his ^z kingdom⁷ shall be exalted.
8 ^a God brought him forth out of Egypt;
He hath as it were the strength of an unicorn:
He shall ^b eat up the nations his enemies,—and shall ^c break their bones,
And ^d pierce them through with his arrows.
9 ^e He couched, he lay down as a lion,—and as a great lion: who shall stir him up?
^f Blessed is he that blesseth thee,—and cursed is he that curseth thee.

10 And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he ^g smote his hands together: and Balak said unto Balaam, ^h I called thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast altogether blessed them these three times. Therefore now flee thou to thy place: ⁱ I thought to promote thee unto great honour; but, lo, the LORD hath kept thee back ⁸ from honour.

12 And Balaam said unto Balak, Spake I not also to thy messengers which thou sentest unto me, saying, ^k If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad of mine own mind; but what the LORD saith, that will I speak? And now, behold, I go unto my people: come therefore, and ^l I will advertise⁹ thee what this people shall do to thy people ^m in the latter days.¹⁰ ⁿ And he took up his parable, and said,

Balaam the son of Beor hath said,—and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

16 He hath said, which heard the words of God,
And knew the knowledge of ^o the Most High,
Which saw the vision of the Almighty,
Falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:
17 ^p I shall see him,¹¹ but not now:—I shall behold him, but not nigh:
There shall come ^q a Star out of Jacob,—and ^r a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel,
^s And shall smite the corners of Moab,—and destroy all the children of Sheth.¹²

1 The whole transaction seems to show that Balaam was unwillingly held back by an inward restraint from complying with Balak's wish.

2 Finding his superstitious rites unavailing, he turned his face at once towards the wilderness, and looked over the Hebrew camp.

3 This is a solemn protestation that he spoke not by enchantment, but by inspiration. So ver. 16.

4 This was probably the agularia agallochum, a highly fragrant tree. See Ps. xlv. 8; John xix. 39.

5 Or, 'by;' or, perhaps, 'as.'

6 The Amalekites, who were probably a Cushite race, had been for some time one of the most powerful predatory tribes of the deserts east and south of Canaan (see Exod. xvii. 8); and their king was naturally much feared. Agag seems to have been the common title of the kings of Amalek. See 1 Sam. xv. 9; Esth. iii. 1, 10; viii. 3.

7 The Targum of Jerusalem substitutes for 'his kingdom,' the kingdom of the Messiah.

8 Pursuing his own selfish designs, Balaam was disappointed of his expected reward; but was made to serve God's purpose in discouraging the enemies of Israel.

9 Or, 'inform;' or, 'advise.'

10 That is, in the distant future, as in Gen. xlix. 1.

11 Or, 'I see it' (i. e. the star), 'but not now; I behold it, but not nigh.' The words 'star' and 'sceptre' clearly refer to a king of Israel; and it must be one who inflicted severe punishments upon Moab and Edom. The subsequent history (2 Sam. viii. 2, 14) shows this to have been David, whose conquests and reign are, in the Bible, representative of those of Messiah.

12 Or, 'children of violence.' This line is quoted, with slight variations, in Jer. xlviii. 45; and the word 'sheth' is there exchanged for a derivative of the same root, having the same meaning: so that it seems not to be a proper name, but to signify violence or tumult.

- 18 And 'Edom shall be a possession,—Seir also shall be a possession for his enemies; And Israel shall do valiantly.
- 19 " Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, And shall destroy him that remaineth of the city.
- 20 And when he looked on Amalek, he took up his parable, and said, Amalek was the first¹ of the nations; * But his latter end shall be that he perish for ever.²
- 21 And he looked on the Kenites,³ and took up his parable, and said, Strong is thy dwelling-place,—and thou puttest thy nest⁴ in a rock.
- 22 Nevertheless ⁵ the Kenite shall be wasted, Until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.
- 23 And he took up his parable, and said, Alas! who shall live⁵ when God doeth this!
- 24 And ⁶ ships shall come from the coast of ⁷ Chittim, And shall afflict Asshur, and shall afflict ⁸ Eber,⁷—and he⁸ also shall perish for ever.
- 25 And Balaam rose up, and went and ⁹ returned to his place:⁹ and Balak also went his way.

Idolatry of the Israelites; punishment of the ringleaders.

- 25 AND Israel abode in 'Shittim, and ¹⁰ the people began to commit whoredom¹⁰ with the daughters of Moab. And ¹¹ they called the people unto ¹² the sacrifices of their gods: and the people did eat, and ¹³ bowed down to their gods. And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor. And ¹⁴ the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel.¹¹ And the LORD said unto Moses, ¹⁵ Take all the heads of the people, and hang them¹² up before the LORD against the sun,¹³ ¹⁶ that the fierce anger of the LORD may be turned away from Israel. And Moses said unto ¹⁷ the judges of Israel, ¹⁸ Slay ye every one his men that were joined unto Baal-peor.
- 6 And, behold, one of the children of Israel came and brought unto his brethren a Midianitish woman in the sight of Moses, and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, ¹⁹ who were weeping before the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And ²⁰ when Phinehas, ²¹ the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose up from among the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand; and he went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel, and the woman through her belly. So ²² the plague was stayed from the children of Israel. And ²³ those that died in the plague were twenty and four thousand.¹⁴
- 10, 11 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ²⁴ Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, while he was zealous for my sake [or, with my zeal¹] among them, that I consumed not the children of Israel in ²⁵ my jealousy. 1 Rather, 'chief,' as in 1 Sam. xv. 21. See ver. 7.

2 Amalek had been devoted to extermination: see refs.

3 See note on ch. xii. 1. The Kenites, except those who, with Hobab, connected themselves with Israel, gradually disappear, being mentioned only in 1 Sam. xv. 6. The Assyrians overran all these countries about the beginning of the Hebrew captivities: see 2 Kings xv. 29.

4 In this word there is a play upon the name Kenite; ken being the Hebrew word for 'nest.'

5 This prophecy probably contemplated the frequent and desolating wars of the Macedonian, Græco-Egyptian, and Græco-Syrian kings, which prepared the way for the Roman conquests.

6 Or, 'For.' 'Chittim' seems to be a general name for the maritime nations of southern Europe.

7 'Eber' means, probably, not the Hebrews alone, but all the Syrians.

8 That is, probably, this last conqueror shall perish. In this prophetic sketch of the destinies of the country through many ages, the subjugation of Moab and Edom, the extermination of Amalek, the disappearance of the Kenites, the overthrow of the Assyrian and Syrian powers, and, finally, the extirpation of the Western invaders, are depicted with wonderful accuracy. And the prediction respecting Israel (vers. 18, 19) indicates the glory and perpetuity of its Divine kingdom.

9 Balaam seems not to have reached Mesopotamia. After being dismissed by Balak he went to the Midianites, who had united with the Moabites in bringing him from his own country (see ch. xxii. 4, 7); and with them he was slain (ch. xxxi. 8), leaving a name which has become a by-word in the world.

10 The close connection between idolatry and licentiousness, so clearly shown in this narrative, illustrates the propriety of the bold figures of some of the prophets (as in Ezek. xvi., etc.), and of the frequent use of the same word to designate both sins. We learn from ch. xxxi. 16, and Rev. ii. 14, that Balaam suggested to Balak the use of these temptations in order to weaken the Israelites.

11 Israel's sin did that which all Balaam's enchantments could not do—it brought God's anger upon them.

12 This means, not the heads or chiefs, but the idolaters. The chiefs were to execute the sentence.

13 That is, during the day. The bodies of criminals were to be taken down at sunset (Deut. xxi. 23).

14 As in 1 Cor. x. 8 we read twenty-three thousand, it has been supposed that the other thousand were put to death by the chiefs or judges. Perhaps the whole number might be between twenty-three and twenty-four thousand.

15 Or, 'favour.' This promise was remarkably fulfilled; as the high priesthood continued in his family up to the time of Christ, with the exception of a short period when Eli and his family held the office, probably in consequence of some personal disqualification of the right heir. See 1 Sam. i.; 1 Kings ii. 27; and 1 Chron. vi. 4—8, compared with xxiv. 3, 6.

 of the Israelite that was slain, even that was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri, the son of Salu, a prince of a chief house among the Simeonites.
 15 And the name of the Midianitish woman that was slain was Cozbi, the daughter of ^cZur: he was head over a people, and of a chief house in Midian.
 16, 17 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^dVex the Midianites, and smite 18 them: for they vex you with their ^ewiles, wherewith they have beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, their sister, which was slain in the day of the plague for Peor's sake.

1 The plague mentioned in the preceding chapter seems to have swept away the last remains of that perverse generation whose sins had provoked the sentence that they should not enter Canaan.

2 From this second census it appears that the nation, which forty years before was increasing rapidly, had by this time been diminished by more than a thousand full-grown males. The change from a settled to a wandering life would not have effected this, without those remarkable plagues by which God punished their repeated sins. This decrease, however, was confined to five of the tribes; and in some of them it appears to have been connected with recorded facts in their history. While the three tribes composing the camp of Judah had all increased, those in the camp of Reuben, in which the conspiracy of Dathan and Abiram had been formed, had all diminished. The tribe of Simeon, included in this division (whose decrease is the greatest of all), had probably been greatly implicated in the recent idolatry, after the example of its prince (ch. xxv. 14); and appears never to have recovered from its depression, but to have subsequently become almost merged in the tribe of Judah. The following table exhibits the numbers of men twenty years old and upward in the several tribes, at each numbering, with their increase and decrease during the interval:—

¹ Whilst the foregoing law, with perfect justice, apportioned the extent of territory to the numbers of the several tribes, there might still be room for jealousy with regard to location. God now directs that the locality of each should be decided by an appeal to him by the lot.

² Some suppose that the tribe of Levi (which was not numbered with the rest at Mount Sinai, but by itself) of Gershon, the family of the Gershonites: of Kohath, the family of the Kohath-58 ites: of Merari, the family of the Merarites. These are the families of the Levites: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, the family of the Korathites. And 59 Kohath begat Amram. And the name of Amram's wife was ² Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, whom her mother bare to Levi in Egypt: and she bare unto 60 Amram Aaron and Moses, and Miriam their sister. ^a And unto Aaron was born 61 Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. And ^b Nadab and Abihu died, when 62 they offered strange fire before the LORD. ^c And those that were numbered of them were twenty and three thousand, all males from a month old and upward:

^d for they were not numbered among the children of Israel, because there was ^e no inheritance given them among the children of Israel.
 63 These are they that were numbered by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who numbered the children of Israel ^f in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.
 64 ^g But among these there was not a man of them whom Moses and Aaron the priest numbered, when they numbered the children of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai.
 65 For the LORD had said of them, They ^h shall surely die in the wilderness. And there was not left a man of them, ⁱ save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

Law respecting the inheritance of daughters.

27 THEN came the daughters¹ of ^k Zelophehad, the son of Hephher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of Manasseh, the son of Joseph: and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Noah, and Hoglah, 2 and Milcah, and Tirzah. And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the princes and all the congregation, by the door of the tabernacle of the 3 congregation, saying, Our father ^l died in the wilderness, and he was not in the company of them that gathered themselves together against the LORD ^m in the 4 company of Korah; but died ⁿ in his own² sin, and had no sons. ^o Why should the name of our father be done away from among his family, because he hath no son? ^p Give unto us therefore a possession among the brethren of our father.
 5, 6 And Moses ^q brought their cause before the LORD. And the LORD spake unto 7 Moses, saying, The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: ^r thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt 8 cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them. And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall 9 cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter. And if he have no daughter, 10 then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren. And if he have no brethren, 11 then ye shall give his inheritance unto his father's brethren. And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his ^s kinsman that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel ^t a statute of judgment, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Moses warned of his death, and Joshua appointed to succeed him.

12 AND the LORD said unto Moses, "Get thee up into this mount Abarim,³ and 13 see the land which I have given unto the children of Israel. And when thou hast seen it, thou also ^x shalt be gathered unto thy people, ^y as Aaron thy brother was 14 gathered. For ye ^z rebelled against my commandment in the desert of Zin, in the strife of the congregation, to sanctify me at the water before their eyes: that is the ^a water of Meribah in Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin.
 15, 16 And Moses spake unto the LORD, saying, Let the LORD, ^b the God of the 17 spirits of all flesh, set a man over the congregation, ^c which may go out before them, and which may go in before them, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the LORD be not ^d as sheep which have no shepherd.

18 And the LORD said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man ^e in did not come under the sentence that none of that generation should enter Canaan. Eleazar and Ithamar, and perhaps some others of the Levites, are supposed to have been of that generation, and yet to have entered Canaan. See Josh. xvii. 4; xxiv. 33.

¹ By the custom of the nations with which the Hebrews were connected, daughters appear to have been deprived of all share in the paternal inheritance; which, when there was no son, went to the nearest kinsman (vers. 9—11) in the male line. This case gave occasion for an improvement, by the enactment of a law which divided the inheritance among daughters, if there were no sons, making their children the genealogical representatives of their father's house. Subsequently, in ch. xxxvi., such heiresses are required to marry only into their own tribe, to prevent the alienation of any of its territory.

² Having been guilty of no offence which attainted his family: but having died in the common course of nature. It is remarkable that the failure of sons should have been so rare as to be mentioned only in this instance.

³ 'Abarim' was the name of the mountain-ridge on the east of Jordan and the Dead Sea. See Deut. xxxiv. 1, and note. It appears from Deut. iii. 23—28, that Moses petitioned again to be permitted to go over Jordan; and, when his request was refused, meekly ^y set his house in order.'

The daily sacrifice, and the offerings for the sabbaths and festivals.

28 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,² Command the children of Israel, ²and say unto them, My offering, and ^omy bread³ for my sacrifices made by fire, for ^pa sweet savour unto me, shall ye observe to offer unto me in their due season.
 3 And thou shalt say unto them, ^qThis is the offering made by fire which ye shall offer unto the LORD; two lambs of the first year without spot day by day, for a 4 continual burnt offering. The one lamb shalt thou offer in the morning, and the 5 other lamb shalt thou offer at even [between the two evenings^r]; and ^sa tenth part of an ephah of flour for a ^tmeat offering, mingled with the fourth part of an
 6 ^uhin of beaten oil. It is ^va continual burnt offering, which was ^wordained in 7 mount Sinai for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD. And the drink offering thereof shall be the fourth part of an hin for the one lamb: ^xin the holy place shalt thou cause the strong⁴ wine to be poured unto the LORD for a 8 drink offering. And the other lamb shalt thou offer at even: as the meat offering of the morning, and as the drink offering thereof, thou shalt offer it, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.
 9 And on the sabbath day two⁵ lambs of the first year without spot, and two tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, and the drink offering thereof. This is ^athe burnt offering of every sabbath, beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.
 11 And ^bin the beginnings of your months ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, seven lambs of the first year without spot; and ^cthree tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, for one bullock; and two tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, for one
 13 ram; and a several tenth deal of flour mingled with oil for a meat offering unto one lamb; for a burnt offering of a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the 14 LORD. And their drink offerings shall be half an hin of wine unto a bullock, and the third part of an hin unto a ram, and a fourth part of an hin unto a lamb. This is the burnt offering of every month throughout the months of the year.
 15 And ^done kid of the goats for a sin offering unto the LORD shall be offered, beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.
 16 ^eAnd in the fourteenth day of the first month is the passover of the LORD.
 17 ^fAnd in the fifteenth day of this month is the feast: seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten. In the ^gfirst day shall be an holy convocation; ye shall do no
 19 manner of servile work therein: but ye shall offer a sacrifice made by fire for a burnt offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, and seven

 23 make an atonement for you. Ye shall offer these beside the burnt offering in the 24 morning, which is for a continual burnt offering. After this manner ye shall offer daily, throughout the seven days, the meat of the sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; it shall be offered beside the continual burnt
 25 offering, and his drink offering. And ^kon the seventh day ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work.

¹ That is, a special communication of his Divine influences. The distinction between Moses and Joshua is strongly marked. Joshua is to receive his honour and charge from Moses, and to have Divine instructions given to him through the medium of the high priest; not, like Moses, directly from God.

² The feasts and offerings to which the following directions relate having been before enjoined, some have thought that their observance had been interrupted, or at least partially neglected, in the desert, and that they were now reappointed. See Amos v. 25; Acts vii. 42. Besides, these directions were given to a new generation, who were children when the former laws were given.

³ Or, 'my food for sacrifices made by fire.' So ver. 24.

⁴ That is, of the best quality. We are to serve God with the best we have.

⁵ Probably two in addition to the daily offerings specified immediately before. The regular observance of these rites on the sabbath would help to keep this holy institution in constant remembrance. See Ezek. xlv. 4, 5.

- 26 Also 'in the day of the firstfruits, when ye bring a new meat offering unto the LORD, after your weeks be out, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work: but ye shall offer the burnt offering for a sweet savour unto the LORD; ^m two young bullocks, one ram, seven lambs of the first year; and their meat offering of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals unto one bullock, two tenth deals unto one ram, a several tenth deal unto one lamb, throughout the seven lambs; and one kid of the goats, to make an atonement for you. ¹ The days of holy convocation, mentioned in this and the preceding chapter, would concur with the weekly sabbath in promoting the knowledge of God, and an attention to his prescribed services.

Law respecting vows.

- 30 AND Moses spake unto ^fthe heads of the tribes concerning the children of
- 2 Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded. ^gIf a man
- vow¹ a vow unto the LORD, or ^hswear an oath to bind his soul with a bond ; he shall not break [*profane*ⁱ] his word, he shall ^kdo according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth.
- 3 If a woman also vow² a vow unto the LORD, and bind herself by a bond, being
- 4 in her father's house in her youth ; and her father hear her vow, and her bond wherewith she hath bound her soul, and her father shall hold his peace at her ; then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she hath bound her
- 5 soul shall stand. But if her father disallow her in the day that he heareth ; not any of her vows, or of her bonds wherewith she hath bound her soul, shall stand : and the LORD shall forgive her, because her father disallowed her.
- 6 And if she had at all an husband, when she vowed, or uttered aught out of her
- 7 lips, wherewith she bound her soul ; and her husband heard it, and held his peace at her in the day that he heard it : then her vows shall stand, and her
- 8 bonds wherewith she bound her soul shall stand. But if her husband ^ldisallowed her on the day that he heard it ; then he shall make her vow which she vowed, and that which she uttered with her lips, wherewith she bound her soul, of none effect : and the LORD shall forgive her.
- 9 But every vow of ^ma widow, and of her that is divorced, wherewith they have bound their souls, shall stand against her.
- 10 And if she vowed in her husband's house, or bound her soul by a bond with an
- 11 oath ; and her husband heard it, and held his peace at her, and disallowed her not : then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she bound her
- 12 soul shall stand. But if her husband hath utterly made them void on the day he heard them ; then whatsoever proceeded out of her lips concerning her vows, or concerning the bond of her soul, shall not stand : ⁿher husband hath made them
- 13 void ; and ^othe LORD shall forgive her. Every vow, and every binding oath to afflict the soul, her husband may establish it, or her husband may make it void.
- 14 But if her husband altogether hold his peace at her from day to day ; then he establisheth all her vows, or all her bonds, which are upon her : he confirmeth
- 15 them, because he held his peace at her in the day that he heard them. But if he shall any ways make them void after that he hath heard them ; then he shall bear her iniquity.
- 16 These are the statutes, which the LORD commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, between the father and his daughter, being yet in her youth in her father's house.

Conquest of Midian.

- 31 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ^pAvenge the children of Israel of
- 2 the Midianites : ^qafterward shalt thou ^rbe gathered unto thy people.

^p ch. 25. 17, 18 ; Nah. 1. 2.
^q ch. 27. 13.

¹ The matter of the vow is supposed to be something lawful ; but which, at least in some measure, was not a duty before the vow was made.

² The rest of this chapter regulates the vows of women, so as to preserve the rights of fathers and husbands ; and, at the same time, to set reasonable bounds to their interference.

³ As the Midianites were not a Canaanitish nation, they would not have been molested if they had not seduced the Israelites into sin.

3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, Arm some of yourselves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge the LORD of Midian.
 4 Of every tribe ^ra thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to 5 the war. So there were delivered ¹ out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of 6 every tribe, twelve thousand armed for war. And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand of every tribe, them and Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, to the war, with the holy instruments, and ² the trumpets to blow in his hand.
 7 And they warred against the Midianites, as the LORD commanded Moses; and 8 they slew all the ^umales.³ And they slew the kings of Midian, beside the rest of them that were slain; namely, ^xÉvi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: ^yBalaam⁴ also the son of Beor they slew with the 9 sword. And the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and 10 all their goods. And they burnt all their cities wherein they dwelt, and all 11 their goodly castles, with fire. And ^zthey took all the spoil, and all the prey,⁵ 12 both of men and of beasts. And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, unto Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and unto the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the camp at the plains of Moab, which are by Jordan near Jericho.
 13 And Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and all the princes of the congregation, 14 went forth to meet them without the camp. And Moses was wroth with the officers of the host, with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, 15 which came from the battle. And Moses said unto them, Have ye saved ^aall 16 the women alive? Behold, ^bthese caused the children of Israel, through the ^ccounsel of Balaam, to commit trespass against the LORD in the matter of Peor, 17 and ^dthere was a plague among the congregation of the LORD. Now therefore ^ekill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman⁶ that hath known 18 man by lying with him. But all the women children, that have not known a 19 man by lying with him, ^fkeep alive for yourselves. And ^gdo ye abide without the camp seven days: ⁷whosoever hath killed any person, and ^hwhosoever hath touched any slain, purify both yourselves and your captives on the third day, 20 and on the seventh day. And purify all your raiment, and all that is made of skins, and all work of goats' hair, and all things made of wood.
 21 And Eleazar the priest said unto the men of war which went to the battle, 22 This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD commanded Moses; only the 23 gold, and the silver, the brass, the iron, the tin, and the lead, every thing that may abide the fire, ye shall make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean:
 nevertheless it shall be purified ⁱwith the water of separation: and all that 24 abideth not the fire ye shall make go through the water. ^kAnd ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and ye shall be clean, and afterwards ye shall come into the camp.
 25, 26 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Take the sum of the prey that was taken, both of man and of beast, thou, and Eleazar the priest, and the chief 27 fathers of the congregation: and ^ldivide the prey into two parts; between them that took the war upon them, who went out to battle, and between all the con-28 gregation: and levy ^ma tribute unto the LORD of the men of war which went out to battle: ⁿone soul of five hundred, both of the persons, and of the beeves, 29 and of the asses, and of the sheep: take it of their half, and give it unto Eleazar 30 the priest, for an heave offering of the LORD. And of the children of Israel's half, thou shalt take ^oone portion of fifty, of the persons, of the beeves, of the asses, and of the flocks, of all manner of beasts, and ^pgive them unto the Levites, 31 ^qwhich keep the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD. And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

² Rather, 'with the holy instruments even the trumpets,' which were to be taken to battle.

³ This seems to have affected only the tribes in that neighbourhood; as the Midianites are afterwards mentioned as a powerful nation (Judg. vi.)

⁴ He who had instigated the sin most justly shared the punishment.

⁵ A distinction appears to be made between the spoil and the prey: the former (which was perhaps taken from the persons of the slain) being retained by the soldiers; the latter being divided into halves, of which the soldiers had one, and the rest of the people the other;

and a five-hundredth part being offered from the soldiers' portion, and a fiftieth from the people's, to the Lord. Thus, those who had the toil and danger justly received the larger share. See 1 Sam. xxx. 24.

⁷ This law, which subjected the victor to a whole week's separation, and to special purifications, instead of welcoming him instantly on his return from battle, would tend greatly to discountenance the practice of war among the Hebrews, and gradually to elevate their tone of feeling above that of other nations. See 1 Chron. xxviii. 3.

33 six hundred thousand and seventy thousand and five thousand sheep, and three-34 score and twelve thousand beeves, and threescore and one thousand asses, and 35 thirty and two thousand¹ persons in all, of women that had not known man by lying with him.

36 And the half, which was the portion of them that went out to war, was in number three hundred thousand and seven and thirty thousand and five hundred 37 sheep: and the LORD's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and threescore and 38 fifteen. And the beeves were thirty and six thousand; of which the LORD's 39 tribute was threescore and twelve. And the asses were thirty thousand and five 40 hundred; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and one. And the persons were sixteen thousand; of which the LORD's tribute was thirty and two persons.
41 And Moses gave the tribute, which was the LORD's heave offering, unto Eleazar the priest, ^ras the LORD commanded Moses.

^r see ch. 18. 8, 19.

42 And of the children of Israel's half, which Moses divided from the men that 43 warred, (now the half that pertained unto the congregation was three hundred 44 thousand and thirty thousand and seven thousand and five hundred sheep, and 45 thirty and six thousand beeves, and thirty thousand asses and five hundred, and 46 sixteen thousand persons;) even ^sof the children of Israel's half, Moses took one 47 portion of fifty, both of man and of beast, and gave them unto the Levites, which kept the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

^s ver. 30.

48 And the officers which were over thousands of the host, the captains of thou-49 sands, and captains of hundreds, came near unto Moses: and they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our 50 charge, and there lacketh not one man of us. We have therefore brought 'an oblation for the LORD, what every man hath gotten, of jewels of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, earrings, and tablets, ^uto make an atonement for our souls before 51 the LORD. And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, even all 52 wrought jewels. And all the gold of the offering that they offered up to the LORD, of the captains of thousands, and of the captains of hundreds, was sixteen 53 thousand seven hundred and fifty² shekels. (For ^xthe men of war had taken 54 spoil, every man for himself.) And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, ^yfor a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD.

² Amounting to nearly £38,000 of our money.

⁴ Now Jebel Ajlun, extending from Jazer to Bashan: the south of this, with the north of Jazer, was given to the tribe of Gad. The divisions of the grazing districts were probably not very accurately defined.

⁵ This proposal appears selfish and unbelieving, and the reply of Moses was most just and fair. Whether the two tribes had originally intended to send on their warriors to aid their brethren in subduing Canaan does not appear; but, if it were so, that essential condition should have been stated at the outset.

wilderness forty years, until "all the generation that had done evil in the sight 14 of the LORD was consumed. And, behold, ye are risen up in your fathers' stead, an increase of sinful men, to augment yet the fierce anger of the LORD toward 15 Israel. For if ye ^pturn away from after him, he will yet again leave them in the wilderness; and ye shall destroy all this people.

16 And they came near unto him, and said, We will build sheepfolds here for our 17 cattle, and cities for our little ones: but ^qwe ourselves will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place: and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities because of the inhabitants of the 18 land. ^rWe will not return unto our houses, until the children of Israel have 19 inherited every man his inheritance. For we will not inherit with them on yonder side Jordan, or forward; ^sbecause our inheritance is fallen to us ^ton this side Jordan eastward.

20 And ^uMoses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before 21 the LORD to war, and will go all of you armed over Jordan before the LORD, 22 until he hath driven out his enemies from before him, and ^vthe land be subdued before the LORD: then afterward ^wye shall return, and be guiltless before the LORD, and before Israel; and ^xthis land shall be your possession before the 23 LORD. But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and 24 be sure ^yyour sin will find you out.¹ ^bBuild you cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep; and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth.

25 And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben spake unto Moses, saying,
26 Thy servants will do as my lord commandeth. ^cOur little ones, our wives, our flocks, 27 and all our cattle, shall be there in the cities of Gilead: ^dbut thy servants will pass over, every man armed for war, before the LORD to battle, as my lord saith.

28 So ^econcerning them Moses commanded Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the 29 son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel: and Moses said unto them, If the children of Gad and the children of Reuben will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battle, before the LORD, and the land shall be subdued before you; then ye shall give them the land of Gilead 30 for a possession: but if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have 31 possession among you in the land of Canaan. And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben answered, saying, As the LORD hath said unto thy servants, 32 so will we do. We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side Jordan may be ours.

33 And ^fMoses gave unto them, even to the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, and unto ^ghalf the tribe of Manasseh² the son of Joseph, ^hthe kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land, with the cities thereof in the coasts, even the cities of the country round about.

34, 35 And the children of Gad built³ ⁱDibon, and Ataroth, and ^kAroer, and Atroth, 36 Shopan, and ^lJaazer, and Jogbehah, and ^mBeth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, ⁿfenced cities: and folds for sheep.

37 And the children of Reuben ^obuilt Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim, and 38 ^pNebo, and ^qBaal-meon, (^rtheir names being changed,⁴) and Shibmah: and gave other names unto the cities which they builded.

39 And the children of ^sMachir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it, 40 and dispossessed the Amorite which was in it. And Moses ^tgave Gilead unto 41 Machir the son of Manasseh; and he dwelt therein. And ^uJair⁵ the son of Manasseh went and took the small towns thereof, and called them ^vHavoth-jair.
42 And Nobah went and took Kenath, and the villages thereof, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

The encampments of the Israelites recapitulated.

² This tribe was numerous, and the country east of Jordan was disproportionately large for two tribes. Hence, half of Manasseh was included in the arrangement. These tribes on the east of Jordan, which were first settled, were among the first to be displaced and carried into exile by the Assyrians: see 2 Kings xv. 29.

² The Canaanites were excepted from the ordinary laws of war, and were to be utterly exterminated. (See note at the end of Joshua, p. 244.) The commands which follow teach the important lesson, that all temptations and incitements to sin must be resolutely kept at the furthest possible distance from us. The danger of neglecting this is illustrated by the sad defections of the Israelites.

³ Or, 'figures:' perhaps other representations than those of idols, but having unhallowed associations. These, especially when exquisitely finished by art, tend to familiarize the mind with heathenish ideas and sentiments.

And ^mye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families: and to the more ye shall give the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall give the less inheritance: every man's inheritance shall be ⁿin the place where his lot falleth; according to the tribes 55 of your fathers ye shall inherit. But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you; then it shall come to pass, that those which ye let remain of them shall be ^opricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall 56 vex you in the land wherein ye dwell. Moreover it shall come to pass, that ^pI shall do unto you, as I thought to do unto them.

34 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Command the children of Israel, and 2 say unto them, When ye come into ^qthe land of Canaan; (this is the land that shall fall unto you for an inheritance, even the land of Canaan with the coasts thereof:)

7 And this shall be your north border: from the Great Sea ye shall point out for 8 you ^amount Hor:⁵ from mount Hor ye shall point out your border ^bunto the 9 entrance of Hamath; and the goings forth of the border shall be to ^cZedad: and the border shall go on to Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at ^dHazar-enan: this shall be your north border.

13 And Moses commanded the children of Israel, saying, ^hThis is the land which ye shall inherit by lot, which the LORD commanded to give unto the nine tribes, 14 and to the half tribe: ⁱfor the tribe of the children of Reuben according to the house of their fathers, and the tribe of the children of Gad according to the house of their fathers, have received their inheritance; and half the tribe of 15 Manasseh have received their inheritance: the two tribes and the half tribe have received their inheritance on this side Jordan near Jericho eastward, toward the sunrising.

16, 17 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, These are the names of the men which shall divide the land unto you: ^kEleazar the priest, and Joshua the son 18 of Nun. And ye shall take one ^lprince of every tribe, to divide the land by 19 inheritance. And the names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb 20 the son of Jephunneh. And 22 the prince of the tribe of the children of Dan, Bukki the son of Jogli. The 23 prince of the children of Joseph, for the tribe of the children of Manasseh, 24 Hanniel the son of Ephod.  of the cities, which ye shall give unto the Levites, shall reach from the

that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheri-

9, 10 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ^s When ye be come over Jordan into the land of Canaan;
 11 then 'ye shall appoint you cities to be cities of refuge for you; that the slayer

 Israel, and ^a for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them: that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither.

16 ^b And if he smite him with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer:
 17 the murderer shall surely be put to death. And if he smite him with throwing a stone, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall 18 surely be put to death. Or if he smite him with an hand weapon of wood, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely 19 be put to death. ^c The revenger of blood himself shall slay the murderer: when 20 he meeteth him, he shall slay him. But ^d if he thrust him of hatred, or hurl at 21 him ^e by laying of wait, that he die; or in enmity smite him with his hand, that he die: he that smote him shall surely be put to death; for he is a murderer:
 the revenger of blood shall slay the murderer, when he meeteth him.

22 But if he thrust him suddenly ^f without enmity, or have cast upon him any 23 thing without laying of wait, or with any stone, wherewith a man may die, seeing him not, and cast it upon him, that he die, and was not his enemy, neither sought 24 his harm: then ^g the congregation shall judge between the slayer and the revenger 25 of blood according to these judgments: and the congregation shall deliver the slayer out of the hand of the revenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he was fled: and ^h he shall abide in it unto the death of the high priest, ⁱ which was anointed with the holy oil.

26 But if the slayer shall at any time come without the border of the city of his borders of the city of his refuge, and the revenger of blood kill the slayer; he 28 shall not be guilty of blood: because ^k he should have remained in the city of his refuge until the death of the high priest. But after the death of the high priest the slayer shall return into the land of his possession.

29 So these things shall be for ^l a statute of judgment unto you throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

¹ For these, see Josh. ch. xxi. By the cities of the Levites being distributed over the land, the whole country might have had the benefit of their religious instructions.

² This merciful law imposed a salutary check upon the ancient custom of blood-revenge, which unhappily still prevails in the East. The unintentional manslayer was safe, in his refuge, from the avenger; though subject to some restrictions, which would tend to enhance the value of human life. On the other hand, the murderer was subjected to the disgrace of a judicial condemnation; and could not, either by pecuniary compensation or by any other means, purchase exemption from punishment, as would have been allowed among other nations. The cities of refuge have commonly been represented as typical of Christ: whether they were so or not, they were at least remarkably illustrative of the safety which believers enjoy in Him. The cities afterwards appointed were so situated, that from every part of the land one or other of them was easily accessible.

- 31 die. Moreover ⁿ ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, which is 32 guilty of death: but he shall be surely put to death. ^o And ye shall take no satisfaction for him that is fled to the city of his refuge, that he should come again to dwell in the land, until the death of the priest.
 33 So ye shall not pollute the land wherein ye are: for blood ^p it defileth the land: and the land cannot be cleansed [there can be no expiation for the land] 34 of the blood that is shed therein, but ^q by the blood of him that shed it. ^r Defile not therefore the land which ye shall inhabit, wherein I dwell: for ^s I the LORD dwell among the children of Israel.

 the LORD to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother unto his daughters.
 3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so 4 shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance. And when ^y the jubilee of the children of Israel shall be, then shall their inheritance be put unto the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.
 5 And Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the 6 LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph ^z hath said well. This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them marry to whom they think best; ^a only to the family of the 7 tribe of their fathers shall they marry. So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe: for every one of the children of 8 Israel shall ^b keep himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers. And ^c every daughter that possesseth an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father, that the 9 children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers. Neither shall the inheritance remove from one tribe to another tribe; but every one of the tribes of the children of Israel shall keep himself to his own inheritance.
 10 Even as the LORD commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad:
 11 ^d for Mahlah, Tirzah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of 12 Zelophehad, were married unto their father's brothers' sons: and they were married into the families of the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father.
 13 These are the commandments and the judgments, which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses unto the children of Israel ^e in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

THE FIFTH BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED DEUTERONOMY.

THIS book is a repetition of much, both of the history and of the laws, contained in the three foregoing books; and was delivered to the Israelites by Moses, both orally and in writing, in the second month of the fortieth year of their wanderings in the wilderness. The Greek title 'Deuteronomy' signifies the second law (or, 'the law repeated'); as this is a second edition of the law, with additions adapted to the state of the people now just entering the promised land, and preparatory to the further developments which God was about to make of his purposes; and with explanations illustrating the holiness of heart which the law required, and inculcating the spirit in which its services and worship must be performed. This solemn reiteration of the law at this time was the more necessary as the race of men to whom it was first given were all dead, and a new one had sprung up.

The various mercies which God had bestowed upon them and their forefathers, from their departure out of Egypt, are recapitulated; the people are reminded of their disobedience, ingratitude, and chastisements; and the law, both in its letter and spirit, is repeated, expatiated upon, and enforced by every variety of argument and motive. On the one hand, prosperity, happiness, and honour—both individual and national—are promised upon obedience: and, on the other, the miseries are foretold which should follow their apostasy—their plagues, captivities, and dispersions; their extreme sufferings when besieged; the desolation of their land; their degradation and oppressions; and their present condition, as exhibited to our own observation:—and to these predictions are added promises of abundant mercy and blessing, upon repentance.

Such are the general outlines of this book: and, as it must have been exceedingly useful to those to whom it was primarily addressed, so will it prove to us, if, comparing the history here recited with God's dispensations towards ourselves, both in temporal and in spiritual things, and our conduct towards Him, we apply the exhortations and persuasions to our own consciences, to excite our minds to believing and grateful obedience.

The contents of this book (which is itself a kind of analysis of the three preceding books), are arranged by Diodati under three general heads:—

I. An introduction, or preface, adapted to gain attention from the people: 1. Commemorating the blessings conferred on them; both in peace, by the gift of a wise and religious magistracy (ch. i.), and in war, by making them victorious over the kings of Heshbon and Bashan (ii., iii.) 2. Describing the precious law given to them, as to its Author, its miraculous promulgation, its subject-matter, and the benefits which would redound to them by its observance (iv. 1—40).

II. The second part contains, 1. The main principles of religion in the ten commandments (iv. 44—49, v.); followed by a declaration of the end of the law—obedience; with an exhortation thereto (vi.), and dissuatives from those things which would hinder their obedience—viz., intercourse with heathen nations (vii.), forgetfulness of God's mercies (viii.), and self-righteousness; to beat down which Moses reminds them of their own frequent rebellions, murmurings, and provocations, and of God's free and undeserved grace and love towards them (ix., x. 1—11). 2. Practical exhortations deduced from these principles, introduced by an earnest and impressive appeal (x. 12—22, xi.) These chiefly concern the worship of God—as to its proper place and manner (xii.); the avoiding and punishing seducers to idolatry (xiii.); the guarding against legal uncleanness (xiv. 1—21); and the times and seasons of worship, including the sabbatical year (xv.) and the annual festivals (xvi. 1—17): and the conduct of men; either in civil (xvi. 18—22, xvii.) or in ecclesiastical authority (xviii.); or universally considered in their several duties to God and man, in many laws—moral, judicial, and ceremonial (xix.—xxvi.)

III. The conclusion, which, after enjoining a solemn repetition of the law (xxvii.), is, 1. Exhortatory: persuading to obedience—by promises of blessings, and by denouncement of curses (xxviii.); by the remembrance of the great things which God had done for them; by the obligation of a solemn covenant (xxix.); and by encouragements to repentance (xxx.) 2. Historical: Moses resigns his charge to Joshua, and delivers the law to the priests (xxxi. 1—21); composes a prophetic song, which he delivers to the people (xxxi. 22—30, xxxii.); pronounces a blessing upon the tribes, each in particular (xxxiii.); views the promised land, into which he must not enter; dies and is buried (xxxiv.)

Moses' address to the people, reviewing the history of their journeys; with exhortations, warnings, and promises.

1 THESE be the words¹ which Moses spake unto all Israel^a on this side Jordan² in the wilderness, in the plain over against the Red Sea³ [or, Zuph], between
2 Paran, and Tophel, and Laban, and Hazeroth, and Dizahab. (There are eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of mount Seir⁴ ^b unto Kadesh-barnea.)
3 And it came to pass^c in the fortieth year, in the eleventh⁵ month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spake unto the children of Israel, according unto all that
4 the LORD had given him in commandment unto them; ^d after he had slain Sihon the king of the Amorites, which dwelt in Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, which dwelt at Astaroth^e in Edrei.
5 On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses to declare this law,
6 saying,—The LORD our God spake unto us^f in Horeb, saying, Ye have dwelt long
7 ^g enough in this mount: turn you, and take your journey, and go to the mount of the Amorites, and unto all the places nigh thereunto, in the plain, in the hills, and in the vale, and in the south, and by the sea side, to the land of the Canaan-
8 ites, and unto Lebanon, unto the great river, the river Euphrates. Behold, I have set the land before you: go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers, ^h Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give unto them and to their seed after them.
9 And ⁱ I spake unto you at that time, saying, I am not able to bear you myself
10 alone: the LORD your God hath multiplied you, and, behold, ^k ye are this day as 11 the stars of heaven for multitude. (^l The LORD God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, and bless you, ^m as he hath promised you!)
12 ⁿ How can I myself alone bear your cumberance, and your burden, and your strife?
13 ^o Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I
14 will make them rulers over you. And ye answered me, and said, The thing
15 which thou hast spoken is good for us to do. So I took the chief of your tribes,

1 As this book is chiefly a recapitulation of the history and laws before recorded (to which references are made in the margin), the following notes will be confined to subjects not previously noticed. Some of these appear to be adaptations of the law to the improved character of the people, who were better prepared to submit to its spiritual precepts than their fathers had been; whilst others were probably explanations, arising out of particular events which had occurred.

2 Or, rather, 'near the passage of Jordan.'

3 The word 'Sea' is not in the original, which has only 'Zuph,' or rather 'Suph.' Perhaps the place intended is Suph, or Suphah (Numb. xxi. 14, marg. reading). But it is more probable that the sentences should be differently divided, and that vers. 1 and 2 should be read thus:— 'These be the words which Moses spake unto all Israel at the passage of Jordan. By the wilderness along the Arabah in front of the Red Sea, between Paran, and between Tophel and Laban (Libnah, Numb. xxxiii. 20), and Hazeroth and Di-zahab, there are eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of Mount Seir to Kadesh-barnea.' Some commentators would place ver. 2 after ver. 19; considering it to have no connection with vers. 1 and 3. But if the passage be read as above, it appears like an exact specification of the short, natural route from Horeb to Canaan, put in direct contrast with the place, 'near the Jordan,' and the time, 'the fortieth year,' at which the following words were spoken; and it was calculated to call to mind the sin of the Israelites which had so greatly prolonged their journey.

4 There is another route, not along the plain of the Arabah and by Mount Seir, but over the high ground to the west.

5 Of the sacred year—about February.

wise men, and known,^p and made them heads over you, ^q captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers among your tribes. And I charged your judges at that time, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren, and ^r judge righteously between every man and his ^s brother, and the stranger that is with him. ^t Ye shall not respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ^u ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for ^v the judgment is God's:¹ and the cause that is too hard for you, ^w bring it unto me, and I will hear it. And I commanded you at that time all the things which ye should do.

19 And when we departed from Horeb, ^x we went through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us; and ^y we came to Kadesh-barnea. And I said unto you, Ye are come unto the mountain of the Amorites, which the LORD our God doth give unto us. Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; ^z fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, ^a We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come. And the saying pleased me well: and ^b I took twelve men of you, one of a tribe: and ^c they turned and went up into the mountain, and came unto the valley of Eschol, and searched it out. And they took of the fruit of the land in their hands, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, ^d It is a good land which the LORD our God doth give us.

26 ^e Notwithstanding ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God: and ye ^f murmured in your tents, and said, Because the LORD ^g hated us, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us. Whither shall we go up? our brethren ^h have discouraged our heart, saying, ⁱ The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great and walled up to heaven; and moreover we have seen the sons of the ^j Anakims there.

29, 30 Then I said unto you, Dread not, neither be afraid of them. ^k The LORD your God which goeth before you, he shall fight for you, ^l according to all that he did for you in Egypt before your eyes; and in the ^m wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God ⁿ bare² thee, as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

32, 33 Yet in this thing ^o ye did not believe the LORD your God, ^p who went in the way before you, ^q to search you out a place to pitch your tents in, in fire by night, to show you by what way ye should go, and in a cloud by day.

34 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, ^r and sware, saying, ^s Surely there shall not one of these men of this evil generation see that good land, which I sware to give unto your fathers, ^t save Caleb the son of Jephunneh; he shall see it, and to him will I give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because ^u he hath wholly followed the LORD. ^v Also the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, saying, Thou also shalt not go in thither: ^w but Joshua the son of Nun, ^x which standeth before thee, he shall go in thither: ^y encourage him: for he shall cause Israel to inherit it. ^z Moreover your little ones, which ^a ye said should be a prey, and your children, which in that day ^b had no knowledge³ between good and evil, they shall go in thither, and unto them will I give it, and they shall possess it. ^c But as for you, turn you, and take your journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red Sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto me, ^d We have sinned against the LORD, we will go up and fight, according to all that the LORD our God commanded us. And when ye had girded on every man his weapons of war, ye were ready⁴ to go up into the hill. And the LORD said unto me, Say unto them, ^e Go not up, neither fight; for I am not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies. So I spake unto you; and ye would not hear, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD, and ^f went presumptuously up into the hill. And the Amorites, which dwelt in that mountain, came out against you, and chased you, ^g as bees do, and destroyed you in Seir, even unto ^h Hormah. And ye returned and wept before the LORD; but the LORD would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear unto you. ⁱ So ye abode in Kadesh many days, according unto the days that ye abode there.

⁴ Or, 'ye despised the warning so as to go up,' etc.

2 Then we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red Sea, ^oas the LORD spake unto me: and we compassed mount Seir many days.¹
 2 And the LORD spake unto me, saying, Ye have compassed this mountain ^plong enough: turn you northward. And command thou the people, saying, ^qYe are to pass through the coast of your brethren the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir; ^rand they shall be afraid of you: take ye good heed unto yourselves therefore: meddle not with them; for I will not give you of their land, no, not so much as a foot breadth; ^sbecause I have given mount Seir unto Esau ^tfor a possession. Ye shall buy meat of them for money, that ye may eat; ^uand ye shall also buy water of them for money, that ye may drink. For the LORD thy God hath ^xblessed thee in all the works of thy hand: ^yhe knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: ^zthese forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing.
 8 ^aAnd when we passed by from our brethren the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain² from ^bElath, and from Ezion-gaber, we turned and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab. And the LORD said unto me, Distress not the Moabites [or, use no hostility against Moab], neither contend with them in battle: for I will not give thee of their land ^cfor a possession; because I have given ^dAr³ unto ^ethe children of Lot ^ffor a possession. (^gThe Emims⁴ dwelt therein in times past, a people great, and many, and tall, as ^hthe Anakims; which also were accounted giants, as the Anakims; but the Moabites call them Emims. ⁱThe Horims also dwelt in Seir beforetime; but the children of Esau succeeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their stead; ^jas Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the LORD gave unto them.) Now rise up, ^ksaid I,⁵ and get you over ^lthe brook [*or, valley*⁶] Zered. And we went over the brook Zered.
 14 And the space in which we came ^mfrom Kadesh-barnea, until we were come over the brook Zered, ⁿwas thirty and eight years; ^ountil all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, ^pas the LORD sware unto them. For indeed ^qthe hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.
 16 So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people, that the LORD spake unto me, saying, Thou art to pass over through Ar, the coast of Moab, this day: and ^rwhen thou comest nigh over against the children of Ammon, ^sdistress them not, nor meddle with them: for I will not give thee of the land of the children of Ammon ^tany possession; because I have given it unto ^uthe children of Lot ^vfor a possession. (That also was accounted a land of giants: giants dwelt therein in old time; and the Ammonites call them ^wZamzummims; ^xa people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims; but the LORD destroyed them before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead: as he did to the children of Esau, ^ywhich dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed ^zthe Horims from before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead even unto this day: and ^athe Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, ^beven unto ^cAzzah, ^dthe Caphtorims, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.) Rise ye up, take your journey, and ^epass over the river Arnon: behold, I have given into thine hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land: begin to possess ^fit, and contend with him in battle.
 25 ^gThis day will I begin to put the dread of thee and the fear of thee upon the nations ^hthat are under the whole heaven, who shall hear report of thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.
 26 And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Kedemoth unto Sihon king of Heshbon ⁱwith words of peace, saying, ^jLet me pass through thy land: I will go along by the high way, I will neither turn unto the right hand nor to the left.
 28 Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat; and give me water for money, that I may drink: ^konly I will pass through on my feet; (^las the children of Esau which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, did⁶ unto me;)

¹ From this it seems probable that most of the thirty-seven or thirty-eight years of wandering were spent in this neighbourhood; and not, as some have supposed, in the western desert.

² The word rendered 'the plain' is, in the Heb. and Sept., 'the Arabah.' See note (3) on ch. i. 1. Elath and Ezion-gaber were a fortress and a port, at the head of the eastern arm of the Red Sea, near the modern Akabah.

³ Ar was the capital of Moab (see Isa. xv. 1), and was called also 'Rabbath Moab.'

⁴ Vers. 10—12, and 20—23, are probably explanatory additions made after this book was written; perhaps designed to show that the extermination of the Canaanites by the Hebrews was not an unprecedented act.

⁵ The previous verses being read as a parenthesis, it will appear that this is part of what God said to Moses.

⁶ Though the Edomites refused the Hebrews a passage through the heart of their country, by those defiles which have always been jealously guarded by their possessors, they did not obstruct them in their journey round the borders. Sihon and Og, however, refused them a passage along their confines.

until I shall pass over Jordan into the land which the Lord our God giveth us.

30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass by him: for ^s the Lord thy God ^a hardened his spirit, and made his heart obstinate, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as appeareth this day.

31 And the Lord said unto me, Behold, I have begun to ⁱ give Sihon and his land before thee: begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land. ^b Then Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz. And ^t the Lord our God delivered him before us; and ^m we smote him, and his sons, and all his people.

34 And we took all his cities at that time, and ⁿ utterly destroyed the men, and the women, and the little ones, of every city; we left none to remain: only the cattle we took for a prey unto ourselves, and the spoil of the cities which we took.

36 ^o From Aroer, which is by the brink of the river of Arnon, and from the city that is by the river, even unto Gilead, there was not one city too strong for us: ^p the Lord our God delivered all unto us: ^q only unto the land of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor unto any place of the river ^r Jabbok,¹ nor unto the cities in the mountains, nor unto ^s whatsoever the Lord our God forbade us.

3 Then we turned, and went up the way to Bashan: and ^t Og the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle ^u at Edrei. And the Lord said unto me, Fear him not: for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, into thy hand; and thou shalt do unto him as thou didst unto ^v Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon. So the Lord our God delivered into our hands Og also, the king of Bashan, and all his people: ^w and we smote him until none was left to him remaining. And we took all his cities² at that time, there was not a city which we took not from them, threescore cities, ^x all the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan. All these cities were ^y fenced with high walls, gates, and bars; beside unwalled towns a great many. And we utterly destroyed them, as we did unto Sihon king ^z of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children, of every city. But all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to ourselves. And we took at that time out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites the land that was on this side Jordan, from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon;³ (which ^a Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion; and the Amorites call it ^b Shenir;) ^c all the cities of the plain, and all Gilead, and ^d all Bashan, unto Salehah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan. ^e For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of ^f giants;⁴ behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron; is it not in ^g Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.⁵

12 And this land, which we possessed at that time, ^h from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and ⁱ the cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenites and to the Gadites. ^j And the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half tribe of Manasseh; all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants. ^k Jair⁶ the son of Manasseh took all the country of Argob ^l unto the coasts⁷ of Geshuri and Maachathi; and ^m called them after his own name, Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day. ⁿ And I gave Gilead unto Machir. And unto the Reubenites ^o and unto the Gadites I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon half the valley, and the border even unto the river Jabbok, ^p which is the border of the children of Ammon; the plain also, and Jordan, and the coast ^q thereof, from ^r Chinnereth ^s even unto the Sea of the plain, ^t even the Salt Sea, under Ashdodth-pisgah [or, under the springs of Pisgah, or, the hill] eastward. And I commanded you at that time, saying, The Lord your God hath given you this land to possess it: ^u ye shall pass over armed before your brethren the children of Israel, all that are meet for the war. But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle, (for I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given you; until the Lord have given rest unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the Lord your

¹ This statement refers to the upper waters of the Jabbok (or Zerka), which in the higher part of its course flowed through the land of the Ammonites.

² That is, all his walled towns; which might, however, be very small.

³ This was the southern part of the eastern range of mountains parallel with Lebanon, and called afterwards Anti-Libanus (now Djebel-esch-Schiekh). It seems at that time to have divided the territories of the Amorites from those of the Zidonians, who were already a powerful people. See ver. 9; Josh. xix. 28.

⁴ Or, 'Rephaim,' and so in ver. 13: a particular race, many of whom were of large stature. The bedstead was probably only a frame, or raised platform; and, though it was doubtless ostentatiously large, it indicates the size of the chieftain. See note on Gen. vi. 4.

⁵ The cubit was eighteen inches. This verse, with the last clause of ver. 14, is supposed to have been added after the death of Moses.

⁶ See note on Numb. xxxii. 41.

⁷ Or, 'borders.' Geshur and Maachah are further mentioned in Josh. xiii. 13.

God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye ² return every man unto his possession, which I have given you.

21 And ^a I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto these two kings: ^b so shall the LORD do unto 22 all the kingdoms whither thou passest. Ye shall not fear them: for ^c the LORD your God he shall fight for you.

23, 24 And ^d I besought the LORD at that time, saying, O Lord God, thou hast begun to show thy servant ^e thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: for ^f what God is there in heaven or in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to 25 thy might? I pray thee, let me go over, and see ^g the good land that is beyond
26 Jordan, that goodly mountain,¹ and Lebanon. But the LORD ^h was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, Let it
27 suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter. ⁱ Get thee up into the top of Pisgah [or, the hill], and lift up thine eyes westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this 28 Jordan. But ^k charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him: for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which 29 thou shalt see. So we abode in ^l the valley over against Beth-peor.

4 Now² therefore hearken, O Israel, unto ^m the statutes and unto the judgments which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the
2 land which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you. ⁿ Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you.
3 Your eyes have seen what the LORD did because of ^o Baal-peor: for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among 4 you. But ye that did cleave unto the LORD your God are alive every one of you this day.

5 Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the LORD my God
6 commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it. Keep therefore and do them; for this is ^p your wisdom³ and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great
7 nation is a wise and understanding people. For ^q what nation is there so great, who hath ^r God so nigh unto them, as the LORD our God is in all things that we
8 call upon him for? And what nation is there so great, that hath ^s statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?

9 Only take heed to thyself, and ^t keep thy soul diligently, ^u lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, ^v and lest they depart from thy heart all the
10 days of thy life: but ^w teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons; especially ^z the day that thou stoodest before the LORD thy God in Horeb, when the LORD said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, 11 and that they may teach their children. And ye came near and stood under the mountain; and the ^a mountain burned with fire unto the midst of heaven, with 12 darkness, clouds, and thick darkness. ^b And the LORD spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ^c ye heard the voice of the words, but saw ^d no similitude;
13 ^e only ye heard a voice. ^f And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ^g ten commandments; and ^h he wrote them upon 14 two tables of stone. And ⁱ the LORD commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go over to possess it.

15 ^k Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves; for ye saw no manner of 16 ^l similitude on the day that the LORD spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire: lest ye ^m corrupt yourselves, and ⁿ make you a graven image, the 17 similitude⁴ of any figure, ^o the likeness of male or female, the likeness of any beast that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged fowl that flieth in the air,

¹ This may refer to the general appearance of the land of Canaan, beautifully diversified by its ranges of mountains. Or it may be rendered, 'that goodly mountain, even Lebanon;' whose glittering white summits in the north bounded the views from the eastern hills.

³ Personal piety not only benefits the individual, but elevates the society or nation in which it prevails.

⁴ In vers. 16—19, we have an exact description of the two principal forms of false worship: 1, the worship of idols, the vulgar superstition of Egypt (vers. 16—18); and, 2, the worship of the heavenly bodies, the more plausible, but equally dangerous device of the Chaldeans and Persians (ver. 19). These two kinds of idolatry were already united; and, in after ages, they were both established in the kingdom of Israel by Jeroboam's golden calf and Ahab's worship of Baal, which brought upon the nation the plagues here threatened (vers. 26—28).

- 18 the likeness of any thing that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish 19 that is in the waters beneath the earth: and lest thou ^plift up thine eyes unto heaven, and when thou seest the sun, and the moon, and the stars, even ^qall the host of heaven, shouldest be driven to ^rworship them, and serve them, ^swhich the LORD thy God hath divided unto all nations under the whole heaven.
 20 But the LORD hath taken you, and ^tbrought you forth out of the iron furnace,¹ even out of Egypt, ^uto be unto him a people of inheritance,² as ye are this day.
 21 Furthermore ^xthe LORD was angry with me for your sakes, and sware that I should not go over Jordan, and that I should not go in unto that good land, which 22 the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance: but ^yI must die in this land, ^zI must not go over Jordan: but ye shall go over, and possess ^athat good land.
 23 Take heed unto yourselves, ^blest ye forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, ^cand make you a graven image, or the likeness of any 24 thing, which the LORD thy God hath forbidden thee. For ^dthe LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even ^ea jealous God.
 25 When thou shalt beget children, and children's children, and ye shall have remained long in the land, and ^fshall corrupt yourselves, and make a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, and ^gshall do evil in the sight of the LORD 26 thy God, to provoke him to anger: ^hI call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land whereunto ye go over Jordan to possess it; ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall 27 utterly be destroyed. And the LORD ⁱshall scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the heathen, whither the LORD shall lead 28 you. And ^kthere ye shall serve gods, the work of men's hands, wood and stone, ^lwhich neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell.
 29 ^mBut if from thence thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if 30 thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul. When thou art in tribulation, and ⁿall these things are come upon thee, ^o*even* in the latter days, if thou 31 ^pturn to the LORD thy God, and shalt be obedient unto his voice; (for the LORD thy God is ^qa merciful God;) ^rhe will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee, ^snor forget the covenant of thy fathers which he sware unto them.
 32 For ^task now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon the earth, and ^uask ^ufrom the one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath 33 been heard like it? ^xDid ever people hear the voice of God speaking out of the 34 midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live? Or hath God assayed to go and ^ytake him a nation from the midst of another nation, ^zby temptations, ^aby signs, and by wonders, and by war, and ^bby a mighty hand, and ^cby a stretched out arm, ^dand by great terrors, according to all that the LORD your God did for 35 you in Egypt before your eyes? Unto thee it was showed, that thou mightest 36 know that the LORD he is God; ^e*there is* none else beside him. ^fOut of heaven he made thee to hear his voice, that he might instruct thee: and upon earth he showed thee his great fire; and thou heardest his words out of the midst of the 37 fire. And because ^ghe loved thy fathers, therefore he chose their seed after them, and ^hbrought thee out in his sight, with his mighty power, out of Egypt; 38 ⁱto drive out nations from before thee greater and mightier than thou art, to bring thee in, to give thee their land for an inheritance, as it is this day.
 39 Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that ^kthe LORD he is 40 God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else. ^lThou shalt keep therefore his statutes, and his commandments, which I command thee this day, ^mthat it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thou mayest ⁿprolong thy days upon the earth, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, for ever.³

Appointment of the cities of refuge east of Jordan.

- 41 THEN Moses ^osevered three cities on this side Jordan toward the sunrising; 42 ^pthat the slayer might flee thither, which should kill his neighbour unawares, and hated him not in times past; and that fleeing unto one of these cities he 43 might live: namely, ^qBezer⁴ in the wilderness, in the plain country, of the Reubenites; and Ramoth in Gilead, of the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan, of the

¹ A furnace for smelting iron must be of the most intense heat: hence it is a striking emblem of severe affliction.

² Hence the Israelites were called a 'purchased or acquired people'—a title applied in a higher sense to Christians, as being the partakers of a far greater and more glorious salvation (1 Pet. ii. 9, etc.)

³ 'For ever' here means 'as long as it shall last.'

⁴ The exact situation of Bezer and Golan is not known. Ramoth Gilead is supposed to be the place now called es-Salt. From the general description here given, it is evident that these cities were so distributed as to be easily accessible to all the eastern tribes.

Introduction to the repetition of the Law; the covenant at Horeb.

44 AND this is the law which Moses set before the children of Israel: these are 45 the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spake unto 46 the children of Israel, after they came forth out of Egypt, on this side Jordan, 'in the valley over against Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses and the children of Israel ^ssmote, after 47 they were come forth out of Egypt: and they possessed his land, and the land
 'of Og king of Bashan, two kings of the Amorites, which were on this side 48 Jordan toward the sunrising; "from Aroer, which is by the bank of the river 49 Arnon, even unto mount Sion, which is ^xHermon, and all the plain on this side Jordan eastward, even unto the Sea of the Plain, under the ^ysprings of Pisgah.

5 And Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and 2 keep, and do them. ^zThe LORD our God made a covenant¹ with us in Horeb.
 3 The LORD ^amade not this covenant with our fathers,² but with us, even us, who 4 are all of us here alive this day. ^bThe LORD talked with you face to face in the 5 mount out of the midst of the fire, (^cI stood between the LORD and you at that time, to show you the word of the LORD: ^dfor³ ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount;) saying,

6 ^eI ⁴am the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from 7 the house of bondage. ^fThou shalt have none other gods before me.

8 ^gThou shalt not make thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing
 9 beneath the earth: thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, ^hvisiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate 10 me, ⁱand showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments.

11 ^kThou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain: for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

12 ^lKeep the sabbath day to sanctify it, as the LORD thy God hath commanded 13 thee. ^mSix days thou shalt labour, and do all thy work: but the seventh day is 14 the ⁿsabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates;⁵ that thy manservant and thy maidservant may rest as well as thou.

15 ^oAnd remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy God brought thee out thence ^pthrough a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm: therefore the LORD thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath day.

16 ^qHonour thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee; ^rthat thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

17 ^sThou shalt not kill.

18 ^tNeither shalt thou commit adultery.

19 ^uNeither shalt thou steal.

20 ^vNeither shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour.

21 ^yNeither shalt thou desire thy neighbour's wife, neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, his field, or his manservant, or his maidservant, his ox, or his ass, or any thing that is thy neighbour's.

22 These words the LORD spake unto all your assembly in the mount out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice: and he added no more.⁶ And ^zhe wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered

1 The Divine condescension turned the command into a covenant, that the people might be the more strongly bound to obedience by their own solemn consent, and the more encouraged to it by God's promise; both of which are implied in the 'covenant.'

2 That is, not with them alone. Not only had the grown-up men of this generation been present at Sinai, as youths or children; but the covenant itself was national and permanent.

3 In this brief narrative, Moses mentions only one of the reasons why the people did not go up: see refs.

4 There are several variations in this recital of the Decalogue as compared with Exod. ch. xx.; but they are all of that natural and unimportant description which serve to confirm the truth of the narrative.

5 In reciting the fourth commandment, Moses omits the words referring to the original institution of the sabbath, as being well known; and comments upon the beneficent provision for a rest to the servant as well as the master. None are more prone to become tyrants than those who have been slaves: it was therefore important, as the people were soon about to be masters of Canaan, to keep them in mind of their former hard servitude, and of their duties to their dependents.

6 That is, He added no more in this way, speaking 'with a great voice.'

23 them unto me. ^a And it came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto
 24 me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders; and ye said, Behold, the LORD our God hath showed us his glory and his greatness, and ^b we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk 25 with man, and he ^c liveth. Now therefore why should we die? for this great fire will consume us: ^d if we hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die. ^e For who is there of all flesh, that hath heard the voice of 26 the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived? Go thou near, and hear all that the LORD our God shall say: and ^f speak thou unto us all that the LORD our God shall speak unto thee; and we will hear it
 27 and do it. And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye spake unto me; and the LORD said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee: ^g they have well said all that they have spoken.
 29 ^h Oh that¹ there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and ⁱ keep all my commandments always, ^j that it might be well with them, and with their children for ever! Go, say to them, Get you into your tents again. But as for 30 thee, stand thou here by me, ^k and I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments,² which thou shalt teach them, that they may 31 do them in the land which I give them to possess it. Ye shall observe to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: ^l ye shall not turn aside 32 to the right hand or to the left. Ye shall walk in ^m all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, ⁿ and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.

Exhortations and persuasives to obedience.

6 NOW these are ^o the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments, which the LORD your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land
 2 whither ye go to possess it: ^p that thou mightest fear the LORD thy God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee, thou, and thy son, and thy son's son, all the days of thy life; ^q and that thy days may be prolonged.
 3 Hear therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, ^r as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee, in ^s the land that floweth with milk and honey.
 4, 5 ^t Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one³ LORD: and ^u thou shalt love the LORD thy God ^v with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy
 6 might. And ^w these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and ^x thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, ^y and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, 7 and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. ^z And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine
 8 eyes. ^{aa} And thou shalt write⁴ them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.
 10 And it shall be, when the LORD thy God shall have brought thee into the land which he swore unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give 11 thee great and goodly cities, ^{ab} which thou buildedst not, and houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged, which thou diggedst not, vineyards and olive trees, which thou plantedst not; ^{ac} when thou shalt have 12 eaten and be full; ^{ad} then beware lest thou forget⁵ the LORD, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage. Thou shalt ^{ae} fear 13 the LORD thy God, and serve him,⁶ and ^{af} shalt swear by his name. Ye shall

¹ These words supply a powerful encouragement to pray for the influences of the Holy Spirit, who is so willing to help us in keeping the commands of God; whilst they are awfully condemnatory of the presumptuous sinner who would say, 'Who hath resisted his will?'

² Though neither etymology nor usage establishes any considerable difference of meaning between the first two of these three words, it appears that they were employed in connection with the third term (which generally refers to social claims and duties), to include the whole moral, ritual, and social Law.

³ That is, 'There is no God but one, Jehovah; to whom, therefore, our entire love is due.'

⁴ A similar practice is still common in Syria and Egypt, where sentences from the Koran are inscribed upon the door and posts. The Jews affix to the right-hand post small tubes of lead or cane, called mezuzoth; in which a piece of parchment is rolled, having on the inside Deut. vi. 6—9; xi. 18—20, and on the outside the Divine title SHADDAI, which is seen through a hole in the case. These mezuzoth are superstitiously regarded as preservatives from evil, and are kissed by the devout. When books were very scarce, the inscription of appropriate passages from the word of God, in places where they might be often and publicly seen, would be obviously useful.

⁵ In a time of prosperity we are in danger of forgetting our dependence upon God, and our obligations to him.

⁶ The Greek version, which is quoted by our Lord in Matt. iv. 10, adds 'only.' Such is evidently the meaning of the text.

1 This requirement of universal obedience for justification by the Law, shows that God's favour to his people does not at all relax his claims; and suggests the necessity of another 'righteousness' in order to man's acceptance with him. See Gal. iii. 19, 22, 24.

2 This list of nations differs from that in Gen. xv. 19—21, as some of the tribes there named had probably been merged in others; whilst some situated on the east of Jordan had been already conquered. The Perizzites appear to have been dispersed over the mountains afterwards occupied by the tribes of Ephraim and Judah, not dwelling in fortified cities.

3 See note at the end of the book of Joshua, p. 244.

4 So in the New Testament, Christians are enjoined to marry only 'in the Lord' (1 Cor. vii. 39); and the general rule respecting all voluntary affinities is clearly laid down in 2 Cor. vi. 14. In marriages in which this Divine rule is violated, it is presumptuous to expect a happy result.

5 This probably means openly, so as to be noticed as a Divine judgment by themselves and others.

14 /Thou shalt be blessed above all people: ^sthere shall not be male or female 15 barren among you, or among your cattle. And the LORD will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the ^hevil diseases of Egypt,¹ which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee.
 16 And ^tthou shalt consume all the people which the LORD thy God shall deliver thee; ^kthine eye shall have no pity upon them: neither shalt thou serve their 17 gods; for that will be ^la snare unto thee. If thou shalt say in thine heart, These 18 nations are more than I; how can I ^mdispossess them? ⁿThou shalt not be afraid of them: but shalt well ^oremember what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, 19 and unto all Egypt; ^pthe great temptations which thine eyes saw; and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the stretched out arm, whereby the LORD thy God brought thee out: so shall the LORD thy God do unto all the 20 people of whom thou art afraid. ^qMoreover the LORD thy God will send the hornet among them, until they that are left, and hide themselves from thee, be 21 destroyed. Thou shalt not be affrighted at them: for the LORD thy God is 22 ^ramong you, ^sa mighty God and terrible. ^tAnd the LORD thy God will put out those nations before thee by little and little: thou mayest not consume them at 23 once, lest the beast of the field increase upon thee. ^uBut the LORD thy God shall deliver them unto thee, and shall destroy them with a mighty destruction, 24 until they be destroyed.² And ^xhe shall deliver their kings into thine hand, and thou shalt destroy their name ^yfrom under heaven: ^zthere shall no man 25 be able to stand before thee, until thou have destroyed them. The graven images of their gods ^ashall ye burn with fire: thou ^bshalt not desire the silver or gold that is on them, nor take it unto thee, lest thou be ^csnared therein: for it is ^dan 26 abomination to the LORD thy God. Neither shalt thou bring an abomination into thine house, lest thou be a cursed thing like it: but thou shalt utterly detest it, and thou shalt utterly abhor it; ^efor it is a cursed³ thing.

Obedience enforced by the remembrance of God's benefits, and the fatal consequences of apostasy.

8 ALL the commandments which I command thee this day ^fshall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the 2 LORD sware unto your fathers. And thou shalt ^gremember all the way which the LORD thy God ^hled thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble⁴ thee, and ⁱto prove thee, ^kto know what was in thine heart, whether thou 3 wouldest keep his commandments, or no. And he humbled thee, and ^lsuffered thee to hunger, and ^mfed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know; that he might make thee know that man doth ⁿnot live by bread only, but by every *word*⁵ that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORD
 4 doth man live. ^oThy raiment waxed not old⁶ upon thee, neither did thy foot
 5 swell, these forty years. ^pThou shalt also consider in thine heart, that, as a 6 man chasteneth his son, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee. Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, ^qto walk in his ways, and to fear him.
 7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good⁷ land, ^ra land of brooks of 8 water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills; a land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; a land of oil olive,

¹ Egypt is peculiarly subject to plague, ophthalmia, and elephantiasis.

² Though the destruction of the Canaanites was designed by God to be gradual, it was greatly delayed by the unbelief of the people: see Judg. i., ii., etc. God's promises are fulfilled 'according to our faith.'

³ Solemnly devoted to destruction.

⁴ Thus the arrangement which provided for the removal of one unbelieving generation afforded salutary discipline to the next.

⁵ That is to say, by any means, either with or without food, which God may be pleased to appoint. So this passage is used by our Lord, Matt. iv. 4.

this fact is placed, both here and at ch. xxix. 5, with the gift of the manna, and the notice of it in Neh. ix. 9—25, in the enumeration of the miraculous deliverances and gifts of this period, make it appear more likely that in this, too, there was a similar supernatural interposition. At the same time, it is important to avoid, not only the Rabbinical traditions about the growth of the clothes keeping pace with that of the wearers, but also all minute specification of matters which are so briefly recorded; and to remember that the ordinary conduct of God's providence affords as real and often as striking evidences of his power and care as miracles do.

⁷ Though Palestine is at present far from being a productive country, it still retains numerous traces of high cultivation and great fruitfulness. Water is here mentioned, as it is the prime requisite to fertility; and its peculiar distribution in Canaan is specified as being very different from that of Egypt, which depended upon one great river. The 'depths' are probably the lakes, or subterranean reservoirs, which, in countries of limestone formation, feed the streams.

not lack any thing in it; a land ^s whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.¹

10 'When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God 11 for the good land which he hath given thee. Beware that thou forget not the 12 Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his 13 statutes, which I command thee this day: ^alest when thou hast eaten and art 14 full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein: and when thy herds and thy 15 flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast 16 is multiplied; ^xthen thine heart be lifted up, and thou ^yforget the Lord thy God, 17 which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;
18 who ^zled thee through that great and terrible wilderness, ^a*wherewith* were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where there was no water; ^bwho brought 19 thee forth water out of the rock of flint; who fed thee in the wilderness with 20 ^cmanna, which thy fathers knew not; that he might humble thee, and that he 21 might ^dprove thee, ^eto do thee good at thy latter end; ^fand thou say in thine 22 heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth. But 23 thou shalt remember the Lord thy God: ^gfor it is he that giveth thee power to 24 get wealth, ^hthat he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, 25 as it is this day.

19 And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the Lord thy God, and walk after other
20 gods, and serve them, and worship them, ⁱI testify against you this day that ye 21 shall surely perish. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, 22 ^kso shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the 23 Lord your God.

Self-righteousness reprov'd, and God's mercy exalted, by a recital of the repeated rebellions of the Hebrews.

9 HEAR, O Israel: Thou art to ^lpass over Jordan this day, ²to go in to possess nations ^mgreater and mightier than thyself, cities great and ⁿfenced³ up to heaven, 2 a people great and tall, ^othe children of the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and 3 of whom thou hast heard say, Who can stand before the children of Anak!
4 Understand therefore this day, that the Lord thy God is he which ^pgoeth over before thee; as a ^qconsuming fire ^rhe shall destroy them, and he shall bring them down before thy face: ^sso shalt thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly, as the Lord hath said unto thee.

4 'Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the Lord thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the Lord hath brought me in to possess this land: but ^tfor the wickedness of these nations the Lord doth drive 5 them out from before thee. ^uNot for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land. But for the wickedness of these nations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and that he may perform ^vthe word which the Lord sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

6 Understand therefore, that the Lord thy God giveth thee not this good land to 7 possess it for thy righteousness; for thou art ^za stiffnecked people. Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the Lord thy God to wrath in the wilderness. ^aFrom the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye 8 came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the Lord. Also⁴ in ^bHoreb ye provoked the Lord to wrath, so that the Lord was angry with you to have destroyed you.

9 ^cWhen I was gone up into the mount to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant which the Lord made with you, then ^dI abode in the 10 mount forty days and forty nights, I neither did eat bread nor drink water: ^eand the Lord delivered unto me two tables of stone written with the finger of God; and on them was written according to all the words, which the Lord spake with 11 you in the mount out of the midst of the fire ^fin the day of the assembly. And it came to pass at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the Lord gave me 12 the two tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant. And the Lord said unto me, ^gArise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have corrupted themselves; they are ^hquickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.

1 Rather, 'copper.' These metals are found in Lebanon.

2 That is, shortly—within a little time; the word 'day' being often put for time: as in John viii. 56; Acts viii. 1 (Greek); 2 Cor. vi. 2.

3 Even to the present day, in Syria and other Eastern countries, the height of the walls is regarded more than anything else in the fortifications of a town or fortress.

4 Rather, 'Even;' i. e. when you had just received His commands in the most solemn manner. This was a most striking proof that the land of Canaan was a gift of pure grace to the Hebrews, and not in any sense a reward of any righteousness of their own.

13 Furthermore ⁱthe Lord spake unto me, saying, I have seen this people, and,
 14 behold, ^hit is a stiffnecked people: ⁱlet me alone, that I may destroy them, and ^mblot out their name from under heaven: ⁿand I will make of thee a nation
 15 mightier and greater than they. ^oSo I turned and came down from the mount, and ^pthe mount burned with fire; and the two tables of the covenant ^{were} in my 16 two hands. And ^qI looked, and, behold, ye had sinned against the Lord your God, ^{and} had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the 17 way which the Lord had commanded you. And I took the two tables, and cast 18 them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes. And I ^rfell down before the Lord, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread, nor drink water, because of all your sins which ye sinned, in doing 19 wickedly in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger. ^sFor I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure, wherewith the Lord was wroth against you to 20 destroy you. ^tBut the Lord hearkened unto me at that time also. And the Lord was very angry with Aaron to have destroyed him: and I prayed for Aaron 21 also the same time. And ^uI took your sin, (the calf which ye had made,) and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, ^{and} ground ^{it} very small, ^{even} until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook that descended out of the mount.
 22 (And at ^xTaberah, and at ^yMassah, and at ^zKibroth-hattaavah, ye provoked 23 the Lord to wrath. Likewise ^awhen the Lord sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying, Go up and possess the land which I have given you; then ye rebelled against the commandment of the Lord your God, and ^bye believed him not, nor 24 hearkened to his voice. ^cYe have been rebellious against the Lord from the day that I knew you.)
 25 ^dThus I fell down before the Lord forty days and forty nights, as I fell down 26 at the first; because the Lord had said he would destroy you. ^eI prayed therefore unto the Lord, and said, O Lord God, destroy not thy people and thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed through thy greatness, which thou hast 27 brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand. Remember thy servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to 28 their wickedness, nor to their sin: lest ^fthe land whence thou broughtest us out say, ^gBecause the Lord was not able to bring them into the land which he promised them, and because he hated them, he hath brought them out to slay 29 them in the wilderness. ^hYet they ^{are} thy people and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power and by thy stretched out arm.
 10 At that time the Lord said unto me, ⁱHew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and ^kmake thee an ark of wood.
 2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou
 3 brakest, and ^lthou shalt put them in the ark. And I made an ark ^{of} ^mshittim wood, and ⁿhewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the 4 mount, having the two tables in mine hand. And ^ohe wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, ^pthe ten commandments, ^qwhich the Lord spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire ^rin the day of the assembly:
 5 and the Lord gave them unto me. And I turned myself and ^scame down from the mount, and ^tput the tables in the ark which I had made; ^uand there they be, as the Lord commanded me.
 6 And ^vthe children of Israel took their journey from Beeroth ^xof the children of Jaakan to ^yMosera: ^zthere Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar 7 his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead. ^aFrom thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters.
 8 At that time ^bthe Lord separated the tribe of Levi, ^cto bear the ark of the covenant of the Lord, ^dto stand before the Lord to minister unto him, and ^eto 9 bless in his name, unto this day. ^fWherefore Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the Lord ^{is} his inheritance, according as the Lord thy God promised him.
 10 And ^gI stayed in the mount, according to the first time, forty days and forty nights; and ^hthe Lord hearkened unto me at that time also, ^{and} the Lord would 11 not destroy thee. ⁱAnd the Lord said unto me, Arise, take ^{thy} journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land, which I swore unto their fathers to give unto them.

1 Vers. 6 and 7 appear to be misplaced; as they interrupt the narrative, and do not quite harmonize with Numb. xxxiii. But they are found in all the ancient versions, though somewhat altered in the Samaritan, so as to agree with the other account. The Arabic (which is comparatively modern) begins thus: 'And I obtained favour for Aaron, so that he lived till the children of Israel,' etc.

Exhortations and persuasives to obedience.

12 AND now, Israel, ^k what doth the LORD thy God require of thee, but ^l to fear the LORD thy God, ^m to walk in all his ways, and ⁿ to love him, and to serve the 13 LORD thy God ^o with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the LORD, and his statutes, which I command thee this day ^p for thy 14 good? Behold, ^q the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the LORD's thy God, 15 ^r the earth also, with all that therein is. ^s Only the LORD had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, even you above all 16 people, as it is this day. Circumcise therefore ^t the foreskin of your heart, and 17 be no more ^u stiffnecked. For the LORD your God is ^v God of gods, and ^w Lord of lords, ^x a great God, ^y a mighty, and a terrible, which ^z regardeth not persons, nor 18 taketh reward: ^a he doth execute the judgment of the fatherless and widow, and 19 loveth the stranger, in giving him food and raiment. ^b Love ye therefore the 20 stranger: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt. ^c Thou shalt fear the LORD thy God; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou ^d cleave, ^e and swear by 21 his name. ^f He is thy praise, and he is thy God, ^g that hath done for thee these 22 great and terrible things, which thine eyes have seen. Thy fathers went down into Egypt ^h with threescore and ten persons; and now the LORD thy God hath 11 made thee ⁱ as the stars of heaven for multitude. Therefore thou shalt ^j love the LORD thy God, and ^k keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments, alway.
2 And know ye this day: for I speak not with your children which have not known, and which have not seen ^l the chastisement of the LORD your God, ^m his
3 greatness, ⁿ his mighty hand, and his stretched out arm, ^o and his miracles, and his acts, which he did, in the midst of Egypt, unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt,
4 and unto all his land; and what he did unto the army of Egypt, unto their horses, and to their chariots; ^p how he made the water of the Red Sea to overflow them as they pursued after you, and ^q how the LORD hath destroyed them unto this day;
5 ^r and what he did unto you in the wilderness, until ye came into this place; and 6 ^s what he did unto Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the substance that ^t was in their possession, in the midst of 7 all Israel: but ^u your eyes have seen all the great acts of the LORD which he did.
8 ^v Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may ^w be strong, and go in and possess the land, whither ye go to possess
9 it; and ^x that ye may prolong your days in the land, ^y which the LORD swore unto your fathers to give unto them and to their seed, ^z a land that floweth with milk and honey.
10 For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, ^a where thou sowedst thy seed, and wateredst it with 11 thy foot, ^b as a garden of herbs: ^c but the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a
12 land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven: a land which the LORD thy God careth for: ^d the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year.
13 And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken ^e diligently unto my commandments which I command you this day, ^f to love the LORD your God, and to serve
14 him with all your heart and with all your soul, that ^g I will give you the rain of your land in his due season, ^h the first rain and the latter rain, ⁱ that thou mayest
15 gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil. ^j And I will send grass in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest ^k eat and be full.
16 Take heed to yourselves, ^l that your heart be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and ^m serve other gods, and worship them; and ⁿ then ^o the LORD's wrath be kindled against you, and he ^p shut up the heaven, that there be no rain, and that the land yield not her fruit; and ^q lest ^r ye perish quickly from off the good land which the LORD giveth you.

1 The remembrance of past sufferings from the hand of man, instead of exciting revenge or misanthropy, ought to produce a tender sympathy with all the distressed.

2 All of them had seen some, and some of them had seen all of these things.

3 Watering 'with the foot' may mean either by the tread-wheels which are still used in that country to raise water, or by the runnels, or channels, which conveyed water from reservoirs through the gardens, and which were opened or closed by moving the earth with the foot. Egypt is dependent upon this artificial irrigation, in connection with the periodical overflowing of the Nile.

4 The rainy season in Palestine begins in autumn, when the land is prepared for sowing; and it ends about March, when the grain is swelling before it ripens. The rain is most copious at the former and latter part of the season, though it falls occasionally through the intervening winter months; but there is rarely any during the summer. Upon the regular recurrence of these rains the fertility of the country depends. The form of the promise shows that, whatever be the second causes of prosperity, all are alike dependent upon the blessing of God, and subject to his control. See Gen. xli. 28—30; 1 Kings xvii. 1, etc.

18 Therefore ^s shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and 'bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your 19 eyes. "And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, 20 and when thou risest up. *And thou shalt write them upon the door posts of 21 thine house, and upon thy gates; that ^y your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give them, ^z as the days of heaven upon the earth.¹

22 For if ^a ye shall diligently keep all these commandments which I command you, to do them, to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and ^b to cleave 23 unto him; then will the LORD ^c drive out all these nations from before you, and 24 ye shall ^d possess greater nations and mightier than yourselves. ^e Every place whereon the soles of your feet shall tread shall be yours: ^f from the wilderness and Lebanon, from the river, the river Euphrates, even unto the uttermost sea 25 shall your coast be. ^g There shall no man be able to stand before you: ^{for} the LORD your God shall ^h lay the fear of you and the dread of you upon all the land that ye shall tread upon, ⁱ as he hath said unto you.

26, 27 ^k Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse; ^l a blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you this day:
 28 and a ^m curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known.

29 And it shall come to pass, when the LORD thy God hath brought thee in unto the land whither thou goest to possess it, that thou shalt put ⁿ the blessing upon 30 mount Gerizim,² and the curse upon mount Ebal. Are they not on the other side
Jordan, by the way where the sun goeth down, in the land of the Canaanites, which dwell in the champaign³ over against Gilgal, ^c beside the plains of Moreh?
 31 ^p For ye shall pass over Jordan to go in to possess the land which the LORD your 32 God giveth you, and ye shall possess it, and dwell therein. And ye shall observe ^q to do all the statutes and judgments which I set before you this day.

Memorials of idolatry to be destroyed; God's appointed place of worship to be observed.

12 ^r THESE are the statutes and judgments, which ye shall observe to do in the land,⁴ which the LORD God of thy fathers giveth thee to possess it, ^s all the days that ye live upon the earth.

2 ^t Ye shall utterly destroy all the places,⁵ wherein the nations which ye shall possess [or, inherit] served their gods, ^u upon the high mountains, and upon the 3 hills, and under every green tree: and ^v ye shall overthrow their altars, and break their pillars,⁶ and burn their groves with fire; and ye shall hew down the graven images of their gods, and destroy the names of them out of that place.

4, 5 ^y Ye shall not do so⁷ unto the LORD your God. But unto the place⁸ which the LORD your God shall ^z choose out of all your tribes to put his name there, 6 even unto his habitation shall ye seek, and thither thou shalt come: and ^a thither ye shall bring your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, and your ^b tithes, and heave offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your freewill offerings, and the 7 firstlings of your herds and of your flocks: and ^c there ye shall eat before the LORD your God, and ^d ye shall rejoice in all that ye put your hand unto, ye and your households, wherein the LORD thy God hath blessed thee.

8 Ye shall not do after all the things that we do here this day, ^e every man what-9 soever is right in his own eyes. For ye are ^f not as yet come to the rest and to

¹ That is, as long as the world lasts: see refs.

² Gerizim lay on the south, and Ebal on the north, of the narrow valley in which Shechem (now Nablus) is built. Both are precipitous hills, rising direct from the valley, about two hundred paces apart; Gerizim being rather less rocky and more productive than Ebal. The scene must have been very solemn, when the people, divided into two companies, stood on the nearest spurs of the two mountains, where they might all hear the blessings and curses of the Law, and, by uttering their simultaneous responses, bound themselves afresh to obedience. See ch. xxvii. 11—13; Josh. viii. 30—35.

³ On the west of the two mountains the country gradually sinks down into the open plains of Sharon; and on the south-east into the plain of Moreh, which was then inhabited by the Canaanites.

⁴ Some of these precepts are connected with the conquest of the land, and the extirpation of all relics of former superstition; others are adaptations of previous laws to the state of the people when settled in Canaan.

⁵ The absence of all reference to idolatrous temples, both here and throughout the early history down to the time of Samson, or perhaps of Eli, leads to the inference that in Canaan, and possibly in Egypt, there had been no house of any kind erected as the supposed dwelling-place of God. The places here specified seem to show that the idolatry of Canaan was originally that 'nature-worship' which so soon superseded the service of the God of nature.

⁶ Or, 'statues.'

⁷ That is, Ye shall not worship Jehovah by an image.

⁸ When the people were settled in Canaan, the tabernacle appears to have been erected first at Shiloh, and afterwards at Gibeon; but the ark was ultimately fixed at Jerusalem: see refs. The observance of this law would prevent the introduction of corrupt customs into their worship, and preserve the union of the tribes.

- 10 the inheritance, which the LORD your God giveth you. But when ^g ye go over Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your God giveth you to inherit, and when he giveth you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ye dwell
- 11 in safety; then there shall be ^h a place which the LORD your God shall choose to cause his name to dwell there; thither shall ye bring all that I command you; your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, your tithes, and the heave offering of
- 12 your hand, and all your choice vows which ye vow unto the LORD: and ⁱ ye shall rejoice before the LORD your God, ye, and your sons, and your daughters, and your menservants, and your maidservants, and the Levite that is within your gates; forasmuch as ^k he hath no part nor inheritance with you.
- 13 ^l Take heed to thyself that thou offer not thy burnt offerings in every place
- 14 that thou seest: ^m but in the place which the LORD shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee.
- 15 Notwithstanding ⁿ thou mayest kill and eat flesh in all thy gates, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee: ^o the unclean and the clean may eat thereof, ^p as of the roebuck,²
- 16 and as of the hart. ^q Only ye shall not eat the blood; ye shall pour it upon the earth as water.
- 17 Thou mayest not eat within thy gates the tithe³ of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil, or the firstlings of thy herds or of thy flock, nor any of thy vows which
- 18 thou vowest, nor thy freewill offerings, or heave offering of thine hand: ^r but thou must eat them before the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates: and thou shalt rejoice
- 19 before the LORD thy God in all that thou puttest thine hands unto. ^s Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite as long as thou livest upon the earth.
- 20 When the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy border, ^t as he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, I will eat flesh, because thy soul longeth to eat flesh; thou
- 21 mayest eat flesh, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after. If the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to put his name there be too far from thee, then thou shalt kill of thy herd and of thy flock, which the LORD hath given thee, as I have commanded thee, and thou shalt eat in thy gates whatsoever thy soul lusteth
- 22 after. ^u Even as the roebuck and the hart is eaten, so thou shalt eat them: the
- 23 unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike. ^x Only be sure that thou eat not the blood: ^y for the blood is the life; and thou mayest not eat the life with the
- 24 flesh. Thou shalt not eat it; thou shalt pour it upon the earth as water. Thou
- 25 shalt not eat it; ^z that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, ^a when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.
- 26 Only thy ^b holy things which thou hast, and ^c thy vows, thou shalt take, and
- 27 go unto the place which the LORD shall choose: and ^d thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, the flesh ^e and the blood, upon the altar of the LORD thy God: and the blood of thy sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of the LORD thy God, and thou shalt eat the flesh.
- 28 Observe and hear all these words which I command thee, ^f that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee for ever, when thou doest that which is good and right in the sight of the LORD thy God.
- 29 When ^g the LORD thy God shall cut off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their land;
- 30 take heed to thyself ^h that thou be not snared by following them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou inquire not after their gods, saying,
- 31 How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise. ⁱ Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God: for every abomination to the LORD, which he hateth, have they done unto their gods; for ^k even their sons and their daughters
- 32 they have burnt⁴ in the fire to their gods. What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: ^l thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

2 That is, of the tame as of the wild. The 'roebuck' is probably the antelope.

3 This seems to refer to a second tithe, or to some voluntary offering in fulfilment of a vow, beside what was required for the Levites.

4 The sacrificing of their children to idols was sometimes carried to a very dreadful extent by the heathen.

When the Carthaginians, who were descended from one of the ancient nations of Canaan, were besieged by Agathocles, they offered in sacrifice two hundred children of their noblest families. In the time of the Druids, it was the custom in England, on solemn occasions, to inclose children in a huge idol made of wicker-work, and burn them alive.

 4 Ye shall ^r walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his command-

And ^t that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death; because he hath spoken ^u to turn you away from the LORD your God, ^v which brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the way which the LORD thy God commanded thee to walk in. ^y So shalt thou put the evil away from the midst of thee.
 6 ^z If thy brother, the son of thy mother,² or thy son, or thy daughter, or ^a the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, ^b which is as thine own soul, entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, ^c which thou hast not known,

 11 the house of bondage. And ^h all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this is among you.
 12 ⁱ If thou shalt hear say in one of thy cities, which the LORD thy God hath given 13 thee to dwell there, saying, Certain men, ^k the children of Belial⁴ [or, naughty men], ^l are gone out from among you, and have ^m withdrawn the inhabitants of their

 16 ^o destroying⁵ it utterly, and all that is therein, and the cattle thereof, with the edge of the sword. And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the 17 street thereof, and shalt ^p burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God: and it shall be ^q an heap for ever; it shall not be 18 built again. And ^r there shall cleave nought of the cursed [or, devoted] thing to thine hand: that the LORD may ^s turn from the fierceness of his anger, and show thee mercy, and have compassion upon thee, and multiply thee, ^t as he hath sworn 19 unto thy fathers; when thou shalt hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, ^u to keep all his commandments which I command thee this day, to do that which is

 14 Ye are ^v the children of the LORD your God: ^y ye shall not cut yourselves,⁶
 2 nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead. ^z For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God, and the LORD hath chosen thee to be a peculiar
 3 people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth.
 3, 4 ^a Thou shalt not eat any abominable thing. ^b These are the beasts which ye

 6 the chamois.⁹ And every beast that parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into 7 two claws, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that ye shall eat. Nevertheless these ye shall not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the 6 These barbarous and superstitious customs are still practised among many heathen nations.

7 This list of clean and unclean animals differs from that in Lev. xi. The distinction between the two seems to be that, in Lev. xi., the general rules are laid down, illustrated by a few examples; whereas, in this passage, the object was to enumerate special instances. These precepts concerning food plainly belonged only to the Jews, and were not intended to be of perpetual and universal obligation: see Acts x. 15; 1 Tim. iv. 4. There is a remarkable distinction observable between the law as to meats (see ver. 21) and that as to the Sabbath; the obligation of the latter being extended to the 'stranger' within their gates (Exod. xx. 10).

8 Heb., 'dishon.' The Greek rendering seems to identify this animal with the African ludmee, a species of roebuck.

9 As the chamois is not found so far south, some other animal is probably meant.

² It has been supposed that this precept relates only to the enforcement of such claims during the Sabbath year, and not to the total remission of debts. It is more likely, however, that it does not refer to debts arising from the ordinary transactions of commerce, but to loans made to the poor, which were to be entirely cancelled, if the debtor were not soon in a condition to repay. Thus the harsh custom of selling the debtor and his family into slavery was in part prevented; whilst, by subsequent laws (ver. 12), its hardships were mitigated.

³ Ver. 11 shows that this statement is not to be taken absolutely. The tendency of the law was to prevent pauperism and mendicancy; but even these Divine commands could not be expected, under human administration, perfectly to accomplish their ends.

- thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in 9 that which he wanteth. Beware¹ that there be not a thought in thy wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eye be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought; and ^h he cry unto 10 the LORD against thee, and ⁱ it be sin unto thee. Thou shalt surely give him, and ^m thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him: because that ⁿ for this thing the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all 11 that thou puttest thine hand unto. For ^o the poor shall never cease out of the land: therefore I command thee, saying, ^p Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.
- 12 And ^q if thy brother, an Hebrew man, or an Hebrew woman, be sold unto thee,² and serve thee six years; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free 13 from thee. ^r And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let 14 him go away empty: thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy winepress: of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath 15 ^s blessed thee thou shalt give unto him. And ^t thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee: therefore I command thee this thing to-day.
- 16 And it shall be, ^u if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee; because he 17 loveth thee and thine house, because he is well with thee; then thou shalt take an awl, and thrust it through his ear unto the door, and he shall be thy servant 18 for ever. And also unto thy maidservant thou shalt do likewise. It shall not seem hard unto thee, when thou sendest him away free from thee; for he hath been worth ^v a double hired servant to thee, in serving thee six years:³ and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all that thou doest.
- 19 ^w All the firstling males that come of thy herd and of thy flock thou shalt sanctify unto the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work with the firstling of 20 thy bullock, nor shear the firstling of thy sheep. ^x Thou shalt eat it before the LORD thy God year by year in the place which the LORD shall choose, thou and thy household.
- 21 ^y And if there be any blemish therein, as if it be lame, or blind, or have any ill 22 blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the LORD thy God. ¹ The most perfect social regulations, especially such as aim at the higher kinds of good, may be evaded by those who are ill disposed. The observance of these, therefore, God takes under his own cognizance, enforcing them by special warnings and commands, and engaging to support them by his Providence (ver. 10), by giving a peculiar blessing to those who conscientiously regard them.

² This would apply to those who sold themselves for servants, or had been sold, either by their parents through extreme poverty, or under a judicial sentence, as a punishment for some crime.

³ These laws and regulations respecting slaves are in admirable contrast to those of the Spartans, Romans, and other ancient nations; amongst whom neither the person nor the life of the slave had any protection.

⁴ It was insipid and unsavoury, because baked without leaven: or it was, perhaps, called 'bread of affliction' because eaten in remembrance of the bitter bondage out of which they had been delivered.

⁵ One effect of this law was to prevent superstitious additions to the appointed rites; whilst it secured honour to the sanctuary.

¹ As being guilty of resisting the minister of the Divine Sovereign of Israel.

² It is observable that whilst the principles of government are carefully and strictly settled, its outward form is regarded as unimportant, and left to the decision of the people. And it is provided that any king of Israel shall be only viceroy of Jehovah; and, as such, shall study his Divine law, and solemnly bind himself duly to administer it: thus establishing the supremacy of law over the monarch. For disregarding this fundamental principle, Saul was rejected; and David, for his hearty compliance with it, was approved as a man 'after God's own heart.'

³ At this period, horses were commonly used only in war; and it was God's design that the Israelites should not become a military people, but should depend on Him for protection. Besides, the use of horses would necessarily lead to intercourse with Egypt, whence, at that period, they were mostly procured, which would expose the Hebrews to the contamination of that idolatry to which they were peculiarly prone. Solomon's violation of this and the succeeding command (ver. 17) were the first steps in that course of apostasy which led to the division of the nation, the establishment of the Egyptian calf-worship, and, at last, to the overthrow of the kingdom: see refs.

⁴ If the king were obedient to the laws of Jehovah, the monarchy was to be hereditary, as it became in David's family.

⁵ If this be the correct rendering, it would seem that, now that the Hebrews were about to be settled in their own land, the priest's due was increased (comp. with Lev. vii. 30—34). But it may, perhaps, refer to the ordinary killing of animals for food.

⁶ The first-fruits of these things were consecrated to God; and he appropriated them to the maintenance of the priests.

⁷ Though the Levites did not share in the division of the country, yet they might have houses and land in the suburbs of their cities. A Levite who devoted himself to constant service at the tabernacle was to retain this property, or its proceeds if it were sold, in addition to his portion of the offerings.

⁸ However futile such pretensions might be, they were mischievous, both because they deluded the people, and because they were closely connected with superstition, and particularly with demon-worship.

13 drive them out from before thee. Thou shalt be perfect [or, upright, or, sincere^u] 14 with the LORD thy God. For these nations, which thou shalt possess [or, inherit], hearkened unto observers of times, and unto diviners: but as for thee, the LORD thy God hath not suffered thee so to do.

15 ^zThe LORD thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet¹ from the midst of 16 thee, of thy brethren, ^ylike unto me; ^zunto him ye shall hearken. According to all that thou desiredst of the LORD thy God in Horeb ^ain the day of the assembly, saying, ^bLet me not hear again the voice of the LORD my God, neither 17 let me see this great fire any more, that I die not. And the LORD said unto me, 18 ^cThey have well spoken that which they have spoken. ^dI will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and ^ewill put my words in 19 his mouth; ^fand he shall speak² unto them all that I shall command him. ^gAnd it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him.

20 But ^hthe prophet, which shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or ⁱthat shall speak in the name of other 21 gods, even that prophet shall die. And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we 22 know the word which the LORD hath not spoken? ^kWhen a prophet speaketh in the name of the LORD, ^lif the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the LORD hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it ^mpresumptuously: thou shalt not be afraid of him.

Laws respecting manslaughter and murder; landmarks; and witnesses.

19 WHEN the LORD thy God ⁿhath cut off the nations whose land the LORD thy God giveth thee, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their cities, and in 2 their houses; ^othou shalt separate three³ cities for thee in the midst of thy land, 3 which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it. Thou shalt prepare thee a way, and divide the coasts of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to 4 inherit, into three parts, that every slayer may flee thither. (And ^pthis is the case of the slayer, which shall flee thither, that he may live: Whoso killeth his 5 neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not in time past; as when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the ax to cut down the tree, and the head [iron] slippeth from the helve [wood], and lighteth upon his neighbour, that he die; he shall flee unto one of 6 those cities, and live:) ^qlest the avenger of the blood pursue the slayer, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and slay him; whereas he was not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not in time past.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.
8 And if the LORD thy God ^renlarge thy coast, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, 9 and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers; if thou shalt keep all these commandments to do them, which I command thee this day, to love the LORD thy God, and to walk ever in his ways; ^sthen shalt thou add 10 three cities more for thee, beside these three: that innocent blood be not shed in thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and so blood be upon thee.

11 But ^tif any man hate his neighbour, and lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him mortally that he die, and fleeth into one of these 12 cities: then the elders of his city shall send and fetch him thence, and deliver 13 him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die. ^uThine eye shall not pity him, ^xbut thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with thee.

14 ^yThou shalt not remove thy neighbour's landmark,⁴ which they of old time have set in thine inheritance, which thou shalt inherit in the land that the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

15 ^zOne witness shall not rise up⁵ against a man for any iniquity, or for any sin,

¹ Whilst discountenancing these false pretensions, Moses is directed to promise the great Prophet, who, like himself, should be the accepted Mediator between Jehovah and his people (see ch. v. 23—28), acting as their Legislator, Governor, and Teacher; and, in this capacity, should introduce a new dispensation; which of itself shows his superiority, as the greater supersedes the less. For both the parallel and the contrast between Moses and 'the great Prophet,' see Heb. iii. 1—6; xii. 18—29.

² The Israelites being filled with terror at the awful majesty in which God appeared at Sinai, received the promise of a different display of his glory, which was fulfilled when 'the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth' (John i. 14).

³ Three cities of refuge had been appointed for the country already conquered on the east of Jordan (ch. iv. 41—43). These three on the west of Jordan made the number six. See Num. xxxv. 6.

⁴ Hedges and walls being used only to inclose gardens, the boundaries of landed property in general were marked by stones; and, as these might easily be removed, special laws are here made against such dishonest practices.

⁵ That is, 'shall not be accepted.' The same Hebrew word is rendered 'established' at the end of the verse.

in any sin that he sinneth: at the mouth of ^a two witnesses, or at the mouth of 16 three witnesses, shall the matter be established. If a false witness ^b rise up against 17 any man to testify against him that which is wrong [or, falling away]; then both the men, between whom the controversy is, shall stand before the LORD, ^c before 18 the priests and the judges, which shall be in those days; and the judges shall make diligent inquisition: and, behold, if the witness be a false witness, and hath 19 testified falsely against his brother; ^d then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother. So ^e shalt thou put the evil away from among you:
 20 ^f and those which remain shall hear, and fear, and shall henceforth commit no 21 more any such evil among you. ^g And thine eye shall not pity; but ^h life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.¹

The laws of war.

20 WHEN thou goest out to battle² against thine enemies, and seest ⁱ horses, and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them: for the LORD thy 2 God is ^j with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be, when ye are come nigh unto the battle, ^k that the priest shall approach and 3 speak unto the people, and shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies: let not your hearts faint, fear not, and do 4 not tremble, neither be ye terrified because of them; for the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, ^m to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.
 5 ⁿ And the officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not ^o dedicated it? let him go and return to his 6 house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it. And what man is he that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not ^p yet eaten of it? let him also go and 7 return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, ^q and another man eat of it. ^r And what man is there that hath betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man take her.
 8 And the officers shall speak further unto the people, and they shall say, ^s What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted? let him go and return unto his 9 house, ^t lest his brethren's heart faint as well as his heart. And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies to lead the people.
 10 When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, ^u then proclaim peace 11 unto it. And it shall be, if it make thee answer of peace, and open unto thee, then it shall be, that all the people that is found therein shall be ^v tributaries unto 12 thee, and they shall serve thee. ^w And if it will make no peace with thee, but 13 will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it: and when the LORD thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, ^x thou shalt smite every male thereof 14 with the edge of the sword: ^y but the women, and the little ones, and ^z the cattle, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou take unto thyself;
 and ^a thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.
 15 Thus shalt thou do unto all the cities which are very far off from thee, which 16 are not of the cities of these nations. But ^b of the cities of these people, which the LORD thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing 17 that breatheth: but thou shalt utterly destroy them; namely, ^c the Hittites, and the Amorites, the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; 18 as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee: that ^d they teach you not to do after all their abominations, which they have done unto their gods; so should ye sin against the LORD your God.
 19 When thou shalt besiege a city a long time, in making war against it to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an ax against them: for thou mayest eat of them, and thou shalt not cut them down (for the tree of the 20 field is man's ^e life³) to employ them in the siege: only the trees which thou knowest that they be not trees for meat, thou shalt destroy and cut them down;
 and thou shalt ^f build bulwarks against the city that maketh war with thee, until it be subdued.

2 The wisdom and mercy of the Hebrew laws of war will be best seen by contrasting them with those of other nations; which were, and in many cases still are, extremely barbarous. Vers. 2—8 seem designed to forbid the general levies of men so common in Asiatic warfare; and to promote the best of all courage, a firm reliance upon Jehovah. Vers. 10, 11 discountenance indiscriminate slaughter, as well as pillage and slavery. On the exception of the Canaanites from this rule (vers. 16, 17), see note at the end of the book of Joshua, p. 241.

3 For instance, the produce of the date-palm is the principal food of several Arabian and African tribes, who have been exposed to famine by the cruelty of invaders in cutting down those invaluable trees. Such devastation would be peculiarly terrible, because, of course, years must elapse before newly-planted trees would bear fruit.

Expiation of uncertain murder.

21 IF one be found slain in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it, lying in the field, and it be not known who hath slain him: then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain. And it shall be, that the city which is next unto the slain man, even the elders of that city shall take an heifer, which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke; and the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer unto a rough¹ valley, which is neither eared nor sown, and shall strike off the heifer's neck there in the valley. And the priests the sons of Levi shall come near; (for² them the LORD thy God hath chosen to minister unto him, and to bless in the name of the LORD; and³ by their word shall every controversy and every stroke be tried;) and all the elders of that city, that are next unto the slain man,⁴ shall wash their hands over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley: and they shall answer and say, Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it: be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed,⁵ and lay not innocent blood unto thy people of Israel's charge. And the blood shall be forgiven them. So⁶ shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

Various laws regulating personal and social morals.

10 WHEN thou goest forth to war against thine enemies, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive, and seest among the captives a beautiful woman, and hast a desire unto her, that thou wouldest have her to thy wife;² then thou shalt bring her home to thine house; and she shall shave her head, and pare [or, suffer to grow] her nails; and she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her, and shall remain in thine house, and³ bewail her father and her mother a full month: and after that thou shalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife. And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will; ⁴but thou shalt not sell her at all for money,⁵ thou shalt not make merchandise of her, because thou hast⁶ humbled her.

15 If a man have two wives,⁷ one beloved,⁸ and another hated, and they have borne him children, both the beloved and the hated; and if the firstborn son be her's that was hated: then it shall be, ⁹when he maketh his sons to inherit that which he hath, that he may not make the son of the beloved firstborn before the son of the hated, which is indeed the firstborn: but he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the firstborn,¹⁰ by giving him a double portion of all that he hath: for he is¹¹ the beginning of his strength; ¹²the right of the firstborn is his.

18 If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son,¹³ which will not obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and that, when they have chastened him, will not hearken unto them: then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of his place; and they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice; he is a glutton, and a drunkard. And all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die. ¹⁴So shalt thou put evil away from among you; ¹⁵and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

¹ These words rather mean a ravine which had a stream running through it. This law shows the high value set upon human life.

² This is evidently a restriction adapted gradually to suppress a wicked practice already existing. Its importance is proved by the terrible outrages to which even modern warfare often subjects the families of the conquered.

³ This command intimates how binding the laws of justice and honour are, particularly in such matters.

⁴ This is another restrictive law, showing the mischievousness of the then prevalent custom of polygamy. This law deprives the father of a power which was sometimes exercised by persons who practised polygamy, of treating the firstborn of the favourite wife as the eldest, although he might not really be so; which must have given rise in families to much vexation and ill-will.

⁵ The power of parents over their children appears originally, in most nations, to have been absolute. This law, whilst it takes from the father the power of inflicting death, adds to the punishment of filial disobedience the disgrace of a public condemnation. The Bible everywhere places duties to parents next to duties to God; and, in fact, the political and social as well as religious importance of filial respect and obedience can hardly be overrated.

- thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not, then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and thou shalt restore it to him again. - 9 ⁵ Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled. ⁶ Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together. ⁷ Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together.
- 12 Thou shalt make thee ⁸ fringes upon the four quarters of thy vesture, where-with thou coverest thyself.
- 13, 14 If any man take a wife, and ⁹ go in unto her, and hate her, and give ⁹ occasions of speech against her, and bring up an evil name upon her, and say, I took this woman, and when I came to her, I found her not a maid: then shall the father of the damsel, and her mother, take and bring forth the tokens of the damsel's virginity unto the elders of the city in the gate: and the damsel's father shall say unto the elders, I gave my daughter unto this man to wife, and he hateth her; and, lo, he hath given occasions of speech against her, saying, I found not thy daughter a maid; and yet these are the tokens of my daughter's virginity. And they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city. And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him; and they shall amerce him in an hundred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel: and she shall be his wife; ¹⁰ he may not put her away all his days. But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel: then they shall bring out the damsel to the door of her father's house, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones that she die: because she hath ¹¹ wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her father's house. ¹² So shalt thou put evil away from among you.
- 22 ¹³ If a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman. So shalt thou put away evil from Israel.
- 23 If a damsel that is a virgin be ¹⁴ betrothed unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her; then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones that they die; the damsel, because she cried not, being in the city; and the man, because he hath ¹⁵ humbled his neighbour's wife. ¹⁶ So thou shalt put away evil from among you.⁵
- 25 But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man force her, and lie with her: then the man only that lay with her shall die: but unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing; there is in the damsel no sin worthy of death: for as when a man riseth against his neighbour, and slayeth him, even so is this matter: for he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel cried, and there was none to save her.
- 28 ¹⁷ If a man find a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold

1 This law of kind and brotherly care for the property of others is one exhibition of that tenderness which frequently appears in the Jewish code, and is by no means an exclusive characteristic of Christian morality.

2 The practices here prohibited had occasioned the most revolting licentiousness. This regulation would tend to promote a respectful delicacy between the sexes.

3 This law teaches a spirit of mercy: it would also tend to prevent the extirpation of any species of birds; which, in a country producing many snakes and insects, might cause serious injury.

4 Or, 'parapet.' The flat roofs of the houses in Eastern countries are much used for walking and sleeping; and, of course, would be dangerous without a fence. This precautionary ordinance suggests the duty of carefully fencing, or removing, everything by which life may be endangered. It is an interesting example of the manner in which religion guards the temporal interests of men.

5 These laws, enforced by such solemn penalties, show how hateful unchastity is to God. Those which follow (vers. 25—29) are adapted to protect the victim, whilst they punish the perpetrator of crime.

- 29 on her, and lie with her, and they be found; then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsel's father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife; ^z because he hath humbled her, he may not put her away all his days.
- 30 ^a A man shall not take his father's wife, nor ^b discover his father's skirt.
- 23 He that is wounded in the stones, or hath his privy member cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD. A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to his tenth¹ generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD. ^c An Ammonite or Moabite² shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the LORD for ever: ^d because they met you not with bread and with water in the way, when ye came forth out of Egypt; and ^e because they hired against thee Balaam the son of Beor of Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse thee. (Nevertheless the LORD thy God ^f would not hearken unto Balaam; but the LORD thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee, ^g because the LORD thy God loved thee.) ^h Thou shalt not seek their peace nor their prosperity all thy days for ever. Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite; ⁱ for he is thy brother: thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian; ^j because ^k thou wast a stranger in his land.
- 8 The children that are begotten of them shall enter into the congregation of the LORD in their third generation.
- 9 When the host goeth forth against thine enemies, then keep thee from every wicked thing. ^l If there be among you any man, that is not clean by reason of uncleanness that chanceth him by night, then shall he go abroad out of the camp, he shall not come within the camp: but it shall be, when evening cometh on, ^m he shall wash himself with water: and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again. Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad: and thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon; and it shall be, when thou wilt ease thyself abroad, thou shalt dig therewith, and thou shalt turn back and cover that which cometh from thee: for the LORD thy God ⁿ walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy: ^o that he see no unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee.
- 15 ^p Thou shalt not deliver unto his master⁵ the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee: he shall dwell with thee, even among you, in that place which he shall choose in one of thy gates, where it liketh him best: ^q thou shalt not oppress him.
- 17 There shall be no whore ^r of the daughters of Israel, nor ^s a sodomite of the sons of Israel. Thou shalt not bring the hire of a whore, or the price of ^t a dog,⁶ into the house of the LORD thy God for any vow: for even both these are abomination unto the LORD thy God.
- 19 ^u Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury: ^v unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury: ^w that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it.
- 21 ^x When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the LORD thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee. But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee. ^y That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform; even a freewill offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the LORD thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.
- 24 When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes thy fill at thine own pleasure; but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel. When thou comest into the standing corn of thy neighbour, ^z then thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand; but thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbour's standing corn.
- 24 When a ^a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness in her; then let him write her a bill of divorcement,⁷ and give it in her hand, ^b and send her

See Numb. xxv. 16—18.³ It has, with some probability, been inferred from this, that the mass of the people of Egypt were not implicated in the oppression of the Hebrews by their rulers, who, perhaps, were of a foreign dynasty.⁴ The term 'holy' is here used as denoting the removal of that which is offensive even in material things.

⁵ That is, a foreign master. The land of Israel was to be (as our own country now is) an asylum for the oppressed of all nations.⁶ That is, a sodomite. We cannot honour God with our substance, unless it be honourably acquired.⁷ This was intended to restrain a bad practice which had gone far to annul the original law of marriage, and which still prevails among the Arabs, who are allowed

 3 be another man's wife. And if the latter husband hate her, and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it in her hand, and sendeth her out of his house; or 4 if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife; ^dher former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled; for that is abomination before the LORD: and thou shalt not cause the land to sin, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.
- 5 ^eWhen a man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, neither shall he be charged with any business: but he shall be free at home one year, and shall ^fcheer up his wife which he hath taken.
- 6 No man shall take the nether or the upper millstone to pledge: for he taketh a man's life¹ to pledge.
- 7 ^gIf a man be found stealing any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him; then that thief shall die; ^hand thou shalt put evil away from among you.
- 8 Take heed in ⁱthe plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do
 according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded 9 them, so ye shall observe to do. ^kRemember what the LORD thy God did ^lunto Miriam by the way, after that ye were come forth out of Egypt.
- 10 When thou dost lend thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house²
 11 to fetch his pledge. Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou dost 12 lend shall bring out the pledge abroad unto thee. And if the man be poor, thou 13 shalt not sleep with his pledge: ^min any case thou shalt deliver him the pledge again when the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and ⁿbless thee: and ^oit shall be righteousness unto thee before the LORD thy God.
- 14 Thou shalt not ^poppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be 15 of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates. At his day³ thou ^qshalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it; for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it: ^rlest he cry against thee unto the

- 16 ^sThe fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children

- 17 ^uThou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless;

 fore I command thee to do this thing.
- 19 ^xWhen thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: it shall be for the stranger, for the

by a word to dissolve the marriage tie. To correct this custom, Moses allows a wife to be divorced only by a legal document, and forbids her husband to take her back after she had been married to another. For the law of Christ on this subject, see Matt. v. 31, 32; xix. 7—9.

¹ It was necessary in order to grind the corn for his family. Consonant to this is the ancient common law of England, which provides that no man shall be distrained of the utensils or instruments of his trade or profession, as the axe of a carpenter, or the books of a scholar, or beasts used for the plough, as long as there are other things upon which distress can be made.

² The sacredness thus given to the poor man's home strikingly illustrates the humane and refined spirit of these laws.

³ Probably it is to this merciful command that we should trace the present practice in those countries of ending work at sunset, and paying wages daily. See refs.

⁴ This would tend to prevent hereditary blood-feuds.

⁵ The spirit of this and the following precepts is beautifully expressed by our Lord: 'All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them' (Matt. vii. 12).

⁶ The Jews, in practice, allowed only thirty-nine to be given, lest the number should be inadvertently exceeded. See 2 Cor. xi. 24.

5 ^k If brethren dwell together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry without unto a stranger: her husband's brother [or, next kinsman^l] shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husband's brother unto her. And it shall be, that the firstborn which she beareth ^m shall succeed in the name of his brother which is dead, that ⁿ his name be not put out of Israel. And if the man like not to take his brother's [or, next kinsman's] wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the ^o gate unto the elders, and say, My husband's brother refuseth to raise up unto his brother a name in Israel, he will not perform the duty of my husband's brother. Then the elders of his city shall call him, and speak unto him: and if he stand to it, and say, ^p I like not to take her; then shall his brother's wife come unto him in the presence of the elders, and ^q loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his face, and shall answer and say, So shall it be done unto that man that will not ^r build up his brother's house.¹ And his name shall be called in Israel, The house of him that hath his shoe loosed.

11 When men strive together one with another, and the wife of the one draweth near for to deliver her husband out of the hand of him that smiteth him, and putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the secrets: then thou shalt cut off her hand; ^s thine eye shall not pity her.

13 'Thou shalt not have in thy bag divers weights, a great and a small. Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small. But thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have: ^t that thy days may be lengthened in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee. For ^u all that do such things, and all that do unrighteously, are an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

17 ^v Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt; how he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary; and he ^z feared not God. Therefore it shall be, ^a when the LORD thy God hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that thou shalt ^b blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven; ^c thou shalt not forget it.

The mode of offering first-fruits and tithes.

26 AND it shall be, when thou art come in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and possessest it, and dwellest therein; ^d that thou shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of thy land that the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt ^e go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name there. And thou shalt go unto the priest that shall be in those days, and say unto him, I profess³ this day unto the LORD thy God, that I am come unto the country ^f which the LORD sware unto our fathers for to give us. And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down before the altar of the LORD thy God. And thou shalt speak and say before the LORD thy God, ^g A Syrian ^h ready to perish was my father,⁴ and ⁱ he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with a ^k few, and became there a nation, great, mighty, and populous: and ^l the Egyptians evil intreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage: and ^m when we cried unto the LORD God of our fathers, the LORD heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression: and ⁿ the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and ^o with great terribleness, and with signs, and with wonders: and he hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even ^p a land that floweth with milk and honey. And now, behold, I have brought the firstfruits of the land, which thou, O LORD, hast given me.

And thou shalt set it before the LORD thy God, and worship before the LORD thy God: and ^q thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the LORD thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.

¹ This appears to have been a restrictive command, which enabled a man, by submitting to a small indignity, to escape compliance with a prevalent custom. See Gen. xxxviii. 8, 11. The Jews now almost universally avail themselves of this provision in such cases.

² Some centuries later, Saul was ordered to put this sentence in execution (1 Sam. xv.); and he incurred Divine displeasure because he did not perform it effectually. The Amalekites who remained were afterwards smitten by David (1 Sam. xxx.), and subsequently by the Simeonites in Hezekiah's time (1 Chron. iv. 43).

³ That is, 'I testify by this offering that I owe all I have to the bounty of Jehovah, who hath faithfully kept all his promises.'

⁴ This may be rendered, 'A Syrian, a wanderer, was my father;' and so would include Abraham and Isaac as well as Jacob. These verses were recited at the passover; and on the next day the first sheaf was presented.

Concluding admonition.

16 THIS day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments: thou shalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart, and with 17 all thy soul. Thou hast ^zavouched the LORD this day to be thy God, and to walk in his ways, and to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments,
18 and to hearken unto his voice: and ^athe LORD hath avouched thee this day to be his peculiar people, as he hath promised thee, and that thou shouldst keep all
19 his commandments; and to make thee ^bhigh above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be ^can holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.

27 AND Moses with the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, Keep all
2 the commandments which I command you this day. And it shall be on the day ^dwhen ye shall pass over Jordan unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that ^ethou shalt set thee up great stones, ¹and plaister them with plaister:
3 and thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over, that thou mayest go in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee,

4 promised thee. Therefore it shall be when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, ^gin mount Ebal, ²and thou
5 shalt plaister them with plaister. And there shalt thou build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of stones: ^hthou shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.
6 Thou shalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole stones: and thou shalt
7 offer burnt offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God: and thou shalt offer peace
8 offerings, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before the LORD thy God. ³And thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law ⁱvery plainly.
9 And Moses and the priests the Levites spake unto all Israel, saying, Take heed, and hearken, O Israel; ^kthis day thou art become the people of the LORD thy 10 God. Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of the LORD thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes, which I command thee this day.
11, 12 And Moses charged the people the same day, saying, These shall stand ^lupon mount Gerizim to bless the people, when ye are come over Jordan; Simeon, and 13 Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin: and ^mthese shall stand upon mount Ebal to curse; Reuben, Gad, and Asher, and Zebulun, Dan, and 14 Naphtali. And ⁿthe Levites shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice,
15 ^oCursed be ⁴the man that maketh any graven or molten image, ^pan abomination unto the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsman, and putteth it in ^asecret
16 place. ^qAnd all the people shall answer and say, Amen.—^rCursed be he that setteth light by his father or his mother. And all the people shall say, Amen.—

¹ Books being scarce, these public monuments were of great importance. It seems likely, as the plastering is mentioned before the writing, that the uneven surface of the stones was covered with a smooth plaster, capable of resisting the action of the air in a dry climate, which was then engraved or painted. Such plaster-inscriptions are found among the antiquities of Egypt. Whether the law so inscribed were the Decalogue, or the blessings and curses here following, we are not told.

³ It was only in virtue of what the altar with its burnt-offerings and peace-offerings represented that they could rejoice before God. Had the law stood there alone, it would have reminded them only of sin and condemnation; but, the altar of expiation being also there, they could worship God with joy as well as fear. Yet the altar did not annul the law, the words of which were written plainly upon the pillar; reminding us that reconciliation with God by the great Sacrifice does not exempt us from keeping his commandments.

⁴ Rather, 'Cursed is.' It should be observed that the sins here declared accursed are supposed to be committed in secret, and such as God only can avenge. To many of them the penalty of death was attached, upon discovery and conviction.

The blessing and the curse.

28 AND it shall come to pass, ^e if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the LORD thy God ^f will set thee on high above all nations of 2 the earth: and all these blessings shall come on thee, and ^g overtake thee, if thou 3 shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God. ^h Blessed shalt thou be ⁱ in the 4 city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field. Blessed shall be ^k the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy kine, and 5 the flocks of thy sheep. Blessed shall be thy basket and thy store [or, dough, or,
 6 kneading-trough]. ^l Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt
 7 thou be when thou goest out. The LORD ^m shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, 8 and flee before thee seven ways. The LORD shall ⁿ command the blessing upon thee in thy storehouses [or, barns^o], and in all that thou ^p settest thine hand unto; and 9 he shall bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee. ^q The LORD shall establish thee an holy people unto himself, ^r as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, and walk in his ways.
 10 And all the people of the earth shall see that thou art ^s called by the name of the 11 LORD; and they shall be ^t afraid of thee. And ^u the LORD shall make thee plenteous in goods [or, for good], in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, in the land which the LORD sware unto thy 12 fathers to give thee. The LORD shall open unto thee his good treasure, the heaven
^x to give the rain unto thy land in his season, and ^y to bless all the work of thine 13 hand: and ^z thou shalt lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow. And the LORD shall make thee ^a the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the LORD thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them:
 14 ^b and thou shalt not go aside from any of the words which I command thee this day, to the right hand, or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them.
 15 But it shall come to pass, ^c if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes which I command thee this day; that all these curses² shall come upon thee, and ^d overtake 16 thee: Cursed shalt thou be ^e in the city, and cursed shalt thou be in the field.
 17 Cursed shall be thy basket and thy store. Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, 18 and the fruit of thy land, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.
 19 Cursed shalt thou be ^f when thou comest in, and cursed shalt thou be when thou 20 goest out. The LORD shall send upon thee ^g cursing, ^h vexation, and ⁱ rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand unto for to do, ^k until thou be destroyed, and until thou perish quickly; because of the wickedness of thy doings, whereby thou hast 21 forsaken me. The LORD shall make ^l the pestilence³ cleave unto thee, until he 22 have consumed thee from off the land, whither thou goest to possess it. ^m The LORD shall smite thee with a consumption,⁴ and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the sword [or, drought], and with ⁿ blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish.

1 The word 'all,' inserted by our translators, is supported by Gal. iii. 10, as well as by the Samaritan text and the Chaldee paraphrase.

2 Perhaps there is nowhere to be found an enumeration of Divine punishments so awful as this: yet all of them are strikingly exemplified in the history of the Jews; especially in the repeated sieges and destruction of their cities, the desolation of their country, their captivities, their oppressed condition through many centuries, and their present dispersion over the world. The details will be found in works on the fulfilment of prophecy. See note on this subject at the end of the Old Testament.

3 The plague, on account of its ravages and its frequency, is the most dreaded scourge of Syria and Egypt.

4 Rather, 'a wasting.' The disease which we call consumption is little known in the East.

23 And ^othy heaven that is over thy head shall be brass,¹ and the earth that is under 24 thee shall be iron. The LORD shall make the rain of thy land powder and dust:²
 25 from heaven shall it come down upon thee, until thou be destroyed. ^pThe LORD shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them: and ^rthou shalt be removed into all 26 the kingdoms of the earth. And ^rthy carcase shall be meat unto all fowls of the 27 air, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray them away. The LORD will smite thee with ^sthe botch of Egypt, and with ^tthe emerods, and with ^uthe 28 scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed. The LORD shall smite 29 thee with madness,³ ^xand blindness, and ^yastonishment of heart: and thou shalt ^zgrope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways: and thou shalt be only ^aoppressed and spoiled evermore, and no 30 man shall save thee. ^bThou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her: ^cthou shalt build an house, and thou shalt not dwell therein: ^dthou shalt 31 plant a vineyard, and shalt not gather the grapes thereof. Thine ox shall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof: thine ass shall be violently taken away from before thy face, and shall not be restored to thee: thy sheep shall 32 be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue them. ^eThy sons and thy daughters shall be given unto another people, and thine eyes shall look, and ^ffail with longing for them all the day long: and there shall be no might in 33 thine hand. ^gThe fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up: and thou shalt be only ^hoppressed and crushed alway:
 34 so that thou shalt be mad ⁱfor the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see. The 35 LORD shall ^ksmite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with a sore botch that cannot 36 be healed, from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head. The LORD shall ^lbring thee, and thy king which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and ^mthere shalt thou serve other gods, 37 wood and stone. And thou shalt become ⁿan astonishment, a proverb, ^oand a 38 by-word, among all nations whither the LORD shall lead thee. ^pThou shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in; for ^rthe locust shall 39 consume it. Thou shalt plant vineyards, and dress them, but shalt neither drink 40 of the wine, nor gather the grapes; for ^rthe worms shall eat them. Thou shalt have olive trees throughout all thy coasts, but thou shalt ^snot anoint thyself with 41 the oil; for thine olive shall cast his fruit. Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, 42 but thou shalt not enjoy them; for ^tthey shall go into captivity. All thy trees
 43 and fruit of thy land shall the locust consume. The stranger that is within thee 44 shall ^uget up above thee very high; and thou shalt come down very low. ^xHe shall lend to thee, and thou shalt not lend to him: ^yhe shall be the head, and thou shalt be the tail.
 45 Moreover ^zall these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue thee, and overtake thee, till thou be destroyed; because thou hearkenedst not unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which he 46 commanded thee: and they shall be upon thee ^afor a sign and for a wonder, and 47 upon thy seed for ever. ^bBecause thou servedst not the LORD thy God with joy-48 fulness, and with gladness of heart, ^cfor the abundance of all things; therefore shalt thou ^dserve thine enemies which the LORD shall send against thee, ^ein hunger, and in thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things: and he ^fshall put a 49 yoke of iron upon thy neck, until he have destroyed thee. ^gThe LORD shall bring a nation⁴ against thee from far, from the end of the earth, ^has swift as the 50 eagle flieth; a nation whose tongue thou shalt not understand; a nation of fierce countenance, ⁱwhich shall not regard the person of the old, nor show favour to the 51 young: and he shall ^keat the fruit of thy cattle, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed: which also shall not leave thee either corn, wine, or oil, or the increase of thy kine, or flocks of thy sheep, until he have destroyed thee.
 52 And he shall ^lbesiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustedst, throughout all thy land: and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates throughout all thy land, which the LORD thy God hath given 53 thee. And ^mthou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body,⁵ the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the LORD thy God hath given thee, in the siege, and in 54 the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee: so that the man that

¹ The dull sultry heat reflected by the earth in hot climates, after a long drought, is not only destructive to vegetation, but intolerably oppressive to living creatures.

² The winds raise the hot fine sand of the desert, and scatter it over the neighbouring regions, so as sometimes altogether to destroy their fertility.

³ The infatuation of the Jews in the events which led to the Chaldean and Roman invasions was most remarkable.

⁴ This description applies well to several oppressors of the Jews, but particularly to the Romans.

⁵ See refs.; and the history of the siege of Jerusalem, as related by Josephus.

is tender among you, and very delicate, ⁿ his eye shall be evil toward his brother, and toward ^o the wife of his bosom, and toward the remnant of his children which 55 he shall leave : so that he will not give to any of them of the flesh of his children whom he shall eat : because he hath nothing left him in the siege, and in the 56 straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee in all thy gates. The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness, ^p her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom, and toward her son, and toward her daughter,
57 and toward her young one that cometh out ^q from between her feet, and toward her children which she shall bear : for she shall eat them for want of all things secretly in the siege and straitness, wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

58 If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, ^r that thou mayest fear ^s this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY 59 GOD ; then the LORD will make thy plagues ^t wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long 60 continuance. Moreover he will bring upon thee all ^u the diseases of Egypt, which 61 thou wast afraid of ; and they shall cleave unto thee. Also every sickness, and every plague, which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD
62 bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed. And ye ^x shall be left few in number, whereas ye were ^y as the stars of heaven for multitude ; because thou wouldest
63 not obey the voice of the LORD thy God. And it shall come to pass, that as the LORD ^z rejoiced over you to do you good, and to multiply you ; so the LORD ^a will rejoice¹ over you to destroy you, and to bring you to nought ; and ye shall be 64 plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it. And the LORD ^b shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other ; and ^c there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have 65 known, even wood and stone. And ^d among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest : ^e but the LORD shall give thee there
66 a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and ^f sorrow of mind : and thy life shall hang in doubt before thee ; and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have none
67 assurance of thy life : ^g in the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even ! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning ! for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and ^h for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt 68 see. And the LORD ⁱ shall bring thee into Egypt again with ships, by the way whereof I spake unto thee, ^j Thou shalt see it no more again : and there ^k ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.²

29 These are the words of the covenant, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside ^m the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.³

The covenant renewed ; the blessing and the curse repeated.

2 AND Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, ⁿ Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt unto Pharaoh, and unto all
3 his servants, and unto all his land ; ^o the great temptations which thine eyes have 4 seen, the signs, and those great miracles : yet ^p the LORD hath not given you an
5 heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, ^q unto this day. ^r And I have led you forty years in the wilderness : ^s your clothes are not waxen old upon you,
6 and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot : ^t ye have not eaten bread, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink : that ye might know that I am the LORD your God.

7 And when ye came unto this place, ^u Sihon the king of Heshbon, and Og the 8 king of Bashan, came out against us unto battle, and we smote them : and we took their land, and ^v gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites,
9 and to the half tribe of Manasseh. ^w Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may ^x prosper in all that ye do.

¹ We learn from Ezek. xviii. 23, xxxiii. 11, that these words must not be taken literally. But they intimate, in strong antithetical language, that the threatenings of God are as certain of fulfilment as his promises.

² This was literally fulfilled by the Sidonians and the Romans ; the latter of whom sold Hebrew captives till no man would buy them. See 'Sketch of Events,' etc., at the end of the Acts of the Apostles.

³ This covenant, made on the plains of Moab, seems to have contained some important new provisions, particularly in its restorative and remedial part ; promising, upon repentance, a merciful recall from captivity and bondage, and, above all, moral renovation : see ch. xxx. 1—10.

⁴ As this is spoken reproachfully, it is evident that the withholding of God's grace is attributed to the people's neglect (see ch. v. 29). So in the refs.

12 unto the drawer of thy water:¹ that thou shouldest enter into covenant with the LORD thy God, and ^binto his oath, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee 13 this day: that he may ^cestablish thee to-day for a people unto himself, and that he may be unto thee a God, ^das he hath said unto thee, and ^eas he hath sworn 14 unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. Neither with you only ^fdo 15 I make this covenant and this oath; but with him that standeth here with us this day before the LORD our God, ^gand also with him that is not here with us this day.
 16 For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt; and how we came 17 through the nations which ye passed by; and ye have seen their abominations, 18 and their idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, which were among them: lest there should be among you man, or woman, or family, or tribe, ^hwhose heart turneth away this day from the LORD our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations; ⁱlest there should be among you a root² that beareth gall [or, a poisonous 19 herb] and wormwood; and it come to pass, when he heareth the words of this curse, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, though I walk ^kin the imagination [or, stubbornness³] of mine heart, ^mto add drunkenness to 20 thirst:³ ⁿthe LORD will not spare him, but then ^othe anger of the LORD and ^phis jealousy shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the LORD ^qshall blot out his name from under 21 heaven. And the LORD ^rshall separate him unto evil out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant that are written in this book of the law.
 22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the 23 plagues of that land, and the sicknesses which the LORD hath laid upon it; and that the whole land thereof is ^sbrimstone, ^tand salt, and burning, that it is not sown, nor beareth, nor any grass groweth therein, ^ulike the overthrow of Sodom, and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, which the LORD overthrew in his anger, and in 24 his wrath: even all nations shall say, ^xWherefore hath the LORD done thus unto 25 this land? what meaneth the heat of this great anger? Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt: for 26 they went and served other gods, and worshipped them, ^ygods whom they knew not, and whom he had not given unto them [or, who had not given to them 27 any portion]: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against this land, ^zto bring 28 upon it all the curses that are written in this book: and the LORD ^arooted them out of their land in anger, and in wrath, and in great indignation, and cast them into another land, as it is this day.⁴ 29 ^bThe secret things belong unto the LORD our God: but those things which are revealed⁵ belong unto us and ^cto our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.
 30 And ^dit shall come to pass, when ^eall these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and ^fthou shalt call them to 2 mind among all the nations, whither the LORD thy God hath driven thee, and shalt ^greturn unto the LORD thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, ^hwith all thine heart, and 3 with all thy soul; ⁱthat then the LORD thy God will turn thy captivity,⁶ and have compassion upon thee, and will return and ^kgather thee from all the nations, 4 whither the LORD thy God hath scattered thee. ^lIf any of thine be driven out unto the outmost parts of heaven, ^mfrom thence will the LORD thy God gather 5 thee, and from thence will he fetch thee: and the LORD thy God will bring thee

¹ These were the lowest and most laborious services, which were generally performed by slaves (Jos. ix. 21—27).

² That is, an unperceived cause. 'Gall' is probably either hemlock or corn-cockle.

³ Heb., 'the drunken to the thirsty.' This appears to be a proverbial expression, meaning, 'to follow out determinately any evil course,' according with the stubbornness of heart just spoken of.

⁴ The consequences which Moses here foretold, as the result of the religious defection of the people, were such as no human wisdom could foresee, or experience suggest. The practice of idolatry did not prevent the aggrandisement of ancient Rome; nor could any mere statesman insure the accomplishment of a prophecy that military success should always attend the worship of the One true God, and that military discomfiture should always follow idolatry. It is evident that Moses derived his accurate knowledge of futurity from the immediate inspiration of God.

⁵ All that is necessary for our salvation God has clearly revealed. Moses concludes his prophecy of the Jews' rejection in much the same manner as the apostle Paul concludes his discourse on the same subject (Rom. xi. 33).

⁶ In these gracious encouragements to repentance and promises of restoration we behold the spirit of the gospel, though in the forms of the older dispensation. They furnished the pious Nehemiah with a powerful plea in prayer (Neh. i. 9). In the application of these promises to the present state and future prospects of the Jews, great difference of opinion has arisen: some expositors maintain that, in addition to their general conversion to Christianity, an actual restoration to their own land is here foretold; whilst others suppose the blessings here promised to be wholly spiritual.

into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will 6 do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers. And ⁿthe LORD thy God will 7 circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the LORD thy God with 8 all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live. And the LORD thy 9 God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee,
 10 which persecuted thee. And thou shalt return and obey the voice of the LORD, 11 and do all his commandments which I command thee this day. ^oAnd the LORD
 12 thy God will make thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of 13 thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good:
 14 for the LORD will again ^prejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers:
 15 if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his command-
 16 ments and his statutes which are written in this book of the law, and if thou turn 17 unto the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.
 18 For this commandment which I command thee this day, ^qit is not hidden from 19 thee, neither is it far off.¹ ^rIt is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who 20 shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?
 21 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea 22 for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? But the word is 23 very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.
 24 See, ^sI have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; in 25 that I command thee this day to love² the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, 26 and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments, that thou
 27 mayest live and multiply: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in the land
 28 whither thou goest to possess it. But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt 29 not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them; ^tI 30 denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not 31 prolong your days upon the land, whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess
 32 it. ^uI call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that ^xI have set 33 before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both 34 thou and thy seed may live: that thou mayest love the LORD thy God, and that 35 thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy 36 ^ylife, and the length of thy days: that thou mayest dwell in the land which the 37 LORD sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them.

Moses encourages the people and Joshua; the apostasy of the Israelites foretold.

31 AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel. And he said unto 2 them, I ^zam an hundred and twenty years old this day; ³I can no more ^ago out
 3 and come in: also the LORD hath said unto me, ^bThou shalt not go over this

 5 these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them: and Joshua, he shall

 7 ^fas he did to Sihon and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto the land of them,
 8 whom he destroyed. And ^gthe LORD shall give them up before your face, that 9 ye may do unto them according unto all the commandments which I have com-

¹ The Septuagint has, 'it is not too hard,' or heavy, 'for thee.' That which God expects of us is neither abstruse nor impossible; but commends itself at once to the understanding and conscience.

² This most emphatic close of the public recital of the Law, laying the chief stress upon that which must be the main-spring of obedience, love (vers. 16, 20), shows that the spirit of the Gospel pervaded the Law. For a commentary on ver. 20, see the First Epistle of John.

³ That is, 'already.'

⁴ Thereby publicly announcing him as future leader.

⁵ Probably the whole, in the three preceding books as well as this.

⁶ As in that year the land rested from cultivation, all classes of the people could then better find time to attend this service.

- together, men, and women, and children,¹ and thy stranger that is within thy gates, ^y that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law: and that their children,² which have not known any thing, ^a may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.
- 14 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^b Behold, thy days approach that thou must die: call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of the congregation, that ^c I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went, and presented themselves in the tabernacle of the congregation. And ^d the LORD appeared in the tabernacle in a pillar of a cloud: and the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle.
- 16 And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep [lie down^e] with thy fathers; and this people will ^f rise up, and ^g go a whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land, whither they go to be among them, and will ^h forsake me,² and ⁱ break my covenant which I have made with them. ^k Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and ^l I will forsake them, and I will ^m hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall ⁿ befall them; so that they will say in that day, ^o Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is ^p not among us? And ^q I will surely hide my face in that day from all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods. Now therefore write ye this song³ for you, and teach it the children of Israel: put it in their mouths, that this song may be ^r a witness for me against the children of Israel. For when I shall have brought them into the land which I swore unto their fathers, ^s that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves, ^t and waxen fat; ^u then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.
- 21 And it shall come to pass, ^x when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that this song shall testify against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for ^y I know their imagination ^z which they go about, even now, before I have brought them into the land which I swore.

Moses delivers the Law to the Levites, and his Song to the people.

- 22 MOSES therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.
- 23 ^a And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, ^b Be strong and of a good courage: ^c for thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I swear unto them: and I will be with thee.
- 24 And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of ^d writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying, Take this book of the law, ^e and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there ^f for a witness against thee. ^g For I know thy rebellion, and thy ^h stiff neck; behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much more after my death! Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, ⁱ and call heaven and earth to record against them. For I know that after my death ye will utterly ^k corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and ^l evil will befall you ^m in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.
- 30 And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song, until they were ended.
- 32 Give⁴ ⁿ ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; And hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.
- 2 ^o My doctrine shall drop as the rain,⁵—my speech shall distil as the dew,

¹ This festival, at which the Law was read, was the only one at which women and children were required to attend.

² Whilst God foreknew the future perverseness and rebellion of the people, he provided such safeguards as did preserve those who regarded them, and made the rest inexcusable.

³ While the autograph of the Law was to be preserved in the ark, and copied, at least in part, upon the stones set up in the centre of the land (ch. xxvii. 2—4), its principles and sanctions were to be impressed upon the minds of all by a national song; which has always been found a powerful method of affecting the mass of the people. The great usefulness of this inspired song is shown by the numerous allusions made to it by the prophets, both in expostulation and in promise (see refs. on this chapter); and by the quotations from it in the New Testament. See especially Heb. x. 30, etc.; where the inspired writer uses its impressive threatenings to give force to his appeals to the Hebrew Christians.

⁴ This inspired poem combines much imaginative beauty with great force and tenderness. It is on the whole rather sorrowful, in foresight of the apostasy of the people; against which, however, they are earnestly warned: but at the close (ver. 43) it represents the Gentile joining with the Jew, and rejoicing in the triumphs of Divine mercy and power; a clear announcement that the blessings of the kingdom of God were to be ultimately extended to the whole world. See Rom. xv. 10.

⁵ This elegant figure, representing the power of persuasion, is applied, in Ps. lxxii. 6, to the Messiah.

- ^p As the small rain upon the tender herb,—and as the showers upon the grass :
 3 Because I will publish ^r the name of the LORD :—^r ascribe ye greatness unto our God.
 4 He is ^s the Rock,¹ ^t his work is perfect :—for ^u all his ways are judgment :
^x A God of truth and ^y without iniquity,—just and right is he.
 5 ^z They have corrupted themselves,—their spot is not the spot of his children :²
They are a ^a perverse and crooked generation.
 6 Do ye thus ^b requite the LORD,—O foolish people and unwise ?
Is not he ^c thy father that hath ^d bought³ thee ?
 Hath he not ^e made thee,⁴ and established thee ?
 7 ^f Remember the days of old,—consider the years of many generations :
^g Ask thy father, and he will show thee ;—thy elders, and they will tell thee.
 8 When the ^h Most High ⁱ divided to the nations their inheritance,
 When he ^k separated the sons of Adam,
 He set the bounds of the people—according to the number of the children of Israel.
 9 For ^l the LORD's portion is his people ;—Jacob is the lot of his inheritance.
 10 He found him ^m in a desert land,—and in the waste howling wilderness ;
 He led him about, he ⁿ instructed him,—he ^o kept him as the apple⁵ of his eye.
 11 ^p As an eagle⁶ stirreth up her nest,—fluttereth over her young,
 Spreadeth abroad her wings,—taketh them, beareth them on her wings :
 12 So the LORD alone did ^q lead him,—and there was no ^r strange god with him.
 13 ^s He made him ride on the high places of the earth,
 That he might eat the increase of the fields ;
 And he made him to suck ^t honey out of the rock,—and oil out of the flinty rock ;⁷
 14 Butter of kine, and milk of sheep,—with fat of lambs,
 And rams of the breed of ^u Bashan, and goats,—^v with the fat of kidneys⁸ of wheat ;
 And thou didst drink the pure ^y blood of the grape.
 15 But ^z Jeshurun⁹ waxed fat, and ^a kicked :
^b Thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick,—thou art covered with fatness ;
 Then he ^c forsook God which ^d made him,
 And lightly esteemed the ^e Rock of his salvation.
 16 ^f They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods,
 With abominations provoked they him to anger.
 17 ^g They sacrificed unto devils,¹⁰ not to God ;—to gods ^h whom they knew not, ⁱ To new gods that came newly up,—whom your fathers feared not.
 18 ^k Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful,
 And hast ^l forgotten God that formed thee.
 19 ^m And when the LORD saw it, he abhorred them, ⁿ Because of the provoking of his sons, and of his daughters.
 20 And he said, ^o I will hide my face from them,—I will see what their end shall be :
 For they are a very ^p froward generation,—^q children in whom is no faith.¹¹
 21 ^r They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God ;
 They have provoked me to anger ^s with their vanities :
 And ^t I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people ;
 I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.¹²
 22 For ^u a fire is kindled in mine anger,—and shall burn unto the lowest hell,¹³
 And shall ^x consume the earth with her increase,
 And set on fire ^y the foundations of the mountains.
 23 I will ^z heap mischiefs upon them ;—^a I will spend mine arrows upon them.
 24 They shall be ^b burnt¹⁴ with hunger, and devoured with burning heat,
 And with bitter destruction :

¹ Some render this, 'the Creator ;' but the idea of un-changeableness appears to agree best with the context.

² Literally, 'He hath corrupted (or destroyed) him ;—not his children, their blot.' The Sam., Sept., and Syriac, by a slight change, read, 'They have corrupted themselves : they are not his ; they are polluted children.'

³ That is, delivered. A frequent figure (see refs.), which seems to point to the redemption by Christ.

⁴ That is, 'made thee his people.' This language greatly resembles that of Isa. xliii. 1 ; xlv. 21.

⁵ Rather, 'pupil :' an often-recurring metaphor, expressing constant and tender care : see refs.

⁶ This figure finely illustrates both the training of the Hebrews in the desert, and the way in which God prepares his people for the glory of heaven.

⁷ In the holes of the rocks the bees build their combs ;

whilst the olive-tree strikes its roots into the crevices.

⁸ This expression is used for fine, plump, full grains.

⁹ In the words that follow, the people are represented under the figure of a highly-fed animal.

¹⁰ Rather, 'idols :' perhaps meaning lords or destroyers. The phrase 'new gods' alludes to the multiplication of idols in the progress of superstition.

¹¹ That is, in whom no confidence can be placed.

¹² That is, a people whom they despise. This passage is quoted in Rom. x. 19, to show that the Jews might have known that, if they forsook God, he would transfer their privileges to the despised Gentiles ; and that the Gentile nations should be the instruments of their punishment.

¹³ Or, 'hades ;' representing utter destruction.

¹⁴ Rather, 'exhausted.' 'Burning heat' probably means a burning fever ; though some render it, 'rapacious birds.'

- I will also send ^c the teeth of beasts upon them,
With the poison ^d of serpents of the dust.
- 25 ^e The sword without, and terror within,
Shall destroy both ^f the young man and the virgin,
The suckling also with the man of gray hairs.
- 26 ^g I said, I would scatter them into corners,
I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men:
- 27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy,
Lest their adversaries ^h should behave themselves strangely,
And lest they should ⁱ say, Our hand is high,—and the Lord hath not done all this.¹
- 28 For they are a nation void of counsel,—^h neither is there any understanding in them.
- 29 ^j Oh that they were wise, that they understood this,
^m That they would consider their latter end!²
- 30 How should ⁿ one chase a thousand,—and two put ten thousand to flight, Except their Rock ^o had sold them,—and the Lord had ^p shut³ them up?
- 31 (For ^q their rock is not as our Rock,—^r even our enemies themselves being judges.)
- 32 For ^s their vine is⁴ of the vine of Sodom,—and of the fields of Gomorrah:
Their grapes are grapes of ^t gall,—their clusters are bitter:
- 33 Their wine is ^u the poison of dragons, and the cruel ^v venom of asps.
- 34 Is not this ^w laid up in store with me,—and sealed up among my treasures?⁵
- 35 ^x To me belongeth vengeance, and recompence;—^a their foot shall slide in due time:⁶
For ^b the day of their calamity is at hand,
And the things that shall come upon them make haste.
- 36 ^c For the LORD shall judge⁷ his people,—^d and repent himself for his servants,
When he seeth that their power is gone,—and ^e there is none shut up, or left.
- 37 And he shall say, ^f Where are their gods,—their rock in whom they trusted,
- 38 Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices,—and drank the wine of their drink offerings?
Let them rise up and help you,—and be your protection.
- 39 See now that ^g I, even I, am he,—and ^h there is no god with me:
ⁱ I kill, and I make alive;—I wound, and I heal:
^k Neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand.
- 40 ^j For I lift up my hand to heaven,—and say, I live for ever.⁹
- 41 ^m If I whet my glittering sword,—and mine hand take hold on judgment;
ⁿ I will render vengeance to mine enemies,—and will reward ^o them that hate me.
- 42 I will make mine arrows ^p drunk with blood,—and my sword shall devour flesh;
And that with the blood of the slain and of the captives,
From the beginning of ^q revenges upon the enemy.¹⁰
- 43 ^r Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people:
For he will ^s avenge the blood of his servants,
And ^t will render vengeance to his adversaries,
And ^u will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.
- 44 And Moses came and spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people, 45 he, and Hoshea [or, Joshua] the son of Nun. And Moses made an end of speak-46 ing all these words to all Israel: and he said unto them, ^x Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your 47 children to observe to do, all the words of this law. For it is not a vain thing for you; ^y because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land, whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.
- Moses is ordered to go up Mount Nebo to die.*
- 48, 49 ^z AND the Lord spake unto Moses that selfsame day, saying, Get thee up into this ^a mountain Abarim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho; and behold the land of Canaan, which I give unto the 50 children of Israel for a possession: and die in the mount whither thou goest up,

1 Or, 'Lest their adversaries should boast, and say, Our high hand, and not the Lord, hath done this.'

2 That is, their future destiny: some suppose the word to mean, as in some other places, the time of the Messiah.

3 Rather, 'delivered.'

4 Or, 'is worse than the vine,' etc.

5 That is, this wickedness shall not be forgotten.

6 Or, 'at the time when their foot shall slide.'

7 In Heb. x. 30, this is quoted as meaning, 'The Lord will chastise his people.' The verse should therefore be rendered, 'For (or, when) the Lord will chastise his people, but (or, then) he will repent himself,' etc. God here shows that his tender mercy may be exercised in connection with his sharpest discipline. It is to be observed that when the apostle Paul quotes from this song, he uses the Septuagint version.

8 Or, 'Then he shall say,' etc. Having reduced them to the last extremity, and yet preserved them, he will have vindicated his claim to be the only God by his irresistible power displayed both in the way of justice and of mercy.

9 Or, 'As I live for ever, if I whet,' etc. Jehovah swears by himself: see Heb. vi. 13.

10 Or, as the Septuagint reads, 'From the head of the leaders of the enemy.' See also Judg. v. 2.

and be gathered unto thy people; as ^b Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and 51 was gathered unto his people: because ^c ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of Meribah-Kadesh [or, strife at Kadesh], in the 52 Israel. ^e Yet thou shalt see the land before thee; but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I give the children of Israel.

The blessing on Israel, spoken by Moses.

33 AND this is ^f the blessing, wherewith Moses ^g the man of God¹ blessed the 2 children of Israel before his death. And he said,

^h The LORD² came from Sinai,—and rose up from Seir unto them;
 He shined forth from mount Paran,—and he came with ⁱ ten thousands of saints:
 From his right hand went a fiery law for them.

3 Yea, ^h he loved the people;³—^j all his saints are in thy hand:
 And they ^k sat down at thy feet;—every one shall ^l receive of thy words.

4 ^m Moses commanded us a law,—ⁿ even the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.

5 And he was ^o king⁴ in ^p Jeshurun,
 When the heads of the people—and the tribes of Israel were gathered together.

6 Let Reuben live, and not die;—and let *not*⁵ his men be few.

7 And this is the blessing of Judah: and he said, Hear, LORD, the voice of Judah,—and bring him unto his people:⁶
^q Let his hands be sufficient for him;—and be thou ^r an help to him from his enemies.

8 And of Levi he said,
^s Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with ^t thy holy one,⁷

^u Whom thou didst prove at Massah,
 And with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

9 ^v Who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not ^w seen him;
 Neither did he acknowledge his brethren,—nor knew his own children:
 For ^x they have observed thy word,—and kept thy covenant.

10 ^y They shall teach [or, Let them teach] Jacob thy judgments,—and Israel thy law:
^z They shall put [or, Let them put] incense before thee,
^{aa} And whole burnt sacrifice upon thine altar.

11 Bless, LORD, his substance,⁸—and ^{ab} accept the work of his hands:
 Smite through the loins of them that rise against him,
 And of them that hate him, that they rise not again.

12 And of Benjamin he said,
 The beloved of the LORD shall dwell in safety by him;
 And the LORD shall ^{ac} cover him all the day long,
 And he shall dwell between his shoulders.⁹

13 And of Joseph he said,
^{ad} Blessed of the LORD be his land,—for the precious things of heaven, for ^{ae} the dew,
 And for the deep¹⁰ that coucheth beneath,

¹ A frequent appellation of a Divine messenger. See Judg. xiii. 6, 8; 1 Sam. ix. 6—8, etc.

² The ancient manuscript versions have various readings of this verse, the most simple and consistent of which are as follow: 'The Lord came forth from Sinai, and dawned upon them from Seir: He shone forth from Mount Paran, and came from Meribah-kadesh: [where] from his right hand [came] streams [of water].' Or, after 'Paran,'—'The Holy One came forth from myriads; fire from his right hand was a signal to them.'—According to the different renderings, it is supposed to refer either wholly to the august manifestations at Sinai, or to the repeated displays of Divine power at various periods during the journeys of the Israelites.

³ This word being plural, 'peoples,' some have supposed that a reference is intended to the mercy made known to the Gentiles in the gospel. This verse is also rendered, 'Yea, he loved the peoples: all his saints he blessed: they sat at his feet, and received of his words.'

⁴ A prince, or chief ruler: see Judg. xix. 1.

⁵ The word not is not in the original; but was allowably inserted by our translators because it is in the previous clause. Some render it, 'though his men be few;' which, however, was not remarkably the case. One reading of the Septuagint inserts here the name 'Simeon,' which otherwise is omitted in the list; but this is hardly sufficient authority. In a catalogue of the tribes in Rev. vii., Dan is in like manner left out. Perhaps Simeon was not noticed on account of its pre-eminence in the last outbreak of crime (Numb. xxv. 14); when its numbers were so reduced, that it received, at the division of the land, only some cities out of the portion of Judah: see Josh. xix. 9.

⁶ This is generally interpreted, 'Bring him home in safety from his wars.' Some, however, connect this with Jacob's blessing (Gen. xlix. 8—12); and with the Messiah, who was to spring from Judah.

⁷ Heb., 'with the man, thy consecrated one, whom,' etc. As, in 1 Cor. x. 9, the people are said to have tempted Christ, it is inferred that this passage refers to him as the great Antitype of the Levitical priesthood, though not reckoned in their genealogies (ver. 9). But some regard it as a prayer that the high priesthood might remain in the family of Aaron, 'the saint of the Lord,' though he had failed in the trial at Meribah; since they had, in zealous defence of God's honour, faithfully executed justice, without any respect of persons, even though the guilty parties might be their nearest kinsmen. See Exod. xxxii. 26—29; Numb. xxv. 7, 8.

⁸ Or, 'his strength.'

⁹ Or, 'God shall dwell among his mountains.' The temple was erected within the allotment of this tribe.

¹⁰ See note on ch. viii. 7. In this elaborately beautiful description, we have all the richness of the large and valuable portions of Ephraim and Manasseh set before us.

1 Heb., 'moons:' this refers probably to the more quickly growing vegetables and corn.

2 Rather, 'Let the good-will of Him that dwelt in the bush come upon the head,' etc. See refs. This appellation calls to mind God's faithfulness and watchfulness, as well as his delivering power.

3 Or, 'Let his glory be.' Ephraim was always a powerful tribe; and, after the disruption in the time of Rehoboam, was head of the kingdom of Israel.

4 The tribes of Zebulun and Issachar occupied the country between the Mediterranean Sea and the Sea of Galilee, including the celebrated plain of Jezreel, which belonged to Issachar. They consequently obtained much commercial advantage from their Phœnician neighbours.

5 This may either mean the tribes, referring perhaps to the adherence of the Galileans in after ages to the worship at Jerusalem, which the Samaritans, though they were nearer to the capital, forsook; or it may allude to Gentile proselytes, who, by connection with these northern tribes, were brought to honour Jehovah. See 1 Kings v. 1—6; Mark vii. 26, etc.

6 Gad is here represented as the leader of the eastern tribes, both in war and in the administration of justice. This passage, which, from its brevity, is difficult, may be rendered, 'He shall dwell as a lion; and shall tear the arm with the crown of the head; and shall see the chief part kept for himself; (for there is the portion of the leader.) And he shall come,' etc.

7 That is, the lion; which was found in large numbers in Bashan.

8 Rather, as the ancient versions render it, 'the Sea,' i. e. the Sea of Galilee; the same word signifying west and sea in Hebrew, because the Great or Mediterranean Sea lay to the west of Canaan. A 'south land' is used, in Josh. xv. 19, for a warm, sunny country. The tribe of Naphtali was located on the southern slopes of Lebanon and Hermon.

9 The most probable rendering is, 'Thy bars (i. e. defences) shall be iron and brass; and, as thy days, so shall thy peace (i. e. safety) be.' Such an assurance would be peculiarly precious to a tribe situated on the north-western frontier, and therefore exposed to the incursions of the powerful nations in that quarter.

10 In this glowing and exultant description of Israel's safety, triumph, and happiness, the church of God in all ages may find encouragement to look for protection, support, the supply of all good, and the final victory over all her enemies, to her gracious, faithful, and almighty Head. The language indicates that the view of the departing prophet was extended to the distant future, and that, like his great progenitor, he beheld the day of Messiah and was glad.

28 ^p Israel then shall dwell in safety alone :

^q The fountain of Jacob ¹ shall be upon a land of corn and wine ;
Also his ^r heavens shall drop down dew.

29 ^s Happy art thou, O Israel :—^t who is like unto thee, O people " saved by the LORD, ^u The shield of thy help,—and who is the sword of thy excellency !

And thine enemies ^v shall be found liars [or, shall be subdued] unto thee ;
And ^z thou shalt tread upon their high places.

Moses dies, and is succeeded by Joshua.

34 AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab ^a unto the mountain of Nebo, ² to the top of Pisgah [or, the hill], that is over against Jericho. And the LORD

² ^b showed him all the land of Gilead, ^c unto Dan, ³ and all Naphtali, and the land

³ of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, ^d unto the utmost sea, and the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, ^e the city of palm trees, unto

⁴ ^f Zoar. And the LORD said unto him, ^g This is the land which I swore unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed : ^h I

⁵ ⁱ So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD. And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab,

⁷ ^l And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died : ^m his eye was

² See note on Numb. xxvii. 12. Of the chain of mountains called 'Abarim,' one was called Nebo; and its peak, fronting the valley, Pisgah.

³ As this name was not given till the time of Judg. xviii. 1, 27—29, it is evident that this account of the death of Moses is a later addition: and vers. 10—12 seem to indicate that it was made at the period when Ezra arranged the Old Testament Scriptures.

⁴ The burial-place of Moses was probably concealed that his tomb might not become the occasion of idolatry or superstition. Some suppose this to be referred to in Jude, ver. 9.

⁵ This appendix to the narrative shows how the expectation of the pious Israelite was kept alive by the promise of his great Lawgiver (ch. xviii. 15, 18): and confessedly that promise has not been fulfilled, nor can we see how it can now be accomplished, unless Jesus of Nazareth, 'a Prophet mighty in word and deed before God and all the people,' be the person 'of whom Moses and all the prophets have spoken.'

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE PENTATEUCH.

THE careful reader cannot have reached the end of this first general division of God's word without having learned much of its great design. He must already have found it to be a wonderful manifestation of the Divine attributes, plans, and works, and of the state and destinies of the human race.

The foregoing books have revealed God as creating and forming all things, in complete subordination to the purposes of his omniscient and omnipotent mind and will; thus rebuking all creature-worship and idolatry, and obviously leading to the display of his supremacy in the enactment of law, and of his justice in its administration. In the first application of his law to the transgressor begins the unfolding of that wonderful union of holiness and love—righteousness and grace—which thenceforward forms the prominent feature of the whole Bible. It appears in the sentence upon the tempter, and the respite granted to the tempted;—in the 'long-suffering' which 'waited in the days of Noah while the ark was preparing,' and 'the judgment' which 'spared not the old world,' 'bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly;—

as well as in numerous subsequent instances. Nor has God's sovereignty in making, and his faithfulness in keeping his engagements been less clearly shown—in the first promise to fallen man—in the covenant with Noah and the new world—in the call of Abraham, the birth of his long-expected heir, and the multiplication of his family—in the deliverance of Israel from Egypt with great substance, and the judgment upon the oppressor—in the wonderful events of the wilderness journey—and in the possession in part of the promised land;—all pointing toward the distant fulfilment of higher hopes, and in their very delay illustrating the unchangeableness and eternity of Him who 'is not slack concerning his promise,' but with whom 'a thousand years are as one day.'

Meanwhile, another Divine economy of peculiar significance engages our chief attention. The Sovereign Ruler of the world, out of all the families of the earth, selects one, and separates the nation which he raises up from it as a kingdom for himself; whose history becomes thenceforth the principal subject of the book. Not passing by his rights as Creator (Exod. xx. 11),

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE PENTATEUCH.

he is pleased to rest his authority chiefly upon his claims as Redeemer (Exod. xx. 1, 2); and on this ground proceeds to utter his laws, to appoint his officers and ministers, and to institute all the observances of his court. The worship of God now becomes elaborately ceremonial. The simple teachings of the patriarchal sacrifices (which represented the fearful evil of sin, and typified the substitution of the innocent in the place of the guilty, in order that the guilty might be forgiven) are greatly expanded and augmented, shadowing forth many more of the blessings to be afterwards revealed. God has now a dwelling-place on earth, where he condescends to meet with man. Into it enters the appointed priest, the type of the one Mediator between God and man, bearing the sweet incense—the emblem of intercession—as well as the blood of atonement. The hands made clean by ‘divers washings’ represent to the worshippers the ‘pure heart’ with which God is to be approached; whilst days of fast and festival, with their multiplied sin-offerings and peace-offerings, tend to give peace to the humble penitent, and to confirm and cheer the faithful.

Thus clearly has God made known his perfections, and the essential principles, as well as some of the subordinate peculiarities, of his plan of redemption.

Equally also does this commencing portion of Holy Scripture give an insight into the character and condition of man. It brings out the truth that ‘God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.’ It shows how deeply seated is his depravity, and how various are the forms which it assumes—in the rapine and violence of the antediluvian world—the pollution and debasement of the Canaanites—and the unbelief and rebellion even of the Hebrews. On the other hand, it exhibits some of the noblest examples of Divine grace. Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Joseph, and especially Moses, display an elevated devotion and heroic faith scarcely surpassed under later dispensations. And the effective grouping of the characters depicted in strong contrasts of light and shade, or in the blended hues of kindred excellences, presents no inadequate delineation of ‘what is in man,’ both in his unregenerate condition, and when renewed by Divine influence. So that when we read of the two brothers, Cain and Abel—when we observe the ambitious hunter and tyrant of Babel, and the righteous king of Salem—when we witness Joseph’s triumphant chastity, and the licentious disorders of Judah and his household—when we mark the earnest faith of Caleb and Joshua, and the cowardly unbelief of their colleagues—when we contemplate Moses’ noble determination to renounce honour and wealth in Egypt, and boldly to espouse the cause of God’s despised people; as contrasted with the base covetousness and insidious schemes of Balaam;—we feel that little else than perhaps a deeper colouring and a stronger light is wanting to complete the picture, or to make the exhibition of human character as perfect and instructive as may be found in the further revelations of later ages.

It has, however, been maintained by some that the Old Testament is deficient in tenderness and in spirituality; and that its teachings are, in a great measure, if not wholly, superseded by the instructions of the new dispensation. It is true that ceremonial observances occupy a very prominent position in the law and national records of the Jews; and hence we are apt to lose sight of those frequent declarations which were intended, on this very account, to guard against a merely formal, and to enforce a spiritual religion. But while in the method in which God has been pleased to reveal himself to man, the outward seems to come first, the inward ever accompanies it, and is ever ready to present itself to all who seek for it.

Taking only that portion of the law which relates to ceremonial purifications, what is it but a continual enforcement of inward holiness by the most lively symbols of outward purity? Surely no pious Jew of even ordinary piety and intelligence could suppose that these had no nobler end than mere bodily health and cleanliness, or fail to perceive their higher intent of giving an impressive representation of God’s love of inward purity and personal holiness. And these observations evidently apply still more strongly to that more important and more solemn portion of the ritual which consisted of sacrificial rites.

Nor is it otherwise in respect of the moral precepts. ‘The law of love,’ or that teaching which sums up all legal requirements and all duty in the cultivation of holy affections, holds a high place on the roll of the ancient lawgiver. This is no new commandment. Our Divine Teacher himself gives the words of Moses (Matt. xxii. 35–40); and in this, as in so many other instances, shows that he thought it not derogatory from his own high claims to cite what was already written in the Holy Scriptures. ‘Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God is one: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength’ (Deut. vi. 5). ‘And thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the Lord’ (Lev. xix. 18).

It was the spiritual aspect of the law which drew from the devout Israelite those strong expressions of attachment which abound in the devotional books of the Old Testament; and which, if connected only with the mere ritual, might seem extravagant. Compare the fervent ejaculations of the 119th Psalm, expressing the writer’s admiration and love of the ‘statutes,’ the ‘ordinances,’ the ‘testimonies,’ the ‘judgments,’ the ‘precepts,’ the ‘commandments,’ the ‘word,’ the ‘law’ of Jehovah. Again, in the 19th Psalm, after a sublime hymn of praise to God for the wondrous arrangements of natural law in the firmament and the heavenly bodies, how hearty is the transition to the higher theme of adoration—

‘The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul:

The testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple,’ etc.

So also in those passages which describe the character and happiness of the godly. How vividly, for example, does the 1st Psalm present the safety and blessedness of the man whose ‘delight is in the law of the Lord,’ and who ‘meditates therein day and night!’ And it should ever be borne in mind that this law, these statutes and testimonies, which elicited such devout and ardent attachment, were the very same which are comprised in the writings of the Jewish lawgiver. It was in Holy Scripture as it existed in David’s time, that he, and those who felt with him, ‘meditated day and night;’ and it was there they found all the light, love, holiness, and everlasting truth which good men in ancient days so delighted to extol.

It is obvious that the preceding remarks apply with ever-increasing force to the successive portions of the Old Testament, which grew more full both of evangelical sentiment and of devotional feeling, until the coming of Him who fulfilled and confirmed the whole.

GENERAL REMARKS

ON THE

HISTORICAL BOOKS OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

THE historical books of Scripture, from Joshua to Esther, contain accounts of the Jewish church and nation, from their first settlement in the promised land, to their return thither after their exile in Babylon; extending over a period of 1000 or 1200 years.

There were great and mighty nations in the world at this time, distinguished by wealth, learning, and valour; yet the records of these are all lost either in silence or in fables: while the inconsiderable nation of the Jews, which 'dwelt alone,' and was 'not reckoned among the nations,' makes so great a figure in the best known, most ancient, and most lasting of all histories; in which no notice is taken of the affairs of other kingdoms and states, except as they are connected with those of the Jews:—for 'the Lord's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot of his inheritance' (Deut. xxxii. 9).

It is not, however, strictly speaking, a history of the Jews that we have here, but such a selection from their history, by the Holy Spirit, as was best adapted to exhibit the progressive development of the objects and purposes of the Divine government, and to make us 'wise unto salvation.' Such political events are related as illustrate the moral state of the times. That which no merely human history could give is here disclosed;—men's secret motives are laid bare, stripped of the disguises in which they sought to involve them. While events of great secular importance are sometimes passed by, and long reigns are compressed into a few lines, details of private life are dwelt upon, and subjects are introduced which an ordinary historian would have thought unworthy of notice. For example, immediately after the account of a great political occurrence—the deliverance of three kings and their armies from destruction—an instance is given of God's tender care for the widow of an obscure prophet (see 2 Kings iv.) These subjects are brought forward, because they display to us those things which are most regarded in God's sight, and which it is of most importance for us to know:—the character and attributes of God, the workings of the human heart, and the duties which men owe both towards God and towards their fellow-creatures. And interwoven with the whole history may be traced, as the great leading subject, the preparation made for the coming of the Saviour.

These books are of great use for understanding some other parts of the Scriptures. The account we have in the two books of Samuel of David's eventful life and reign is a key to many of his Psalms; and the later portions of the history in the Kings and the Chronicles throw much light upon the writings of the contemporary prophets.

As the people of Israel were typical of the church of God in the days of the Messiah, their histories, as well as the prophecies concerning them, looked forward to the latter days: for 'these things happened unto them for ensamples' (1 Cor. x. 11). By the tenor of this history we are taught three things concerning the church: (1.) That if we see not perfect purity and unity in the church, we are not therefore to be stumbled, though we must be grieved at its corruptions and divisions; for, though it is a Divine institution, its operations have always partaken of the imperfections of those into whose hands its interests have been committed. (2.) That we are not to expect the constant tranquillity and prosperity of the church. The Jewish nation was often oppressed, afflicted, and brought low; it had its years of servitude as well as its days of triumph: but God never suffered it to be wholly consumed or destroyed. Let us not, then, be surprised to see the New Testament church sometimes driven into the wilderness, and the powers of darkness seeming to prevail against it. (3.) That we need not fear its utter extirpation. For as the ancient Israel and the earthly Jerusalem, through the gracious care of Divine Providence, outrode all the storms by which they were tossed and threatened, and continued in existence till they were made to resign their honours to the gospel church, of which they were types; so shall that also, notwithstanding all its shocks, be preserved, till the purposes of God are accomplished, and the kingdom of grace is perfected in the kingdom of glory.

Another important use of this history is to afford practical direction in the way of duty. Though many of the individuals whose actions are here related are men of eminent station—judges, kings, or prophets; yet, in their lives, persons of every rank may see the deformity of sin and the beauty of holiness, and may learn to avoid the one and to imitate the other. The failings even of eminently good men are recorded here for our admonition; that he who thinks he stands may 'take heed lest he fall,' and that he who has fallen may not despair of forgiveness.

And as this history shows what God requires of us, so it shows what we may expect from his providence, especially concerning states and kingdoms. By his dispensations towards the Jewish nation it appears that as nations are, so they must expect to fare:—that while princes and people seek the interests of God's kingdom, he will secure and advance theirs; but that, when they rebel against him, and shake off his government, they can look for nothing but an inundation of judgments. It was always so with the Israelites: while they kept close to God, they prospered; when they forsook him, everything went wrong. It has been well observed, that though, as to individuals, the providences of God often appear to be promiscuously administered in this world, because for them another state of reward or punishment is coming; yet it is not so with nations; national virtues being ordinarily rewarded with temporal blessings, and national sins visited with temporal judgments; because public bodies and communities, as such, can be rewarded or punished only in this world. Indeed, so plainly are God's ways of disposing of kingdoms laid before us in this history, that it would be well if it were diligently and wisely studied by Christian statesmen.

There is much uncertainty with regard to the authors of these historical records. As historical documents frequently bear a title derived from the personages and subjects treated of, it cannot with any certainty be inferred that these books were written by the persons whose names they bear. It is highly probable that, during a considerable portion of the Hebrew history, there was a succession of Divinely-instructed men, whose office it was to record the leading events of their times in annals or chronicles, which were deposited in the national archives. These appear to have been from time to time connected and arranged by subsequent annalists; who made also, under the direction of the Holy Spirit, such explanations and additions as had become requisite.

THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

THE preceding books have related the frequent rebellions and provocations of the Israelites who came out of Egypt, on account of which they were excluded from the good land which they had despised: this carries on the history of the next generation—those who were under twenty years of age when they left Egypt, and those who had been born and grown up in the wilderness—who appear to have been of a better spirit than their fathers. The trials and discipline they underwent, during their long wanderings, together with the instructions of Moses, had, through the grace of the Holy Spirit, the effect of awakening and humbling them, and fitting them to receive the fulfilment of the promise. It was with this generation that God renewed his covenant, as related in Deut. xxix. And he did great things for them. They believed in God; and, by faith, overcame the armies of the Canaanites, and obtained possession of the land. They showed, in several instances, a fervent zeal for God; as on the occasion of Achan's sin, and when they suspected that the two tribes and a half had set up an altar in opposition to the appointed altar of burnt-offering (ch. xxii.); and their piety is specially commended in ch. xxiii. 8.

The ordinances of Divine worship, which had been instituted at Sinai, were now more completely brought into practice. The tabernacle was permanently set up (ch. xviii. 1); and the people, on their settlement in the land of promise, were put into a condition to observe the various laws and regulations which had been previously given, but which could not be fully carried into effect during their itinerant state.

The character of Joshua is especially worthy of notice, as typical of the 'Captain of our salvation.' The Hebrew word Joshua, which is the same as the Greek word Jesus, signifies, One whose salvation is Jehovah. See Acts vii. 45; Heb. iv. 8. And as Joshua conducted the Israelites through all opposition to the promised rest, so our Lord Jesus Christ brings all his people through every difficulty, and even death itself, to the heavenly glory.

We have no certain information either as to the author or the precise date of this book. It was undoubtedly written before the time of David (comp. ch. xv. 63, with 2 Sam. v. 6—8); and probably by one who was a contemporary (see ch. vi. 25), if not an eye-witness of what he relates. Upon the whole, it appears most likely that the writer was either Joshua himself, or one of the elders who survived him (ch. xxiv. 31).

This book may be divided into three principal sections:

I. THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN: including the appointment of Joshua, and his directions to the people (ch. i.); the spies sent to Jericho (ii.); the passage of the Jordan (iii., iv.); the circumcision and passover at Gilgal (v. 1—13); the capture and destruction of Jericho and of Ai, with Achan's sin and punishment (v. 14—viii. 29); the reading of the law on Mounts Ebal and Gerizim (viii. 30—35); the wily conduct of the Gibeonites (ix.); victories over the Canaanites, first in the south, and then in the north; and the subjugation of the country (x., xi.); with a recapitulation of conquests (xii.)

II. THE DIVISION OF THE COUNTRY, including both the conquered and the unconquered parts; describing the portions of the several tribes (xiii.—xix.); the appointment of the cities of refuge and the Levitical cities (xx., xxi.); the return of the two tribes and a half east of Jordan, and transactions which followed thereupon (xxii.)

III. JOSHUA'S FAREWELL ADMONITIONS AND DEATH (xxiii., xxiv.)

The appointment of Joshua; his directions to the people.

1 NOW after the death of Moses the servant of the LORD it came to pass, that
2 the LORD spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' minister, saying, ^b Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.
3 ^a Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto 4 you, as I said unto Moses. From the wilderness and this ¹ Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates; all the land of the Hittites, ² and unto the 5 Great Sea ³ toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast. ⁴ There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: ⁵ as I was with
6 Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. ⁶ Be strong and of a good courage: for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land which I swear unto their fathers to give them. Only be thou strong and very courageous, ⁷ that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, ⁸ which Moses my servant commanded thee: ⁹ turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper [or, do wisely] whithersoever thou
8 goest. ¹⁰ This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but ¹¹ thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and 9 then thou shalt have good success [or, do wisely]. Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.
10, 11 Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying, Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals; ¹ for " within ² three days ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the LORD your God giveth you to possess it.

12 And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh,

13 spake Joshua, saying, Remember ^x the word which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, The LORD your God hath given you rest, and hath given

14 you this land. Your wives, your little ones, and your cattle, shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren armed [marshalled by five^y], all the mighty men of valour, and help

15 them; ^z until the LORD have given your brethren rest, as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which the LORD your God giveth them: ^a then ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses the LORD's servant gave you on this side Jordan toward the sunrising.

16 And they answered Joshua, saying, ^b All that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go. According as we hearkened unto

Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee: only the LORD thy God ^c be 18 with thee, as he was with Moses. ^d Whosoever he be that doth rebel against thy commandment, and will not hearken unto thy words in all that thou commandest him, he shall be put to death: ^e only be strong and of a good courage.

Two men sent as spies to Jericho.

2 AND Joshua the son of Nun sent [or, had sent] ^f out of Shittim two men to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho. ³ And they went, and ^g came

2 into an harlot's⁴ house, named ^h Rahab, and lodged there. And ⁱ it was told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to-night of the 3 children of Israel to search out the country. And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: ^j for they be come to search out all the country.

4 ^k And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came 5 men unto me, but I wist not whence they were: and it came to pass about the time of shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that the men went out: ⁶ whither the men went I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But ⁷ she had brought them up to the roof of the house, ⁷ and hid them with the stalks of flax, ⁸ which she had laid in order upon the roof. And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate.

8 And before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof; and 9 she said unto the men, I know that the LORD hath given you the land, and that

^m your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land ⁿ faint because of you. For we have heard how the LORD ^o dried up the water of the Red Sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and ^p what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom

11 ye utterly destroyed. And as soon as we had ^q heard these things, ^r our hearts did melt, neither did there remain any more courage in any man, because of you:

² Or, 'and yet three days.' Probably there were to be three whole days after the command was given: see ch. iii. 2. It is not necessary to suppose that Joshua waited for the return of the spies before he moved to the Jordan; as perhaps that is mentioned at the end of ch. ii., only to complete the account of their proceedings.

³ Jericho was about seven or eight miles from the river Jordan.

⁴ Many Jewish writers say that Rahab was an inn-keeper; interpreting the word, 'a seller of food.' This is evidently designed to avoid the imputation supposed to be cast upon the family of David by her marriage with Salmon; and it has been adopted by some Christian authors for a similar reason. But the Septuagint, followed by Matthew (i. 5) and the apostle Paul (Heb. xi. 31), renders the word here, as everywhere else, 'harlot.' And that this is the proper translation will appear, if we consider that neither inns nor innkeepers are known in the East, and that such an occupation would be quite at variance with all the habits of oriental females,—that the public khans, which are the common resort of travellers, would be of all places the worst for concealment,—that Rahab shows how little she knew of right and wrong by the falsehood which she tells in ver. 5,—and that the vice attributed to her by this designation was unhappily neither the least common nor the most abominable of those which filled up the iniquity of the Canaanites. And surely it is a signal instance of the condescending grace of God, that he should implant faith in the heart of such a person, leading her to take part with his people, and to hazard her life in protecting them; and should make her the mother (see Matt. i. 5) of a son so distinguished for virtue as Boaz, and through him an ancestor of the Messiah.

⁵ The proximity of the Hebrew camp caused unusual vigilance on the part of the king.

⁶ It must be remembered that Rahab lived under the deepest moral darkness: and therefore God approved her faith, though its practical exhibition was connected with so much that was faulty. See 2 Cor. viii. 12. By this we may learn to judge leniently of the deficiencies of converts from heathenism; while we must never forget that we shall be held accountable for our knowledge of the whole will of God.

⁷ The roofs of Eastern houses, being flat, with a parapet, were very suitable for such a purpose.

⁸ Which had doubtless just been brought in from the field, and laid out to be dried: for it was the time of flax as well as of barley harvest; both being ripe about the time of the passover (see ch. iii. 15, and note, compared with Exod. ix. 31, and note). The seasons in this part of Palestine are very similar to those of Egypt.

12 for ^s the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath. Now therefore, I pray you, ^tsware unto me by the LORD, since I have showed you kindness, that ye will also show kindness unto ^umy father's house, and ^xgive me
 13 a true token: and that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.
 14 And the men answered her, Our life for yours, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, when the LORD hath given us the land, that ^ywe will deal kindly and truly with thee.
 15 Then she ^zlet them down by a cord through the window: for her house was 16 upon the town wall, and she dwelt upon the wall. And she said unto them, Get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers be returned: and afterward may ye go your way.
 17 And the men said unto her, We will be ^aa blameless of this thine oath which 18 thou hast made us swear. ^bBehold, when we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of scarlet thread¹ in the window which thou didst let us down by: ^cand thou shalt bring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy
 19 father's household, home unto thee. And it shall be, that whosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall be upon his head, and we will be guiltless: and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, ^dhis
 20 blood shall be on our head, if any hand be upon him. And if thou utter this our business, then ^ewe will be quit of thine oath which thou hast made us to swear.
 21 And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed: and she bound the scarlet line in the window.
 22 And they went, and came unto the mountain, and abode there three days, until the pursuers were returned: and the pursuers sought them throughout all the way, but found them not.
 23 So the two men returned, and descended from the mountain, and passed over,
 24 and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all things that befell them: and they said unto Joshua, Truly ^fthe LORD hath delivered into our hands all the land; for even all the inhabitants of the country do ^gfaint because of us.

Passage of the Jordan; a memorial erected.

3 AND Joshua rose early in the morning; and they removed ^hfrom Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over.
 2 And it came to pass ⁱafter three days, that the officers went through the host;
 3 and they commanded the people, saying, ^kWhen ye see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, ^land the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall 4 remove from your place, and go after it: ^myet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure: come not near unto it: that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have not passed this way heretofore.
 5 And Joshua said unto the people, ⁿSanctify yourselves: for to-morrow the LORD will do wonders among you.
 6 And ^oJoshua spake unto the priests, saying, Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.
 7 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to ^pmagnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, ^qas I was with Moses, so I will be with thee. And thou shalt command ^rthe priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, ^sye shall stand still in Jordan.
 9 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words 10 of the LORD your God. And Joshua said, ^tHereby ^uye shall know that ^vthe living God is ^wamong you, and that he will without fail ^xdrive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and 11 the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites. Behold, the ark of the covenant of ^ythe Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.
 12 Now therefore ^ztake you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe
 13 a man. And it shall come to pass, ^aas soon as the soles of the feet of the priests

² This was different from the usual order of march. The ark, probably with the bright cloud which indicated the presence of Jehovah, went first to divide the waters; and remained in the centre of the stream on the upper side, as a protection to the passing multitude.

³ It is probable that God made this communication to

Joshua, and through him to the people, when they were all in order of march.

⁴ This miracle afforded a timely encouragement to Israel, as well as a great discouragement to their enemies, who probably regarded the Jordan, in its then swollen state, as an impassable barrier, at least for some weeks, to the host of the Hebrews.

that bear the ark of the LORD, ^c the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off ¹ from the waters that come down from above; and they ^d shall stand upon an heap.

14 And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over 15 Jordan, and the priests bearing the ^e ark of the covenant before the people; and as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and ^f the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for ^g Jordan overfloweth ² all his banks ^h all the time of harvest,) that the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap ³ very far from the city Adam, that is beside ⁱ Zaretan: and those that came down ^k toward the Sea of the Plain, even ^l the Salt Sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against 17 Jericho. And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan; ^m and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

4 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed ⁿ over Jordan, that
 2 the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying, ^o Take you twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man, and command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where ^p the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones, ⁴ and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in ^q the lodging
 4 place where ye shall lodge this night. Then Joshua called the twelve men,
 5 whom he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man: and Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder,
 6 according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel: that this may be ^r a sign among you, that ^s when your children ask their fathers in time to
 7 come, saying, What mean ye by these stones? then ye shall answer them, That ^t the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off. And these stones shall be for ^u a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

8 And the children of Israel did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the LORD spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

9 And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst ⁵ of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and they are there unto this day. ⁶

10 For the priests which bare the ark stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that Moses commanded Joshua: and the people ^x hasted and 11 passed over. And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the LORD passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.

12 And ^y the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto 13 them: about forty thousand ⁷ prepared for war passed over before the LORD unto battle, to the plains of Jericho.

14 On that day the LORD ^z magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they ^a feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

15, 16 And the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying, Command the priests that bear ^b the 17 ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan. Joshua therefore com-
 18 manded the priests, saying, Come ye up out of Jordan. And it came to pass,

¹ As the channel of the Jordan is steep, and the stream rapid, almost all the lower part of its course would be quickly left dry for the people.

² The Jordan is usually very shallow; but it has a broad bed with steep banks, which it occasionally fills. This occurs during the months of March and April (the time of the barley harvest in those countries), when the snow on the mountains being melted, a large body of water comes down, in a turbid rapid current. This was just the time when the Israelites crossed; and on this account the miracle was the more impressive.

³ This seems to intimate that the waters, being arrested by the passage of the ark, and forming a wall above it, filled up all the channel as far as Zaretan. If this be the place mentioned in 1 Kings iv. 12; vii. 46, it must have been about thirty miles above the place where the Israelites crossed, and near the great rapids, where the accumulation of water would naturally be stopped. The bed of the river is so much below the level of the country, that this would cause little, if any, inundation.

⁴ Probably as large as the strongest men of each tribe could carry. Such a heap would form a natural and durable monument.

⁵ It has been supposed that two heaps of stones were made; one on the land, and another in the midst of the river. But the rapid torrent of the Jordan, which brings down great boulders, would probably soon destroy such an erection in the bed of the stream. As there is only one command mentioned, and only one heap said to remain, it seems most natural to suppose that this verse continues the narrative of the former, thus: 'And Joshua set up twelve stones, which had been taken up in the midst,' etc.

⁶ That is, at the time either of the writing of the book, or of its arrangement in the canon.

⁷ These were not all the males of those tribes capable of service; but probably a fair proportion of the able warriors.

when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan ^creturned unto their place, ^dand flowed over¹ all his banks, as they did before.

Circumcision renewed, and the passover celebrated at Gilgal; cessation of the manna.

- 5 AND it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, ⁿwhich were by the sea, ^oheard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted, ^pneither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

- 2 At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee ^qsharp knives,² and 3 ^rcircumcise again the children of Israel the second time.³ And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at ^sthe hill of the 4 foreskins. And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: 'All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the 5 wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt. Now all the people that came out were circumcised: but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, ^uthem they had not circumcised.
6 For the children of Israel walked ^xforty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD sware that ^yhe would not show them the land which the LORD sware unto their fathers that he
7 would give us, ^za land that floweth with milk and honey. And ^atheir children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised; for they were uncir-
8 cumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way. And it came to pass, when they had done circumcising all the people, that they abode in their 9 places in the camp till they were whole. And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away ^bthe reproach⁴ of Egypt from off you. Wherefore the name of the place is called Gilgal [i. e. rolling^c] unto this day.

- 10 And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal, and kept the passover ^don the fourteenth day of the month at even in the plains of Jericho.

- 11 And they did eat of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, 12 unleavened cakes, and parched corn,⁵ in the selfsame day. And ^ethe manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; neither had the children of Israel manna any more;⁶ ^fbut they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

Divine manifestation to Joshua; capture and destruction of Jericho.

- 13 AND it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood ^ga man⁷ over against him ^hwith his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for

² Rather, 'knives of stone' or 'flint;' such being still used for similar purposes by some nations.

³ That is, renewing the observance of a suspended rite. This command would be a test of the Israelites' faith in God's protection and obedience to his law; whilst it showed that he was determined to maintain the terms of that covenant by virtue of which they were to enjoy Canaan and all their national privileges.

⁴ The meaning of this term is doubtful; but it may refer to the renewal of that covenant by which God set apart the Israelites to be his people. By the suspension of circumcision they seem to have been debarred from many of those privileges to which it was the appointed introduction, till the rejected generation of unbelievers had all been swept away.

⁵ After the passover, they were to keep the feast of unleavened bread; which they could not do according to the appointment, when they had nothing but manna to live upon. Perhaps this was one reason why the observance of the passover was intermitted in the wilderness. They were now furnished with the means of obeying the command in Lev. xxiii. 10.

⁷ As God had manifested himself to Moses before he entered upon his great enterprise, so he now appears to Joshua, assuming a form and a name which would remind him of His own supremacy in the command of Israel, and of His promised guidance and protection in the anticipated conflict. So opportunely adapted to his servants' wants are God's manifestations of himself.

14 us, or for our adversaries? And he said, Nay; but as captain [or, princeⁱ] of the host of the LORD am I now come. And Joshua ^k fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant? And the captain of the LORD's host said unto Joshua, 'Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; 6 for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so. (Now Jericho was straitly shut up¹ because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in.) And ^m the LORD said unto Joshua, See, ⁿ I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the ^o king thereof, and the mighty men of valour. And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days. And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven ^p trumpets of rams' horns:² and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and ^q the priests shall blow with the trumpets. And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout; and the wall of the city shall fall down flat, and the people shall ascend up every man straight before him.

6 And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD. And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD.

8 And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns passed on before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, ^r and the rereward came after the ark, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets. And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, ^s until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout. So the ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 And Joshua rose early in the morning, ^t and the priests took up the ark of the LORD. And seven priests bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rereward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets. And the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp. So they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: ^u only on that day they compassed the city seven times. And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, ^v Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city. And the city shall be accursed³ [or, devoted^v], even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, because ^w she hid the messengers that we sent. And ye, ^x in any wise⁴ keep yourselves from the accursed thing, lest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse, ^y and trouble it. But all the ^z silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, are consecrated unto the LORD: they shall come into the treasury of the LORD.

20 So the people shouted when the priests blew with the trumpets: and it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that ^a the wall fell down flat,⁵ so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city. And they ^b utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.⁶

22 But Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, ^c as ye sware unto her. And the young men that were spies went in, and brought out Rahab, ^d and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she

³ So that for any person to appropriate anything to himself was sacrilege, by which he would become similarly accursed or devoted to utter destruction. This curse, called in Hebrew cherem, was irrevocable (see ver. 26; 1 Kings xvi. 34); and is fitly used to represent the final and irremediable doom of the enemies of Christ (1 Cor. xvi. 22).

⁴ That is, by all means, most carefully.

- had; and they brought out all her kindred, and left them ^a without the camp of Israel.¹
- 24 And ⁱ they burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: ^h only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.
- 25 And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had; and ⁱ she dwelleth in Israel even ^m unto this day; because she hid the messengers which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.
- 26 And Joshua adjured them at that time, saying, "Cursed be the man before the LORD, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: he shall lay the foundation thereof in his firstborn, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it."²
- 27 ^o So the LORD was with Joshua; and ^p his fame was noised throughout all the country.

Achan's covetousness discovered and punished.

- 7 BUT the children of Israel committed a trespass³ in the accursed thing: for ^q Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of ^r Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, ^s took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel.
- 2 And Joshua sent men from Jericho to ^t Ai, which is beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, and spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai. And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai; and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few.
- 4 So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men: ^u and they fled before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim,⁴ and smote them in the going down [or, in Morad]: wherefore ^x the hearts of the people melted, and became as water.⁵
- 6 And Joshua ^y rent his clothes, and ^z fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD ^a until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and ^b put dust upon their heads. And Joshua said, Alas! O Lord God, ^c wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? ^d would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan! O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies! For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land ^e shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and ^f cut off our name from the earth: and ^g what wilt thou do unto thy great name?⁶
- 10 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Get thee up;⁷ ^h wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face? ⁱ Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them: ^j for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also ^k stolen, and ^l dissembled also, and they have put it even ^m among their own stuff. ⁿ Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because ^p they were accursed: ^q neither will I be with you any more, ^r except ye destroy the accursed from among you. Up, ^s sanctify the people, and say, 'Sanctify yourselves against tomorrow: for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, ^t until ye take away the accursed thing from among you. In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be, that the tribe which ^u the LORD taketh⁸ shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the LORD shall take shall come by households; and the household which the LORD shall take shall come man by man. ^v And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he

1 As unfit, without purification, for admission to the community of Israel. Ver. 25 seems to intimate that Rahab was afterwards so admitted.

2 If, as is generally supposed, this curse involved the death of all the builder's sons, and the consequent extinction of his name, it was well adapted to deter any ambitious projector. For its fulfilment, see 1 Kings xvi. 34. It, however, did not extend beyond the family of the builder, as at various times the city is spoken of as inhabited.

3 Achan was evidently the only delinquent in this matter among all the thousands of Israel: a wonderful instance of religious discipline and obedience.

4 Or, 'till they had routed them.' Some, however, would translate, 'into the ravines.'

5 It is an ordinary principle of the Divine government of this world, that whole communities are often profited by the virtues, and suffer from the vices, of a single individual.

6 Joshua was even more concerned for God's glory than for Israel's safety: but his prayer shows also a mixture of despondency and unbelief.

7 The time is not to be spent in empty grief which is required for vigorous reformation.

8 Intimating that the decision of the lot would be ordered by a special providence (Prov. xvi. 33).

hath ^ztransgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he ^ahath wrought folly [or, wickedness] in Israel.

16 So Joshua ^brose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes;
17 and the tribe of Judah was taken. And he brought the family¹ of Judah; and he took the family of the ^cZarhites. And he brought the family of the Zarhites
18 man by man; and Zabdi was taken: and he brought his household man by man; and Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, ^dwas taken.

19 And Joshua said unto Achan, ^eMy son, ^fgive, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel, ^gand make confession unto him; and ^htell me now what thou hast 20 done; hide it not from me. And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I 21 have sinned against the LORD God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done: when ⁱI saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish² garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold of fifty shekels weight, then I ^kcoveted them, and took them; and, behold, they are hid in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it.

22 So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent; and, behold, it was 23 hid in his tent, and the silver under it. And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and laid them out before the LORD.

24 And Joshua, and all Israel with them, took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver, and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and ^lhis sons, and his daughters,³ and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that he had: and 25 they brought them unto ^mthe valley of Achor. And Joshua said, ⁿWhy hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. ^oAnd all Israel stoned him with stones, and ^pburned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones.
26 And they ^qraised over him a great heap of stones unto this day. So ^rthe LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger. Wherefore the name of that place was called, ^sThe valley of Achor [i. e. trouble⁴], unto this day.

The capture and destruction of Ai.

S AND the LORD said unto Joshua, "Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: see, ^tI have given into 2 thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land: and thou shalt do to Ai and her king as thou didst unto ^uJericho and her king: only ^vthe spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: lay thee an ambush for the city behind it.

3 So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua⁴ chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night.
4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ^aye shall lie in wait against the city,
5 even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready: and I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city: and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that ^bwe will flee
6 before them, (^cfor they will come out after us) till we have drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee
7 before them. Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city:
8 ^dfor the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand. And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall ^eset the city on fire: according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. ^fSee, I have commanded you. Joshua therefore sent them forth: and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people.

10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbered the people, and went 11 up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai. ^gAnd all the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came

² Or, 'a garment of Shinar.' Such robes were for many ages in high repute. The confession of Achan, I saw, I coveted, I took, is simply natural, and quite accordant with the inspired record of the first temptation (Gen. iii. 6). But confession is too late when it is not made till the time of judgment.

³ Some have imagined that Achan's sons and daughters were brought only to be witnesses of their father's awful doom; while others have thought that they must have known of the stolen deposit in the tent, and so become partakers of his crime and punishment. Universal experience shows that the child suffers through the parent's sin; and, in this case, the transgressor had been expressly threatened (ch. vi. 18) with the curse of the Canaanite, which involved the utter extermination of his race.

⁴ The difficulties of this narrative may be best removed by reading thus: 'And Joshua chose out thirty thousand men of valour. And he sent [some of] them away by night, and commanded them,' etc. Vers. 10—12 contain a more minute account of the preparations which had been made; and should be read, 'Now Joshua had risen,' etc.; (ver. 11), 'and all the people of war with him had gone up,' etc.; (ver. 12), 'and he had taken about five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush,' etc.

before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai. Now there was a valley between them and Ai. And he took about five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of the city [or, of Ai]. And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and their liers in wait on the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.¹

14 And it came to pass, when the king of Ai saw it, that they hasted and rose up early, and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain; but he ^h wist not that there were liers in ambush against him behind the city. And Joshua and all Israel ⁱ made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness. And all the people that were in Ai were called together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were drawn away from the city. And there was not a man left in Ai or Beth-el, that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Stretch out² the spear that is in thy hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city. And the ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hasted and set the city on fire. And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and, behold, the smoke of the city ascended up to heaven, and they had no power to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers. And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai. And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they ^k let none of them remain or escape. And the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass, when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword. And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai. For Joshua drew not his hand back, wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai. ^l Only the cattle and the spoil of that city Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he ^m commanded Joshua. And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it ⁿ an heap for ever, even a desolation unto this day. ^o And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until eventide: ^p and as soon as the sun was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcase down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and ^q raise thereon a great heap of stones, that remaineth unto this day.

The law read on mounts Ebal and Gerizim.

30 THEN³ Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel ^r in mount Ebal, as Moses the servant of the LORD commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the ^s book of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron: and ^t they offered thereon burnt offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace offerings. And ^u he wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel. And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark, and on that side, before the priests the Levites, ^x which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well ^y the stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; ^z as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel. And afterward ^a he read all the words of the law, ^b the blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law. There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, ^c with the women, and the little ones, and ^d the strangers that were conversant among them.

¹ Joshua probably occupied the valley by night, in order to engage the earliest attention of the enemy, and leave them no time to discover the ambush.

² A preconcerted signal, apparently appointed by God.

³ As in the Sept. vers. 31—35 follow ver. 2 of ch. ix., many have thought that they refer to a later period, when more of the country was conquered, and the camp at Gilgal was broken up. When, however, the capture of Ai opened the road to Shechem, Joshua would probably take the first opportunity of obeying the Divine command (Deut. xxvii. 4, 5). It is not necessary to suppose that all the people left Gilgal for this purpose.

The Gibeonites obtain a treaty of peace by stratagem.

- 9 AND it came to pass, when all the kings which were on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coasts of e the great sea over against Lebanon—f the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite—heard thereof; that they g gathered themselves together, to fight with Joshua and with Israel, with one accord.
- 3 And when the inhabitants of h Gibeon¹ heard what Joshua had done unto Jericho and to Ai, they did work wilily, and went and made² as if they had been ambassadors, and took old sacks upon their asses, and wine bottles,³ old, and rent, and bound up; and old shoes⁴ and clouted upon their feet, and old garments upon them; and all the bread of their provision was dry and mouldy. And they went to Joshua h unto the camp at Gilgal, and said unto him, and to the men of Israel, We be come from a far country: now therefore make ye a league with us.
- 7 And the men of Israel said unto the i Hivites, Peradventure ye dwell among us; and m how shall we make a league with you? And they said unto Joshua, n We are thy servants. And Joshua said unto them, Who are ye? and from whence come ye? And they said unto him, o From a very far country thy servants are come p because of the name of the LORD thy God: for we have q heard the fame of him, and all that he did in Egypt, and r all that he did to the two kings of the Amorites, that were beyond Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, which was at Ashtaroath. Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spake to us, saying, Take victuals with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, We are your servants. Therefore now make ye a league with us. This our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy: and these bottles of wine, which we filled, were new; and, behold, they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.
- 14 And the men took of their victuals [or, they received the men by reason of their victuals], and asked not⁵ counsel at the mouth of the LORD. And Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them.
- 16 And it came to pass at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them. And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were u Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim. And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel.
- 19 And all the congregation murmured against the princes.⁶ But all the princes said unto all the congregation, We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them. This we will do to them; we will even let them live, lest v wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them. And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be z hewers of wood and drawers of water⁷ unto all the congregation; as the princes had a promised them.
- 22 And Joshua called for them, and he spake unto them, saying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, b We are very far from you; when c ye dwell among us? Now therefore ye are d cursed, and there shall none of you be freed from being bondmen, and e hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God.
- 24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that the LORD thy God f commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore g we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing.

1 Gibeon was a large city, with villages dependent on it, about five miles north-west of Jerusalem. It is supposed not to have had a kingly government, as mention is made only of elders; and it is called, not a royal city, but 'as (i. e. as great as) one of the royal cities.' Though the artifice of the Gibeonites was justly punished by their degradation, yet their submission seems, on the whole, to have been not displeasing to God, who inflicted a special plague on account of Saul's violation of the treaty made with them. See 2 Sam. xxi. 1, 2. From this we gather that, had others submitted and renounced their idolatries and crimes, they might have been spared. See 1 Tim. i. 13—17.

2 Rather, 'went and prepared food.'

3 Made of skins, which are apt to crack with heat, and which, when rent, are temporarily mended by being tied up.

4 Rather, 'sandals.' For 'clouted,' read 'patched.'

5 In this they were culpably negligent, as they had the means of obtaining direction through the high priest.

6 Perhaps they feared they might displease God by sparing these Canaanites. See 1 Sam. xv. 11.

7 The Gibeonites were given to the Levites as servants to perform the most menial and laborious work of the tabernacle, and were probably afterwards classed with the Nethinim. See Ezra viii. 20. Thus the curse was ultimately turned into a blessing; while their servitude to the Israelites would be a permanent memorial of the Divine interposition on behalf of the latter, and help to attest the authenticity of their early history.

25 And now, behold, we are ^h in thine hand: as it seemeth good and right unto thee
 26 to do unto us, do. And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand 27 of the children of Israel, that they slew them not. And Joshua made them that day ⁱ hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the Lord, even unto this day, ^k in the place which he should choose.

Victory over five kings in the south of Canaan.

10 NOW it came to pass, when Adoni-zedec king of Jerusalem¹ had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; ^las he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to ^m Ai and her king; and ⁿ how the inhabitants of 2 Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them; that they ^o feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the royal cities, and because 3 it was greater than Ai, and all the men thereof were mighty. Wherefore Adonizedec king of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of ^p Hebron,² and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, 4 saying, Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon: ^q for it hath 5 made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel. Therefore the five kings of the Amorites,³ the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, ^r gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.
 6 And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua ^s to the camp to Gilgal, saying, Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered 7 together against us. So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and ^t all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.
 8 And the Lord said unto Joshua, ^u Fear them not: for I have delivered them
 9 into thine hand; ^x there shall not a man of them stand before thee. Joshua there-10 fore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal all night. And the Lord ^y discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up ^z to Beth-horon, and smote them to 11 ^a Azekah, and unto Makkedah. And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Beth-horon, ^b that the Lord cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.
 12 Then spake⁴ Joshua to the Lord in the day when the Lord delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel,
^c Sun, stand⁵ thou still upon Gibeon;⁶
 And thou, Moon, in the valley of ^d Ajalon!
 13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had ^e avenged themselves upon their enemies. ^f Is not this written in the book of Jasher [or, the upright]?⁷ So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go 14 down about a whole day.⁸ And there was ^g no day like that before it or after it, that the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man: for ^h the Lord fought for Israel.
 15 ⁱ And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.⁹ 16 But these five kings ^k fled, and hid themselves in a cave¹⁰ at Makkedah. And 17 it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.
 18 And Joshua said, Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by 19 it for to keep them: and stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies, and smite

¹ The most probable meaning of this name is, 'the possession,' or, 'the dwelling of peace:' perhaps given in allusion to the natural strength of its position.

² All these places lay within a circuit of a few miles.

³ The name 'Amorites' is here, as elsewhere, used as a generic term. The people of Jerusalem were Jebusites; and those of Hebron, Hittites.

⁴ As Joshua spake to the Lord, his command was evidently given in connection with prayer. Comp. 1 Kings xvii. 1, with James v. 16—18, for a similar miraculous answer, and the encouragement to prayer to be derived from it. It was of great importance that the confederate host should be destroyed, before any part of them should regain the shelter of their strongly fortified cities.

⁵ We are not told whether the day was prolonged by a cessation of the earth's motion upon its axis, or by an increased and continued refraction of the sun's light. The language employed is general and popular, so as to discourage curious speculations upon the question. This renewed intervention of Jehovah would show still more clearly to all parties that the battle was the Lord's, and that the interests of Israel were his.

⁶ This seems to reverse the positions of the two luminaries; but the language is in a poetical form; and may refer either to their apparent course—thus, 'Sun and moon, move not from Gibeon to Ajalon,' i. e. from east to west; or, to the light which each luminary threw upon the opposite hills.

⁷ The 'book of Jasher' seems to have been a collection of poetical narratives; perhaps the same as 'the book of the wars of the Lord' (Numb. xxi. 14).

⁸ Or, 'when the day was complete.'

⁹ This verse is not in the Greek version: it interrupts the narrative, and is the same, word for word, as ver. 43. Probably it was misplaced here, by the error of some ancient transcriber. It is very improbable that Joshua should have gone so far away at that critical period.

¹⁰ The caves of Palestine, which are large and numerous, have often served for retreats in time of danger. See Judg. vi. 2; 1 Sam. xxiv. 3; 1 Kings xviii. 3, 4.

 they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, ^m put your feet upon the necks² of these kings. And they came near, and into the hand of Israel; and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the

 as he did unto the king of Jericho.

31 And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and

33 Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him

¹ That is, all that the Israelites could find.

² An ancient symbol of conquest, often found in the paintings on Egyptian tombs.

³ So every victory which the Christian obtains in God's service is a fresh pledge of his final triumph over all his spiritual enemies.

⁴ The city of Hebron seems to have lain principally in the valley; and was occupied by the Hittites, who were now destroyed: but its fortress probably remained in the hands of the Anakim till Caleb expelled them (Judg. i. 20). The same was the case with Debir.

⁵ Debir is called Kirjath-sepher (ch. xv. 15), which means 'city of books:' the Targum calls it 'city of archives.'

⁶ Comprising most of the portions allotted to Benjamin, Judah, Simeon, and Dan. Joshua could now turn northwards without danger of being attacked in the rear.

The northern Canaanites conquered.

- 11 AND it came to pass, when Jabin¹ king of Hazor had heard those things, that he^b sent to Jobab king of Madon, and to the king^c of Shimron, and to the king of Achishaph, and to the kings that were on the north of the mountains,² and of the plains south of^d Chinneroth, and in the valley, and in the borders^e of Dor on the west, and to the Canaanite on the east and on the west, and to the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebusite in the mountains,^f and to the Hivite under^g Hermon^h in the land of Mizpeh. And they went out, they and all their hosts with them, much people,ⁱ even as the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude, with horses and chariots very many. And when all these kings were met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom,³ to fight against Israel.
- 6 And the LORD said unto Joshua,^k Be not afraid because of them: for to-morrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt^l hough their horses, and burn their chariots with fire. So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom suddenly; and they fell upon them. And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto great Zidon [or, Zidon-rabbah], and unto^m Misrephoth-maim [or, salt-pits],⁴ and unto the valley of Mizpeh eastward; and they smote them, until they left them none remaining. And Joshua did unto themⁿ as the LORD bade him: he houghed⁵ their horses, and burnt their chariots with fire.
- 10 And Joshua at that time turned back, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms.
- 11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not any left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire.⁶ And all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, as Moses the servant of the LORD commanded. But as for the cities that stood still in their strength,⁷ Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn. And all the^p spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe.
- 15 As the LORD commanded Moses his servant, so^q did Moses command Joshua, and so did Joshua; he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.
- 16 So Joshua took all that land,⁸ the hills, and all the south country,^r and all the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the mountain of Israel, and the valley of the same; ^seven from the mount Halak [or, the smooth mountain], that goeth up to Seir, even unto Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon: and^t all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them. Joshua made war a long time⁹ with all those kings.
- 19 There was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, save^z the Hivites the inhabitants of Gibeon: all other they took in battle. For^a it was of the LORD^b to harden their hearts,¹⁰ that they should come against Israel in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he might destroy them, ^cas the LORD commanded Moses.
- 21 And at that time¹¹ came Joshua, and cut off^d the Anakims from the mountains,

1 The royal name of the chief of Hazor (see Judg. iv. 2), which was a powerful city.

2 A more literal translation will point out accurately the extent of this formidable confederacy: 'on the north in the mountain (i. e. Lebanon and Hermon), and in the Arabah south of Chinneroth (i. e. the higher part of the Jordan valley), and in the plain (i. e. of Esdraelon and towards the Mediterranean), and in the borders of Dor on the west.' See map.

3 The upper lake of the Jordan, now called 'Bahr-el-Huleh.' It is probable that the city of Hazor was in this neighbourhood; and that the confederate army would have proceeded southwards, had not Joshua been Divinely encouraged to hasten his march (ver. 7), and attack them in the heart of their country.

4 These words appear to have occasioned some difficulty to the early translators. The close connection of the place with Zidon, and the similarity in name and meaning, seem to identify it with Zarephath, or Sarepta. Both names imply a burning; and refer, perhaps, to the famous Phœnician glass manufacture, or to a hot spring.

5 Or, 'hamstrung'; probably the quickest means known of killing them. Horses appear to have been used in those ages only for war, and were consequently forbidden to the Israelites; as God intended them not to be a warlike people, and, in case of the invasion of their country, to rely mainly upon his aid. Horses were commonly brought from Armenia or Egypt.

6 Hazor was, however, rebuilt and repeopled (Judg. iv.)

7 Heb., 'on their hills.' These were preserved as being easily defended by a small garrison.

8 The land was now generally in the power of the Israelites; though several fortresses were not yet reduced, and others were, probably, afterwards rebuilt and fortified by the Canaanites.

9 As Caleb says (ch. xiv. 7—10) that he was forty years old when he entered the land the first time, and was eighty-five at the division of the country, and as thirty-eight years were spent in the wilderness, it follows that this war must have occupied nearly seven years.

10 That is, they were left to the hardness of their hearts, so as to disregard all the wonders of Divine Providence in behalf of the Israelites; and, by this obstinacy, became exposed to the punishment of their crimes, which, by submission, they might have escaped.

11 That is, at the time of the division: see ch. xv. 13—17.

- from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: Joshua destroyed them utterly with their cities.
- 22 There was none of the Anakims left in the land of the children of Israel: only in Gaza, in ^e Gath, ^f and in Ashdod, there remained.
- 23 So Joshua took the whole land, ^g according to all that the Lord said unto Moses; and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel ^h according to their divisions by their tribes. ⁱ And the land rested from war.

A list of the conquered kings.

- 12 NOW¹ these are the kings of the land, which the children of Israel smote, and possessed their land on the other side Jordan toward the rising of the sun, ^k from the river Arnon ^l unto mount Hermon, and all the plain on the east: ^m Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and ruled from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and from the middle of the river, ² and from half Gilead, ³ even unto the river Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon; and ⁿ from the plain ³ to the sea of Chinneroth on the east, and unto the Sea of the Plain, even the Salt Sea on the east, ^o the way to Beth-jeshimoth; and from the south [or, Teman], under ^p Ashdoth-pisgah [or, the springs of Pisgah, or, the hill]; ⁴ and ^q the coast of Og king of Bashan, which was of ^r the remnant of the giants, ⁵ ^s that dwelt at Ashtaroth and at Edrei, and reigned in ^t mount Hermon, ^u and in Salcah, and in all Bashan, ^x unto the border of the Geshurites and the Maachathites, ⁶ and half Gilead, the border of Sihon king of Heshbon. ^y Them did Moses the servant of the Lord and the children of Israel smite: and ^z Moses the servant of the Lord gave it for a possession unto the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh.

¹ The places here named, as far as they can be ascertained, will be found in the map. It is evident that these 'kings' were merely chiefs (see Judg. i. 7), or, as the heads of small tribes are now called, sheikhs.

² Rather, 'and in the midst of the river' (see ch. xiii. 9, 16), 'and the half of Gilcad,' etc. Aroer was probably at a bend of the stream.

³ Rather, 'and the Arabah (the Jordan valley) to the sea of Chinneroth on the east side;' i. e. the eastern side of the Jordan valley between the two seas.

⁴ See note on Gen. xv. 20, 21.

⁶ Joshua was at this time probably about a hundred years old. The Canaanites were now so far subdued, that their extermination ought to have been easily effected by the Israelites when settled on their lands: but this settlement of the boundaries of the several tribes required the influence of some person of supreme and unquestioned authority.

Canaanites, and Meerah [or, the cave],¹ that is beside the Sidonians, ^f unto Aphek, ⁵ to the borders of ^g the Amorites: and the land of ^h the Giblites, and all Lebanon, toward the sunrising, ⁱ from Baal-gad under mount Hermon unto the entering into ⁶ Hamath. All the inhabitants of the hill country from Lebanon unto ^k Misrephoth-maim, and all the Sidonians, them ^l will I ² drive out from before the children of Israel: only ^m divide thou it by lot³ unto the Israelites for an inheritance, as I ⁷ have commanded thee. Now therefore divide this land for an inheritance unto ⁸ the nine tribes, and the half tribe of Manasseh. With whom⁴ the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, ⁿ which Moses gave them, beyond ⁹ Jordan eastward, even as Moses the servant of the LORD gave them; from Aroer, that is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the ¹⁰ river, ^o and all the plain of Medeba unto Dibon; and ^p all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, unto the border of the children of ¹¹ Ammon; ^q and Gilead, and the border of the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all ¹² mount Hermon, and all Bashan unto Salcah; all the kingdom of Og in Bashan, which reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of ^r the remnant of the giants: ^s for these did Moses smite, and cast them out.

¹³ Nevertheless⁵ the children of Israel expelled ^t not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites: but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the ¹⁴ Israelites until this day. ^u Only unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance; the sacrifices⁶ of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, ^v as he said unto them.

The portions of the tribes east of Jordan recapitulated.

¹⁵ AND Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according ¹⁶ to their families. And their coast was ^w from Aroer, that is on the bank of the river Arnon, ^x and the city that is in the midst of the river, ^y and all the plain by ¹⁷ Medeba; Heshbon, and all her cities that are in the plain; Dibon, and ^b Bamoth-baal, ¹⁸ and Beth-baal-meon, ^c and Jahaza, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath, ^d and Kirjathaim, ¹⁹ and ^e Sibmah, and Zareth-shahar in the mount of the valley, and Beth-peor, and ²⁰ ^f Ashdodh-pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth, ^g and all the cities of the plain, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, ^h whom Moses smote ⁱ with the princes of Midian, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, ²¹ which were dukes⁷ of Sihon, dwelling in the country. ^k Balaam also the son of Beor, the soothsayer, did the children of Israel slay with the sword among them ²² that were slain by them. And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben after their families, the cities and the villages thereof.

¹ There is near Sidon a cave of great importance as a stronghold, mentioned by William of Tyre. The 'Giblites' are people of Gebal, a city and district of Lebanon.

² God now released Joshua from prosecuting the conquest of the land. After all his victories, the extreme north and south of Canaan appear to have been only hastily overrun; and the sea-coast and the richest plains, with their cities, were still unsubdued. But the panic which had seized the enemy, the slaughter of their kings and warriors, and the capture of their chief fortresses, all contributed to render the completion of the work comparatively easy; aided as the Hebrews might have been by Divine power here promised, and stimulated by their own personal interest in the lands now distributed.

³ The division by lot referred the determination of their several inheritances to the sovereignty of God.

⁵ This is the first intimation of that want of faith and perseverance which occasioned the sins and sufferings enumerated in the books of Judges and 1 Samuel.

First division of the land west of Jordan.

14 AND these are the countries which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, ^y which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, distributed for inheritance to them. ^z By lot was their inheritance, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes, and for the half tribe: ^a for¹ Moses had given the inheritance of two tribes and an half tribe on the other side Jordan: ^b but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them. (For ^c the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim.) Therefore they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle and for their substance. ^d As the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land.

The portion of Judah; Caleb obtains Hebron.

6 THEN the children of Judah came unto Joshua in Gilgal: and Caleb² the son of Jephunneh the ^e Kenezite said unto him, Thou knowest ^f the thing that the LORD said unto Moses ^g the man of God concerning me and thee ^h in Kadesh-barnea. Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the Lord ⁱ sent me from Kadesh-barnea to espy out the land; and ^k I brought him word again as it ^l was in mine heart. Nevertheless ^m my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I wholly ⁿ followed the LORD my God. And Moses swore on that day, saying, "Surely the land ^o whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God. And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, ^p as he said, these forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel wandered in the wilderness: and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. ^q As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both ^r to go out, and to come in. Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day; for thou heardest in that day how ^s the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced: ^t if so be the LORD will be with me, then ^u I shall be able to drive them out, as the LORD said.

13 And Joshua ^x blessed him, ^y and gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron for an inheritance. ^z Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite unto this day, because³ that he ^a wholly followed the LORD God of Israel. And ^b the name of Hebron before was Kirjath-arba; which ^c Arba was a great man among the Anakims. ^d And the land had rest from war.

15 *This*⁴ then was the lot of the tribe of the children of Judah by their families; ^e even to the border of Edom the ^f wilderness of Zin southward was the uttermost part of the south coast.

2 And their south border was from the shore of ^g the Salt Sea, from the bay that looketh southward: and it went out to the south side, ^h to Maaleh-acrabbim [or, the going up to Acrabbim], and passed along to Zin, and ascended up on the south side unto Kadesh-barnea, and passed along to Hezron, and went up to Adar, and fetched a compass to Karkaa: from thence it passed ⁱ toward Azmon, and went out unto the river of Egypt; and the goings out of that coast were at the sea: this shall be your south coast.

5 And the east border was the Salt Sea, even unto the end of Jordan.

And their border in the north quarter was from the bay of the sea at the uttermost part of Jordan: and the border went up to ^j Beth-hoglah, and passed along by the north of Beth-arabah; and the border went up ^k to the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben: and the border went up toward Debir from ^l the valley of Achor, and so northward, looking toward Gilgal, that is before the going up to Adummim, which is on the south side of the river: and the border passed toward the waters of En-shemesh, and the goings out thereof were at ^m Enrogel: and the border

1 Rather, 'and.' Vers. 3, 4 explain how it was that nine tribes and a half were to be provided for. Levi was to have no portion, but Joseph was to have two.

2 Before the land was divided, Caleb's special claim was satisfied. In the address of this venerable servant of God we have a union of fervent gratitude with noble confidence, equally removed from self-sufficiency and from false humility. While conscious of the rectitude of his heart and life, he shows himself equally conscious that he owed all to the grace of God.

3 They that follow God fully when they are young, shall have both the credit and the comfort of it when they are old, and the reward of it for ever in the heavenly Canaan.—M. Henry.

4 For these divisions, see map. These arrangements were somewhat altered afterwards: see ch. xix. 9.

went up ^aby the valley of the son of Hinnom¹ unto the south side of the ^oJebusite; the same is Jerusalem: and the border went up to the top of the mountain that lieth before the valley of Hinnom westward, which is at the end
 9 ^pof the valley of the giants² northward: and the border was drawn from the top of the hill unto ^rthe fountain of the water of Nephtoah, and went out to the cities of mount Ephron; and the border was drawn ^rto Baalah, which is ^sKirjath-
 10 Jearim: and the border compassed from Baalah westward unto mount Seir, and passed along unto the side of mount Jearim, which is Chesalon, on the north side, 11 and went down to Beth-shemesh, and passed on to ^tTimuah: and the border went out unto the side of ^uEkron northward: and the border was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to mount Baalah, and went out unto Jabneel; and the goings out of the border were at the sea.

12 And the west border was ^xto the Great Sea, and the coast thereof.

This is the coast of the children of Judah round about according to their families.

13 ^yAnd unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh he gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even ^zthe city of 14 Arba [or, Kirjath-arba] the father of Anak, which city is Hebron. And Caleb drove³ thence ^athe three sons of Anak, ^bSheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai, the 15 children of Anak. And ^che went up thence to the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher. ^dAnd Caleb said, He that smiteth
 16 Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.⁴
 17 And ^eOthniel the ^fson of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him
 18 Achsah his daughter to wife. ^gAnd it came to pass, as she came unto him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and ^hshe alighted off her ass; and 19 Caleb said unto her, what wouldest thou? Who answered, Give me a ⁱ blessing; for thou hast given me a ^j south land; ^kgive me also springs of water.⁵ And he gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families.

21 And the uttermost cities⁶ of the tribe of the children of Judah toward the coast
 22 of Edom southward were Kabzeel, and Eder, and Jagur, and Kinah, and Dimonah, 23 and Adadah, and Kedesh, and Hazor, and Ithnan, Ziph, and Telem, and Bealoth, 25 and Hazor, Hadattah, and Kerioth, and Hezron, which is Hazor, Amam, and 27 Shema, and Moladah, and Hazar-gaddah, and Heshmon, and Beth-palet, and 29 Hazar-shual, and Beer-sheba, and Bizjathjah, Baalah, and Iim, and Azem, and 31 Eltolad, and Chesil, and Hormah, and ^lZiklag, and Madmannah, and Sansannah.
 32 and Lebaoth, and Shilhim, and Ain, and Rimmon: all the cities are twenty and nine,⁷ with their villages:

33, 34 And in the valley, ^mEshtaol, and Zoreah, and Ashnah, and Zanoah, and 35 Engannim, Tappuah, and Enam, Jarmuth, and Adullam, Socoh, and Azekah, and 36 Sharaim, and Adithaim, and Gederah, and [or, or] Gederothaim; fourteen cities 37 with their villages: Zenan, and Hadashah, and Migdal-gad, and Dilean, and 39 Mizpeh, ⁿand Joktheel, Lachish, and Bozkath, and Eglon, and Cabbon, and 41 Lahmam, and Kithlish, and Gederath, Beth-dagon, and Naamah, and Makkedah:
 42 sixteen cities with their villages: Libnah, and Ether, and Ashan, and Jiphtah, 44 and Ashnah, and Nezib, and Keilah, and Achzib, and Mareshah; nine cities with 46 their villages: Ekron, with her towns and her villages: from Ekron even unto 47 the sea, all that lay near Ashdod, with their villages: Ashdod with her towns and her villages, Gaza with her towns and her villages, unto ^othe river of Egypt, and ^pthe Great Sea, and the border thereof:

¹ So that the greater part of the city of Jerusalem, including the temple when it was built, lay just within the portion of the Benjamites; but the fortress of Zion probably belonged to Judah: see ver. 63. On the Valley of the son of Hinnom, see note on 2 Kings xxiii. 10.

² Or, 'the plain of Rephaim,' on the south-west of Jerusalem. It was famed for its fertility (Isa. xvii. 5), and for a victory over the Philistines gained by David, who lay in wait behind its mulberry-trees (2 Sam. v. 22—25).

³ His expectation and God's promise were thus fulfilled.

⁴ Thus encouraging the valour of others, who might afterwards maintain and extend the Israelites' power. Othniel, the hero of this exploit, was the first deliverer and judge of the nation after the time of Joshua (Judg.

iii. 9). Similar inducements to great exploits have been common in many nations.

⁵ Water, the first essential of comfort, would not readily be found in the mountain district, which is therefore called a south (i. e. hot, dry) land. Springs on two levels would be specially useful for irrigation.

⁶ Many of the 'cities' here enumerated were doubtless very small; but there is abundant evidence of the populousness and fertility of Palestine in ancient times—although it is at the present day, through the Divine displeasure, one of the most barren and unprofitable countries in the world.

⁷ The total is thirty-eight; but either there is some corruption of the text, or only twenty-nine remained in the possession of Judah, the rest being given to Simeon.

53 Eshean, and ^r Janum, and Beth-tappuah, and Aphekah, and Humtah, and ^s Kir-54 jath-arba, which is Hebron, and Zior; nine cities with their villages: Maon, 56 Carmel, and Ziph, and Juttah, and Jezreel, and Jokdeam, and Zanoah, Cain, 58 Gibeah, and Timnah; ten cities with their villages: Halhul, Beth-zur, and Gedor, 59 and Maarath, and Beth-anoth, and Eltekon; six cities with their villages: ¹ ' Kir-60 jath-baal, which is Kirjath-jearim, and Rabbah; two cities with their villages:
 61 In the wilderness, Beth-arabah, Middin, and Secacah, and Nibshan, and the 62 city of Salt, and En-gedi; six cities with their villages.
 63 As for the Jebusites the inhabitants of Jerusalem, ^u the children of Judah could not drive them out: ^x but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Judah at Jerusalem unto this day.

The portions of Ephraim and Manasseh.

16 AND the lot of the children of Joseph fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto the water of Jericho on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up ² from Jericho 2 throughout mount Beth-el, and goeth out from Beth-el to ^y Luz, ³ and passeth
 3 along unto the borders of Archi to Ataroth, and goeth down westward to the coast of Japhleti, ^z unto the coast of Beth-horon the nether, and to ^a Gezer: and the 4 goings out thereof are at the sea. ^b So the children of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, took their inheritance.

5 And the border of the children of Ephraim according to their families was thus:
 even the border of their inheritance on the east side was ^c Ataroth-addar, ^d unto 6 Beth-horon the upper; and the border went out toward the sea to ^e Michmethah on the north side; and the border went about eastward unto Taanath-shiloh, and 7 passed by it on the east to Janohah; and it went down from Janohah to Ataroth, 8 ^f and to Naarath, and came to Jericho, and went out at Jordan. The border went out from Tappuah westward unto the ^g river Kanah; and the goings out thereof were at the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim 9 by their families. And ^h the separate cities for the children of Ephraim were among the inheritance of the children of Manasseh, all the cities with their villages.
 10 ⁱ And they drave not out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer. But the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute.

17 There was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh; for he was the ^k firstborn of Joseph; to wit, for ^l Machir the firstborn of Manasseh, the father of Gilead: because 2 he was a man of war, ⁴ therefore he had ^m Gilead and Bashan. There was also a lot for ⁿ the rest of the children of Manasseh by their families; ^o for the children of ^p Abiezer, and for the children of Helek, ^q and for the children of Asriel, and for the children of Shechem, ^r and for the children of Hephher, and for the children of Shemida: these were the male children of Manasseh the son of Joseph by their families.

3 But ^s Zelophehad, the son of Hephher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his 4 daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Mileah, and Tirzah. And they came near before ^t Eleazar the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, ^u The LORD commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren. Therefore according to the commandment of the LORD he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.

5 And there fell ten portions to Manasseh, beside the land of Gilead and Bashan, 6 which were on the other side Jordan; because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.

7 And the coast of Manasseh was from Asher to ^x Michmethah, that lieth before Shechem; and the border went along on the right hand unto the inhabitants of 8 En-tappuah. Now Manasseh had the land of Tappuah: but ^y Tappuah on the 9 border of Manasseh belonged to the children of Ephraim; and the coast descended ^z unto the river Kanah, southward of the river: ^a these cities of Ephraim are among the cities of Manasseh. The coast of Manasseh also was on the north side 10 of the river, and the outgoings of it were at the sea: southward it was Ephraim's, and northward it was Manasseh's, and the sea is his border; and they met together 11 in Asher on the north, and in Issachar on the east. ^b And Manasseh had in Issachar and in Asher ^c Beth-shean and her towns, and Ibleam and her towns, and

1 After this, the Greek version inserts eleven other cities and villages, including Bethlehem Ephratah.

2 'Goeth up' and 'goeth down' (ver. 3) refer to the central mountain-ridge between the plain of Sharon and the Jordan valley.

3 Bethel and Luz are spoken of elsewhere as the same city. But the spot originally named Bethel was not in the ancient city: see Gen. xxviii. 11, 19.

4 What is here said of Machir, or Gilead, seems rather to belong to their descendants in Joshua's time.

the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of En-dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of Taanach and her towns, and the inhabitants of 12 Megiddo and her towns, even three countries. Yet ^dthe children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; but the Canaanites would 13 dwell in that land. Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to ^etribute; but did not utterly drive them out.

14 ^fAnd the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given me but ^gone lot and one portion to inherit, seeing I am ^ha great people, forasmuch
 15 as the LORD hath blessed me hitherto? And Joshua answered them, If ⁱthou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood country, and cut down for thyself there in the land of the Perizzites and of the giants [or, Rephaims^j], if mount 16 Ephraim be too narrow for thee. And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have ^kchariots of iron, both they who are of Beth-shean and her towns, and they
 17 who are ^lof the valley of Jezreel. And Joshua spake unto the house of Joseph, even to Ephraim and to Manasseh, saying, Thou art a great people, and hast great 18 power: thou shalt not have one lot only: but the mountain shall be thine; for it is a wood, and thou shalt cut it down: and the outgoings of it shall be thine: for thou shalt drive out the Canaanites, ^mthough they have iron chariots, and though they be strong.

The tabernacle set up at Shiloh; survey and division of the unpossessed lands.

18 AND the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together ⁿat Shiloh, ^oand ^pset up the tabernacle of the congregation there. And the land was subdued before them.

2 And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not
 3 yet received their inheritance. And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, ^qHow long are ye slack^r to go to possess the land, which the LORD God of your
 4 fathers hath given you? Give out from among you three men for each tribe: and I will send them, and they shall rise, and go through the land, and describe
 5 it according to the inheritance of them; ^sand they shall come again to me. And they shall divide it into seven parts: ^tJudah shall abide in their coast on the
 6 south, and ^uthe house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north.^v Ye shall therefore describe the land into seven parts, and bring the description hither
 7 to me, ^wthat I may cast lots for you here before the LORD our God. ^xBut the Levites have no part among you; for the priesthood of the LORD is their inheritance: ^yand Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the east, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave them.

8 And the men arose, and went away: and Joshua charged them that went to describe the land, saying, Go and walk through the land, and describe it, and come again to me, that I may here cast lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh.
 9 And the men went and passed through the land, and described it by cities into 10 seven parts in a book, and came again to Joshua to the host at Shiloh. And Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD: and there Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel according to their divisions.

Second division; the portions of Benjamin, Simeon, Zebulun, Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Dan.

11 AND the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came up according to their families: and the coast of their lot came forth between the children of Judah and the children of Joseph.

¹ Joshua intimates that there is room enough for them, if they have but faith and courage to make it all available. Many (says Henry) wish for larger possessions, who do not make the best of what they have; and think they should have more talents given to them, when they do not trade with those with which they are entrusted. This incident illustrates the impartiality of Joshua, who was himself an Ephraimite.

² Shiloh was situated in the very heart of the land, about twenty miles north of Jerusalem, and was therefore well adapted for the site of the Tabernacle, which remained there more than four hundred years (1 Sam. iv. 1—11); but was afterwards placed at Gibeon (1 Chron. xxi. 29).

³ The rich spoil of the conquered Canaanites, and the strength of the remainder, probably combined to hinder them. How often do present comforts, as well as apprehended difficulties, draw us aside from our confidence in God, and slacken our zeal for the acquirement of the heavenly inheritance!

⁴ It is probable that some survey had been made previously to the allotment of the portions to the before-mentioned tribes; but it had not been sufficiently exact. The persons now employed were therefore to make a complete admeasurement of the country, that the remaining land might be divided into seven parts, for the tribes which were yet unprovided for. After this survey, it appeared that Judah's portion was disproportionately large: therefore a portion for another tribe was taken out of it; which, on being put anew to the lot, fell to Simeon (ch. xix. 1—9); and another portion, which fell to Dan (xix. 40—46).

⁵ That is, north of Shiloh.

- 12 ^x And their border on the north side was from Jordan; and the border went up to the side of Jericho on the north side, and went up through the mountains westward; and the goings out thereof were at the wilderness of Beth-aven.
- 13 And the border went over from thence toward Luz, to the side of Luz, ^y which is Beth-el, southward; and the border descended to Ataroth-adar, near the hill that lieth on the south side ^z of the nether Beth-horon.
- 14 And the border was drawn thence, and compassed ¹ the corner of the sea southward, from the hill that lieth before Beth-horon southward; and the goings out thereof were at ^a Kirjath-baal, which is Kirjath-jearim, a city of the children of Judah: this was the west quarter.
- 15 And the south quarter was from the end of Kirjath-jearim, and the border

- 18 Adummim, and descended to ^e the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben, and passed along toward the side over against ^f Arabah [or, the plain] northward, and went
- 19 down unto Arabah: and the border passed along to the side of Beth-hoglah northward: and the outgoings of the border were at the north bay of the Salt Sea at the south end of Jordan: this was the south coast.
- 20 And Jordan was the border of it on the east side. This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, by the coasts thereof round about, according to their families.
- 21 Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin according to their
- 22 families were Jericho, and Beth-hoglah, and the valley of Keziz, and Beth-arabah,

- 26 and Irpeel, and Taralah, and Zelah, Eleph, and ^g Jebusi, which is Jerusalem, Gibeath, and Kirjath; fourteen cities with their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Benjamin according to their families.
- 19 And the second lot came forth to Simeon, even for the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families: ^h and their inheritance was within the in-
- 2 heritance of the children of Judah. And ⁱ they had in their inheritance Beer-
- 3 sheba, and ² Sheba, and Moladah, and Hazar-shual, and Balah, and Azem, and

- 8 villages that were round about these cities to Baalath-beer, Ramath of the south. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their
- 9 families. Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them: ^k therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.
- 10 And the third lot came up for the children of Zebulun according to their
- 11 families: and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid: ^l and their border went up toward the sea, and Maralah, and reached to Dabbasheth, and reached
- 12 to the river that is ^m before Jokneam; and turned from Sarid eastward toward the sunrising unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to Daberath,

- 15 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem: twelve

23 the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Issachar according to their families, the cities and their villages.

24 And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher according to 25 their families. And their border was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and 26 Achshaph, and Alammelech, and Amad, and Misheal; and reacheth to Carmel 27 westward, and to Shihor-libnath; and turneth toward the sunrising to Beth-28 dagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jiphthah-el toward the 29 north side of Beth-emek, and Neiel, and goeth out to Cabul on the left hand, 30 and Hebron, and Rehob, and Hammon, and Kanah, ⁿeven unto great Zidon;¹ and 31 then the coast turneth to Ramah, and to the strong city ^oTyre; and the coast turneth to Hosah; and the outgoings thereof are at the sea from the coast to 32 ^pAchzib: Ummah also, and Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities with their 33 villages. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families, these cities with their villages.

32 The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali, ^{even} for the children of 33 Naphtali according to their families. And their coast was from Heleph, from Allon to Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum; and the out-34 goings thereof were at Jordan: and then ^qthe coast turneth westward to Aznothtabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebulun on the south side, and reacheth to Asher on the west side, and to Judah upon Jordan² toward the sunrising.

35 And the fenced cities ^{are} Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath, Rakkath, and Chinnereth, 37 and Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor, and Kedesh, and Edrei, and En-hazor, and 38 Iron, and Migdal-el, Horem, and Beth-anath, and Beth-shemesh; nineteen cities 39 with their villages. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Naphtali according to their families, the cities and their villages.

40 And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan according to 41 their families. And the coast of their inheritance was Zorah, and Eshtaol, and 42 Ir-shemesh, and ^rShaalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah, and Elon, and Thimnathah, 44 and Ekron, and El-tekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath, and Jehud, and Bene-
46 berak, and Gath-rimmon, and Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the border before 47 Japho [^{or}, over against Joppa^s]. And ^tthe coast of the children of Dan went out³ too little for them: therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called ^uLeshem, Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families, these cities with their villages.

49 When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel gave an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them:
50 according to the word of the LORD they gave him the city which he asked, ^{even} ^vTimnath-²serah in mount Ephraim: and he built the city, and dwelt therein.

51 ^zThese ^{are} the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot ^ain Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country.

Appointment of the cities of refuge.

20 THE LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying, Speak to the children of Israel, 2 saying, ^bAppoint out for you cities of refuge,⁴ whereof I spake unto you by the 3 hand of Moses: that the slayer that killeth ^{any} person unawares ^{and} unwittingly 4 may flee thither: and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood. And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities shall stand at the entering of ^cthe gate of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may 5 dwell among them. ^dAnd if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour 6 unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime. And he shall dwell in that city, ^euntil he stand before the congregation for judgment, ^{and} until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

¹ Within the boundaries of Asher were included the Phœnician cities of Accho, Tyre, and Sidon; but the Asherites were never able to expel their inhabitants: see Judg. i. 31. It seems that afterwards the Phœnicians encroached upon the lands of their Hebrew neighbours.

² The Septuagint only says, 'and to Jordan.' It is certain that the land of the tribe of Judah cannot be here meant, as it was considerably to the southward.

³ This may mean, either that they 'went out of their possession,' as they did not expel the Canaanites; or that their lot 'was extended for them,' namely, by the conquest of Leshem, or Laish, which took place subsequently. See Judg. xviii.

⁴ See note on Numb. xxxv. 6.

- 7 And they appointed ^fKedesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and ^gShechem in mount Ephraim, and ^hKirjath-arba, which is Hebron, in ⁱthe mountain of Judah.
- 8 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward, they assigned ^kBezer in the wilderness upon the plain out of the tribe of Reuben, and ^lRamoth in Gilead out of the tribe of Gad, and ^mGolan in Bashan out of the tribe of Manasseh.¹
- 9 ⁿThese were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them, that whosoever killeth any person at unawares might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, ^ountil he stood before the congregation.

Cities of the Levites.

- 21 THEN came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites unto ^pEleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the 2 tribes of the children of Israel; and they spake unto them at ^qShiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, ^rThe Lord commanded by the hand of Moses to give us cities 3 to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle. And the children of Israel gave unto the Levites² out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the Lord, these cities and their suburbs.
- 4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites: and ^sthe children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, ^thad by lot out of the tribe of Judah³ and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities.
- 5 And ^uthe rest of the children of Kohath had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.
- 6 And ^vthe children of Gershon had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.
- 7 ^yThe children of Merari by their families had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.
- 8 ^zAnd the children of Israel gave by lot unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, ^aas the Lord commanded by the hand of Moses.
- 9 And they gave out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe 10 of the children of Simeon, these cities which are here mentioned by name, ^bwhich the children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the 11 children of Levi, had: for theirs was the first lot. ^cAnd they gave them the city of Arba [or, Kirjath-arba^d] the father of ^eAnak, which city is Hebron, ^fin 12 the hill country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it. But ^gthe fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh 13 for his possession. Thus ^hthey gave to the children of Aaron the priest ⁱHebron with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; ^kand Libnah with her 14 suburbs, and ^lJattir with her suburbs, ^mand Eshtemoa with her suburbs, and 15 ⁿHolon with her suburbs, ^oand Debir with her suburbs, and ^pAin with her 16 suburbs, ^qand Juttah with her suburbs, and ^rBeth-shemesh with her suburbs; 17 nine cities out of those two tribes. And out of the tribe of Benjamin, ^sGibeon 18 with her suburbs, ^tGeba with her suburbs, Anathoth with her suburbs, and 19 ^uAlmon with her suburbs; four cities. All the cities were thirteen cities with their suburbs.
- 20 ^vAnd the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of 21 Ephraim. For they gave them ^yShechem with her suburbs in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Gezer with her suburbs, and Kibzaim 22 with her suburbs, and Beth-horon with her suburbs; four cities. And out of 23 the tribe of Dan, Eltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs, Aijalon 24 with her suburbs, Gath-rimmon with her suburbs; four cities. And out of the half tribe of Manasseh, Tanach with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her 25 suburbs; two cities. All the cities were ten with their suburbs for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.
- 26 ^zAnd unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh they gave ^aGolan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Beesh-terah with her suburbs; two cities.
- 27 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, Dabareh with her 28 suburbs, Jarmuth with her suburbs, En-gannim with her suburbs; four cities.
- 29 And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs,

¹ These cities, as well as those on the other side of Jordan, were so placed that a person could reach one of them within a day from any part of the country.

³ By this arrangement of Divine Providence the priests were settled near the destined site of the temple, and in the tribe connected with the future race of kings.

¹ The exact number which Moses had prescribed. It is to be observed that the Levites did not inhabit these cities to the exclusion of their brethren, who sometimes formed the larger part of the population.

² None of the Canaanites were now in arms against them. Most of those who remained were in subjection, and paid tribute. The subsequent ascendancy of the Canaanites at some periods was the effect of the cowardice and slothfulness of the Israelites, and the punishment of their sinful inclination towards idolatry.

³ The transactions in this chapter place the character of this generation of Hebrews in a very favourable light. The faithfulness and courage of the warriors from the eastern tribes, as testified by Joshua—their anxiety not to be separated from the religious privileges of Israel—the jealousy of their brethren over their supposed apostasy—and the readiness of both parties to give and receive mutual explanation, indicate an extensive and powerful influence of religion upon the nation, perhaps greater than is to be found in any other period of their history.

⁴ This altar seems to have been built on the eastern side of the river.

the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, at the passage of the children of 12 Israel. And when the children of Israel heard of it,^b the whole congregation¹ of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war 13 against them. And the children of Israel ^csent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, 14 ^dPhinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and with him ten princes, of each chief house a prince throughout all the tribes of Israel; and ^eeach one was an head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel.

15 And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, 16 saying, Thus saith ^fthe whole congregation of the LORD, What trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, ^gthat ye might rebel 17 this day against the LORD? Is the iniquity ^hof Peor too little for us, from which we are not cleansed until this day,² although there was a plague in the congrega-18 tion of the LORD, but that ye must turn away this day from following the LORD?
 and it will be, seeing ye rebel to-day against the LORD, that to-morrow ⁱhe will 19 be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel. Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, ^kwherein the LORD's tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us: but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar 20 beside the altar of the LORD our God. ^lDid not Achan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel?
 and that man perished not alone in his iniquity.

21 Then the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of 22 Manasseh answered, and said unto the heads of the thousands of Israel, The LORD ^mGod of gods, the LORD God of gods,³ he ⁿknoweth, and ^oIsrael he shall know; if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not 23 this day,) that we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt offering or meat offering, or if to offer peace offerings 24 thereon, let the LORD himself ^prequire it; and if we have not rather done it for fear of this thing, saying, In time to come your children might speak unto our 25 children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel? For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben and children of Gad; ye have no part in the LORD: so shall your children make 26 our children cease from fearing the LORD. Therefore we said, Let us now prepare 27 to build us an altar, not for burnt offering, nor for sacrifice: but that it may be ^qa witness between us, and you, and our generations after us, that we might ^rdo the service of the LORD before him with our burnt offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings; that your children may not say to our 28 children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD. Therefore said we, that it shall be, when they should so say to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, Behold the pattern of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt offerings, nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between 29 us and you. ^sGod forbid that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn this day from following the LORD, ^tto build an altar for burnt offerings, for meat offerings, or for sacrifices, beside the altar of the LORD our God that is before his tabernacle.

30 And when Phinehas the priest, and the princes of the congregation and heads of the thousands of Israel which were with him, heard the words that the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the children of Manasseh spake, ^uit 31 pleased them. And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the children of Manasseh, This day we perceive that the LORD is ^vamong us, because ye have not committed this trespass against the LORD: now ye have delivered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD.

32 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben, and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them word again.
 33 And the thing pleased the children of Israel; and the children of Israel ^wblessed
 God, and did not intend to go up against them in battle, to destroy the land wherein the children of Reuben and Gad dwelt.

still lay upon them, or that there were many of the people who had never truly repented of their wickedness.

³ Or, 'The God of gods, Jehovah; the God of gods, Jehovah.' This solemn appeal to Jehovah was peculiarly appropriate, as they were accused of forsaking him.

2 Joshua's administration lasted probably about twenty-six or seven years: so that this might be about fifteen years after the last division of the land.

3 The veteran chieftain, like the aged lawgiver of Israel, closes his administration by a solemn renewal of God's covenant with his people (ch. xxiii., xxiv.) His addresses contain some designed repetitions of the forcible words of his predecessor: yet they have his own eminently practical character stamped upon them; especially when, in demanding a fresh avowal of allegiance to their heavenly King, he declares his own determination to 'serve the Lord.' The subsequent history shows that the care he took to maintain the adherence of the Israelites to their religion was by no means needless: nor is it less necessary that Christians should be often admonished to be faithful to their Divine Lord. See 2 Pet. i. 12—15.

4 The fact that God had done so much for the people (vers. 3, 9, 14), and had engaged to do still more (vers. 5, 10), constituted a special ground for the command to keep his law (vers. 6—8), and to avoid intercourse with idolaters (ver. 11, etc.) The remembrance of God's mercies and promises should engage us to faithfulness in his service.

And I gave unto Isaac ^mJacob and Esau: and I gave unto ⁿEsau mount Seir, to possess it; ^obut Jacob and his children went down into Egypt. ^pI sent Moses also and Aaron, and ^qI plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them: and afterward I brought you out. And I ^rbrought your fathers out of Egypt: and ^sye came unto the sea; ^tand the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red Sea. And when they ^ucried unto the LORD, ^vhe put darkness between you and the Egyptians, ^wand brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and ^xyour eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt: and ye dwelt in the wilderness ^aa long season. And I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side Jordan; ^band they fought with you: and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you. Then ^cBalak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred against Israel, and ^dsent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you: ^ebut I would not hearken unto Balaam; ^ftherefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand. And ^gye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and ^hthe men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I delivered them into your hand. And ⁱI sent the hornet before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites; but ^knot with thy sword, nor with thy bow. And I have given you a land for which ^lye did not labour, and ^lcities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them; of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not do ye eat. ^mNow therefore fear the LORD, and serve him in ⁿsincerity and in truth: and ^oput away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and ^pin Egypt; and serve ye the LORD. And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, ^qchoose you this day whom ye will serve; whether ^rthe gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or ^sthe gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: ^tbut as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

16 And the people answered and said, God forbid ^uthat we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods; for the LORD our God, ^vhe it is that brought us up and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed: and the LORD drave out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land: therefore will we also serve the LORD; for he is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, ^wYe cannot ^xserve the LORD: for he is an ^yholy God; he is ^aa jealous God; ^bhe will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins. ^cIf ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, ^dthen he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good.

21 And the people said unto Joshua, ^eNay; but we will serve the LORD.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ^fye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses.

23 Now therefore ^gput away, said he, the strange gods³ which are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel. And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua ^hmade a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance ⁱin Shechem. And Joshua ^kwrote these words in the book of the law of God, and took ^la great stone, and ^mset it up there ⁿunder an oak, that was by the sanctuary of the LORD. And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, this stone shall be ^oa witness unto us; for ^pit hath heard all the words of the LORD which he spake unto us: it shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God. So ^qJoshua let the people depart, every man unto his inheritance.

¹ Or, 'land wherein ye did not labour,' etc. So the Genevan version and others read.

² By this strong expression, Joshua sets before the people the difficulty of maintaining fidelity to Jehovah; in order to lay a deeper and surer foundation for sincerity and watchfulness. He would have them be fully aware beforehand of the self-denial and conflict which the fulfilment of their engagement would require, and of the awful consequences of disobedience and apostasy. He would also inspire them with a deep reverence for God, who would certainly not overlook the wilful sins of his own people. Such cautions must not be perverted to discourage zeal, or to excuse backsliding; but should excite to watchfulness and determined effort, and to humble reliance on Divine help. For warnings somewhat similar, see Luke xiv. 25—33; Heb. xii. 25—29.

³ Faithful as the mass of the people were, Joshua feared that there were some idolaters among them. The purest religious community on earth cannot be supposed to be altogether unmixt. See John vi. 70.

NOTE ON THE DESTRUCTION OF THE CANAANITES.

THE wars of the Israelites in Canaan, and the terrible destruction brought upon its inhabitants, are to be regarded as the execution of a just though dreadful sentence pronounced by God against their enormous and incorrigible crimes; making them an example to the whole world of His avenging wrath against heinous sins.

The judicial character of these transactions will appear from the following considerations: 1. The Israelites were expressly appointed by Divine authority to discharge this duty; and the commission which they bore set forth the cause of this proceeding against the Canaanites, enumerating their crimes, and stating distinctly that they were, on this account, devoted to destruction. (See Deut. vii., etc.) 2. The resources of God's government were made available to the Hebrews as the officers of his justice. The passage of the Jordan; the falling down of the walls of Jericho; the lengthening of the day to give them time to complete their victory; the hailstones at Gibeon, which, without touching them, slew more of their enemies than the sword did—were all so many proofs of their commission and authority, and were recognised as such by their enemies. 3. In the execution of this office, their persons were under Divine protection; so that, after the greatest battles, they returned to the camp without one missing or wounded. So distinct was the assurance of God on this subject, that when, in consequence of transgression, they were at first routed before Ai, and thirty-six men were killed, this slight reverse filled them with dismay, as being entirely different from what they had expected.

The general course of these events is therefore strictly analogous to the system of moral government constantly exercised in the world, with only this difference, that the measures of Divine administration, which are usually carried into effect through the operation of ordinary agents, under the control of the Supreme Ruler, were here executed by his avowed interposition and authority.

It should further be observed, that God had borne long with the Canaanites; that they had neglected former awful warnings—especially the general deluge, and the destruction of the cities of the plain, situated in their immediate neighbourhood; that these judgments were not executed till the measure of their wickedness was filled up; and that this extermination, which might have been accomplished by pestilence, fire, or earthquake, was appointed to be done by the hands of the Israelites, as being the clearest and most intelligible method, especially in that age of the world, of displaying the power and righteousness of the God of Israel. This procedure would also be likely to have the most beneficial influence upon the Hebrews themselves; for they were fully aware that the miserable end of their predecessors in the land of promise was the direct result of sin—and were solemnly warned against similar conduct, lest they should incur the same penalties: whilst, at the same time, their whole experience in the performance of this service was eminently fitted to teach them to trust in God, and to rely with confidence upon his presence and aid, so long as they were obedient to his will.

It appears, further, that the Canaanites had had long warning of the danger which awaited them. It is highly probable that the grant of the entire country to Abraham's posterity was known to them. They had also heard, forty years before, how God had fought for his people against the Egyptians their brethren: and there is reason to believe that, even after the time of God's forbearance had expired, the Canaanites still had the alternative to flee elsewhere, as many did, settling in Africa and in Spain; or to renounce their idolatries and crimes, and submit to and serve the God of Israel: in which case, it appears from several passages that there was mercy for them.

This great act of retributive justice, exhibiting as it does to all nations, in all ages, God's displeasure against sin, may be regarded as an emblem of that destruction which awaits the ungodly at the judgment of the great day.

THE BOOK OF JUDGES.

THIS book contains some account of the affairs of the Israelites under the government of their Judges, from the death of Joshua to the time of Eli. It is not to be considered as a complete and connected history; many particulars being omitted which would have been essential to such a plan. Nor was such a history required; as the times of the Judges formed no new era in the annals of God's people and the development of his purposes. At their close, a new era did begin under the monarchy: but the present period of sacred history is important, chiefly, as showing the intimate connection between departure from the Lord and misery on the one hand, and between return to him and well-being on the other. Apostasy and punishment—repentance and deliverance—are the main subjects which the whole narrative was professedly intended to exhibit: see ch. ii. 11—23.

The Judges were not a regular succession of governors, but extraordinary officers, raised up by God, as circumstances required, to rescue his people from their oppressors, to reform the state of religion, and to administer justice. Without assuming the state of royalty, they were the immediate vicegerents of Jehovah, the King of Israel.

In this narrative, the condition of the Israelites does not appear so prosperous, nor their character so religious, as might have been expected from the preceding history. But this period must not be regarded as an uninterrupted series of idolatries and crimes. The apostasies which incurred punishment, and the deliverances which attended repentance, occupy almost the whole book: while long intervals of peace (amounting together to nearly three-fourths of the whole time), when the people in the main served God under the administration of pious judges, are passed over in a few sentences. And even amidst the scenes of religious defection and civil discord and violence which darken this history, there were doubtless many who feared and loved God; and some are quoted, in Heb. xi. 32, as illustrious examples of faith. It must also be borne in mind, that some of the disorders here related affected certain districts only, while the rest of the country was in a better state.

This history is full of important instruction. It presents some striking pictures of an unsettled nation; showing the disorders which prevail when the bonds of union and the salutary control of government are relaxed (see ch. v. 6); and when the people are without the advantage of religious teaching. It illustrates the corrupt tendencies of our fallen state; showing how prone men are to be drawn aside to ungodliness and false religion. It displays, in a very affecting manner, the bitter effects of sin, and the happy consequences of repentance; and it exhibits the attributes of God—his holiness and justice, his truth in fulfilling his word, and his compassion and mercy towards the penitent.

By whom this book was written is not known: but it is ascribed by an ancient Jewish tradition to Samuel, and nothing appears to render this improbable. It was certainly written before the events recorded in 2 Sam. v. 6—9. (See ch. i. 21.) Some have inferred, from the expressions used in ch. xvii. 6; xviii. 1; xix. 1; xxi. 25, that it was written after the establishment of the monarchy; but those passages all occur in the appendix, which was probably added by a different author at a later period.

The contents of this book are as follows:—

I. A short account of the extent to which the wars against the Canaanites were carried on after the death of Joshua; followed by a sketch of the general course of events during the times of the Judges; forming an introduction to the narratives which follow (ch. i.—iii. 4).

II. The oppressions of the Israelites by their enemies, and their deliverances by their Judges: comprising their subjection to the kings of Mesopotamia and of Moab; and their deliverance by Othniel and by Ehud; the deliverance of the western tribes by Shamgar (iii. 5—31); the oppression of the northern tribes by Jabin, king of Canaan, and their deliverance by Deborah and Barak (iv., v.); the deliverance of the eastern and northern tribes from the Midianites, with the history of Gideon and his family (vi.—ix.); the administrations of Tola and Jair; the deliverance of Israel from the Ammonites by Jephthah; and the administrations of Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon (x.—xii.); the servitude of the Israelites to the Philistines; their deliverance by Samson; and his history (xiii.—xvi.). With this, the regular narrative closes.

III. The remainder of the book may be regarded as an appendix, relating events which happened not long after the death of Joshua. It gives an account of the introduction of idolatry among the Israelites, and their consequent corruption and punishment: exemplified by, 1. An account of Micah's idols, which were stolen by the Danites (xvii., xviii.) 2. The brutal outrage committed by the men of Gibeah, leading to a fierce civil war, in which the tribe of Benjamin was nearly destroyed (xix.—xxi.)

The chronology of the book of Judges is peculiarly difficult. Different systems are founded upon statements in different parts of Scripture. In 1 Kings vi. 1, the period from the Exode to the foundation of the Temple is said to be 480 years; and many have adjusted all the intervening chronology to this date. But others disregard that passage, which they deem an interpolation, for the following reasons: 1. There is a variation in the numbers between the Hebrew and the Septuagint, and no date is assigned in the parallel passage in 2 Chron. iii. 2. 2. Josephus, Theophilus, and Origen, in treating of the subject, appear to have been ignorant of this computation, which is first mentioned in the fourth century by Eusebius, though in his latest works he does not adopt it. 3. It is directly opposed to the language of Paul, who assigns 450 years to the time between the division of Canaan and Samuel the prophet (Acts xiii. 20). 4. It would require that many of the times of servitude should be included in the government of the Judges (apparently in opposition to repeated statements that 'the land had rest'), and that several of these should be regarded as contemporaneous. Still there is not a perfect agreement among these chronologers. A table of the whole era is subjoined, exhibiting the dates of Usher and Hales, as representing the extremes of opinion on the question. The most probable theory fixes the length of the period at about thirty years below that assigned by Hales.

Expedition of Judah and Simeon against the Canaanites; proceedings of the other tribes.

1 NOW after ^a the death of Joshua it came to pass, that the children of Israel ^b asked the LORD, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first, to 2 fight against them? And the LORD said, ^c Judah shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land into his hand.

3 And Judah said unto Simeon¹ his brother, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and ^d I likewise will go with thee into thy 4 lot. So Simeon went with him. And Judah went up; ^e and the LORD delivered the Canaanities and the Perizzites² into their hand: and they slew of them in 5 ^f Bezek ten thousand men. And they found Adoni-bezek in Bezek: and they 6 fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites. But Adoni-bezek fled; and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off 7 his thumbs, and his great toes.³ And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings,¹ having their thumbs and their great toes cut off, gathered their meat under my table: as I have done, so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.

8 Now ^h the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken it,² 9 and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire. ⁱ And afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites, that dwelt 10 in the mountain, and in the south, and in the valley. And Judah went against the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron: (now the name of Hebron before was 11 ^k Kirjath-arba:) and they slew Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmi. ^l And from thence he went against the inhabitants of Debir: (and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher.)

12 ^m And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I 13 give Achsah my daughter to wife. And Othniel the son of Kenaz, ⁿ Caleb's 14 younger brother, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife. ^o And it came to pass, when she came to him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted from off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wilt 15 thou? And she said unto him, ^p Give me a blessing: for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her the upper springs and the nether springs.

16 ^q And the children of the Kenite, ³ Moses' father-in-law, went up out ^r of the city of palm trees with the children of Judah into the wilderness of Judah, which lieth in the south of ^s Arad; ^t and they went and dwelt among the people.

17 ^u And Judah went with Simeon his brother, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it. And the name of the city was called 18 ^x Hormah. Also Judah took ^y Gaza⁴ with the coast thereof, and Askelon with the 19 coast thereof, and Ekron with the coast thereof. And ^z the LORD was with Judah; and he drave out the inhabitants of the mountain; but could not drive out the inha-20 bitants of the valley, because they had ^a chariots of iron.⁵ ^b And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses said: and he expelled thence the three sons of Anak.

21 ^c And the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day.

22 And the house of Joseph, they also went up against Beth-el: ^d and the LORD 23 was with them. And the house of Joseph ^e sent to descry Beth-el: (now the 24 name of the city before was ^f Luz.) And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Show us, we pray thee, the entrance into the 25 city,⁶ and ^g we will show thee mercy. And when he showed them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they let go 26 the man and all his family. And the man went into the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

27 ^h Neither did Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean and her towns, nor Taanach and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and her 28 towns: but the Canaanites would dwell in that land. And it came to pass, when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites ⁱ to tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.⁷

29 ^k Neither did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer; but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them.

30 Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the ^l inhabitants of Nahalol; but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

¹ That is, petty chiefs. This seems to indicate that a wasting civil war in Canaan had preceded the invasion of the Israelites, reducing the strength of their enemies.

² As Jerusalem was already in the hands of Judah, it had probably been taken by Joshua. The strong fort of Zion was, however, held by the Jebusites till the time of David. See ver. 21, and 2 Sam. v. 6—9. Vers. 8—16 appear to be a parenthetical recital of previous events, some of which had been recorded in the book of Joshua.

⁴ The Septuagint has, 'Though Judah did not take possession of Gaza, nor the borders thereof, nor of Askelon,' etc. But this may have been an alteration made by the Greek translators for the purpose of obviating a difficulty, as we find these cities shortly afterwards in the hands of the Philistines, who probably soon reconquered them.

⁵ These chariots certainly gave the Canaanites of the plain great advantage; but this was not the cause of Judah's failure. Had the Israelites cherished a due confidence in Jehovah, and obeyed his commands, neither the military prowess of their enemies nor the chariots of iron could have hindered the fulfilment of his promises.

⁶ Not the public gate, but some unguarded point where they might enter unresisted.

⁷ This course appeared more easy and more profitable; but it was opposed to the Divine command, and it soon brought its own punishment, causing them and their descendants great disquiet and suffering.

Zidon, nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib, nor of Helbah, nor of Aphik, nor of Rehob :
32 but the Asherites ^udwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land : for they did not drive them out.

33 Neither did ^oNaphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath ; but he ^pdwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land : nevertheless the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh and of Beth-anath ^qbecame tributaries unto them.

34 And the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the mountain : ¹ for they would 35 not suffer them to come down to the valley : but the Amorites would dwell in mount Heres ^rin Aijalon, and in Shaalbim : yet the hand of the house of Joseph ² 36 prevailed, so that they became tributaries. And the coast of the Amorites was

The angel of the Lord rebukes the people.

2 AND ^uan angel ⁴[or, messenger] of the LORD came up from Gilgal ^vto Bochim, and said, ^xI made you to go up out of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land ^ywhich I swore unto your fathers ; and ^zI said, I will never break my
2 covenant with you ; and ^aye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land ; ^bye shall throw down their altars. ^cBut ye have not obeyed my voice :
3 why have ye done this ? Wherefore I also said, I will not drive them out from before you ; but they shall be ^das thorns in your sides, and ^etheir gods shall be a ^fsnare unto you.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all
5 the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voice, and wept. And they called the name of that place Bochim [i. e. weepers] : and they sacrificed there unto the LORD.

A general sketch of the history of Israel during the times of the Judges.

6 AND when ^gJoshua ⁵had let the people go, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

7 ^hAnd the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he did for Israel. ⁻

8 And ⁱJoshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred

10 And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers.

1 That is, into the mountainous parts, which were the smallest portion of their lot. From this whole chapter it appears that the Israelites were very inattentive both to their duty and to their interest. The same slothfulness, cowardice, and unbelief, which had kept their fathers forty years out of Canaan, now deprived them of its full possession.

2 Ephraim's portion lying close to Dan, the Ephraimites aided the Danites.

3 Ver. 36 intimates that these Amorites had been numerous and powerful, possessing the territory extending from the southern limits of Canaan (Akrabbim, Josh. xv. 3), and even from beyond the city of the rock (Petra), north-westward as far as to Mount Heres.

4 As this Divine messenger is said to have come from Gilgal, some suppose him to have been a prophet living there, and called by this name, as Haggai (Hag. i. 13) and the priest are (Mal. ii. 7). Others, however, consider the phrase as referring to the 'Angel-Jehovah,' the angel of the covenant (Mal. iii. 1), who, having conducted the people through their journey to Gilgal, was regarded as dwelling there, during the conquest of the land, to protect the great central camp ; and who now, therefore, manifests himself as coming up thence to the place which by anticipation (see ver. 5) is here called Bochim.

5 This passage, to ch. iii. 4 (which is partly repeated from Josh. xxiv. 28—31), is a succinct introduction to the rest of the book, containing the explanation of God's dealings with the Israelites as related in the following narratives.

6 The word 'Baalim' (lords), being plural, intimates that the Israelites worshipped no one false god in particular, but the idols of the several tribes of Canaanites among them, who were regarded by their worshippers as tutelary deities of particular districts, from which, or from some other peculiarities, they derived their varied names—as Baal-zephon, Baal-peor, Baal-zabub, etc.

7 'Ashtaroth,' like 'Baalim,' is plural, and is used as a general name for the female deities of these nations. The word in the singular, 'Ashtareth' (Astarte), is the name of the notorious Syrian goddess, representing probably the moon and the productive powers of nature, who was worshipped with the most abominable rites.

8 Alluding to the predatory inroads of the Midianites and others, like those of the Bedouin at the present day.

9 God's protection being withheld from them, their enemies prevailed against them.

15 enemies. Whithersoever they went out, ^z the hand of the LORD was against them for evil, as the LORD had said, and ^a as the LORD had sworn unto them: and they were ^b greatly distressed.

16 Nevertheless ^c the LORD raised up judges,¹ which delivered them out of the 17 hand of those that spoiled them. And yet they would not hearken unto their judges, but they ^d went a whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: ^e they turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in,
18 obeying the commandments of the LORD; but they did not so. And when the LORD raised them up judges, then ^f the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: ^g for it repented the LORD² because of ^h their groanings by reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them.

19 And it came to pass, ⁱ when the judge was dead, that they returned, and corrupted themselves more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; they ceased not from their own doings, nor from their ^k stubborn way.

20 ^l And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and he said, Because that this people hath ^m transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers,
21 and have not hearkened unto my voice; ⁿ I also will not henceforth drive out
22 any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died: ^o that through them I may ^p prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the LORD
23 to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not. Therefore the LORD left those nations, without driving them out hastily; neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

3 Now these are ^q the nations which the LORD left, to prove Israel by them, even
2 as many of Israel as had not known all the wars of Canaan; only that the generations of the children of Israel might know, to teach them war, at the least
3 such as before knew nothing thereof; namely, ^r five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Sidonians,³ and the Hivites that dwelt ^s in mount
4 Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath. ^t And they were to prove Israel by them, to know⁴ whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

The Israelites are oppressed by the king of Mesopotamia, and delivered by Othniel.

5 "AND the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and 6 Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites: and ^v they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served
7 their gods. ^x And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and 8 forgot the LORD their God, ^y and served Baalim and ^z the groves.⁵ Therefore the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he ^a sold them into the hand of ^b Chushan-rishathaim king of ^c Mesopotamia [or, Aram-naharaim]: and the children of Israel served Chushan-rishathaim eight years.

9 And when the children of Israel ^d cried unto the LORD,⁶ the LORD ^e raised up a deliverer to the children of Israel, who delivered them, even ^f Othniel the son of 10 Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother. And ^g the Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war: and the LORD delivered Chushan-rishathaim king of ^h Mesopotamia into his hand; and his hand prevailed against 11 Chushan-rishathaim. And the land had rest forty years. And Othniel the son of Kenaz died.⁷

The king of Moab oppresses the Israelites; they are delivered by Ehud, and by Shamgar.

13 done evil in the sight of the LORD. And he gathered unto him the children of

1 These were extraordinary officers having temporary and sometimes only local authority, prompted by God, and often expressly called by him through some outward designation to their office and work. In ordinary circumstances, the patriarchal rule of the chiefs of the tribes under the administration of the high priest, the chief minister of the King of Israel, was sufficient for the order and prosperity of the people.

2 He altered the course of his Providence, acting as though he repented. See note on Gen. vi. 6.

3 Rather, 'all the Canaanites, even the Sidonians (or Phœnicians), and the Hivites.'

4 That is, to make known; to give proof.

5 The Hebrew word translated 'groves' probably means, here and elsewhere, statues of Ashtaré, which were worshipped in groves. See note on ch. ii. 13.

6 Those who in the day of their mirth had cried to Baalim and Ashtaroth, now they are in trouble cry to the Lord; their consciences telling them that their idols could not help them, and their troubles causing conscience to be heard. But though they were driven to God by distress, he did not reject their prayers.

7 It was probably somewhere about this period that the idolatry of the Danites occurred, as well as the war with the Benjamites, related in ch. xvii.—xxi., and the events recorded in the book of Ruth.

Ammon and ^m Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed ⁿ the city of 14 palm trees.¹ So the children of Israel ^o served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel ^p cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, a Benjamite, a man left-handed: and by 16 him the children of Israel ^q sent a present² unto Eglon the king of Moab. But Ehud made him a dagger which had two edges, of a cubit length; and he did 17 gird it under his raiment upon his right thigh. And he brought the present unto 18 Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon was a very fat man. And when he had made 19 an end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present. But he himself turned again ^r from the quarries³ [or, graven images] that were by Gilgal, and said, I have a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence.⁴ 20 And all that stood by him went out from him. And Ehud came unto him; and he was sitting in a summer parlour⁵ [or, a parlour of cooling⁶], which he had for himself alone. And Ehud said, I have a message from God unto thee. And he 21 arose out of his seat. And Ehud put forth his left hand,⁶ and took the dagger 22 from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly: and the haft also went in after the blade; and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger 23 out of his belly; and the dirt came out.⁷ Then Ehud went forth through the 24 porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him, and locked them. When he was gone out, his servants came; and when they saw that, behold, the doors of the parlour were locked, they said, Surely he ^t covereth his feet⁸ in his summer 25 chamber. And they tarried till they were ashamed: and, behold, he opened not the doors of the parlour; therefore they took a key, and opened them: and, 26 behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth. And Ehud escaped while 27 they tarried, and passed beyond the quarries, and escaped unto Seirath. And it came to pass, when he was come, that ^u he blew a trumpet in the ^x mountain of Ephraim, and the children of Israel went down with him from the mount, and he 28 before them. And he said unto them, Follow after me; for ^y the LORD hath delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And they went down after him, and took ^z the fords of Jordan toward Moab, and suffered not a man to pass 29 over. And they slew of Moab at that time about ten thousand men, all lusty, 30 and all men of valour; and there escaped not a man. So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. And ^a the land had rest fourscore years.⁹ 31 And after him was ^b Shamgar the son of Anath, which slew of the Philistines six hundred men ^c with an ox goad:¹⁰ ^d and he also delivered ^e Israel.

The Israelites are oppressed by Jabin king of Canaan, and delivered by Deborah and Barak.

4 AND ^f the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the LORD, when Ehud 2 was dead. ¹ This was probably the territory where the city of Jericho had formerly stood, and the adjacent villages.

² Probably the tribute which Eglon had imposed.

³ In every other place in the Bible the Hebrew word here used means 'graven images;' and it is supposed by many to refer to some idols set up by the Moabites.

⁴ This was addressed either to the servants, commanding them to withdraw, or to Ehud, requiring him not to deliver his message till the servants were gone.

⁵ A cool, shaded apartment, now called a kiosk; probably separate from the rest of the house.

⁶ From this whole narrative, especially ver. 15, it may be inferred that Ehud, in performing this deed, was acting under a special commission from God, who saw fit thus to punish the oppressor of his people, after having first made use of him for their correction.

⁷ Or, 'and it (the blade) went out behind.'

⁸ This appears to be an idiom for lying down to sleep.

⁹ Some suppose that this applies chiefly to the land

east of Jordan, which had been oppressed by the Moabites. It seems, from ver. 31, that the south-western part of Canaan was at that time much infested by the Philistines. See ch. v. 6, 7.

¹⁰ A weapon well suited for the purpose in the hands of a strong man; being eight feet long, six inches round at one end, and armed with a spike and a plate of iron.

¹¹ Jabin was a name common to the Canaanite kings of Hazor (Josh. xi. 1—10), which had been rebuilt, and had regained its former power.

¹² A longer period than either of the former oppressions had lasted—the repetition of the sin aggravating the offence and increasing the chastisement.

¹³ See note on Exod. xv. 20.

7 of the children of Naphtali and of the children of Zebulun?¹ And 'I will draw unto thee to the ^uriver Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his
8 chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine hand. And Barak said unto her, If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go
9 with me, then I will not go. And she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honour; for the 10 Lord shall ^xsell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh. And Barak called ^yZebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; and he went up with ten thousand men ^zat his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

11 Now Heber ^athe Kenite, which was of the children of ^bHobab the father-in-law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain² of Zaanaim, ^cwhich is by Kedesh.

12 And they showed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount 13 Tabor. And Sisera gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which the LORD hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: ^dis not the LORD gone out before thee? So 15 Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him. And ^ethe LORD discomfited Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled 16 away on his feet.³ But Barak pursued after the chariots, and after the host, unto Harosheth of the Gentiles: and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword; and there was not a man left.

17 Howbeit Sisera fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of 18 Heber the Kenite. And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into 19 the tent, she covered him with a mantle. And he said unto her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink; for I am thirsty. And she opened ^fa bottle of 20 milk, and gave him drink, and covered him. Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent, and it shall be, when any man doth come and inquire of 21 thee, and say, Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No.⁴ Then Jael Heber's wife ^gtook a nail⁵ of the tent, and took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground:
22 for he was fast asleep and weary. So he died. And, behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, and I will show thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 So ^hGod subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of 24 Israel. And the hand of the children of Israel prospered, and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

Deborah's song of praise.

5 THEN ⁱsang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying,⁶

2 Praise ye the LORD for the ^kavenging of Israel,⁷

'When the people willingly offered themselves.

3 ^mHear, O ye kings;—give ear, O ye princes;

I, even I, will sing unto the LORD;—I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

² Or oak, or terebinth. See Gen. xii. 6.

³ A more secret, and, in a hilly country, a more speedy way of flight.

⁴ It is likely that Jael had brought Sisera into the inner part of the tent (into which no one would think of intruding, as it was appropriated to the women), with the intention of sheltering him.

⁵ One of the long sharp pins, or spikes, used to fasten the tent-cords to the ground. Nothing can account for an action so entirely opposed to all Eastern feelings and rules of hospitality, but the supposition that Jael acted under a special Divine impulse.

⁶ The impassioned energy, bold imagery, and rapid transitions of this beautiful triumphal ode occasion some obscurity, which appears the greater if we do not remember that it was probably designed to be responsive: but the general course of thought is as follows: After thanksgivings for God's former and recent deliverances (vers. 1—5), it sketches the late oppressed state and the present happy security of Israel (6—11), commends the patriotic response of some tribes to the call of God, rebukes the negligent, and curses the traitorous (12—18), and vividly describes the battle, and the hostile leader's flight and death, in contrast with his mother's confident expectations of his triumphant return (19—31).

⁷ This may possibly mean, 'for the complete emancipation of Israel;' but more probably, 'for the enterprise of the leaders in Israel, for the willingness of the people.'

1 Perhaps, 'were shaken : ' and so in Isa. lxiv. 1, 3. Vers. 4 and 5, which greatly resemble those referred to in the margin, pourtray in poetic imagery the general course of the Divine manifestations on behalf of Israel ; reminding us that every new display of God's mercy should awaken the remembrance of his past favours.

2 'As did Sinai itself (that well-known vast mountain) from before the Lord,' etc.

3 Some suppose 'Jael' to be the name of a judge not mentioned elsewhere ; but it is better to regard the text as a poetical phrase, meaning, 'between the days of Shamgar and those of Jael.'

4 Rather, 'chiefs,' or 'judges ; ' and so in ver. 11.

5 The ass has always been much used in Palestine and Egypt for riding about the towns ; and whitish animals are commonly preferred, on account of their rarity, by persons of distinction.

6 Or, 'that sit on carpets.'

7 Robbers frequently lurk about watering-places in the East, that they may fall upon travellers and others who resort thither. But, according to the Hebrew, vers. 10 and 11 should be joined thus : 'Ye that ride on white asses, that sit on carpets, and that walk on the way, sing praises at the voice of those who divide the spoil at the watering-places.' All classes of the population—the wealthy who ride, or who rest at home, and the common people who walk—are called upon to give thanks for the security obtained by this victory.

8 That is, 'lead those captive who before held thee in captivity.'

9 Rather, 'Then come down, O residue of the nobles ; O people of Jehovah, come down to me with the mighty.'

10 Here begins the enumeration of the tribes who had fought under Barak. This clause is elliptical, and may be read thus : 'Out of Ephraim [came] the root of them [who fought] against Amalek ; ' i. e. Deborah, who belonged to the tribe of Ephraim (ch. iv. 5). The Amalekites perhaps had joined Sisera. Or it may be rendered, 'From Ephraim they whose root [i. e. dwelling] is in Amalek.' Comp. ch. xii. 15.

11 Rather, 'After thee, [O Ephraim, came] Benjamin among thy people,' i. e. thy forces : Benjamin, whose quota of men was probably small, being incorporated with Ephraim.

12 Machir was the son of Manasseh, and the father of Gilead. The meaning is, Out of Manasseh came military leaders.

13 Rather, 'the rod of the numberer,' referring to the enlisting of troops under Barak.

14 This refers to ch. iv. 14. As they had to encounter Sisera's chariots, this showed great faith and courage.

15 This may mean, that through the fickleness and divisions of Reuben their fellow-countrymen were discouraged : but, more probably, the passage should be rendered, 'among the streams of Reuben ; ' intimating that the Reubenites remained at home amidst their possessions and comforts, and had many deliberations, but without any practically useful result.

16 That is, the Gadites, who possessed part of Gilead (see Josh. xiii. 24, 25), and perhaps also part of the half tribe of Manasseh. Or this may be put as an interrogation, 'Did Gilead remain beyond Jordan ? ' in contrast with the Reubenites.

17 That is, 'Why was Dan so intent upon his ships and merchandise ? ' The port of Joppa belonged to Dan.

18 Or, 'creeks,' or 'havens.'

- 19 ^rThe kings¹ came and fought,—then fought the kings of Canaan

1 Either kings who were confederate with Jabin, or the chief officers of Sisera’s army.

2 This may mean either that they obtained no spoil or booty, or that they resolved not to take any ransom for the Israelites, for either life or liberty; like the Medes referred to in Isa. xiii. 17.

3 Or, ‘the heavens.’ It has been supposed that God sent a tempest, which very greatly swelled the river.

4 That is, ‘thou hast vanquished the mighty.’

5 Rather, ‘Then the horse-hoofs broke’ either the ground, or themselves: horses not being shod in the East.

6 Or, ‘galloppings,’ referring to their hasty flight.

7 Or, ‘with the mighty.’ When God requires our services against his foes, it is at our peril to be neutral.

8 Rather, ‘curdled milk.’

9 Rather, ‘She violently smote his head, and she pierced and struck through his temples,’ i. e. with the tent-pin. See ch. iv. 21.

10 These Midianites were principally wandering herdsmen of the Eastern deserts, like the Bedouin Arabs of the present day.

11 Their ravages extended across the whole breadth of the land.

12 They did not make a hasty inroad and retire, but came up every year; remaining as long as there was any produce to be seized, or any pasture for their flocks.

11 And there came f an angel of the LORD, and sat under an oak which was in Ophrah,¹ that pertained unto Joash ^g the Abi-ezrite: and his son ^h Gideon threshed wheat² by the winepress, to hide it from the Midianites. And the ⁱ angel of the LORD appeared unto him, and said unto him, The LORD is ^k with thee, thou mighty man of valour. And Gideon said unto him, Oh my Lord, if the LORD be with us, why then is all this befallen us? and ^l where be all his miracles ^m which our fathers told us of, saying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath ⁿ forsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites. And the LORD looked upon him, and said, ^o Go in this thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: ^p have not I sent thee? And he said unto him, Oh my Lord, ^q wherewith shall I save Israel? behold, ^r my family is poor³ ^s in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house. And the LORD said unto him, ^t Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man. And he said unto him, ^u If now I have found grace in thy sight, then ^x show me a sign that thou talkest with me. ^y Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and bring forth my present [or, meat-offering], and set it before thee. And he said, I will tarry until thou come again.

19 ^z And Gideon went in, and made ready a kid, and unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour: the flesh he put in a basket,⁴ and he put the broth in a pot, and brought it out unto him under the oak, and presented it. And the angel of God said unto him, Take the flesh and the unleavened cakes, ^a and lay them upon this rock, and ^b pour out the broth. And he did so. Then the angel of the LORD put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes; and ^c there rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes. Then the angel of the LORD departed out of his sight.

22 And when Gideon ^d perceived that he was an angel of the LORD, Gideon said, Alas, O Lord God! ^e for because I have seen an angel of the LORD face to face. And the LORD said unto him, ^f Peace be unto thee; fear not: thou shalt not die.

24 Then Gideon built an altar there unto the LORD, and called it Jehovah-shalom [i. e. The LORD send peace^g]. (Unto this day it is yet ^h in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.) And it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, Take thy father's young bullock, even [or, and] the second bullock of seven years old,⁵ and throw down the altar of Baal that thy father hath, and ⁱ cut down the grove⁶ that is by it: and build an altar unto the LORD thy God upon the top of this rock, in the ordered place [or, in an orderly manner^k], and take the second bullock, and offer a burnt sacrifice⁷ with the wood of the grove which thou shalt cut down. Then Gideon took ten men of his servants, and did as the LORD had said unto him: and so it was, because he feared his father's household, and the men of the city, that he could not do it by day, that he did it by night.

28 And when the men of the city arose early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was cast down, and the grove was cut down that was by it, and the second bullock was offered upon the altar that was built. And they said one to another, Who hath done this thing? And when they inquired and asked, they said, Gideon the son of Joash hath done this thing. Then the men of the city said unto Joash, Bring out thy son, that he may die:⁸ because he hath cast down the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the grove that was by it. And Joash said unto all that stood against him, Will ye plead for Baal? will ye save him? he that will plead for him, let him be put to death whilst it is yet morning:⁹ ^l if he be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar.

32 Therefore on that day he called him¹⁰ ^m Jerubbaal [i. e. Let Baal plead], saying, Let Baal plead against him, because he hath thrown down his altar.¹¹

² The Hebrew denotes 'threshed wheat with a flail.' Gideon changed not only the place, but the mode of threshing, as the oxen would require more room, and make more noise than the flail upon the earthen floor.

³ Literally, 'my thousand is the meanest,' or poorest.

⁴ Probably, according to a common Oriental custom, he stewed one part of the kid, and roasted or broiled the other, which might either be used immediately or be preserved for a future meal. Gideon seems to have designed this as a mark of careful hospitality and attention.

⁵ Perhaps this was the youngest above the age of three years (the proper age for sacrifice) left by the invaders.

⁶ See note on ch. iii. 7.

⁷ In this, as in other cases, God was pleased for a special purpose to dispense with his own institution (Deut. xii. 13, 14). Of course this could only be done by a particular Divine commission.

⁸ Treating as a capital offence an effort to suppress practices which their own Divine law had made punishable with death.

⁹ A slight change in the text gives a more probable rendering: '[If he be a god], whoever contends with him will be put to death (i. e. by Baal) before morning: if he be a god, he will himself plead with him [Gideon], because he hath cast down his altar.'

¹⁰ Rather, 'he was called.'

¹¹ Defying Baal to do his worst upon Gideon.

33 Then all ⁿ the Midianites and the Amalekites and the children of the east were 34 gathered together, and went over, and pitched in ^o the valley of Jezreel. But ^p the Spirit of the LORD came upon Gideon, and he ^q blew a trumpet; and Abi-ezer 35 was gathered after him. And he sent messengers throughout all Manasseh; who also was gathered after him: and he sent messengers unto Asher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali; and they came up to meet them.
 36 And Gideon said unto God, ^r If thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou 37 hast said, ^s behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor; and if the dew be on the fleece only, and it be dry upon all the earth beside, then shall I know that 38 thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said. And it was so: for he rose up early on the morrow, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew 39 out of the fleece, a bowl full¹ of water. And Gideon said unto God, ^t Let not thine anger be hot against me, and I will speak but this once: let me prove, I pray thee, but this once with the fleece; let it now be dry only upon the fleece, and 40 upon all the ground let there be dew. And God did so that night: for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

Gideon's victory over the Midianites; his subsequent history.

7 THEN ^u Jerubbaal, who is Gideon, and all the people that were with him, rose up early, and pitched beside the well of Harod: so that the host of the Midianites 2 were on the north side of them, by the hill of Moreh, in the valley. And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people that are with thee are ^x too many² for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel ^y vaunt themselves against me, 3 saying, Mine own hand hath saved me. Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, ^z Whosoever is fearful and afraid,³ let him return and depart early from mount Gilead.⁴ And there returned of the people twenty and two thousand; and there remained ten thousand.
 4 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down unto the water, and I ^a will try them for thee there: and it shall be, that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall 5 not go. So he brought down the people unto the water: and the LORD said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth,⁵ him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his 6 knees to drink. And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the rest of the people bowed down 7 upon their knees to drink water. And the LORD said unto Gideon, ^b By the three hundred men that lappeth will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine 8 hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place. So the people took victuals in their hand, and their trumpets: and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men. And the host of Midian was beneath him in the valley.
 9 And it came to pass the same ^c night, that the LORD said unto him, Arise, get 10 thee down unto the host; ^d for I have delivered it into thine hand. But if thou 11 fear to go down, go thou with Phurah thy servant down to the host: and thou shalt ^e hear what they say; and afterward shall thine hands ^f be strengthened to go down unto the host. Then went he down with Phurah his servant unto the 12 outside of the armed men that were in the host. And the Midianites and the Amalekites and ^g all the children of the east lay along in the valley like grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by 13 the sea side for multitude. And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and said, Behold I dreamed a dream, and, lo, a cake of barley bread tumbled into the host of Midian, and came unto a tent, 14 and smote it that it fell, and overturned it, that the tent lay along. And his fellow answered and said, This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon the son

1 The sign was not in the quantity of dew, which was not extraordinary, but in its partial distribution. This was the more remarkable in the second case, as the fleece would, in the ordinary course of things, have retained the dew more than the ground.

2 Man is so prone to self-sufficiency as often to make it necessary that God should teach him his dependence upon Divine power.

3 According to the law in Deut. xx. 8, which is mentioned in 1 Maccab. iii. 56 as being strictly observed by Judas Maccabeus.

4 As Gideon's army was on the west of Jordan, some have supposed this to be a different place from that usually so called in Scripture: others change the word to 'Gilboa.' Some, from the Chaldee, render the clause, 'Let a selection be made from [the men of] Mount Gilead:' but it may be rendered, 'Let him return, and let him fly round from Mount Gilead.' Only the courageous could be expected to venture on the first perilous attack: but the rest might be ready to harass the discomfited Midianites, as they fled eastwards to their own country. See vers. 23—25.

5 Not kneeling down to drink, but raising the water to the mouth in the hollow of the hand, as a dog does with his tongue. This showed a practised promptitude and readiness for action which peculiarly fitted them for this enterprise.

of Joash, a man of Israel: for ^h into his hand hath God delivered Midian, and all 15 the host. And it was so, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and the interpretation thereof, that he worshipped, and returned into the host of Israel, and 16 said, 'Arise; for the LORD hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian. And he divided the three hundred men into three companies,¹ and he put a trumpet in every man's hand, with empty pitchers, and lamps [or, firebrands, or, torches], 17 within the pitchers. And he said unto them, Look on me, and do likewise: and, behold, when I come to the outside of the camp, it shall be that, as I do, so shall 18 ye do. When I blow with a trumpet, I and all that are with me, then blow ye the trumpets also on every side of all the camp, and say, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

19 So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp in the beginning of the middle watch: (and they had but newly set the watch :) and they blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers that were in their 20 hands. And the three companies blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow 21 withal: and they cried, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon: and they ^h stood every man in his place round about the camp. ⁱ And all the host ran, and cried, 22 and fled. And the three hundred ^m blew the trumpets; and ⁿ the LORD set ^o every man's sword against his fellow, even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah in Zererath, and to the border of Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.

23 And the men of Israel gathered themselves together out of Naphtali, and out of 24 Asher, and out of all Manasseh, and pursued after the Midianites. And Gideon sent messengers throughout all ^p mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and take before them the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together, and ^q took the waters unto 25 ^r Beth-barah and Jordan. And they took ^s two princes of the Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb; and they slew Oreb upon ^t the rock Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the winepress of Zeeb, and pursued Midian, and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the ^u other side Jordan.²

8 And ^x the men of Ephraim said unto him, Why hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not, when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? And they 2 did chide with him sharply.³ And he said unto them, What have I done now in comparison of you? Is not the gleanings of the grapes of Ephraim better than the 3 vintage of ^y Abi-ezer?⁴ ^z God hath delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was I able to do in comparison of you? Then their ^a anger was abated toward him, when he had said that.

4 And Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over, he, and the three hundred men
 5 that were with him, ^b faint, yet pursuing them. And he said unto the men of ^c Succoth, Give, I pray you, loaves of bread unto the people that follow me; for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.
 6 And the princes of Succoth said, ^d Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in 7 thine hand, that ^e we should give bread unto thine army? And Gideon said, Therefore when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, ^f then I will tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers.
 8 And he went up thence ^g to Penuel, and spake unto them likewise: and the men
 9 of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him. And he spake also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When I ^h come again in peace, ⁱ I will break down this tower.

10 Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all that were left of ^k all the hosts of the children of the east: for there fell an hundred and twenty thousand men ^l that drew sword.
 11 And Gideon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents⁵ on the east of ^m Nobah 12 and Jogbehah, and smote the host: for the host was ⁿ secure. And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and ^o took the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and discomfited all the host.

³ The conduct of the Ephraimites, on this and on other occasions (see ch. xii. 1—7), seems to show that they claimed the leadership of the tribes. Hence their rivalry with Judah, so conspicuous in later times, referred to in Isa. vii. 5, 6; ix. 21; xi. 13.

⁴ A proverbial mode of commending the smallest action (the gleanings) of one, as superior to the greatest (the vintage) of another. This mild and courteous answer displays admirable temper and discretion.

⁵ Gideon appears to have gone round to the eastern desert, and to have come upon the Midianites from an unexpected quarter. The inhabitants of this district have commonly dwelt in tents.

² Their insulting refusal of supplies to the little band who were acting under the direction of Heaven was treason against their country and their Divine King.

³ They had probably been barbarously massacred during the oppressions related in ch. vi. 2. It seems that Gideon would have spared these chiefs, had he not felt himself bound to avenge his brothers' death.

⁴ This is an Oriental expression, still in use, intended to denote extraordinary comeliness of person.

⁵ This appears to have been an imitation of the rich garment of the high priest; and to have been connected with a sacerdotal establishment. Though intended by Gideon for the service of Jehovah, it was unauthorized and improper, and opened the way to superstition.

But the olive tree said unto them, Should I leave my fatness, ^g wherewith by me they honour God and man,⁴ and go to be 10 promoted over the trees [or, go up and down for other trees]? And the trees said 11 to the fig tree, Come thou, and reign over us. But the fig tree said unto them, Should I forsake my sweetness, and my good fruit, and go to be promoted over 12 the trees? Then said the trees unto the vine, Come thou, and reign over us. 13 And the vine said unto them, Should I leave my wine, ^h which cheereth⁵ God and 14 man, and go to be promoted over the trees? Then said all the trees unto the 15 bramble⁶ [or, thistle], Come thou, and reign over us. And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth⁷ ye anoint me king over you, then come and put your trust in my ⁱ shadow: and if not, ^k let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the 16 ^l cedars of Lebanon. Now therefore, if ye have done truly and sincerely, in that ye have made Abimelech king, and if ye have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his 17 house, and have done unto him ^m according to the deserving of his hands; (for my father ⁿ fought for you, and adventured his life far, and delivered you out of the 18 hand of Midian: ^o and ye are risen up against my father's house this day, and have slain his sons, threescore and ten persons, upon one stone, and have made Abimelech, the son of his maidservant, king over the men of Shechem, because 19 he is your brother;) if ye then have dealt truly and sincerely with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then ^p rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him also 20 rejoice in you: but if not, ^q let fire come out from Abimelech, and devour the men of Shechem, and the house of Millo; and let fire come out from the men of Shechem, and from the house of Millo, and devour Abimelech. 21 And Jotham ran away, and fled, and went to ^r Beer, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

22 When Abimelech had reigned three years over Israel,⁸ then ^s God sent an evil 23 spirit between Abimelech and the men of Shechem; and the men of Shechem 24 ^t dealt treacherously with Abimelech: ^u that the cruelty done to the threescore and ten sons of Jerubbaal might come, and their blood be laid upon Abimelech their brother, which slew them; and upon the men of Shechem, which aided him 25 in the killing of his brethren. And the men of Shechem set liers in wait for him in the top of the mountains, and they robbed all that came along that way by 26 them: and it was told Abimelech. And Gaal the son of Ebed came with his brethren, and went over to Shechem: and the men of Shechem put their confidence 27 in him. And they went out into the fields, and gathered their vineyards, and trode the grapes, and made ^x merry, and went into ^y the house of their god, and 28 did eat and drink, and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the son of Ebed said, ^z Who is Abimelech? and who is Shechem,⁹ that we should serve him? is not he the son of Jerubbaal? and Zebul his officer? serve the men of ^a Hamor the father of 29 Shechem: for why should we serve him? And ^b would to God this people were under my hand! then would I remove Abimelech. And he said to Abimelech, Increase thine army, and come out.

1 Probably the keep or citadel, mentioned in ver. 46. The citadel of Zion is so called in 2 Sam. v. 9.

2 The precipices of Mount Gerizim seem, in some parts, almost to overhang the town of Shechem. That Jotham could easily be heard appears from Deut. xxvii. 12, 13; and Josh. viii. 33.

3 Parables and fables have long been much used in the East, to convey instruction or reproof which could hardly be given so well in any other way. The general moral of Jotham's parable is, (1,) that weak and worthless men are forward to thrust themselves into power, while the more deserving are disposed to decline it; and (2) that those who unduly seek honour, and those who unwisely bestow it, will be sources of misery to each other.

4 Oil may be said to honour God when used in his worship; and to honour man when applied on festive occasions, or in consecration to offices of power and dignity.

5 God was pleased to accept it when employed in offerings and sacrifices. See Exod. xxix. 40.

6 Probably the buckthorn or rhamnus, which has very strong and sharp thorns, and is used for hedges.

7 That is, as explained in the next verse, 'truly and sincerely;' or, in justice and good faith towards your former ruler. By 'the cedars of Lebanon' are meant the most eminent persons of the land, particularly those of Shechem.

8 Abimelech's authority appears to have soon extended beyond the city of Shechem.

9 That is, the Shechemites. The meaning seems to be, 'If this base-born usurper be compared with us native Shechemites, what reason can be assigned for our subjection to him? you had better even take a heathen, one of the descendants of the old Canaanite lord of this city, for your king.' See refs.

30 And when Zebul the ruler of the city heard the words of Gaal the son of Ebed, 31 his anger was kindled. And he sent messengers unto Abimelech privily, saying,
Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed and his brethren be come to Shechem; and, behold, 32 they fortify the city against thee. Now therefore up by night, thou and the 33 people that is with thee, and lie in wait in the field: and it shall be, that in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, thou shalt rise early, and set upon the city:
and, behold, when he and the people that is with him come out against thee, then mayest thou do to them as thou shalt find occasion.

34 And Abimelech rose up, and all the people that were with him, by night, and 35 they laid wait against Shechem in four companies. And Gaal the son of Ebed went out, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and Abimelech rose 36 up, and the people that were with him, from lying in wait. And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, Behold, there come people down from the top of the mountains. And Zebul said unto him, Thou seest the shadow of the mountains 37 as if they were men. And Gaal spake again and said, See there come people down by the middle of the land,¹ and another company come along by the plain 38 of ^c Meonenim. Then said Zebul unto him, Where is now thy mouth, wherewith thou ^d saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him? is not this the people 39 that thou hast despised? go out, I pray now, and fight with them. And Gaal 40 went out before the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him, and he fled before him, and many were overthrown and wounded, 41 even unto the entering of the gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah: and Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, that they should not dwell in Shechem.

42 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people went out into the field;
43 and they told Abimelech. And he took the people,² and divided them into three companies, and laid wait in the field, and looked, and, behold, the people were 44 come forth out of the city; and he rose up against them and smote them. And Abimelech, and the company that was with him, rushed forward, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and the two other companies ran upon all the 45 people that were in the fields, and slew them. And Abimelech fought against the city all that day; and ^e he took the city, and slew the people that was therein, and ^f beat down the city, and ^g sowed it with salt.³

46 And when all the men of the tower of Shechem heard that, they entered into 47 an hold of the house ^h of the god Berith. And it was told Abimelech, that all 48 the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together. And Abimelech gat him up to mount ⁱ Zalmon, he and all the people that were with him; and Abimelech took an ax in his hand, and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, 49 What ye have seen me do, make haste, and do as I have done. And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech, and put them to the hold, and set the hold on fire upon them; so that all the men of the tower of Shechem died also, about a thousand men and women.

50 Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and encamped against Thebez, and took it.
51 But there was a strong tower within the city, and thither fled all the men and women, and all they of the city, and shut it to them, and gat them up to the top 52 of the tower. And Abimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it, and 53 went hard unto the door of the tower to burn it with fire. And a certain woman ^k cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's head, and all-to⁴ brake his skull.
54 Then ^l he called hastily unto the young man his armourbearer, and said unto him, Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him.⁵ And 55 his young man thrust him through, and he died. And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place.

56 ^m Thus God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, which he did unto his 57 father, in slaying his seventy brethren: and all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads: and upon them came ⁿ the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

The Philistines and the Ammonites oppress Israel; the Lord pities the people, upon their repentance.

6 AND ^s the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and ^t served Baalim, and Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and ^u the gods of ^x Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines, and forsook the LORD, and served not him. And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he ^y sold them into the hands of the Philistines, and 8 into the hands of the children of Ammon.² And that year³ they vexed and oppressed the children of Israel: eighteen years, all the children of Israel that were on the other side Jordan in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead. 9 Moreover the children of Ammon passed over Jordan to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim; so that Israel was sore ^z distressed. 10 ^a And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, saying, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim. 11 And the LORD said unto the children of Israel, ^b Did not I deliver you ^c from the Egyptians, and ^d from the Amorites, ^e from the children of Ammon, ^f and from the 12 Philistines? ^g The Zidonians⁴ also, ^h and the Amalekites, and the Maonites, ⁱ did oppress you; and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand. ^k Yet ye have forsaken me, and served other gods: wherefore I will deliver you no 14 more.⁵ Go and ^l cry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you 15 in the time of your tribulation. And the children of Israel said unto the LORD, We have sinned: ^m do thou unto us whatsoever seemeth good unto thee; deliver 16 us only, we pray thee, this day. ⁿ And they put away the strange gods [gods of strangers] from among them, and served the LORD: and ^o his soul was grieved for the misery of Israel. 17 Then the children of Ammon were gathered together, and encamped in Gilead. And the children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in 18 ^p Mizpeh. And the people and princes of Gilead said one to another, What man is he that will begin to fight against the children of Ammon? he shall ^q be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

Jephthah subdues the Ammonites; his vow, and subsequent history.

11 NOW ^r Jephthah the Gileadite was ^s a mighty man of valour, and he was the 2 son of an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah. And Gilead's wife bare him sons; and his wife's sons grew up, and they thrust out Jephthah, and said unto him, Thou shalt not inherit in our father's house; for thou art the son of a strange 3 woman. Then Jephthah fled from his brethren, and dwelt in the land of Tob: and there were gathered ^t vain men to Jephthah, and went out with him. 4 And it came to pass in process of time, that the children of Ammon made war⁶ 5 against Israel. And it was so, that when the children of Ammon made war against Israel, the elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthah out of the land of Tob: 6 and they said unto Jephthah, Come, and be our captain, that we may fight with 7 the children of Ammon. And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, "Did not ye hate me, and expel me out of my father's house? and why are ye come unto 8 me now when ye are in distress? ^x And the elders of Gilead said unto Jephthah, Therefore we ^y turn again to thee now, that thou mayest go with us, and fight against the children of Ammon, and be ^z our head over all the inhabitants of 9 Gilead. And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, If ye bring me home again to fight against the children of Ammon, and the LORD deliver them before me, 10 shall I be your head? whilst some commentators identify them with the Meunim mentioned in 2 Chron. xxvi. 7.

⁵ The Divine threatenings always imply a reserve of mercy for the truly penitent.

⁶ Rather, 'had made war,' at the period mentioned in ch. x. 17.

⁷ That is, all the words pertaining to the solemn compact which he had entered into with the elders.

- 12 And Jephthah sent messengers unto the king of the children of Ammon, saying, What hast thou to do with me, that thou art come against me to fight in my land?
- 13 And the king of the children of Ammon answered unto the messengers of Jephthah, 'Because Israel took away my land, when they came up out of Egypt, from Arnon even unto ^fJabbok, and unto Jordan: now therefore restore those lands again peaceably.
- 14 And Jephthah sent messengers ^gagain unto the king of the children of Ammon; and said unto him, Thus saith Jephthah, ^hIsrael took not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the children of Ammon: ⁱbut when Israel came up from Egypt, and ^kwalked through the wilderness unto the Red Sea, and ^lcame to Kadesh; then ^mIsrael sent messengers unto ⁿthe king of Edom, saying, Let me, I pray thee, pass through thy land: ^obut the king of Edom would not hearken thereto. And in like manner they sent unto the king of Moab: but he would not consent: and Israel ^pabode in Kadesh. Then they went along through the wilderness, and ^qcompassed the land of Edom, and the land of Moab, and ^rcame by the east side of the land of Moab, ^sand pitched on the other side of Arnon, but came not within the border of Moab: for Arnon was the border of Moab. And ^tIsrael sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, the king of Heshbon; and Israel said unto him, 'Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy land into my place. ^uBut Sihon trusted not Israel to pass through his coast: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and pitched in Jahaz, and fought against Israel. And the LORD God of Israel delivered Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they ^vsmote them: ^wso Israel possessed all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of that country. And they possessed ^xall the coast of the Amorites, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and from the wilderness even unto Jordan. So now the LORD God of Israel hath dispossessed the Amorites from before his people Israel, and shouldst thou possess it? Wilt not thou possess that which ^yChemosh thy god giveth thee? to possess? So whomsoever ^zthe LORD our God shall drive out from before us, them will we possess. And now art thou any thing better³ than ^aBalak the son of Zippor, king of Moab? did he ever strive against Israel, or did he ever fight against them, while Israel dwelt in ^bHeshbon and her towns, and in ^cAroer and her towns, and in all the cities that be along by the coasts of Arnon, three hundred years? why therefore did ye not recover them within that time? Wherefore I have not sinned against thee, but thou doest me wrong to war against me: the LORD ^dthe Judge ^ebe judge this day between the children of Israel and the children of Ammon.
- 28 Howbeit the king of the children of Ammon hearkened not unto the words of Jephthah which he sent him.
- 29 Then ^fthe Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah,⁴ and he passed over Gilead, and Manasseh, and passed over Mizpeh of Gilead, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he passed over unto the children of Ammon.
- 30 And Jephthah ^gvowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou shalt without fail deliver the children of Ammon into mine hands, then it shall be, that whatsoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, ^hshall surely be the LORD's, 'and [or, or] I will offer it up for a burnt offering.⁵
- 32 So Jephthah passed over unto the children of Ammon to fight against them; and the LORD ⁱdelivered them into his hands. And he smote them from Aroer, even till thou come to ^jMinnith, even twenty cities, and unto ^kthe plain of the vineyards, with a very great slaughter. Thus the children of Ammon were subdued before the children of Israel.

¹ To prove the futility of the enemy's claims, Jephthah recapitulates the leading circumstances of the conquest of this territory by Israel; showing that at that time it was not in the possession either of the Ammonites or of the Moabites, but of the Amorites.

² Arguing with these idolaters upon their own principles. Jehovah's supremacy is plainly implied in ver. 27.

³ That is, Hast thou any better title than Balak, the king of the Moabites, who never thought of disputing the right of Israel to what they took from the Amorites, though it had formerly been in the possession of Moab?

⁴ Endowing him in an extraordinary manner for the work to which he was called.

⁵ The interpretation of these words depends partly upon the meaning affixed to the Hebrew particle which is commonly translated and, but which may also signify or. Some, adopting the latter rendering, suppose Jephthah to have meant, that if, upon his return, he was met by a member of his family, that person should be devoted in a special way to the service of the Lord. Other expositors, retaining the rendering in our version, consider the meaning to be, 'I will present him (or her) a sacrifice, by such a kind of consecration to God in the case of human beings as corresponds to sacrifice in the offering of animals;' an express provision being found in the law for the redemption of persons dedicated to Jehovah (Lev. xxvii. 2, 4). A third class, in accordance with the ancient versions and commentators, maintain that Jephthah's vow bound him to immolate any human being who first met him upon his return:—an interpretation which is not inconsistent either with the general tenor of the language, or with the practices of the neighbourhood; which Jephthah, whose outlaw life had afforded few facilities for acquaintance with God's law, might be likely to imitate.

34 And Jephthah came to ^p Mizpeh unto his house, and, behold, ^q his daughter came out to meet him with timbrels and with dances: and she was his only 35 child; beside her he had neither son nor daughter. And it came to pass, when he saw her, that he ^r rent his clothes, and said, Alas, my daughter! thou hast brought me very low, and thou art one of them that trouble me: for I ^s have 36 opened my mouth unto the LORD, and ^t I cannot go back. And she said unto him, My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth unto the LORD, ^u do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth; forasmuch as ^x the LORD hath taken vengeance for thee of thine enemies, even of the children of

4 Then Jephthah gathered together all the men of Gilead, and fought with Ephraim: and the men of Gilead smote Ephraim, because they said, Ye Gileadites ^d are fugitives of Ephraim among the Ephraimites, and among the Manassites.⁶

1 This expression, as well as the concluding clause of ver. 39, is adduced by some as favouring the supposition that her father's vow was fulfilled by devoting her to a life of celibacy. There is, however, no evidence of the existence of such a practice amongst the Hebrews, or the nations with which they were connected.

2 Some commentators suppose that Jephthah, having at first contemplated a human sacrifice, afterwards became better acquainted with the law, and availed himself of the provision made in Lev. xxvii. 2—4, by paying the redemption price there prescribed; and that further to fulfil the spirit of his vow, by his daughter's civil excision from among the living, he devoted her to perpetual celibacy and seclusion. But if the requirements of his vow were already satisfied by the appointed ransom, he would probably have spared both her and himself such a needless and unjust infliction. Others adhere to the ancient opinion that she was actually immolated as a burnt-offering.

3 This is the rendering of the ancient versions; but, in the only other passage in which this form of the Hebrew word occurs, it means to celebrate (Judg. v. 11).

4 See note on ch. viii. 1.

5 That is, 'I risked my life in the enterprise:' see refs.

6 According to our translation, this appears to be an insulting intimation that the Gileadites were the refuse of the two tribes; but the words may be rendered, 'And the men of Gilead slew the Ephraimites; for they said, Ye are Ephraimites escaping. (Now the Gileadites were between Ephraim and Manasseh, and the Gileadites had taken the passages of the Jordan before the Ephraimites.) And it was so,' etc.

7 'Shibboleth' means stream; and the word was no doubt suggested by the place. In many languages and dialects the sound of sh is not found; and it is very difficult to those who have not been early accustomed to pronounce it. The use of sin, instead of shin, was evidently a well-known provincialism of the Ephraimites.

8 Some read 'forty, and two thousand,' i. e. 2040; which is more probable, considering Numb. xxvi. 37. See note, at the end of the Historical Books (p. 516), on the numbers occasionally mentioned in Scripture. By this severe chastisement the ambition of the Ephraimites was effectually checked for some ages.

2 And there was a certain man of ¹Zorah, of the family of the Danites, whose

6 Then the woman came and told her husband, saying, 'A man of God came unto me, and his ⁿcountenance was like the countenance of an angel of God, very terrible: but I ^xasked him not whence he was, neither told he me his name:
7 but he said unto me, Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; and now drink no wine nor strong drink, neither eat any unclean thing: for the child shall be a Nazarite to God from the womb to the day of his death.

8 Then Manoah intreated the LORD, and said, O my Lord, let the man of God which thou didst send come again unto us, and teach us what we shall do unto 9 the child that shall be born. And ^yGod hearkened to the voice of Manoah; and the angel of God came again unto the woman as she sat in the field: but Manoah

11 came unto me the other day. And Manoah arose, and went after his wife, and came to the man, and said unto him, Art thou the man that spakest unto the 13 how shall we do unto him [or, what shall he do]? And the angel of the LORD said unto Manoah, Of all that I said unto the woman let her beware. She may not eat of any thing that cometh of the vine, ^zneither let her drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing: all that I commanded her let her observe.

15 And Manoah said unto the angel of the LORD, I pray thee, ^alet us detain thee, until we shall have made ready a kid for thee. And the angel of the LORD said unto Manoah, Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy bread: and if thou wilt offer a burnt offering, thou must offer it unto the LORD. For Manoah knew not 17 that he was an angel of the LORD. And Manoah said unto the angel of the LORD, What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour?
18 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, ^bWhy askest thou thus after my name, seeing it is secret [or, wonderful^c]? So Manoah took a kid with a meat offering, ^dand offered it upon a rock unto the LORD: and the angel ^edid wonderfully; and 21 faces to the ground. But the angel of the LORD did no more appear to Manoah and to his wife.

22 ^εThen Manoah knew that he was an angel of the LORD. And Manoah said unto 23 his wife, ^hWe shall surely die, because we have seen God. But his wife said unto him, If the LORD were pleased to kill us, ⁱhe would not have received a burnt offering and a meat offering at our hands, neither ^kwould he have showed us all these things, nor would as at this time have told us such things as these.

³ This intimated that the oppression of Israel by the Philistines, which had commenced before the birth of this child, should be of long duration; for the deliverance was not to begin till he should grow up to years of maturity. The Philistines, though comparatively a small nation, were formidable on account of the progress which they had made in arts, commerce, and war. Their yoke was not fully shaken off till the time of David; and when the Hebrew kingdom was afterwards weakened by division, they again became dangerous enemies.

14 AND Samson went down ^q to Timnath, and ^r saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And he came up, and told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines: now therefore ^s get her for me to wife. Then his father and his mother said unto him, Is there never a woman among the daughters of ^t thy brethren, or among all my people, that thou goest to take a wife of the ^u uncircumcised Philistines? And Samson said unto his father, Get her for me; for she pleaseth me well. But his father and his mother knew not that it was ^x of the LORD, that he sought an occasion against the Philistines: ³ for at that time ^y the Philistines had dominion over Israel. Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother, to Timnath, and came to the vineyards of Timnath: and, behold, a young lion ⁴ roared against him. And ^z the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, ⁵ and ^a he rent him as he would have rent a kid, and he had nothing in his hand: but he told not his father or his mother what he had done. And he went down, and talked with the woman; and she pleased Samson well.

8 And after a time ⁶ he returned to take her, and he turned aside to see the carcase of the lion: and, behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcase of the lion. And he took thereof in his hands, and went on eating, and came to his father and mother, and he gave them, and they did eat: but he told not them that he had taken the honey out of the carcase of the lion.

10 So his father went down unto the woman: and Samson made there a feast; for so used the young men to do. And it came to pass, when they saw him, that they brought thirty companions ⁷ to be with him. And Samson said unto them, I will now ^b put forth a riddle ⁸ unto you: if ye can certainly declare it me ^c within the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty sheets ⁹ and thirty ^d change of garments: but if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets [or, shirts] and thirty change of garments. 2 Heb., 'Mahaneh-dan,' as in ch. xviii. 12. The places mentioned in Samson's history lay near together, and not far from the territory of the Philistines.

3 It pleased God to leave Samson to follow his own inclinations; intending, in His own infinite wisdom, to overrule his conduct for good to Israel. The special purpose of God in raising up Samson seems to have been to baffle the power of the whole Philistine nation by the prowess of a single individual; thereby literally fulfilling his promise, Deut. xxxii. 30. Samson was not, like most of the other judges, appointed to lead an army, but rather to be an army himself; and the entire opposition of the Philistines was concentrated against his person.

4 The Hebrew word does not mean a young whelp, but a young full-grown lion.

5 This expression is often employed to signify a supernatural influence, raising the bodily or mental powers to an extraordinary pitch of energy.

6 Among the Jews, ten or twelve months generally elapsed between betrothal and marriage. In this interval, a swarm of bees had established themselves in the carcase of the lion, which consisted only of the bones covered with the dried skin; the flesh and all the soft parts having been picked out by insects and ravenous birds, so as to leave the skeleton entire in a clean state.

7 These companions, although brought with the show of respect, according to the custom in those times (see Matt. ix. 15; John iii. 29), seem to have been designed to be spies upon Samson.

8 This is a favourite amusement in the East with persons of all ages and classes.

5 Thus the Philistines inflicted upon her the very doom, the threat of which had induced her to betray her husband's secret. See ch. xiv. 15, 20.

6 This shows strikingly the state of cowardice and degradation into which the Israelites had fallen.

7 This rendering is suggested by the Chaldee and Syriac, though the Hebrew word here used signifies everywhere else 'an ass.' The Latin Vulgate translates, 'an ass, the foal of asses.' The Septuagint regards the word as a verb, 'I have thoroughly destroyed them.'

8 That is, 'the lifting up of the jaw-bone;' or, perhaps, 'the hill of the jaw-bone.'

9 Rather, 'in Lehi.' See vers. 9, 14.

10 Or, 'the name thereof was called.' The meaning seems to be that in this place, called 'Lehi' from the circumstance just mentioned, God, at the prayer of Samson, opened a fountain, which was called 'the fountain of him that called upon God.'

11 Samson's administration is supposed, by those who adopt the shorter chronology, to have been limited to the south-west of Palestine, where the oppression of the Philistines was most severe.

And he brake the withs, as a thread of tow is broken when it toucheth the fire. So his strength was not known.
¹⁰ And Delilah said unto Samson, Behold, thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: now tell me, I pray thee, wherewith thou mightest be bound.² And he said unto her, ^gIf they bind me fast with new ropes that never were occupied [wherewith work hath not been done], then shall I be weak, and be as another
¹² man. Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him therewith, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And there were liers in wait abiding in the chamber. And he brake them from off his arms like a thread.
¹³ And Delilah said unto Samson, Hitherto thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: tell me wherewith thou mightest be bound. And he said unto her, If thou
¹⁴ weavest the seven³ locks of my head with the web.⁴ And she fastened it with the pin,⁵ and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awaked out of his sleep, and went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.
¹⁵ And she said unto him, ^hHow canst thou say, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? thou hast mocked me these three times, and hast not told me
¹⁶ wherein thy great strength lieth. And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death;
¹⁷ that he ⁱtold her all his heart, and said unto her, ^kThere hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me,⁶ and I shall become weak, and be like any other man.
¹⁸ And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying, Come up this once, for he hath showed me all his heart. Then the lords of the Philistines came up unto her, and brought ¹⁹ money in their hand. ^lAnd she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave off the seven locks of his head: and she ²⁰ began to afflict him, and his strength went from him. And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the Lord
²¹ ^mwas departed from him. But the Philistines took him, and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass;⁷ and he did grind⁸ in the prison house.

¹ Rather, 'And the liers in wait sat for her in [another, or inner] apartment.' As Samson was found not to be secured, they probably did not make their appearance; so that Samson remained ignorant of Delilah's treachery.

² These various attempts of the woman were no doubt made, not in immediate succession, but after intervals, as opportunities occurred.

³ As seven is frequently used as a perfect number, this may be equivalent to 'all my locks.'

⁴ Probably referring to a warp in a hand-loom, which Delilah, like other Oriental women, was in the habit of working.

⁵ She not only wove Samson's long hair in with the web, but fastened the web, with his hair thus woven in, with a strong pin or nail to the wall, or to the floor.

⁶ Not that his strength lay in his hair, but it was connected with his peculiar relation to God as a Nazarite (see ch. xiii. 7), the mark of which was the preservation of his hair unshaven. If he lost this badge of his consecration, he broke his vow, and became as a common man.

⁷ Or, 'copper;' the strongest they could obtain.

⁸ To Samson this would be the deepest but most appropriate degradation; for grinding was the work of women, and those the lowest slaves. See Exod. xi. 5.

22, 23 Howbeit ⁿ the hair of his head began to grow again after he was shaven. Then the lords of the Philistines gathered them together for to offer a great sacrifice unto ^o Dagon their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered 24 Samson our enemy into our hand. And when the people saw him, they ^p praised their god: for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and 25 the destroyer of our country, which slew many of us. And it came to pass, when their hearts were ^q merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison house; and he made them
 26 sport: and they set him between the pillars. And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the 27 house standeth, that I may lean upon them. Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there; and there were upon the 28 ^r roof about three thousand men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport. And Samson called upon the LORD, and said, O LORD God, ^s remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I
 29 may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, and on which it was borne up,¹ of the one with his right hand, and of the other with his left. And 30 Samson said, Let me die with the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein. ^t So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life.
 31 Then his brethren and all the house of his father came down, and took him, and brought him up, and ^u buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the burying-place of Manoah his father. And ^v he judged Israel twenty years.²

 4 therefore I will restore it unto thee. Yet he restored the money unto his mother; and his mother ^b took two hundred shekels of silver, and gave them to the founder, who made thereof a graven image and a molten image: and they were in the

1 Or, 'and he leaned himself upon them.' Large Eastern buildings commonly surround a quadrangle; on one side of which is the chief room open towards the inner area, having one or more pillars on the open side to support the roof, which is flat and solid, that it may serve for walking and for sleeping on. Samson, having probably been paraded in the area, within view of the assembled multitude, requested leave to rest himself against the pillars. By pulling down these, he destroyed the roof above; whilst the shock and strain, together with the weight of the crowd upon the roof, might easily bring down the rest of the edifice. This catastrophe was at once a most characteristic termination of Samson's career, and a signal vindication of the supremacy of the true God. See ver. 24. It is generally supposed that from the history of Samson were derived the stories of Hercules, and some other heroes of heathen mythology.

2 It appears that Samson, as had been foretold (ch. xiii. 5), only began to deliver Israel from the oppression of the Philistines; and that their power was still unbroken at the time of his death. In the first book of Samuel (ch. iv.) we find the Philistines again at war with the Israelites, and the distress of the latter extreme.

3 The events related in the remainder of this book occurred long before the time of Samson; probably soon after the time of Joshua. The narrative contained in ch. xvii., xviii. is obviously connected with the fact mentioned in ch. i. 34, showing how the unbelief and disobedience of the Israelites, in neglecting to exterminate the Canaanites, led to the introduction of idolatry. The sad history which follows, in ch. xix.—xxi., is expressly assigned to the days of Phinehas, the grandson of Aaron (see ch. xx. 28); and this occurrence is referred to, in Hos. x. 9, as having been the first open sin of the people after their settlement in Canaan.

4 Either pronouncing an imprecation upon the thief, or, rather, adjuring me to tell what I knew of the money. See Lev. v. 1, and note.

5 Micah and his mother may have intended to honour the true God; but their proceedings were contrary to his law, and exposed them to the punishment of death. They set up a small religious establishment, apparently designed to resemble that at Shiloh.

6 Rather, 'a house of God,' a sanctuary.

7 Teraphim were carved images, commonly made in a human form, and regarded as household deities: see refs.

8 This is, of course, to be understood not of the young man, who was a Levite, but of the city whence he came.

unto him, Whence comest thou? And he said unto him, I am a Levite of Beth-lehem-judah, and I go to sojourn where I may find a place. And Micah said unto him, Dwell with me, ⁱ and be unto me a ^h father and a priest, and I will give thee ten shekels of silver by the year, and a suit of apparel, and thy victuals.

11 So the Levite went in. And the Levite was content to dwell with the man; and 12 the young man was unto him as one of his sons. And Micah ^l consecrated the Levite; ¹ and the young man ^m became his priest, and was in the house of Micah. 13 Then said Micah, ⁿ Now know I that the LORD will do me good, seeing I have ^o a Levite to my priest.²

18 In ^p those days there was no king in Israel.

And in those days ^q the tribe of the Danites³ sought them an inheritance to dwell in; ^r for unto that day all their inheritance had not fallen unto them 2 among the tribes of Israel.⁴ And the children of Dan sent of their family five men from their coasts, men of valour, from ^s Zorah, and from Eshtaol, ^t to spy out the land, and to search it; and they said unto them, Go, search the land: who when they came to mount Ephraim, to the ^u house of Micah, they lodged there. 3 When they were by the house of Micah, they knew the voice of the young man the Levite: and they turned in thither, and said unto him, Who brought thee 4 hither? and what makest thou⁵ in this place? and what hast thou here? And he said unto them, Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath ^x hired me, and 5 I am his priest. And they said unto him, ^y Ask counsel, we pray thee, ^z of God, 6 that we may know whether our way which we go shall be prosperous. And the priest said unto them, ^a Go in peace: before the LORD is your way wherein ye go.

7 Then the five men departed, and came to ^b Laish, and saw the people that were therein, ^c how they dwelt careless, after the manner of the Zidonians, quiet and secure; and there was no magistrate in the land, that might put them to shame in any thing; and they were far from the Zidonians, and had no business with 8 any man.⁶ And they came unto their brethren to ^d Zorah and Eshtaol: and their 9 brethren said unto them, What say ye? And they said, ^e Arise, that we may go up against them: for we have seen the land, and, behold, it is very good: and 10 are ye ^f still? ^g be not slothful to go, and to enter to possess the land. When ye go, ye shall come unto a people ^h secure, and to a large land: for ⁱ God hath given it into your hands; ^h a place where there is no want of any thing that is in the earth.

11 And there went from thence of the family of the Danites, out of Zorah and out 12 of Eshtaol, six hundred men appointed with weapons of war. And they went up, and pitched in ^j Kirjath-jearim,⁷ in Judah: wherefore they called that place 13 ^m Mahaneh-dan unto this day: behold, it is behind Kirjath-jearim.⁸ And they 14 passed thence unto mount Ephraim, and came unto ⁿ the house of Micah. ^o Then answered the five men that went to spy out the country of Laish, and said unto their brethren, Do ye know that ^p there is in these houses an ephod, and teraphim, and a graven image, and a molten image? now therefore consider what ye have 15 to do. And they turned thitherward, and came to the house of the young man the 16 Levite, even unto the house of Micah, and saluted him. And the ^q six hundred men appointed with their weapons of war, which were of the children of Dan, stood by 17 the entering of the gate. And ^r the five men that went to spy out the land went up, and came in thither, and took ^s the graven image, and the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image: and the priest stood in the entering of the gate 18 with the six hundred men that were appointed with weapons of war. And these went into Micah's house, and fetched the carved image, the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image. Then said the priest unto them, What do ye? 19 And they said unto him, Hold thy peace, ^t lay thine hand upon thy mouth, and

² Micah's delusion was very gross; but how strikingly does it represent the false confidences of ungodly men in every age!

⁴ The inheritance of the Danites had been assigned to them; but up to this time they had not obtained possession of it, in consequence of their own disobedience and remissness. See Josh. xix. 40, 47.

⁵ Rather, 'What doest thou?'

⁶ Laish appears to have been one of the most inland settlements of the Zidonians, situated far from the coast, in the extreme north-east of Palestine, at the base of Mount Hermon. See note on Deut. iii. 8. Its inhabitants, possessing considerable agricultural wealth, were not much engaged in external commerce.

⁷ Not in the city itself, but in its immediate vicinity; as appears from the words that follow.

go with us, ^aand be to us a father and a priest: is it better for thee to be a priest unto the house of one man, or that thou be a priest unto a tribe and a family in Israel? And the priest's heart was glad, and he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the graven image, and went in the midst of the people. So they turned and departed, and put the little ones and the cattle and the carriage before them.

And when they were a good way from the house of Micah, the men that were in the houses near to Micah's house were gathered together, and overtook the children of Dan. And they cried unto the children of Dan. And they turned their faces, and said unto Micah, What aileth thee, that thou comest with such a company? And he said, Ye have taken away my gods which I made, and the priest, and ye are gone away: and what have I more? and what is this that ye say unto me, What aileth thee? And the children of Dan said unto him, Let not thy voice be heard among us, lest angry fellows run upon thee, and thou lose thy life, with the lives of thy household. And the children of Dan went their way: and when Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned and went back unto his house.

And they took the things which Micah had made, and the priest which he had, and ^xcame unto Laish, unto a people that were at quiet and secure: ^yand they smote them with the edge of the sword, and ^zburnt the city with fire. And there was no deliverer, because it was ^afar from Zidon, and they had no business with any man; and it was in the valley that lieth ^bby Beth-rehob.

And they built a city, and dwelt therein. And ^cthey called the name of the city ^dDan,¹ after the name of Dan their father, who was born unto Israel: howbeit the name of the city was Laish at the first. And the children of Dan set up the graven image: and Jonathan, the son of Gershom, the son of Manasseh,² he and his sons were priests to the tribe of Dan ^euntil the day of the captivity of the land.³ And they set them up Micah's graven image, which he made, ^fall the time that the house of God was in Shiloh.

The wickedness of the men of Gibeah. The Benjamites, supporting them, are attacked by the other tribes, and nearly exterminated.

AND it came to pass⁴ in those days, ^gwhen there was no king in Israel, that there was a certain Levite sojourning on the side of mount Ephraim, who took to him a concubine⁵ out of ^hBeth-lehem-judah. And his concubine played the whore⁶ against him, and went away from him unto her father's house to Beth-lehem-judah, and was there four whole months.

And her husband arose, and went after her, to speak friendly unto her, and to bring her again, having his servant with him, and a couple of asses: and she brought him into her father's house: and when the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced to meet him. And his father-in-law, the damsel's father, retained him; and he abode with him three days: so they did eat and drink, and lodged there. And it came to pass on the fourth day, when they arose early in the morning, that he rose up to depart: and the damsel's father said unto his son-in-law, ⁱComfort thine heart with a morsel of bread, and afterward go your way.

And they sat down, and did eat and drink both of them together: for the damsel's father had said unto the man, Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all night, and let thine heart be merry. And when the man rose up to depart, his father-in-law urged him: therefore he lodged there again. And he arose early in the morning on the fifth day to depart: and the damsel's father said, Comfort thine heart, I pray thee. And they tarried until afternoon, and they did eat both of them.

And when the man rose up to depart, he, and his concubine, and his servant, his father-in-law, the damsel's father, said unto him, Behold, now the day draweth toward evening, I pray you tarry all night: behold, the day groweth to an end,

² Many critics suppose that, instead of 'Manasseh,' the true reading here is Moses; and, indeed, some of the Jews acknowledge that the single letter which makes the difference in the Hebrew has been interpolated in order to save the credit of the family of their great lawgiver. The alteration, however, is not sanctioned by any ancient authority, except the Vulgate.

⁴ This narrative appears to have been added in order to show what disorders and crimes arise from the neglect of the will and worship of God; and to record the exemplary punishment by which one of the tribes of Israel was reduced to comparative insignificance. It thus presents an instructive parallel to the history of the tribe of Simeon: see note on Numb. xxvi. 2.

⁵ Or, 'secondary wife.' See note on Gen. xxv. 1.

¹ Rather, 'Go on.' Ramah was about six miles north of Jerusalem, and Gibeah lay about a mile and a half east of Ramah.

² This extraordinary want of hospitality, especially towards a Levite, accords with the remarkably debased and abandoned character of the citizens of Gibeah.

³ Travellers in the East expect to obtain little more than house-room at their resting-places, and therefore carry their provisions with them, even when they are journeying through an inhabited country.

⁴ The conduct of the Levite and his host, in this transaction, shows how much the Israelites had become contaminated with the vices of the Canaanites. See note on Gen. xix. 8. It was evidently their duty to resist the aggressors to the utmost, throwing themselves upon the protection of Providence, and not to yield in any way to the demands of these brutal and desperately wicked men.

⁵ Barbarous as this proceeding may appear to us, it was doubtless in accordance with the notions and practices of the times (see refs.); and, as there was no supreme magistrate over all the tribes of Israel to whom to appeal for redress, it was probably chosen as the most effectual method of rousing the people to take up the Levite's cause as one that concerned them all. The whole nation evidently regarded it as a solemn adjuration requiring and obliging them to punish this outrage. See ch. xx. 8, 9, 48; xxi. 5.

⁶ The 'land of Gilead' here means the region beyond Jordan.

2 ^m unto the LORD ⁿ in Mizpeh.¹ And the chief of all the people, even of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand footmen ^o that drew sword.² (Now the children of Benjamin heard that the children of Israel were gone up to Mizpeh.)

4 Then said the children of Israel, Tell us, how was this wickedness? And the Levite, the husband of the woman that was slain, answered and said, ^p I came into Gibeah that belongeth to Benjamin, I and my concubine to lodge. ^q And the men of Gibeah rose against me, and beset the house round about upon me by night, and thought to have slain me: ^r and my concubine have they forced, that she is dead.

6 And ^s I took my concubine, and cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel: for they ^t have committed lewdness and folly in Israel. Behold, ye are all children of Israel; ^u give here your advice and counsel.

8 And all the people arose as one man, saying, We will not any of us go to his tent, neither will we any of us turn into his house. But now this shall be the thing which we will do to Gibeah; we will go up ^x by lot against it; and we will take ten men of an hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to fetch victual for the people, that they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the folly that they have wrought in Israel.

11 So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, knit together as one man. ^y And the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, What wickedness is this that is done among you? Now therefore deliver us the men, ^z the children of Belial, which are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and ^a put away evil from Israel. But the children of Benjamin would not hearken ³ to the voice of their brethren the children of Israel: but the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together out of the cities unto Gibeah, to go out to battle against the children of Israel. And the children of Benjamin were numbered at that time out of the cities twenty and six thousand men that drew sword, beside the inhabitants of Gibeah, which were numbered seven hundred chosen men. Among all this people there were seven hundred chosen men ^b left-handed; every one could sling stones at an hair breadth, and not miss. And the men of Israel, beside Benjamin, were numbered four hundred thousand men that drew sword: all these were men of war.

18 And the children of Israel arose, and ^c went up to the house of God,⁴ and ^d asked counsel of God, and said, Which of us shall go up first⁵ to the battle against the children of Benjamin? And the LORD said, ^e Judah shall go up first.

19 And the children of Israel rose up in the morning, and encamped against Gibeah.

20 And the men of Israel went out to battle against Benjamin; and the men of Israel put themselves in array to fight against them at Gibeah. And ^f the children of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah, and destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites that day twenty and two thousand men.

22 And the people the men of Israel ^g encouraged themselves, and set their battle again in array in the place where they put themselves in array the first day.

23 (^h And the children of Israel went up and wept before the LORD until even, and asked counsel of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up again to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother? And the LORD said, Go up against him.)

24 And the children of Israel came near against the children of Benjamin the second day.

25 And ⁱ Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and destroyed down to the ground of the children of Israel again eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword.

ⁱ ver. 21.

¹ Mizpeh was about four miles from Jerusalem, on the road to Ramah. It was probably on the lofty eminence now called Neby Samwil.

² This great national movement of the Israelites speaks favourably for the general state of feeling amongst them. Although it was begun with far too much haste, yet, when this was corrected, the manner in which it was concluded showed that mercy was not quite forgotten in the execution of justice upon their guilty brethren.

⁴ As the Hebrew for 'the house of God,' here and in vers. 26, 31, and ch. xxi. 2, is 'Bethel,' many have thought that the town of that name is referred to. But if so, as Bethel was twelve miles from the town of Shiloh, it must be supposed either that the tabernacle had been removed to Bethel for the occasion, or that the name 'Shiloh' was given to the district lying between and immediately contiguous to the lands belonging to Bethel and to Shechem. So that persons going to the tabernacle might be said, in popular language, to go to Shechem, as in Josh. xxiv. 1, or as here, to go to Bethel, if they went from the south.

⁵ The Israelites appear not to have consulted God respecting the war, till after they had pledged themselves to it; and they then obtained a reply which gave no promise of success, but led them into a position in which their presumption and haste received a severe check. The selection of Judah to bear the brunt of this disastrous battle suggests the fear that this powerful tribe may have had some sinister design concealed beneath the guise of zeal for justice and morality.

26 Then all the children of Israel, and all the people, ^kwent up, and came unto the house of God, and wept, and sat there before the LORD, and fasted¹ that day
 27 until even, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD. And the children of Israel ^linquired of the LORD, (for ^mthe ark of the covenant of God 28 was there in those days, ⁿand Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, ^ostood before it² in those days,) saying, ^pShall I yet again go out to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother, or shall I cease? And the LORD said, Go up; for to-morrow I will deliver them into thine hand.
 29, 30 And Israel ^qset liers in wait round about Gibeah.³ And the children of Israel went up against the children of Benjamin on the third day, and put themselves
 31 in array against Gibeah, as at other times. And the children of Benjamin went out against the people, and were drawn away from the city; and they began to smite of the people, and kill, as at other times, in the highways, of which one goeth up to the house of God [or, Bethel], and the other to Gibeah in the field, 32 about thirty men of Israel. And the children of Benjamin said, They are smitten down before us, as at the first. But the children of Israel said, Let us flee, and 33 draw them from the city unto the highways. And all the men of Israel rose up out of their place, and put themselves in array at Baal-tamar: and the liers in wait of Israel came forth out of their places, even out of the meadows⁴ of Gibeah.
 34 And there came against Gibeah ten thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and 35 the battle was sore: ^rbut they knew not that evil was near them. And the LORD smote Benjamin before Israel: and the children of Israel destroyed of the Benjamites that day twenty and five thousand and an hundred men:⁵ all these drew the sword.
 36 So the children of Benjamin saw that they were smitten: ^sfor the men of Israel gave place to the Benjamites, because they trusted unto the liers in wait 37 which they had set beside Gibeah. ^tAnd the liers in wait hastened, and rushed upon Gibeah; and the liers in wait drew ^u*themselves* along, and smote all the city with the edge of the sword. Now there was an appointed sign [or, time] between the men of Israel and the liers in wait, that they should make a great flame with 38 smoke rise up out of the city. And when the men of Israel retired in the battle, Benjamin began to smite and kill of the men of Israel about thirty persons: for 39 they said, Surely they are smitten down before us, as in the first battle. But when the flame began to arise up out of the city with a pillar of smoke, the Benjamites ^vlooked behind them, and, behold, the flame of the city ascended up 40 to heaven. And when the men of Israel turned again, the men of Benjamin were amazed: for they saw that evil was come upon them. Therefore they turned 41 their backs before the men of Israel unto the way of the wilderness; but the battle overtook them; and them which came out of the cities they destroyed in
 42 the midst of them. Thus they inclosed the Benjamites round about, and chased them, and trode them down with ease [or, from Menuchah] over against Gibeah
 43 toward the sunrising. And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men; all these were men of valour. And they turned and fled toward the wilderness unto the rock of ^xRimmon: and they gleaned⁶ of them in the highways five thousand men; and pursued hard after them unto Gidom, and slew two thousand men of 44 them. So that all which fell that day of Benjamin were twenty and five thousand men⁷ that drew the sword; all these were men of valour. ^yBut six hundred men turned and fled to the wilderness unto the rock Rimmon, and abode in the rock Rimmon four months.
 48 And the men of Israel turned again upon the children of Benjamin, and smote them with the edge of the sword, as well the men of every city, as the beast, and all that came to hand: also they set on fire all the cities that they came to.⁸

² That is, he ministered as high priest. This verse shows that these events occurred not long after the death of Joshua, and that the narrative was not completed till after the removal of the ark in the time of Eli.

³ It is worthy of notice, that this third trial, made under the influence of better religious feelings than the two former, and with the encouragement of a positive assurance of success, was at the same time conducted with greater caution and more skillful generalship.

⁴ Or, as the Syriac and Arabic render, 'caves.'

⁵ In this verse the event of the battle is briefly stated in general terms. The narrative is then resumed, giving a detailed account of the conflict and its consequences.

21 Now the men of Israel had sworn in Mizpeh, saying, There shall not any of 2 us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife. And the people came ^a to the house of God, and abode there till even before God, and lifted up their voices, and wept
 3 sore;¹ and said, O LORD God of Israel, why is this come to pass in Israel, that 4 there should be to-day one tribe lacking in Israel? And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people rose early, and ^b built there an altar, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings.
 5 And the children of Israel said, Who is there among all the tribes of Israel that came not up with the congregation unto the LORD? ^c For they had made a great oath concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh, saying, He 6 shall surely be put to death. And the children of Israel ^d repented them for Benjamin their brother, and said, There is one tribe cut off from Israel this 7 day. How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing we have ^e sworn 8 by the LORD that we will not give them of our daughters to wives? And they said, What one is there of the tribes of Israel that came not up to Mizpeh to the LORD?

And, behold, there came none to the camp from ^f Jabesh-gilead to the assembly.
 9 For the people were numbered, and, behold, there were none of the inhabitants of 10 Jabesh-gilead there. And the congregation sent thither twelve thousand men of the valiantest, and commanded them, saying, ^g Go and smite² the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword, with the women and the children.
 11 And this is the thing that ye shall do, ^h Ye shall utterly destroy every male, and 12 every woman that hath lain by man. And they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead four hundred young virgins, that had known no man by lying with any male: and they brought them unto the camp to ⁱ Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

13 And the whole congregation sent some to speak to the children of Benjamin ^k that were in the rock Rimmon, and to call peaceably [or, proclaim peace^l] unto 14 them. And Benjamin came again at that time; and they gave them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jabesh-gilead: and yet so they sufficed 15 them not. And the people ^m repented them for Benjamin, because that the LORD had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

16 Then the elders of the congregation said, How shall we do for wives for them
 17 that remain, seeing the women are destroyed out of Benjamin? And they said,
There must be an inheritance for them that be escaped of Benjamin,³ that a tribe 18 be not destroyed out of Israel. Howbeit we may not give them wives of our daughters: ⁿ for the children of Israel have sworn, saying, Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin.

19 Then they said, Behold, there is ^o a feast of the LORD in Shiloh yearly in a place which is on the north side of Beth-el, on the east side of the highway that 20 goeth up from Beth-el to Shechem, and on the south of Lebonah. Therefore they commanded the children of Benjamin, saying, Go and lie in wait in the vineyards;
 21 and see, and, behold, if the daughters of Shiloh come out ^p to dance in dances,⁴ then come ye out of the vineyards, and catch you every man his wife of the 22 daughters of Shiloh, and go to the land of Benjamin. And it shall be, when their fathers or their brethren come unto us to complain, that we will say unto them, Be favourable unto them for our sakes: because we reserved not to each man his wife in the war: for ye ^q did not give unto them at this time, that ye should be 23 guilty.⁵ And the children of Benjamin did so, and took them wives, according to their number, of them that danced, whom they caught: and they went and returned unto their inheritance, and ^r repaired the cities, and dwelt in them.
 24 And the children of Israel departed thence at that time, every man to his tribe and to his family, and they went out from thence every man to his inheritance.

25 ^s In those days there was no king in Israel: ^t every man did that which was right in his own eyes.⁶

¹ Now that their vow was executed they felt that it had been unjustifiably severe.

² This cruel determination, like the vow whose ill consequences it was meant to obviate, seems to have been made without asking counsel of God.

³ Rather, 'The inheritance' (i. e. of the whole tribe) 'must be secured to the escaped remnant of Benjamin.'

⁵ The meaning is, 'The exigence of the case is so pressing, that it behoves all parties quietly to submit to it.'

By not giving your daughters or sisters voluntarily, you have avoided the guilt of violating your solemn vow.' See ver. 18. Although they escaped the literal breach of their vow, this expedient was in fact an actual evasion of it, and tended to give license to fraud and violence. The whole narrative presents a strange mixture of religion and barbarity; such, however, as is often found in the history of these early ages.

⁶ This was not because ample provision had not been made for all the purposes of government; but because, God being their King, the principle of subjection was religious, and the people generally were irreligious.

THE BOOK OF RUTH.

THIS brief family history, like the last four chapters of the book of Judges, is properly a supplement to that book, of which, in the ancient Hebrew canon, it formed a part.

The book of Ruth was certainly written after the establishment of the monarchy (see ch. i. 1), and probably about the time when David was coming into public life, after he had been anointed by Samuel as the future king (ch. iv. 7; 1 Sam. xvi. 13). It has generally been ascribed to that prophet; and internal indications favour the tradition.

The events, however, which it relates evidently belong to a much earlier period; for the author found it necessary to explain a custom here noticed, which had since become obsolete (ch. iv. 1, 7). One circumstance which has been relied upon, in attempting to ascertain the date of these events, is the famine mentioned in ch. i. 1; which bishop Patrick supposes to have been caused by the incursions of the Midianites, just before the administration of Gideon: see Judg. vi. 4—6. But Usher and others, following the greater Hebrew chronology, with far higher probability, assign the narrative to the times of Ehud and Shamgar. See Judg. iii. 12—14, 31. In any case, it seems necessary to suppose that, in the genealogy in ch. iv. 18—22, some names have been omitted according to the frequent practice of the Hebrews. Comp. Matt. i. 8, with 1 Chron. iii. 11, 12. These names should probably be supplied between Obed and Jesse.

This narrative of private life was doubtless included in the canon of Scripture chiefly on account of its relation to the family of David, and thus to the Divine King and Head of the church; and because the adoption of Ruth, a Moabitess, into the commonwealth of Israel, and into the line of the ancestors of Messiah, intimates that through Him the Gentiles should be sanctified and united to His people; so that there should be 'one fold, and one Shepherd.' But it is also valuable as presenting to us admirable examples of faith, piety, patience, humility, industry, and kindness, in the common occurrences of life. It also forcibly teaches us that, while we are always in this life exposed to change, there is no condition, however unfavourable, which is absolutely hopeless; for God can raise 'the poor out of the dust,' 'that he may set him with princes;' and that a devout trust in his overruling Providence will not be disappointed: so that we may well exclaim with bishop Hall, 'Oh the sure and bountiful payment of the Almighty! Who ever forsook the Moab of this world for the true Israel, and did not at length rejoice in the change?'

This book contains Ruth's marriage into the family of Elimelech, the death of her father-in-law and husband, and her return with her widowed mother-in-law to Bethlehem (ch. i.), where she gleanes in the fields of Boaz, whose kindness encourages her to claim from him the duty of a kinsman (ii., iii.); her marriage to Boaz, and her descendants, with a genealogical table (iv.)

Elimelech and his sons having died in Moab, his widow returns to Bethlehem with Ruth.

- 1 NOW it came to pass in the days when ^a the judges ruled, that there was ^b a famine in the land. And a certain man of ^c Beth-lehem-judah ¹ went to sojourn in
- 2 the country of Moab,² he, and his wife, and his two sons. And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife Naomi, and the name of his two sons Mahlon and Chilion, ^d Ephrathites of Beth-lehem-judah. And they came ^e into the country of Moab, and continued there.
- 3 And Elimelech Naomi's husband died; and she was left and her two sons.
- 4 And they took them wives ^f of the women of Moab;³ the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other ^g Ruth: and they dwelled there about ten years.
- 5 And Mahlon and Chilion died also both of them; and the woman was left of her two sons and her husband.
- 6 Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab how that the LORD
- 7 had ^h visited his people in ⁱ giving them bread. Wherefore she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and they went
- 8 on the way to return unto the land of Judah. And Naomi said unto her two daughters-in-law, ^k Go, return each to her mother's house: ^l the LORD deal kindly
- 9 with you, as ye have dealt with ^m the dead, and with me. The LORD grant you that ye may find ⁿ rest, each of you in the house of her husband. Then she kissed
- 10 them; and they lifted up their voice, and wept. And they said unto her, Surely we will return with thee unto thy people.
- 11 And Naomi said, Turn again, my daughters: why will ye go with me? are
- 12 there yet any more sons in my womb, ^o that they may be your husbands? Turn again, my daughters, go your way; for I am too old to have an husband. If I should say, I have hope, if I should have an husband also to-night, and should
- 13 also bear sons; would ye tarry ^p for them till they were grown? would ye stay for them from having husbands? nay, my daughters; for it grieveth me much for
- 14 your sakes that ^q the hand of the LORD is gone out against me. And they lifted up their voice, and wept again: and Orpah ^r kissed her mother-in-law; but Ruth ^s clave unto her.

1 So called in distinction from Bethlehem in Zebulon (Josh. xix. 15).

2 This seems to indicate that the famine did not extend beyond the land of Israel, and that it was probably a national chastisement.

3 Though this was not an infraction of the letter of the law in Deut. vii. 3, which specifies only Canaanitish women, it was a violation of its spirit; the law being designed to prevent all admixture with idolatrous nations. The Moabites were under a special ban: see Deut. xxiii. 3.

4 Alluding to the custom mentioned in Gen. xxxviii. 8; Deut. xxv. 5.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister-in-law is ^s gone back unto her people, and unto 16 'her gods: "return¹ thou after thy sister-in-law. And Ruth said, ^x Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for ^y whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: ^z thy people shall be 17 my people, and ^a thy God my God: where thou diest, will I die, and there will
I be buried: ^b the LORD do so to me, and more also, if aught but death part 18 thee and me. ^c When she saw that she was stedfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her.

19 So they two went until they came to Beth-lehem. And it came to pass when they were come to Beth-lehem, that ^d all the city was moved about them, and 20 they said, ^e Is this Naomi? And she said unto them, Call me not Naomi [i. e.
pleasant], call me Mara [i. e. bitter]: for the Almighty hath ^f dealt very bitterly 21 with me. I went out full, ^g and the LORD hath brought me home again empty:
why then call ye me Naomi, seeing the LORD hath ^h testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

22 So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, which returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Beth-lehem, ⁱ in the beginning of barley harvest.²

Ruth being treated kindly by Boaz, claims from him the duty of a kinsman.

2 AND Naomi had a ^k kinsman of her husband's, a mighty man of wealth, of the 2 family of Elimelech; and his name was ^l Boaz. And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi, Let me now go to the field, and ^m glean ears of corn after him in 3 whose sight I shall find grace. And she said unto her, Go, my daughter. And she went, and came, and gleaned in the field after the reapers: and her hap³ was to light on a part of the field belonging unto Boaz, who was of the kindred⁴ of Elimelech.

4 And, behold, Boaz came from Beth-lehem, and said unto the reapers, ⁿ The 5 LORD be with you.⁵ And ^o they answered him, The LORD bless thee. Then said 6 Boaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this? And the servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, It is the Moabitish 7 damsel ^p that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab: and she said, I pray you, let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves: so she came, and hath continued even from the morning until now, that she tarried a little in the house.⁶

8 Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, ^q my daughter? Go not to glean 9 in another field, neither go from hence, but abide here fast by my maidens: let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them: have I not charged the young men that they shall not ^r touch thee? and when thou art athirst, go unto the vessels, and drink of that which the young men have drawn.
10 Then she ^s fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him,
Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldest take knowledge of me, 11 seeing I am a stranger? And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath fully been showed me, ^t all that thou hast done unto thy mother-in-law since the death of thine husband: and how ^u thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not hereto-12 fore. ^x The LORD recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the 13 LORD God of Israel, ^y under whose wings thou art come to trust. Then she said, ^z Let me find favour in thy sight, my lord; for that thou hast comforted me, and for that thou hast spoken friendly unto thine handmaid, ^a though I be not like 14 unto one of thine handmaidens. And Boaz said unto her, At mealtime come thou hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar.⁷

And she sat beside the reapers: and he reached her ^b parched corn, and she did 15 eat, and ^c was sufficed, and left. And when she was risen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, Let her glean even among the sheaves, and re-16 proach her not: and ^d let fall also some of the handfuls of purpose for her, and 17 leave them, that she may glean them, and rebuke her not. So she gleaned in the field until even, and beat out that she had gleaned: and it was about an ephah⁸

¹ Some have regarded this as showing a want of enlightened piety in Naomi. It must, however, be remembered that she had commended both Orpah and Ruth to Jehovah's care (ver. 8), and that she does not appear yet to have been satisfied that Ruth was actuated by any higher principle than personal attachment to herself.

² That is, about April.

³ Though to her accidental, this was ordered by Divine Providence, which was about to reward her filial piety.

And she showed her mother-in-law with whom she had wrought, and said, The man's name with whom I wrought to-day is Boaz. And Naomi said unto her daughter-in-law, ^g Blessed be he of the LORD, who ^h hath not left off his kindness to the living and to the dead. And Naomi said unto her, The man is near of kin unto us,¹ ⁱ one of our next ^k kinsmen. And Naomi said unto Ruth her daughter-in-law, It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they meet thee not in any other field. ⁴ In estimating the conduct of Naomi and Ruth, we must remember that, by the custom of the Hebrews and the surrounding nations, Ruth was already virtually the wife of her late husband's nearest kinsman, and that no further marriage ceremony was needed to perfect her claim to conjugal rights (Deut. xxv. 5). Naomi seems not to have been aware that there was a kinsman nearer than Boaz; whilst his character for justice, and his kindness to Ruth, led her to expect that he would fulfil the requirements of the customary law.

⁵ After the corn had been threshed by oxen on the open floor (see note on Deut. xxv. 4), it was winnowed by throwing it up with shovels against the evening breeze, which blew away the chaff, whilst the heavier grain fell on the ground in a heap. During this time it was important that the owner should look well after his produce to secure it from depredation.

⁶ These were nuptial preparations. The use of oil after bathing is very important in hot climates.

⁷ Or, 'thy wing;' a symbol of matrimonial protection. See refs.

⁹ The Eastern vail is large enough to envelope the whole person; and that worn by the poorer classes is coarse and very strong.

4 THEN went Boaz up to ^d the gate,¹ and sat him down there: and, behold, ^e the kinsman of whom Boaz spake came by; unto whom he said, Ho, such a one! 2 turn aside, sit down here. And he turned aside, and sat down. And he took ten men of ^f the elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down here. And they sat 3 down. And he said unto the kinsman, Naomi, that is come again out of the country of Moab, selleth² a parcel of land, which was our brother Elimelech's: 4 and I thought to advertise thee, saying, ^g Buy it ^h before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it: but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know: ⁱ for there is none to redeem 5 it beside thee; and I am after thee. And he said, I will redeem it. Then said Boaz, What day thou buyest the field of the hand of Naomi, thou must buy it also of Ruth the Moabitess,³ the wife of the dead, ^k to raise up the name⁴ of the 6 dead upon his inheritance. 'And the kinsman said, I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I mar⁵ mine own inheritance: redeem thou my right to thyself; for 7 I cannot redeem it. "Now this was the manner in former time in Israel concerning redeeming and concerning changing, for to confirm all things: a man plucked off his shoe,⁶ and gave it to his neighbour: and this was a testimony in 8 Israel. Therefore the kinsman said unto Boaz, Buy it for thee. So he drew off his shoe.

9 And Boaz said unto the elders, and unto all the people, ⁿ Ye are witnesses this day, that I have bought all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's and 10 Mahlon's, of the hand of Naomi. Moreover Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of Mahlon, have I purchased to be my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, ^o that the name of the dead be not cut off from among his 11 brethren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this day. And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders, said, We are witnesses. ^p The LORD make the woman that is come into thine house like Rachel and like Leah, which two did ^q build the house of Israel: and do thou worthily in ^r Ephratah, and be 12 famous in Beth-lehem: and let thy house be like the house of Pharez, 'whom Tamar bare unto Judah, of ^s the seed which the LORD shall give thee of this young woman.

13 So Boaz ^t took Ruth, and she was his wife: and when he went in unto her, 14 ^u the LORD gave her conception, and she bare a son. And ^v the women said unto Naomi, Blessed be the LORD, which hath not left thee this day without a 15 kinsman [or, redeemer], that his name may be famous in Israel. And he shall be unto thee a restorer of ^w thy life, and ^z a nourisher of thine old age: for thy daughter-in-law, which loveth thee, which is ^a better to thee than seven sons, 16 hath borne him. And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became 17 nurse unto it. ^b And the women her neighbours gave it a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed: he is the father⁷ of Jesse, the father of David.⁸

1 This presents a vivid picture of the legal proceedings of the Hebrews, before written documents had come into use, as they had in the time of Jeremiah (xxxii. 10).

2 Or, 'hath sold.' It is likely that the land, in consequence of the poverty of the family, had been already sold; and the right of redemption, according to Lev., ch. xxv., had come into exercise.

3 The marginal reading of the Hebrew Bible is preferable: 'Thou wilt also purchase Ruth the Moabitess,' etc.

4 The eldest son of such a marriage was reckoned to the deceased, though he did not always bear his name.

5 Had he had but one son by Ruth, and no other by another wife, his own name and inheritance would have been merged altogether in that of Elimelech. This narrative shows clearly the beneficial operation of the law of Deut. xxv. 5, which allowed a man, by incurring a small penalty, to decline such a marriage when it was either disagreeable or inconvenient.

6 In Eastern countries, among unlettered people, the shoe was, and indeed still is, the pledge of a bargain, and thus the symbol of possession; hence a man gave his shoe to the person to whom he transferred a property or right: and, according to the law in Deut. xxv. 9, a man who would not redeem his kinsman's right had his shoe plucked off by the widow. It is to the first-named, not the latter practice, that the text here refers. In later times, the Jews have been accustomed to deliver a handkerchief for the same purpose.

7 The word 'father' is probably here used, as it is often elsewhere, in the general sense of ancestor.

8 Thus Jehovah rewarded Ruth's conjugal constancy, filial affection, and pious preference of the God and people of Israel, as well as the generosity and honour of Boaz;—making them ancestors of a royal house, and, according to his human nature, of Him who is 'King of kings, and Lord of lords.'

THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL,

OTHERWISE CALLED

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE KINGS.

THE two books of Samuel originally formed only one, which was called 'The Book of Samuel;' but was divided by the Greek translators into two, and designated 'The First and Second Books of Kings.' Their authorship is uncertain; but there is great probability in the ancient opinion, founded on various passages in the books of Chronicles, that they were the productions of contemporary prophets, with a few explanatory insertions by their successors. Thus, the first sixteen chapters, with a few subsequent portions, may be attributed to Samuel, whose name, according to Hebrew custom, is given to the whole; and the rest to Nathan and Gad. The few passages which have been supposed by some to indicate a later origin appear to have been either subsequent additions, or to be susceptible of a different explanation. Upon some of these, remarks will be found in the notes.

The great subject of these books is the institution of the monarchy, and its establishment in the family of David. The Divine plan of redemption is thus presented in a new aspect, exhibiting the delegation of royal authority by the Invisible King to the hands of a human representative. From the time when 'the man after God's own heart' was seated on the throne, the Spirit of prophecy delights to employ the emblems of royalty to set forth the spiritual glories of Messiah (see Psa. ii., xlv., lxxii., cx.); whilst the inspired history of the line of David opens a track by which, step after step, we are led on to Him in whom the independent successions of prophets, priests, and kings finally meet.

It is remarkable, too, that almost at the same time a new era of prophecy began, which extended, with scarcely any interruption, to the days of Malachi. Samuel is spoken of, in Acts iii. 24, as the first of this succession of prophets, whose chief object was to foreshow the redemption of Christ, and to prepare the way for his coming, as well as to give religious instruction to the people. The maintenance of this succession was doubtless greatly assisted by the schools of the prophets, so frequently alluded to in the subsequent history, which are supposed to have been first established under Samuel.

These two books extend over a period of 154 years according to Usher, or 132 according to Hales.

THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL begins with an account of the birth and early ministry of that prophet: it describes the low and oppressed condition of the people at that period; the appointment of Samuel as judge; and his eminently useful services, both as a prophet and as a ruler; and mentions the degeneracy of his sons. It then relates the change in the mode of government by the introduction of the monarchy; an event which had been prophetically anticipated by Moses four hundred years before (see Deut. xvii. 14). As this was a change of great importance in the national history, the circumstances attending it are related in detail. Under Divine direction, Saul is appointed king; but, not conducting himself in the government according to the command of God, he is rejected; and the son of Jesse is chosen by God, and anointed as his successor. David is then, by the arrangements of Providence, brought before the eyes of the nation, and into relationship with Saul; who, however, being jealous of his growing popularity, attempts his life, drives him from court into the wilderness, and subjects him to the most harassing persecutions. These are overruled by God to prepare David for the work he had to do; developing his fortitude and prudence, and making him intimately acquainted with the power of the dreaded Philistines and other enemies whom he was afterwards to subjugate.

The history of David is important, not only on account of the great moral and spiritual lessons which it affords, but also for the understanding of many other parts of Scripture, particularly the Psalms and much of the New Testament. As an ancestor of the Messiah according to the flesh, and as a representative of him and of his people, both in his conflicts and in his triumphs, his whole life is invested with peculiar interest.

This book may be divided into two parts:—

I. THE CONCLUSION OF THE TIMES OF THE JUDGES: comprising the birth and early life of Samuel; the wickedness of Eli's sons, and denunciations of judgment against his family (ch. i.—iii.); defeat of the Israelites; capture of the ark; chastisement of the Philistines, and restoration of the ark (iv.—vi.); repentance and deliverance of the Israelites (vii.)

II. THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE MONARCHY. The desire of the people for a king (ch. viii.); designation and appointment of Saul (ix., x.); Saul's victory over the Ammonites (xi.); Samuel's address to the people on resigning the government (xii.); Saul's wars with the Philistines and Amalekites, his disobedience and rejection (xiii.—xv.); anointing of David by Samuel (xvi.); his victory over Goliath (xvii.); his persecution by Saul, and flight to Ramah, Nob, Gath, and Adullam (xviii.—xxii. 1—5); the slaughter of the priests at Nob (xxii. 6—23); David's rescue of Keilah, and flight into the wilderness and to Gath (xxiii.—xxvii.); renewal of war by the Philistines; Saul and the witch of Endor (xxviii.); David's dismissal by the Philistine princes, and pursuit of the Amalekites (xxix., xxx.); defeat of the Israelites by the Philistines, and death of Saul and his sons (xxxi.)

Samuel's birth and dedication to the service of God; Hannah's song of thanksgiving.

¹ That is, Ramah of Zuph, whose descendants resided here. It is so called to distinguish it from another Ramah.

² He was a Levite of the line of Kohath, and of the family of Korah (1 Chron. vi. 33—38); and his descendants, the singers, are therefore called 'sons of Korah.' He is called an Ephrathite probably because he resided in Mount Ephraim, which was a prolongation northwards of the mountains of Judah.

the LORD of hosts¹ in g Shiloh. And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, 4 the priests of the LORD, were there. And when the time was that Elkanah^h offered, he gave to Peninnah his wife,² and to all her sons and her daughters, portions: 5 but unto Hannah he gave a worthy³ portion; for he loved Hannah: i but the 6 LORD had shut up her womb. And her adversary⁴ also h provoked her sore, for to make her fret, because the LORD had shut up her womb. And as he did 7 so year by year, when she went up to the house of the LORD, so she provoked 8 her;⁵ therefore she wept, and did not eat. Then said Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? am not I i better to thee than ten sons?

9 So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk. 10 Now Eli the priest sat upon a seat by a post of m the temple⁶ of the LORD. n And 11 she was in bitterness of soul, and o prayed unto the LORD, and wept sore. And she p vowed a vow, and said, O LORD of hosts, if thou wilt indeed q look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and r remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto the LORD all the days of his life, and s there shall no razor come upon his head.⁷

12 And it came to pass, as she continued praying before the LORD, that Eli marked 13 her mouth. Now Hannah, she t spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but 14 her voice was not heard: therefore Eli u thought she had been drunken. And Eli said unto her, How long wilt thou be drunken? put away thy wine from 15 thee. And Hannah answered and said, x No, my lord, I am a woman of a sorrowful spirit: I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have y poured 16 out my soul before the LORD. Count not thine handmaid for a daughter of z Belial: for out of the abundance of my complaint and grief have I spoken 17 hitherto. Then Eli answered and said, a Go in peace: and b the God of Israel 18 grant thee thy petition that thou hast asked of him. And she said, c Let thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman d went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad.

19 And they rose up in the morning early, and worshipped before the LORD, and returned, and came to their house to Ramah. And Elkanah e knew Hannah his 20 wife; and f the LORD remembered her. Wherefore it came to pass when the time was come about after Hannah had conceived, that she bare a son, and called his name Samuel,⁸ g saying, g Because I have asked him of the LORD.

21 And the man Elkanah, and all his house, h went up to offer unto the LORD the 22 yearly sacrifice, and his vow. But Hannah went not up; for she said unto her husband, i I will not go up until the child i be weaned, and then I will bring him, 23 that he may appear before the LORD, and there k abide i for ever. And m Elkanah her husband said unto her, Do what seemeth thee good; tarry until thou have weaned him; n only the LORD establish his word. So the woman abode, and gave her son suck until she weaned him.

24 And when she had weaned him, she o took him up with her, with three bullocks,⁹ and one ephah of flour, and a bottle of wine, and brought him unto p the house of 25 the LORD in Shiloh: and the child was young. And they slew a bullock, and 26 q brought the child to Eli. And she said, Oh my lord, r as thy soul liveth, my 27 lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the LORD. s For this child I prayed; t and the LORD hath given me my petition which I asked of 28 him: u therefore also I have lent him to the LORD; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the LORD.¹⁰ And he x worshipped¹¹ the LORD there.

1 This name, which occurs here for the first time, appears to denote the supremacy of Jehovah over all orders of beings. Comp. Gen. ii. 1; xxxii. 2; Psa. ciii. 21.

2 The males only were required to appear at the yearly festivals; but devout persons used to bring their wives and daughters with them. The 'portions' are the parts of the peace-offerings which belonged to the offerer, and on which he feasted with his family.

3 That is, a double portion.

4 Rather, 'her affliction.' The Hebrew word here translated 'adversary' occurs frequently in Scripture, but nowhere else does it denote a person; and the ordinary sense will suit this passage perfectly. Hannah's 'anguish,' or 'distress,' on account of her childless state might truly be said to 'provoke her sore,' etc.

5 Rather, 'it (i. e. her affliction) provoked her.'

6 The tabernacle is probably so called, because it was now fixed, and some permanent buildings for the priests had been erected around it. Eli's seat was most likely near the entrance of the court, where he could attend to many of his duties both as high priest and judge.

7 As a Levite, Samuel would have been employed in the service of the tabernacle from the age of twenty-five to fifty; but, by his mother's vow, he was devoted to it from childhood; besides being subjected to the discipline of a Nazarite: on which see refs. This vow must have had the concurrence of her husband: see Numb. xxx. 8.

8 This is a contracted form, meaning asked of God.

9 Some versions read, 'one bullock of three years old;' which agrees with the next verse. As Samuel was taken to Shiloh soon after he was weaned from the breast (ver. 23), probably when three or four years old, some provision must have been needed for attendance upon him.

10 Or, 'I have returned him whom I have obtained by petition to the Lord; he whom I have obtained by petition shall be returned,' etc.

11 Some ancient versions have 'they worshipped;' i. e. Elkanah and his family.

1 This is rather an ode of thanksgiving. Beginning with allusions to Hannah's personal history, it goes on to present general views of God's character; and, finally, prophetically intimates some of the important events which the subsequent narrative is to develop. It appears to have supplied Mary with some materials for her song of praise, Luke i. 46—55.

2 Horns are an Oriental symbol of power and rank, and as such are used as an ornament for the head.

3 Both in prose and in poetry the sacred writers speak on subjects of natural science in the ordinary language of their own age and country.

4 This prophecy refers to that kingdom which God soon afterwards established in the family of David, as preparatory to the kingdom of the Messiah.

5 See note on Deut. xiii. 13.

6 The only portions of the peace-offering to which the officiating priest was entitled by law were the shoulder and breast, and the cheeks and maw (see Lev. vii. 34; Deut. xviii. 3). Eli's sons not only defrauded the people, but they robbed God of his portion of the offering, which was essential to its acceptance: see Lev. iii. 3—5.

7 Or, 'the men (i. e. Eli's sons) caused the Lord's offering to be abhorred.'

8 Or, 'robe,' as in Exod. xxviii. 4, 31.

9 Or, 'for the petition which she asked of Jehovah.'

22 Now Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did unto all Israel; and how they lay with ^athe women that assembled¹ at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. And he said unto them, Why do ye such things? for I hear of your evil dealings by all this people. Nay, my sons; for it is no good report that I hear: ^bye make the LORD's people to transgress [or, cry out]. ^cIf one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him: but if a man ^dsin against the LORD, who shall intreat for him?² Notwithstanding ^ethey hearkened not unto the voice of their father, ^fbecause the LORD would slay them.³

26 And the child Samuel ^ggrew on, and was ^hin favour both with the LORD, and also with men.

27 And there came a man of God unto Eli, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, ⁱDid I plainly appear unto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypt in Pharaoh's house? And did I ^jchoose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me? and ^kdid I give unto the house of thy father all the offerings made by fire of the children of Israel? Wherefore ^lkick ye at my sacrifice and at mine offering, which I have commanded in my ^mhabitation; and honourest thy sons above me, to make yourselves fat with the chiefest of all the offerings of Israel my people?

30 Wherefore the LORD God of Israel saith, ⁿI said indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father, should walk before me for ever:⁴ but now the LORD saith, ^oBe it far from me; for them that honour me ^pI will honour, and ^qthey that despise me shall be lightly esteemed. Behold, ^rthe days come, that I will cut off thine ^sarm,⁵ and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man⁶ in thine house. And thou shalt see an enemy in my ^thabitation, in all the wealth which God shall give Israel:⁷ and there shall not be ^uan old man in thine house for ever. And the man of thine, whom I shall not cut off from mine altar, shall be to consume thine eyes, and to grieve thine heart:⁸ and all the increase of thine house shall die in the flower of their age. And this shall be ^va sign unto thee, that shall come upon thy two sons, on Hophni and Phinehas; ^win one day they shall die both of them. And ^xI will raise me up a faithful priest,⁹ that shall do according to that which is in mine heart and in my mind: and ^yI will build him a sure house; and he shall walk before ^zmine anointed for ever. ^aAnd it shall come to pass, that every one that is left in thine house shall come and crouch to him for a piece of silver and a morsel of bread, and shall say, Put me, I pray thee, into one of the priests' offices, that I may eat a piece of bread.

3 And ^bthe child Samuel ministered unto the LORD before Eli. And ^cthe word of the LORD was precious in those days; there was no open vision.¹⁰ And it came to pass at that time, when Eli was laid down in his place, ^dand his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see; and ere ^ethe lamp of God went out ^fin the temple of the LORD, where the ark of God was, and Samuel was laid down to sleep;¹¹ that the LORD called Samuel: and he answered, Here am I. And he ran unto Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou calledst me. And he said, I called not; lie down again. And he went and lay down. And the LORD called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, ^gmy son; lie down again. (Now Samuel ^hdid not yet know¹² the LORD, neither was the word of the LORD yet revealed unto him.) And the LORD called Samuel again the third time. And he arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived that the LORD had called the child. Therefore Eli said unto

1 See note on Exod. xxxviii. 8. If the supposition in that note be correct, the lewdness of Eli's sons will appear to be peculiarly infamous.

2 This is better rendered by Coverdale, 'If one man sin against another, the judge can redress it; but if a man sin against Jehovah, who can redress it?'

3 See note on Josh. xi. 20.

4 See note on Numb. xxv. 12. Eli was of the line of Ithamar; and it is not known on what account, or at what time, the high priesthood was transferred from Eleazar's family to that of Ithamar. The context shows that such promises as this implied the condition that those who were to enjoy the blessings should walk before God in faith and piety.

5 That is, 'thy power.' The Greek, and apparently the Chaldee, however, without altering a letter of the text, render the word 'seed,' or 'posterity.'

6 So great was, and still is, the respect paid to old age

among most Orientals, that a heavier curse could scarcely be uttered.

7 Or, 'the affliction of the tabernacle for all the wealth which God would have given Israel.'

8 Eli is addressed here as the representative of his family.

9 This sentence was fulfilled at the beginning of Solomon's reign, by the appointment of Zadok, of the family of Eleazar, as high priest (see refs.); and in this line the priesthood remained as long as it existed.

10 Rather, 'prophetic vision was not frequent.' That it was not altogether withdrawn appears from ch. ii. 27. But it had been rare in comparison with the series of revelations which were now to begin. See ver. 20.

11 As the tabernacle had long been at Shiloh, dwellings for the priests had been erected near it.

12 He did not yet know the way in which God revealed himself to his prophets.

Samuel, Go, lie down: and it shall be, if he call thee, that thou shalt say, Speak, LORD; for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the LORD came, and stood, and called as at other times, Samuel, Samuel. Then Samuel answered, Speak; for thy servant heareth.

11 And the LORD said to Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Israel, ^mat which 12 both the ears of every one that heareth it shall tingle. In that day I will perform against Eli ⁿall things which I have spoken concerning his house: when I

15 And Samuel lay until the morning, and opened the doors of the house of the 16 LORD. And Samuel feared to show Eli the vision. Then Eli called Samuel,

17 and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I. And he said, What is the thing that the LORD hath said unto thee? 'I pray thee hide it not from me: ^uGod do so to thee, and more also, if thou hide any thing [or, word] from 18 me of all the things that he said unto thee. And Samuel told him every whit, and hid nothing from him. And he said, ^xIt is the LORD: ^ylet him do what seemeth him good.

Victories of the Philistines; capture of the ark; death of Eli.

NOW Israel went out against the Philistines to battle, and pitched beside

2 ^eEben-ezer:⁴ and the Philistines pitched in Aphek. And the Philistines put themselves in array against Israel: and when they joined battle, ^fIsrael was smitten before the Philistines: and they slew of the army in the field about four thousand men.

3 And when the people were come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, Wherefore hath the LORD smitten us to-day before the Philistines?⁵ Let us fetch the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of Shiloh unto us, that, when it cometh

4 among us, it may save us out of the hand of our enemies. So the people sent to Shiloh, that they might bring from thence the ark of the covenant of the LORD of hosts, ^gwhich dwelleth between ^hthe cherubim: and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there ⁱwith the ark of the covenant of God.

5 And when the ark of the covenant⁶ of the LORD came into the camp, all Israel

6 shouted with a great shout, so that the earth rang again. And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark

7 of the LORD was come into the camp. And the Philistines ^kwere afraid, for they said, God is come into the camp. And they said, Woe unto us! for there

8 hath not been such a thing heretofore. Woe unto us! who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty Gods? these are the Gods that smote the Egyptians

9 with all the plagues⁷ in the wilderness. 'Be strong, and quit yourselves like men, O ye Philistines, that ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, ^mas they have been to you: quit yourselves like men, and fight.

10 And the Philistines fought, and ⁿIsrael was smitten, and they fled every man into his tent: and there was a very great slaughter; for there fell of Israel thirty

1 How impressively does this history teach the importance of parental control and discipline! Eli had reproved his sons (ch. ii. 23—25), but he had not done all in his power to restrain them. Through his want of moral courage, though a good man, he sadly failed in his duty, both as a father and as high priest; and his weak and lax administration not only involved his family in ruin, but brought the affairs of the nation to the lowest ebb. It should ever be remembered that responsibility is commensurate with authority and influence.

2 An appropriate punishment to those who had 'caused the Lord's offering to be abhorred.'

3 That is, perhaps, Jehovah manifested his glory by the oracular voice in the sanctuary from between the cherubim; having probably ceased thus to appear, on account of the iniquities of the priests.

4 The name Eben-ezer was given to this place twenty years later, but before this history was written. 'Aphek' is probably the same as Aphekah in Josh. xv. 53; but not the same as in ch. xxix. 1. These places lay a few miles north and west of Jerusalem.

5 They were not prepared to look to their sin as the cause, and to repentance as the remedy of their disasters.

6 The exultation of the Israelites and the alarm of the Philistines, when the ark was brought into the camp, indicate gross and unworthy conceptions of the Divine Being in the minds of both nations. They superstitiously imagined that the outward symbol insured the actual presence and help of the Almighty. See, in contrast with this, David's intelligent faith, 2 Sam. xv. 25, 26.

7 After the word 'plagues,' some versions read, 'and wrought wonders in the wilderness.'

- 11 thousand footmen. And ^o the ark of God was taken; ¹ and ^p the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were slain.
- 12 And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the army, and ^q came to Shiloh the same day with his clothes rent, and ^r with earth upon his head. And when he came, lo, Eli sat upon ^s a seat by the wayside watching: for his heart trembled ² for the ark of God. And when the man came into the city, and told it, all the city cried out. And when Eli heard the noise of the crying, he said, What meaneth the noise of this tumult? And the man came in hastily, and told Eli.
- 15 Now Eli was ninety and eight years old; and ^t his eyes were dim, that he could not see. And the man said unto Eli, I am he that came out of the army, and I fled to-day out of the army. And he said, ^u What is there done, my son? And the messenger answered and said, Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there hath been also a great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead; and the ark of God is taken. And it came to pass, when he made mention of the ark of God, that he fell from off the seat backward by the side of the gate, and his neck brake, and he died: for he was an old man, and heavy. And he had judged Israel forty years.
- 19 And his daughter-in-law, Phinehas' wife, was with child, near to be delivered: and when she heard the tidings that the ark of God was taken, and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and travailed; for her pains came upon her. And about the time of her death ^x the women that stood by her said unto her, Fear not; for thou hast borne a son. But she answered not, neither did she regard it. And she named the child ^y I-chabod [i. e. Where is the glory? or, there is no glory], saying, ^z The glory is departed from Israel: because the ark of God was taken, and because of her father-in-law and her husband. And she said, The glory is departed from Israel: for the ark of God is taken.

Fall of Dagon before the ark; chastisement of the Philistines; restoration of the ark.

- 5 AND the Philistines ^a took the ark of God, and brought it ^b from Eben-ezer unto Ashdod. When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of ^c Dagon, ³ and set it by Dagon. And when they of Ashdod arose early on the morrow, behold, Dagon was ^d fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of the LORD. And they took Dagon, and ^e set him in his place again.
- 4 And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of the LORD; and ^f the head of Dagon and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold; ⁴ only the stump ⁵ of Dagon was left to him. Therefore neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, ^g tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day.
- 6 But ^h the hand of the LORD was heavy upon them of Ashdod, and he ⁱ destroyed them, and smote them with ^j emerods, even Ashdod and the coasts thereof. ⁶ And when the men of Ashdod saw that it was so, they said, The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us: for his hand is sore upon us, and upon Dagon our god. They sent therefore and gathered all the lords of the Philistines unto them, and said, What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And they answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about unto Gath. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about thither. And it was so, that, after they had carried it about, ^k the hand of the LORD was against the city ^m with a very great destruction: and ⁿ he smote the men of the city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts.
- 10 Therefore they sent the ark of God to Ekron. And it came to pass, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, They have brought about the ark of the God of Israel to us, to slay us and our people. So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to his own place, that it slay us not, and our people: for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city;

1 The capture of the ark now, and the destruction of the temple in after times, would tend to give the Hebrews more correct views of the spirituality of God, whose presence and power they were too prone to limit.

2 Eli evidently distrusted the result of this superstitious expedient, which, however, he was too feeble-minded to forbid. The effect of the capture of the ark on his aged frame, affecting him even more than his heavy family disasters, proves that, with all his weakness, there was true religious sensibility.

3 The tutelary deity of the Philistines; having its upper part of the human form, and the lower like a fish. Whether they designed to honour Jehovah, or to represent their idol as triumphant over him, He was pleased to vindicate his own supremacy, showing that he would tolerate no pretension to equality, much less to pre-eminence.

4 In the East, on coming into the presence of a superior, a person prostrates himself upon the threshold. Thus the idol had fallen into the most humbling position.

5 Literally, 'only Dagon (i. e. the fish form) was left to him;' for the idol derived its name from its lower part.

6 The Septuagint adds, 'and in the midst of that district mice were produced:' see ch. vi. 4, 5.

12 °the hand of God was very heavy there. And the men that died not were smitten with the emerods: and the cry of the city went up to heaven.

6 And the ark of the LORD was in the country¹ of the Philistines seven months.

2 And the Philistines^p called for the priests and the diviners, saying, What shall we do to the ark of the LORD? tell us wherewith we shall send it to his place.

3 And they said, If ye send away the ark of the God of Israel, send it not^q empty; but in any wise return him^r a trespass offering: then ye shall be healed, and it

4 shall^s be known to you why his hand is not removed from you. Then said they, What shall be the trespass offering which we shall return to him? They answered, Five golden emerods, and five golden mice,² ‘according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for one plague was on you all, and on your lords.

5 Wherefore ye shall make images of your emerods, and images of your mice that “mar the land; and ye shall^x give glory unto the God of Israel: peradventure he will^y lighten his hand from off you, and from off^z your gods, and from off

6 your land. “Wherefore then do ye harden your hearts,^b as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? when he had wrought wonderfully among them,

7 “did they not let the people go, and they departed? Now therefore make^d a new cart, and take two milch kine,^e on which there hath come no yoke, and tie

8 the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them: and take the ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the cart; and put^f the jewels of gold, which ye return him for a trespass offering, in a coffer by the side thereof; and send it

10 And the men did so; and took two milch kine, and tied them to the cart, and

11 shut up their calves at home: and they laid the ark of the LORD upon the cart,

12 and the coffer with the mice of gold and the images of their emerods. 13 shemesh. And they of Beth-shemesh⁴ were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley: and they lifted up their eyes, and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it.

14 And the cart came into the field of Joshua, a Beth-shemite, and stood there, where there was a great stone: and they clave the wood of the cart, and offered

15 the kine a burnt offering unto the LORD. And the Levites took down⁵ the ark of the LORD, and the coffer that was with it, wherein the jewels of gold were, and put them on the great stone. And the men of Beth-shemesh offered burnt

16 offerings and sacrificed sacrifices the same day unto the LORD. And when⁶ the five lords of the Philistines had seen it, they returned to Ekron the same day.

17 ¹And these are the golden emerods which the Philistines returned for a trespass offering unto the LORD; for Ashdod one, for Gaza one, for Askelon one, for Gath

18 one, for Ekron one; and the golden mice, according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines belonging to the five lords, both of fenced cities, and of country villages,⁶ even unto the great stone of Abel,⁷ whereon they set down the ark of the LORD: which stone remaineth unto this day in the field of Joshua, the Beth-shemite.

1 Or, ‘the field.’ The ark, having been sent away in terror from the cities, is supposed to have been left in the open country, which was then wasted by a large increase of mice. Some suppose this animal to be the jerboa; but the common field-mouse is numerous, and often very destructive, particularly in northern Syria.

2 The ancient heathen used to consecrate to their gods memorials of their deliverance representing the evils from which they were freed; and a similar custom is still found in countries where Romanism prevails. Some suppose these to have been also intended as talismans or charms, constructed with certain astrological ceremonies, and superstitiously believed to avert the recurrence of the plagues.

3 That two kine, which had never before been under the yoke, should draw quietly and keep the road without a driver, neither halting nor turning aside; and that while lowing for their calves, to whom natural instinct would have led them to return, they should be nevertheless urged forward by a stronger impulse to the very place mentioned by the Philistines, and should there stop, was clearly miraculous, and would tend the more deeply to impress upon the minds of the Philistines the lessons taught them by the plagues.

4 Beth-shemesh was one of the priests’ towns (Josh. xxi. 16); so that the ark was Divinely directed to a place occupied by men engaged in the service of the sanctuary.

5 Or, ‘For the Levites had taken down.’

6 As the fields had suffered severely from the mice, they contributed their share to the trespass-offering.

7 For the word ‘Abel,’ some Hebrew manuscripts, with the Septuagint and Chaldee, read ‘Aben,’ signifying a stone. This agrees with vers. 14, 15; and renders the insertion of the words ‘stone of’ unnecessary.

8 This was to gratify an irreverent curiosity respecting things which God had thought fit to conceal.

9 The words in the original are, ‘seventy men fifties a thousand.’ This is certainly not the regular way of writing 50,070 in Hebrew; and, according to one system of enumeration, it would mean one thousand, two fifties, and seventy, or 1,170. The Syriac and Arabic versions ten men. And the people lamented, because the LORD had smitten many of the people with a great slaughter. And the men of Beth-shemesh said, "Who is able to stand before this holy LORD God? and to whom shall he go up from us? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of ^o Kirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of the LORD; come ye down, and fetch it up to you. 7 And the men of ^p Kirjath-jearim came, and fetched up the ark of the LORD, and brought it into the house of ^q Abinadab in the hill, and sanctified Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the LORD.

Repentance of the Israelites, and their deliverance from the Philistines; Samuel's administration.

2 AND it came to pass, while¹ the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim, that the time was long; for it was twenty years: and all the house of Israel lamented after 3 the LORD. And Samuel spake unto all the house of Israel, saying, If ye do ^rreturn unto the LORD with all your hearts, then ^sput away the strange gods and ^tAshtaroth from among you, and ^uprepare your hearts unto the LORD, and ^vserve him only: and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines. 4 Then the children of Israel did put away ^vBaalim² and Ashtaroth, and served the LORD only. 5 And Samuel said, ^zGather all Israel to Mizpeh, and I will pray for you unto 6 the LORD. And they gathered together to Mizpeh, ^aand drew water,³ and poured it out before the LORD, and ^bfasted on that day, and said there, ^cWe have sinned against the LORD. And Samuel judged the children of Israel in Mizpeh. 7 And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And 8 when the children of Israel heard it, they were ^dafraid of the Philistines. And the children of Israel said to Samuel, ^eCease not to cry unto the LORD our God 9 for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines. And Samuel took a sucking lamb, and offered *it*⁴ for a burnt offering wholly unto the LORD: and ^fSamuel cried unto the LORD for Israel; and the LORD heard [or, answered] him. 10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel: ^gbut the LORD thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and discomfited them; and they were smitten 11 before Israel. And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the 12 Philistines, and smote them, until they came under Beth-ear. Then Samuel ^htook a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen,⁵ and called the name of it Eben-ezer [i. e. The stone of helpⁱ], saying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us. 13 ^kSo the Philistines were subdued, and they ^lcame no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of 14 Samuel. And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines. And there was peace between Israel and the Amorites. 15, 16 And Samuel ^mjudged⁶ Israel all the days of his life. And he went from year to year in circuit to Beth-el, and Gilgal, and Mizpeh,⁷ and judged Israel in 17 all those places. And ⁿhis return was to Ramah; for ^othere was his house; and there he judged Israel; and there he ^pbuilt an altar unto the LORD.

give 5,070. Josephus says that only seventy men were slain, which is the reading of three Hebrew manuscripts; and this, in a small town, would be 'a great slaughter.' See note at the end of the Historical Books, p. 516. This infliction was well adapted to impress the minds of the people with that reverence for God of which their conduct with respect to the ark had shown them to be destitute.

1 The meaning of this verse would be more correctly expressed by a free translation thus: 'Now from the time that the ark rested at Kirjath-jearim a long period (as much as twenty years) elapsed before all the house of Israel lamented after the Lord.' It is not intended to specify how long the ark abode there; for it was there when this narrative was written, and till the reign of David (1 Chron. xiii. 6); but to say how long it was before the people were awakened to a sense of their sins. During the interval there seems to have been a sad prevalence of that idolatry and vice, which had caused the destruction of Shiloh (see Jer. vii. 12, 14; xxvi. 6, 9), and the interruption and neglect of the service of the tabernacle.

2 See notes on Judg. ii. 12, 13.

3 This was evidently a symbolical action, which, according to accompanying circumstances and rites, might have different meanings. It was practised in after ages among the Jews, at the feast of tabernacles, as a sign of rejoicing, Isa. xii. 3; John vii. 37, 38. As on this occasion it was united with confession of sin, some (with the Chaldee Paraphrast) regard it as representing penitence and humiliation; others think it was a symbol of a solemn vow.

4 It seems probable that Samuel did this himself, though not of the race of Aaron. His commission appears to have included the temporary exercise of priestly functions: see ver. 17; ix. 13; xvi. 2, 5.

5 That is, 'the tooth': the name, not of a town, but of a rock, from its sharp, angular form.

6 Samuel's judgeship is to be dated probably from the assembly of the Israelites at Mizpeh (vers. 3—5). He was then about forty years old. While the earlier judges were generally distinguished by their warlike qualities, which they employed for the deliverance of the Israelites from external oppression, Samuel is remarkable for his attention to their social order and religious improvement.

7 As these three places were near to one another, in the tribe of Benjamin, it seems that Samuel's regular judicial authority was exercised chiefly among the central and southern tribes.

Misconduct of Samuel's sons; the Israelites desire a king.

8 AND it came to pass, when Samuel was old, that he ^qmade his ^rsons judges
 2 over Israel.¹ Now the name of his firstborn was ^sJoel; and the name of his 3 second, Abiah: they were judges in Beer-sheba. And his sons ^twalked not in his ways, but turned aside ^uafter lucre, and ^xtook bribes, and perverted judgment.
 4 Then all the elders of Israel gathered themselves together, and came to Samuel 5 unto Ramah, and said unto him, Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: now ^ymake us a king² to judge us like all the nations.
 6 But the thing displeased Samuel,³ when they said, Give us a king to judge
 7 us. And Samuel prayed unto the LORD. And the LORD said unto Samuel, ^zHearken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee: for ^athey have not rejected thee, but ^bthey have rejected me, that I should not reign over 8 them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt even unto this day, wherewith they have forsaken 9 me, and served other gods, so do they also unto thee. Now therefore hearken unto [or, obey] their voice: howbeit yet protest solemnly unto them, and ^cshow them the manner of the king that shall reign over them.
 10 And Samuel told all the words of the LORD unto the people that asked of him 11 a king. And he said, ^dThis will be the manner of the king that shall reign over you: ^eHe will take your sons, and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, 12 and to be his horsemen; and some ^fshall run before his chariots. And he will ^gappoint him captains over thousands, and captains over fifties; and will set them to ear his ground, and to reap his harvest, and to make his instruments of 13 war, and instruments of his chariots. And he will take your daughters to be 14 confectionaries,⁵ and to be cooks, and to be bakers. And ^hhe will take your fields, and your vineyards, and your oliveyards, even the best of them, and ⁱgive 15 them to his servants. And he will take the tenth of your seed, and of your vine-16 yards, and give to his officers, and to his servants. And he will take your men-servants, and your maidservants, and your goodliest young men, and your asses, 17 and put them to his work. He will take the tenth of your sheep: and ye shall 18 be his servants. And ye shall cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen you; and the LORD ^kwill not hear you in that day.
 19 Nevertheless the people ^lrefused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, 20 Nay; but we will have a king over us; that we also may be ^mlike all the nations;
 and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles.
 21 And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and he rehearsed them in the ears 22 of the LORD. And the LORD said to Samuel, ⁿHearken unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city.

Designation and appointment of Saul as king.

9 NOW there was a man of Benjamin, whose name was ^oKish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, a Benjamite, a mighty 2 man of power [or, substance]. And he had a son, whose name was Saul, a choice young man, and a goodly: and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: ^pfrom his shoulders and upwards he was higher than any of the people.⁶
 3 And the asses of Kish, Saul's father, were lost. And Kish said to Saul his son, 4 Take now one of the servants with thee, and arise, go seek the asses. And he

² The original constitution of the Jewish state did not require, though it would admit of, a succession of generals or judges, or a race of kings. As the appointment of the former arose from the frequent relapses of the people into idolatry, and their consequent subjugation by their enemies; so the regal institution originated in their culpable desire to resemble the nations around them (see ver. 20). Thus the theocracy was exposed to a temporary obscuration; though God jealously maintained the king's subjection to himself and his law, and was afterwards pleased to make the new system represent future spiritual blessings. For a kingly government was not in itself evil, nor did it infringe on the rights of any other order of public officers; and had, indeed, been provided for in Deut. xvii. 14. But to be immediately under the command of God, and to be, by his special interposition, in answer to fervent prayer, rescued from peril and trouble, was far better. When the Israelites had no earthly king, they might be to human eyes defenceless, yet they were invincible;

without regal splendour, yet gloriously pre-eminent to the heathen nations; with little machinery of government, yet a free and well-ordered people. But, instead of seeking the restoration of their national prosperity by sincere repentance, they chose to give up the peculiar privileges of the theocracy, and to resort to the principles and policy of other nations. So naturally does man prefer his own resources to dependence upon God's help.

³ Samuel's objection was not to the regal government in itself, but to the motives of the people in seeking it.

⁴ This is a description not of what the king would have a right to do (for it is quite contrary to the law of Moses, Deut. xvii. 14—20), but of the practice of the kings of the surrounding nations; and it agrees exactly with Eastern despotism as it exists at the present day.

⁵ Persons who prepared perfumes and spices.

passed through mount Ephraim, and passed through the land of ^rShalisha, but they found them not: then they passed through the land of ^rShalim,¹ and there they were not: and he passed through the land of the Benjamites, but they found them not. And when they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant that was with him, Come, and let us return; lest my father leave caring for the asses, and take thought for us. And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this city² ^aa man of God, and he is an honourable man; [†]all that he saith cometh surely to pass: now let us go thither; peradventure he can show us our way that we should go. Then said Saul to his servant, But, behold, if we go, [‡]what shall we bring the man? for the bread is spent in our vessels, and there is not a present³ to bring to the man of God: what have we? And the servant answered Saul again, and said, Behold, I have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver: that will I give to the man of God, to tell us our way. (Beforetime in Israel, when a man [§]went to inquire of God, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the seer: for he that is now⁴ called a Prophet was beforetime called [¶]a Seer.) Then said Saul to his servant, Well said; come, let us go. So they went unto the city where the man of God was.

And as they went up the hill to the city, [‡]they found young maidens going out to draw water, and said unto them, Is the seer here? And they answered them, and said, He is; behold, he is before you: make haste now, for he came to-day to the city; for ^a*there is* a sacrifice [or, feast] of the people to-day ^bin the high place: as soon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat until he come, because he doth ^cbless the sacrifice; and afterwards they eat that he bidden. Now therefore get you up; for about this time ye shall find him. And they went up into the city: and when they were come into the city, behold, Samuel came out against them, for to go up to the high place.

Now the LORD had told Samuel in his ear a day before Saul came, saying, To-morrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be captain over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines: for I have [§]looked upon my people, because their cry is come unto me. And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him, [§]Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same shall reign over my people.

Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is. And Samuel answered Saul, and said, I am the seer: go up before me unto the high place; for ye shall eat with me to-day, and to-morrow I will let thee go, and will tell thee all that is in thine heart. And as for ^hthine asses that were lost three days ago, set not thy mind on them; for they are found. And on whom⁵ ⁱis all the desire of Israel? Is it not on thee, and on all thy father's house? And Saul answered and said, ^h*Am* not I a Benjamite, of the ^j'smallest of the tribes of Israel? and ^mmy family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? wherefore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel took Saul and his servant, and brought them into the parlour, and made them sit in the chiefest place among them that were bidden, which were about thirty persons. And Samuel said unto the cook, Bring the portion which I gave thee, of which I said unto thee, Set it by thee. And the cook took up ⁿthe shoulder,⁶ and that which was upon it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, Behold that which is left [or, reserved]: set it before thee, and eat: for unto this time hath it been kept for thee since I said, I have invited the people. So Saul did eat with Samuel that day.

And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul upon ^othe top of the house.⁷ And they arose early: and ³ Presents are considered essential to civil and friendly intercourse in the East, particularly when an inferior approaches a superior. The kind and amount of the offering are suited to the offerer's ability; so that articles of food are the most usual presents from the rural population: see ch. xvi. 20. Money, however, even in small sums, is perfectly suitable and acceptable. In the present instance, Saul, having no provision left, determined to offer Samuel a small coin, worth about seven pence.

⁴ The word 'now' probably refers to the latter part of Samuel's life, when this book was written. The verse explains that, at the time when Saul was appointed king, the Hebrew word rendered Seer was usually applied to inspired persons, as being favoured with Divine visions; but that this had since been superseded in common parlance by the term translated prophet, which had been used in the time of Moses, and which seems to have referred to the utterance of Divine revelations.

⁵ Or, 'For whom is that which is most desired in Israel? is it not for thee and for,' etc.

⁶ This was a mark of the highest respect; the shoulder being the priest's portion.

⁷ The flat roofs of the Orientals were used as places of retirement for devotion (as by Peter, Acts x. 9) or for rest, either by night or day; and, as in this instance, for private consultation.

- it came to pass about the spring of the day, that Samuel called Saul to the top of the house, saying, Up, that I may send thee away. And Saul arose: and they went out both of them, he and Samuel, abroad.
- 27 And as they were going down to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, Bid the servant pass on before us, (and he passed on,) but stand thou still a while,
- 10 that I may show thee the word of God. Then ^p Samuel took a vial of oil, and poured it upon his head,¹ and kissed him, and said, Is it not because ^r the
- 2 LORD hath anointed thee to be captain over ^s his inheritance? When thou art departed from me to-day, then thou shalt find two men by 'Rachel's sepulchre in the border of Benjamin ^a at Zelzah; and they will say unto thee, The asses which thou wentest to seek are found: and, lo, thy father hath left the care of
- 3 the asses, and sorroweth for you, saying, What shall I do for my son? Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the plain² of Tabor, and there shall meet thee three men going up ^x to God to Beth-el,³ one carrying three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a
- 4 bottle of wine: and they will salute thee, and give thee two loaves of bread;
- 5 which thou shalt receive of their hands. After that thou shalt come to ^y the hill⁴ of God, ^z where is the garrison of the Philistines: and it shall come to pass, when thou art come thither to the city, that thou shalt meet a company of prophets⁵ coming down ^a from the high place with a psaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and
- 6 a harp, before them; ^b and they shall prophesy: and ^c the Spirit of the LORD will come upon thee, and ^d thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be turned into

And thou shalt go down before me ^h to Gilgal; and, behold, I will come down unto thee, to offer burnt offerings, and to sacrifice sacrifices of peace offerings; ⁱ seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and show thee what thou shalt do.
- 9 And it was so, that when he had turned his back to go from Samuel, God gave
- 10 him ^k another heart:⁶ and all those signs came to pass that day. And ^l when they came thither to the hill, behold, ^m a company of prophets met him; and
- 11 ⁿ the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them. And it came to pass, when all that knew him beforetime saw that, behold, he prophesied among the prophets, then the people said one to another, What is this that is
- 12 come unto the son of Kish? ^o Is Saul also among the prophets? And one of the same place answered and said, But ^p who is their father?⁷ Therefore it became
- 13 a proverb,⁸ Is Saul also among the prophets? And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.
- 14 And Saul's uncle said unto him and to his servant, Whither went ye? And he said, To seek the asses: and when we saw that they were no where, we
- 15 came to Samuel. And Saul's uncle said, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel
- 16 said unto you. And Saul said unto his uncle, He told us plainly that the asses were found. But of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel spake, he told him not.
- 17 And Samuel called the people together ^q unto the LORD ^r to Mizpeh; and said
- 18 unto the children of Israel, ^s Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and

² Or, 'oak': see Gen. xii. 6, and note. Tabor was a small place near Bethel, not the celebrated mountain so called.

³ Going, probably, to sacrifice at Jacob's altar, as the regular observances of the tabernacle were interrupted.

⁴ Perhaps Geba, mentioned in ch. xiii. 3.

⁵ This is the first allusion to the so-called schools of the prophets, of which Samuel is regarded as the founder. In these schools a number of men were trained to discharge the duty of public teachers. By their means the law of God became more generally known; and a decided improvement in the spirit and practice of the people was the result. Besides a knowledge of the law, they were instructed in sacred psalmody or prophesying; that is, in the art of composing and singing sacred hymns, often accompanied by instrumental music. It is remarkable that in this art Samuel's own descendants, 'the sons of Korah,' excelled. From the 'sons (or pupils) of the prophets' God often chose those men to whom he revealed future events. Saul's gift of prophesying on this occasion appears to have consisted in his being enabled to join in these exercises without previous instruction.

⁶ God raised his views and feelings to a correspondence with the high office to which he was destined. There is no evidence of a sanctifying change.

⁷ The name father seems to have been given to the president or instructor of the prophets: see 2 Kings ii. 12; xiii. 14. The question implies wonder as to who the person was from whom he could have obtained his skill in these performances. Some, however, suppose this inquiry to be a reply to the former, and to intimate that, as God was the teacher of other prophets, he could, if he pleased, teach Saul. It is evident that Saul had not been accustomed publicly to engage in sacred exercises.

⁸ That is, when any one was seen to be mingling with persons to whom he had before been a stranger, and for whose society and pursuits his previous education and habits had not prepared him.

this day rejected your God, who himself saved you out of all your adversities and your tribulations; and ye have said unto him, Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore present yourselves before the LORD by your tribes, and by your thousands.

20 And when Samuel had ^acaused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe
21 of Benjamin was taken.¹ When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul the son of Kish was taken: and when they sought him, he could not be found.

22 Therefore they ^ainquired of the LORD further, if the man should yet come thither. And the LORD answered, Behold, ^bhe hath hid himself among the 23 stuff.² And they ran and fetched him thence: and when he stood among the people, ^che was higher than any of the people from his shoulders and upward.

24 And Samuel said to all the people, See ye him ^awhom the LORD hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people? And all the people shouted,
25 and said, ^bGod save the king [Let the king live]. Then Samuel told the people ^cthe manner³ of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the LORD.

26 And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his house. And Saul also went home ^ato Gibeah; and there went with him a band of men, ^cwhose
27 hearts God had touched.⁴ ^dBut the ^echildren of Belial said, How shall this man save us? And they despised him, ^band brought him no presents.⁵ But he held his peace.

Saul's rescue of Jabesh-gilead, and defeat of the Ammonites; confirmation of his authority.

11 THEN ^aNahash the Ammonite came up,⁶ and encamped against ^bJabesh-gilead: and all the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, ^c'Make a covenant with us,
2 and we will serve thee. And Nahash the Ammonite answered them, On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that I may thrust out all your right eyes,⁷ and lay for ^ma reproach upon all Israel.

3 And the elders of Jabesh said unto him, Give us seven days' respite, that we may send messengers unto all the coasts of Israel: and then, if there be no man
4 to save us, we will come out to thee. Then came the messengers ⁿto Gibeah of Saul, and told the tidings in the ears of the people: and ^oall the people lifted up
5 their voices, and wept. And, behold, Saul came after the herd out of the field; and Saul said, What ailth the people that they weep? And they told him the 6 tidings of the men of Jabesh. ^pAnd the Spirit of God⁸ came upon Saul when he
7 heard those tidings, and his anger was kindled greatly. And he took a yoke of oxen, and ^qhewed them in pieces, and sent them throughout all the coasts of Israel by the hands of messengers,⁹ saying, ^rWhosoever cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall it be done unto his oxen. And the fear of the LORD fell on the people, and they came out with one consent [or, as one man^s].

8 And when he numbered them in ^tBezek, the children ^uof Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand.¹⁰

9 And they said unto the messengers that came, Thus shall ye say unto the men of Jabesh-gilead, To-morrow, by that time the sun be hot, ye shall have help [or, deliverance]. And the messengers came and showed it to the men of Jabesh;
10 and they were glad. Therefore the men of Jabesh said, To-morrow ^xwe will come out unto you, and ye shall do with us all that seemeth good unto you.

11 And it was so on the morrow, that ^ySaul put the people ^zin three companies; and they came into the midst of the host in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites until the heat of the day: and it came to pass, that they which remained were scattered, so that two of them were not left together.¹¹

12 And the people said unto Samuel, ^aWho is he that said, Shall Saul reign over 13 us? ^bbring the men, that we may put them to death. And Saul said, ^cThere shall not a man be put to death¹² this day: for to-day ^dthe LORD hath wrought salvation in Israel.

3 Rather, 'the right' or 'constitution' of the monarchy, as settled by the Divine law (Deut. xvii. 14—20); probably with the record of Saul's appointment. The Hebrew monarchy was far less absolute, and left the people much more liberty, than was the case in many Eastern nations.

4 Acknowledging God's will in the election of Saul.

5 A strong mark of disrespect: see note on ch. ix. 7.

6 This invasion seems to have been previously threatened: see 1 Sam. xii. 12. Nahash probably regarded Jabesh-gilead as the key to the country on the west.

7 This barbarous infliction has been practised in Persia down to a very recent period. Not only was it a lasting disgrace, but it would prevent the use of the larger shields, which necessarily covered the left eye.

8 See note on Judg. xiv. 6.

9 A symbolical action, like that recorded in Judg. xix. 29.

10 This was evidently a collection of all the available male population.

11 The Ammonites were so prostrated as to attempt no new hostilities till the latter part of David's reign (2 Sam. x.) How gratefully the men of Jabesh-gilead remembered this deliverance is seen in ch. xxxi. 11—13.

12 Saul's conduct upon this occasion would serve to increase his popularity, of which Samuel wisely took

14 Then said Samuel to the people, Come, and let us go ^e to Gilgal, and renew the

12 AND Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, I have hearkened unto ^h your voice the king ^k walketh before you: ^l and I am old and gray-headed; and, behold, my they answered, He is witness.

6 And Samuel said unto the people, It is the LORD that advanced Moses and

18 So Samuel called unto the LORD; and ^e the LORD sent thunder and rain that advantage, in order to obtain a solemn recognition of his royal dignity at Gilgal. In all these transactions Samuel acts towards both the king and the people with a graceful dignity, which forms a noble close to his own political life, as well as to the patriotic actions of that succession of Divinely-appointed judges of whom he was the last.

1 Such judicial integrity has always been extremely rare amongst Oriental nations.

2 No judge of this name is mentioned elsewhere. The Sept., Syr., and Arab., have 'Barak.' See also Heb. xi. 32.

3 The Syriac and Arabic versions have 'Samson,' which in the Hebrew is very similar to 'Samuel.' This, also, is favoured by Heb. xi. 32.

4 Rain is almost unknown in Palestine during wheat-harvest, which occupies the latter part of May and June. In predicting it at such a time, Samuel was giving a sure and striking proof that he spoke by Divine authority.

5 The prevalence of Samuel's intercession is honourably connected with that of the great lawgiver in Ps. xcix. 6; Jer. xv. 1.

Renewed invasions and oppressions of the Philistines; Saul's disobedience.

- 13 SAUL reigned one² year; and when he had reigned two years over Israel, 2 Saul chose him three thousand men of Israel; whereof two thousand were with Saul in Michmash and in mount Beth-el, and a thousand were with Jonathan in ^v Gibeah of Benjamin: and the rest of the people he sent every man to his tent.
 3 And Jonathan smote ^z the garrison of the Philistines that was in Geba, and the Philistines heard of it. And Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, 4 saying, Let the Hebrews hear. And all Israel heard say that Saul had smitten a garrison of the Philistines, and that Israel also was had in abomination with the Philistines. And the people were called together after Saul to Gilgal.
 5 And the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight with Israel, thirty thousand³ chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and people ^a as the sand which is on the sea shore in multitude: and they came up, and pitched in Michmash, eastward from Beth-aven.
 6 When the men of Israel saw that they were in a strait, (for the people were distressed,) then the people ^b did hide themselves in caves, and in thickets, and 7 in rocks, and in high places, and in pits. And some of the Hebrews ^c went over Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul, he was yet in Gilgal, and 8 all the people followed him trembling. ^d And he tarried seven days, according to the set time that Samuel had appointed: but Samuel came not to Gilgal; and 9 the people were scattered from him. And Saul said, Bring hither a burnt offering to me, and peace offerings. And he offered the burnt offering.
 10 And it came to pass, that as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering, behold, Samuel came; and Saul went out to meet him, that he might 11 salute him. And Samuel said, What hast thou done? And Saul said, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed,⁴ and that the Philistines gathered themselves together at 12 Michmash; therefore said I, The Philistines will come down now upon me to Gilgal, and I have not made supplication unto the LORD: I forced myself there-13 fore, and offered⁵ a burnt offering. And Samuel said to Saul, 'Thou hast done foolishly; ^f thou hast not kept the commandment of the LORD thy God, which he commanded thee: for now would the LORD have established thy kingdom upon 14 Israel for ever. ^g But now thy kingdom shall not continue: ^h the LORD hath sought⁶ him a man after his own heart, and the LORD hath commanded him to be captain over his people, because thou hast not kept that which the LORD commanded thee.

1 Samuel, in this address, presents the king in his right position, as placed over Israel, but under Jehovah, the only true Sovereign of Israel; and solemnly warns the people of the insufficiency of that human power in which they trusted to protect them, without the favour or against the displeasure of God.

2 The former part of this verse is either wanting, or altered, in the ancient versions. The words in the Hebrew form the peculiar phrase always used to denote the age of a king at his accession, and the length of his reign; only, as the margin of the Hebrew Bible suggests, some of the numbers are lost. If rendered here as elsewhere, the passage would read, 'Saul was years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two years over Israel.' See 2 Sam. ii. 10; v. 4, etc. In Acts xiii. 21, the apostle Paul mentions a round number, forty years, as the length of this reign; from which it may be supposed to have lasted forty-two years.

3 There is doubtless an error in the number here, and in 1 Chron. xix. 7. We nowhere find so many chariots ascribed to the most powerful monarchs as are here attributed to the small nation of the Philistines. Thus Pharaoh pursued the Israelites with six hundred chariots, even 'all the chariots of Egypt;' and Solomon, in the height of his glory, had not more than fourteen hundred chariots. The Syriac and Arabic versions read 'three thousand;' but this number seems still too large, even if the carriages for baggage and booty are included. See general note on numbers, in page 516.

4 Samuel came within the time appointed, though not at its very commencement. He had probably delayed his coming in order to test Saul's obedience.

5 Saul would not venture to engage the enemy without offering a sacrifice; and yet he presumed to offer sacrifice himself, though he was neither priest nor prophet.

6 The Septuagint renders, 'the Lord will seek,' etc.

7 The Hebrew here (as well as in ver. 16, and in ch. xiv. 5) is 'Geba;' the same place from which the Philistine garrison had been expelled (ver. 3). The Greek version is, 'And the remnant of the people went after Saul with the men of war: and when they were come from Gilgal unto Gibeah,' etc.

the way to ^m Beth-horon: and another company turned to the way of the border that looketh to the valley of ⁿ Zeboim toward the wilderness.

- 19 Now ^o there was no smith¹ found throughout all the land of Israel: for the 20 Philistines said, Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears: but all the 21 Israelites went down to the Philistines,² to sharpen every man his share, and his 22 coulters, and his ax, and his mattock. (Yet they had a file for the mattocks, and for the coulters, and for the forks, and for the axes, and to sharpen the 23 goads.) So it came to pass in the day of battle, that ^p there was neither sword nor spear³ found in the hand of any of the people that were with Saul and Jonathan: but with Saul and with Jonathan his son was there found.

23 ^q And the garrison of the Philistines went out to the passage of Michmash.⁴

Jonathan's exploits; Saul's rash adjuration and its consequences.

- 14 NOW it came to pass upon a day, that Jonathan the son of Saul said unto the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over to the Philistines' garrison, that is on the other side. But he told not his father. And Saul tarried in the uttermost part of Gibeah under a pomegranate tree⁵ which is in Migron: and the people that were with him were ^r about six hundred men; and ^s Ahiah,⁶ the son of Ahitub, 'I-chabod's brother, the son of Phinehas, the son of Eli, the LORD's priest in Shiloh, "wearing an ephod. And the people knew not that Jonathan was gone. And between the passages, by which Jonathan sought to go over ^z unto the Philistines' garrison, there was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side: and the name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Seneh. The forefront of the one was situate northward over against Michmash, and the other southward over against Gibeah. And Jonathan said to the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over unto the garrison of these ^y uncircumcised: it may be that the LORD will work for us: for there is no restraint to the LORD ^z to save by many or by few. And his armourbearer said unto him, Do all that is in thine heart: turn thee; behold, I am with thee according to thy heart. Then said Jonathan, Behold, we will pass over unto these men, and we will discover ourselves unto them. If they say thus unto us, Tarry until we come to you; then we will stand still in our place, and will not go up unto them. But if they say thus, Come up unto us; then we will go up: for the LORD hath delivered them into our hand: and ^a this shall be a sign unto us.
- 11 And both of them discovered themselves unto the garrison of the Philistines: and the Philistines said, Behold, the Hebrews come forth out of the holes where they had hid themselves.⁷ And the men of the garrison answered Jonathan and his armourbearer, and said, ^b Come up to us, and we will show you a thing. ^c And Jonathan said unto his armourbearer, Come up after me: for the LORD hath delivered them into the hand of Israel. And Jonathan climbed up upon his hands and upon his feet, and his armourbearer after him: and ^d they fell before Jonathan; and his armourbearer slew after him. And that first slaughter, which Jonathan and his armourbearer made, was about twenty men, within as it were an half acre of land, which a yoke of oxen might plow.⁸
- 15 And ^e there was trembling in the host, in the field, and among all the people: the garrison, and ^f the spoilers, they also trembled, and the earth quaked:⁹ so it was ^g a very great trembling.
- 16 And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked; and, behold, the multitude ^h melted away, and they ⁱ went on beating down one another. Then said Saul unto the people that were with him, Number now, and see who is gone from us. And when they had numbered, behold, Jonathan and his armourbearer were not there. And Saul said unto Ahiah, ^k Bring hither the ark of God.¹⁰

¹ A similar policy was pursued by the Chaldeans (2 Kings xxiv. 14; Jer. xxiv. 1; xxix. 2); and Porsenna bound the Roman people to use no iron, except in tilling their fields (Pliny, Nat. Hist. 34, 14).

² That is, to the garrisons which the Philistines maintained in several parts of the land of Israel.

³ They had, however, slings, and probably bows and arrows, and ox-goads.

⁴ This seems to have been a narrow defile north of Gibeah, still called Mukhmas, in which were the lofty rocks mentioned in ch. xiv. 4, 5; forming a kind of military key to the surrounding country. See Isa. x. 28, 29.

⁵ Heb., 'Rimmon:' meaning, probably, a rock near Gibeah, mentioned in Judg. xx. 20, 45.

⁶ It is doubtful whether this is a brother and predecessor of Ahimelech mentioned in ch. xxii. 9, or a variation of the name of that high priest, according to a custom of Jewish writers.

⁷ The Philistines supposed them to be Hebrews who had hid themselves in caverns, and had now come to them as deserters, as others had done: see ver. 21.

⁸ That is, in one day. The Hebrew phrase is a concise idiom, needing such a paraphrase as the text gives.

¹⁰ The Sept. has, 'Bring hither the ephod; for on that day he wore the ephod before Israel:' see ver. 3; ch. xxiii. 9; xxx. 7. The words of Uriah, in 2 Sam. xi. 11, seem to intimate that the ark was then with the army.

19 For ^lthe ark of God was at that time with the children of Israel. And it came to pass, while Saul ^mtalked unto the priest, that the noise [or, tumult] that was in the host of the Philistines went on and increased: and Saul said unto the priest, Withdraw thine hand. And Saul and all the people that were with him assembled themselves, and they came to the battle: and, behold, ⁿevery man's sword was against his fellow, and there was a very great discomfiture. Moreover the Hebrews that were with the Philistines before that time, which went up with them into the camp from the country round about, even they also turned to be with the Israelites that were with Saul and Jonathan. Likewise all the men of Israel which ^ohad hid themselves in mount Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, even they also followed hard after them in the battle. ^pSo the LORD saved Israel that day: and the battle passed over ^qunto Beth-aven.

24 And the men of Israel were distressed that day; for Saul had ^radjured¹ the people, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food until evening, that I may be avenged on mine enemies. So none of the people tasted any food. ^sAnd all they of the land came to a wood; and there was ^t'honey² upon the ground. And when the people were come into the wood, behold, the honey dropped; but no man put his hand to his mouth: for the people feared the oath. But Jonathan heard not when his father charged the people with the oath: wherefore he put forth the end of the rod that was in his hand, and dipped it in an honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his eyes were enlightened.³ Then answered one of the people, and said, Thy father straitly charged the people with an oath, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food this day. And the people were faint. Then said Jonathan, My father hath ^u'troubled the land: see, I pray you, how mine eyes have been enlightened, because I tasted a little of this honey. How much more, if haply the people had eaten freely to-day of the spoil of their enemies which they found? for had there not been now a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?

31 And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Aijalon: and the people were very faint. And the people flew upon the spoil, and took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground: and the people did eat them ^v'with the blood. Then they told Saul, saying, Behold, the people sin against the LORD, in that they eat with the blood. And he said, Ye have transgressed: roll a great stone unto me this day. And Saul said, Disperse yourselves among the people, and say unto them, Bring me hither every man his ox, and every man his sheep, and slay them here, and eat; and sin not against the LORD in eating with the blood. And all the people brought every man his ox with him that night, and slew them there. And Saul ^x'built an altar unto the LORD: the same was the first altar that he built unto the LORD.

36 And Saul said, Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. ^yThen said the priest,⁴ Let us draw near hither unto God. And Saul asked counsel of God, Shall I go down after the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into the hand of Israel? But ^zhe answered him not that day.

38 And Saul said, ^a'Draw ye near hither all the chief of the people: and know and see wherein this sin hath been this day. For, ^b'as the LORD liveth, which saveth Israel, though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die.⁵ But there was not a man among all the people that answered him. Then said he unto all Israel, Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side. And the people said unto Saul, Do what seemeth good unto thee. Therefore Saul said unto the LORD God of Israel, ^c'Give a perfect lot.⁶ ^dAnd Saul and Jonathan were taken: but the people escaped. And Saul said, Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son. And Jonathan was taken. Then Saul said to Jonathan, ^e'Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, ^f'I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in mine hand, and, lo, I must die. And Saul answered, ^g'God do so and more also: ^hfor

² In many countries wild bees form their combs in the hollow trunks, and between or among the branches of trees; so that the honey often drops on the ground.

³ That is, he was refreshed; alluding to the dimness of sight which frequently accompanies exhaustion.

⁴ He evidently doubted the propriety of Saul's conduct, and aimed to check his self-sufficiency and haste.

⁵ This is another instance of Saul's precipitancy. It was not yet known what the crime was; or whether, if it really deserved death, it might not be expiated by a sin-offering.

⁶ Perhaps, 'Show the innocent;' or rather, 'Show the truth.'

45 thou shalt surely die, Jonathan. And the people said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: as the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought 46 with God this day. So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not. Then Saul went up from following the Philistines: and the Philistines went to their own place.

Saul's wars; his family.

47 SO Saul took the kingdom over Israel, and fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, and against the children of ^k Ammon, and against Edom, and against the kings of ^l Zobah, and against the Philistines: and whither-
48 soever he turned himself, he vexed them. And he gathered an host [or, wrought mightily], and ^m smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out of the hands of them that spoiled them.

49 Now ⁿ the sons of Saul were Jonathan, and Ishui, and Melchi-shua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the name of the firstborn Merab, and the 50 name of the younger Michal: and the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz: and the name of the captain of his host was Abner, the 51 son of Ner, Saul's uncle. ^o And Kish was the father of Saul; and Ner the father 52 of Abner was the son of Abiel. And there was sore war against the Philistines all the days of Saul. And when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, ^p he took him unto him.

Saul's commission against the Amalekites; his disobedience, and consequent rejection.

15 SAMUEL also said unto Saul, ^q The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people, over Israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the
2 words of the LORD.¹ Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel, ^r how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up 3 from Egypt.² Now go and smite Amalek, and ^s utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but ^t 'slay' both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

4 And Saul gathered the people together, and numbered them in Telaim, two 5 hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah. And Saul came to 6 a city of Amalek, and laid wait [or, fought] in the valley. And Saul said unto ^u the Kenites, ^v Go, depart, get you down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for ^y ye showed kindness to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. So the Kenites departed from among the 7 Amalekites. ^z And Saul smote the Amalekites from ^a Havilah⁴ until thou comest 8 to ^b Shur, that is over against Egypt. And ^c he took Agag the king of the Amalekites alive, and ^d utterly destroyed all the people⁵ with the edge of the 9 sword. But Saul and the people ^e spared Agag, and the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and of the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was good, and would not utterly destroy them: but every thing that was vile and refuse, that they destroyed utterly.

10, 11 Then came the word of the LORD unto Samuel, saying, ^f It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is ^g turned back from following me, ^h and hath not performed my commandments. And it ⁱ grieved Samuel; and he cried 12 unto the LORD all night. And when Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to ^k Carmel, and, behold, he set him up a place,⁶ and is gone about, and passed on, and gone down to Gilgal.

13 And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, ^l Blessed be thou of the

1 God did not finally reject Saul till he had given him another opportunity of recovering his favour. But his repeated disobedience sealed his doom.

2 The Amalekites had always been implacable enemies to Israel. Their unprovoked cruelty, related in Exod. xvii. 8—16, had called forth a Divine decree which was recorded against them (Deut. xxv. 17—19). They had been parties to many of the confederacies formed against Israel (see Numb. xiv. 45; Judg. iii. 13; vi. 3; Psal. lxxxiii. 7); and they had recently spoiled the land (ch. xiv. 48). Thus, like the nations of Canaan, they had long experienced Divine forbearance; but had only gone on to fill up the measure of their sins.

3 In Saul's time, and long afterwards, the customs of war were so thoroughly barbarous, that when lives were spared, it was not from motives of humanity, but from avarice or lust. This command, therefore, to Saul and the Israelites was not only a judicial sentence, but a test of their self-denial, in giving up the slaves, the female captives, and the rest of the booty, and acting as men who fought for God only, and not for themselves. In direct disobedience to this command, Saul spared the best of the sheep and oxen, for the purpose of having a great sacrificial feast; and he spared Agag, in order to have the glory of exhibiting a captive king eating bread under his table. He certainly could not plead humanity as his motive, inasmuch as the women and children had been destroyed.

4 'Havilah' appears to be the name of the whole desert south-east of Palestine as far as Chaldaea.

5 That is, the great mass of the people. A portion escaped: see ch. xxvii. 8; xxx. 18.

6 Literally, 'a hand;' some memorial of his victory. In various countries, a red hand is found on monuments. This 'Carmel' was in the south-east of Judah.

What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the 15 oxen which I hear? And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites:
 "for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto 16 the LORD thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed. Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, and I will tell thee what the LORD hath said to me this night.
 And he said unto him, Say on.

17 And Samuel said, "When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and p the LORD anointed thee king over 18 Israel? And the LORD sent thee on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites, and fight against them until they be consumed.
 19 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the 20 spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD? And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, q I have obeyed the voice of the LORD, and have gone the way which the LORD sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly 21 destroyed the Amalekites. r But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal.

22 And Samuel said, s Hath the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, t to obey is better than 23 sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. For u rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft¹ [divination²], and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, v he hath also rejected thee from being 24 king. z And Saul said unto Samuel, I have sinned: for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD, and thy words: because I a feared the people,² and 25 obeyed their voice. Now therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sin, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD.

26 And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee: b for thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king 27 over Israel. And as Samuel turned about to go away, c he laid hold upon the 28 skirt of his mantle, and it rent. And Samuel said unto him, d The LORD hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, e and hath given it to a neighbour 29 of thine, that is better than thou. And also f the Strength³ of Israel g will not lie 30 nor h repent: for he is not a man, that he should repent. Then he said, I have sinned: yet i honour me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD thy God.
 31 So Samuel turned again after Saul; and Saul worshipped the LORD.

32 Then said Samuel, Bring ye hither to me Agag the king of the Amalekites.
 And Agag came unto him delicately.⁴ And Agag said, Surely the bitterness of 33 death is past. And Samuel said, h As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel hewed⁵ Agag in pieces before the LORD in Gilgal.

34 Then Samuel went to Ramah; and Saul went up to his house to l Gibeah of 35 Saul. And m Samuel came no more to see Saul until the day of his death: nevertheless Samuel n mourned for Saul.

1 Witchcraft was a sin against which Saul zealously enforced the law: see ch. xxviii. 3. This was, therefore, a most cutting rebuke.

2 While confessing his fault, he excused it: than which nothing is more common. His chief anxiety was to save his credit with the people.

3 Or, 'Truth;' that is, He who is true.

4 Rather, 'cheerfully.' Agag seems not to have expected death, as the king had spared him.

5 Treating the warlike chief as a murderer. It was not uncommon for distinguished criminals to be executed by the hands of eminent rulers.

6 The following events happened long after those related in the last chapter. Chapters xvi.—xviii. present some difficulties as to the chronological order of the events, arising chiefly from ch. xvii. 1—xviii. 9. David is spoken of in ch. xvi. as 'a mighty valiant man, and a man of war,' and as Saul's beloved minstrel and armour-bearer; though in ch. xvii. he is called a 'youth' and a 'stripling;' and appears to be unknown to Saul, and ignorant of the use and weight of his armour. Some critics, following the Vatican manuscript of the Septuagint version, omit ch. xvii. 12—31, 55—58; xviii. 1—5, 9—11, 17—19, besides a few short clauses; but this great and improbable omission leaves the main difficulties in full force. Others, with rather better success as to the object in view, but without any authority, transpose ch. xvi. 14—23, placing it after ch. xviii. 9. Although it is perhaps not possible at present to remove every perplexity, it appears best to suppose that, as Samuel's narrative was now drawing to a close, only such things were mentioned by him as seemed necessary to complete it: and that the prophet who afterwards continued David's history inserted in the latter portion of Samuel's narrative the account of David's great exploit against Goliath (ch. xvii. 1—xviii. 9), together with a short notice of some preceding and succeeding events, which were in part contemporaneous with occurrences recorded by Samuel in ch. xvi. and ch. xviii. It is not improbable that the early part of the history of David was written by the prophet Gad, who was the companion of his wanderings and exile. See ch. xxii. 5; 1 Chron. xxix. 29.

² Samuel probably made unexpected visits to correct irregularities in the local administration of justice.

³ Rather, 'and;' meaning seven altogether; David, the eighth, not being included, as he had not yet been introduced: see ch. xvii. 12. As in 1 Chron. ii. 13—15, only seven sons of Jesse are named, inclusive of David, it is supposed that one died before David came to the throne.

⁴ This passage agrees with others in indicating that David was but little thought of in his family; for he was left in the field, though all the family were invited to the sacrifice and feast. He was now probably about fifteen years old.

⁵ Heb., 'beautiful eyes.'

⁶ Saul having forsaken God, God righteously withheld from him those assistances by which he had been directed, animated, and encouraged in his government and wars.

⁷ The denunciations of Samuel produced a deep melancholy in Saul's mind, which is here ascribed to 'an evil spirit from the Lord.'

⁸ Or, 'Jesse took a homer of bread.' The homer contained ten ephahs, or about nine bushels.

⁹ Thus David was placed in circumstances in which he might learn the art of war and the business of government, and enlarge his knowledge of human character.

¹⁰ The harp of the Hebrews was very different from the instrument which bears that name among us. It was a light, portable, stringed instrument more like a lyre.

 5 ^fGoliath, of ^gGath,² whose height³ was six cubits and a span. And he had an helmet of brass upon his head, and he was armed with a coat of mail;⁴ and the 6 weight⁵ of the coat was five thousand shekels of brass. And he had greaves⁶ of 7 brass upon his legs, and a target⁷ of brass between his shoulders. And the ^hstaff of his spear was like a weaver's beam; and his spear's head weighed six hundred 8 shekels of iron: and one bearing a shield went before him. And he stood and cried unto the armies of Israel, and said unto them, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? am not I a Philistine, and ye ⁱservants to Saul? choose 9 you a man for you, and let him come down to me. If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants: but if I prevail against him, 10 and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and ^kserve us. And the Philistine said, I ^ldefy the armies of Israel this day; give me a man, that we may fight 11 together. When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed, and greatly afraid.
- 12 Now David was ^mthe son of that ⁿEphrathite of Beth-lehem-judah, whose name was Jesse; and he had ^oeight sons: and the man went among men for an 13 old man in the days of Saul. And the three eldest sons of Jesse went and followed Saul to the battle: and the ^pnames of his three sons that went to the battle were Eliab the firstborn, and next unto him Abinadab, and the third 14 Shammah. And David was the youngest: and the three eldest followed Saul.
 15 But David went and returned from Saul ^qto feed his father's sheep at Beth-lehem.
 16 And the Philistine drew near morning and evening, and presented himself forty days.
- 17 And Jesse said unto David his son, Take now for thy brethren an ephah of 18 this parched corn, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren; and carry these ten cheeses unto the captain of their thousand, and ^rlook how thy brethren fare, and take their pledge.⁸
- 19 Now Saul, and they, and all the men of Israel, were in the valley of Elah, 20 fighting with the Philistines. And David rose up early in the morning, and left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went, as Jesse had commanded him; and he came to the trench [or, place of the carriage^s], as the host was going forth to 21 the fight, and shouted for the battle. For Israel and the Philistines had put the 22 battle in array, army against army. And David left his carriage [the vessels from upon him] in the hand of the keeper of the carriage, and ran into the army, 23 and came and saluted his brethren. And as he talked with them, behold, there came up the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, out of the armies of the Philistines, and spake ^taccording to the same words: and David heard 24 them. And all the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled from him, and were sore afraid.
- 25 And the men of Israel said, Have ye seen this man that is come up? surely to defy Israel is he come up: and it shall be, that the man who killeth him, the king will enrich him with great riches, and ^uwill give him his daughter, and make his father's house ^vfree⁹ in Israel.
- 26 And David spake to the men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away ^ythe reproach from Israel?
 for who is this ^zuncircumcised Philistine, that he should ^adefy the armies of 27 ^bthe living God? And the people answered him after this manner, saying, ^cSo shall it be done to the man that killeth him.
- 28 And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men; and Eliab's ^danger was kindled against David, and he said, Why camest thou down hither?

1 'Elah' means a terebinth-tree. The part of the valley where the conflict took place is supposed to be about six miles to the west of Jerusalem.

2 Goliath was descended from the race of Anakim, who had been almost exterminated by Joshua, but of whom a few had still remained in Gaza, Gath, and Askelon. See Numb. xiii. 32, 33; Josh. xi. 21, 22.

3 Reckoning the cubit at twenty-one inches, Goliath would be upwards of eleven feet four inches in height: but taking the more probable computation of eighteen inches to the cubit, his height would be nine feet nine inches.

4 This coat of mail was probably composed of plates of metal, overlapping each other like the scales of a fish.

5 This is variously calculated as 150 or 200 lbs., according to different estimates of the shekel. The weight of his spear's head was probably from 16 to 24 lbs.

6 Coverings for the leg, reaching from the ankle to the top of the knee, and made of hide, sometimes covered with copper.

7 This more probably means, as in Josh. viii. 18, a 'spear,' or light lance slung over the shoulders.

8 Rather, 'bring from them a token;' some kindly acknowledgment of their father's present.

9 That is, free from tribute and taxes.

and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle. And David said, 'What have I now done? ^f Is there not a cause?'¹ And he turned from him toward another, and ^g spake after the same manner: and the people answered him again after the former manner. And when the words were heard which David spake, they rehearsed them before Saul: and he sent for him.

And David said to Saul, ^h Let no man's heart fail because of him; ⁱ thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saul said to David, ^k Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him: for thou art but a youth, and he a man of war from his youth. And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, and a bear,² and took a lamb out of the flock: and I went out after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him. Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear: and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God. David said moreover, ^l The LORD that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said unto David, Go, and ^m the LORD be with thee.

And Saul armed David with his armour,³ and he put an helmet of brass upon his head; also he armed him with a coat of mail. And David girded his sword upon his armour, and he assayed to go; for he had not proved it. And David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them. And David put them off him. And he took his staff in his hand,⁴ and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them in a shepherd's bag which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand:⁵ and he drew near to the Philistine. And the Philistine came on and drew near unto David; and the man that bare the shield went before him.

And when the Philistine looked about, and saw David, he ⁿ disdained him: for he was but a youth, and ^o ruddy, and of a fair countenance. And the Philistine said unto David, ^p Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves?⁶ And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. And the Philistine ^q said to David, Come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.

Then said David to the Philistine, ^r Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: ^s but I come to thee in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast ^t defied. This day will the LORD deliver thee into mine hand; and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give ^u the carcasses of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; ^x that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel. And all this assembly shall know that the LORD ^y saveth not with sword and spear: for ^z the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hands.

And it came to pass, when the Philistine arose, and came and drew nigh to meet David, that David hasted, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine. And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and ^a smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth. So ^b David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him. But there was ^c no sword in the hand of David; therefore David ran, and stood upon the Philistine, and ^d took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him, and cut off his head⁷ therewith.

And when the Philistines saw their champion was dead, ^e they fled. And the ¹ Some take this to mean, 'Was it more than a word?' a small thing to occasion such anger. But more probably it is an idiom, meaning, 'Is the thing not so?' i. e. 'Have I not spoken right?' David, animated by a truly pious patriotism, saw in the gigantic Philistine only an insolent enemy of Jehovah, who would surely enable any one relying on his aid to overcome him. This narrative admirably illustrates the manner in which true faith in God views, assails, and conquers enemies and obstacles, at which mere human courage quails.

² Not both at once, for they do not hunt together. This incident shows the dangers of an Eastern shepherd's life, and the courage which its duties required.

³ That is, with armour taken out of Saul's armoury; or rather, 'with his vestments or garments.'

⁴ The shepherds in the East carry a bag for victuals, and a staff, which they hold in the middle, to beat the low brushwood into which the sheep stray. They are to this day particularly expert in the use of the sling.

⁵ The Achæans are said to have thrown with such precision as to strike any part of the face they chose, and with such force as to shatter the strongest armour.

⁶ Goliath seems to have seen only the staff which David had in one hand, and not the sling in the other.

⁷ This was a customary token of victory in these countries, and still is so: see ch. xxxi. 9.

¹ Jonathan's ardent friendship for David began with admiration of his faith and courage in this great exploit, and evidently resulted from that spirit of patriotic piety which these two noble-minded men so strikingly displayed. This friendship appears to have increased as Jonathan became better acquainted with his friend's eminent virtues; overcoming, as his subsequent disinterested conduct shows, all considerations of self-interest: see ch. xx.; xxiii. 16, 17.

² Ancient poets represent their heroes as exchanging armour in token of friendship; and, in Eastern countries, a prince can scarcely bestow a greater mark of his favour than by the gift of some article of his dress, especially if he has already worn it.

³ Or, Philistines. These verses probably mention by anticipation some occurrences which took place at various times when David returned with Saul from following up the first victory over the Philistines. See note on ch. xvi. 1.

⁴ This word seems here to signify, being in a highly excited state, or phrensy.

22 And Saul commanded his servants, saying, Commune with David secretly, and say, Behold, the king hath delight in thee, and all his servants love thee: now therefore be the king's son-in-law. And Saul's servants spake those words in the ears of David. And David said, Seemeth it to you a light thing to be a king's son-in-law, seeing that I am a poor man, and lightly esteemed? And the servants of Saul told him, saying, On this manner spake David. And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, The king desireth not any x dowry,¹ but an hundred foreskins of the Philistines,² to be y avenged of the king's enemies. But Saul z thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines. And when his servants told David these words, it pleased David well to be the king's son-in-law. And a the days were not expired;³ wherefore David arose and went, he and b his men, and slew of the Philistines two hundred⁴ men; and c David brought their foreskins, and they gave them in full tale to the king, that he might be the king's son-in-law. And Saul gave him Michal his daughter to wife. And Saul d saw and knew that the LORD was with David, and that Michal Saul's daughter loved him. And Saul was yet the more afraid of David; and Saul became David's enemy continually. Then the princes of the Philistines e went forth: and it came to pass, after they went forth, that David f behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul; so that his name was g much set by.

19 And Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David. But Jonathan Saul's son h delighted much in David: and i Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee: now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself: and I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee; and what I see, that I will tell thee.

4 And Jonathan k spake good of David unto Saul his father, and said unto him, Let not the king l sin against his servant, against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good: for he did put his m life in his hand, and n slew the Philistine, and o the LORD wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoice: p wherefore then wilt thou q sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause? And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan: and Saul sware, As the LORD liveth, he shall not be slain. And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan showed him all those things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, r as in times past.

8 And there was war again: and David went out, and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter; and they fled from him.

David escapes from Saul, and flees to Samuel at Ramah.

9 AND s the evil spirit from the LORD was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand: and David played with his hand. And Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin; but he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall: and David fled, and escaped that night. t Saul also sent messengers unto David's house, to watch⁵ him, and to slay him in the morning:⁶ and Michal David's wife told him, saying, If thou save not thy life to-night, to-morrow thou shalt be slain. So Michal u let David down through a window: and he went, and fled, and escaped. And Michal took an image,⁷ and laid it in the bed, and put a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster, and covered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, He is sick. And Saul sent the messengers again to see David, saying, Bring him up to me in the bed,⁸ that I may slay him. And when the messengers were come in, behold, there was an image in the bed, with a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster. And Saul said unto Michal, Why hast thou deceived me so, and sent away mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me, Let me go; x why should I kill thee?

18 So David fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel to y Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth. And it was told Saul, saying, Behold, David is at Naioth in Ramah. And z Saul sent 23 messengers again the third time, and they prophesied also. Then went he also 24 to Ramah, and came to a great well that is in Sechu: and he asked and said, 25 Where are Samuel and David? And one said, Behold, they be at Naioth in Ramah.

 26 And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah: and ^dthe Spirit of God was upon him
 27 also, and he went on, and prophesied,¹ until he came to Naioth in Ramah. ^eAnd he stripped off his clothes also, and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and lay down ^fnaked all that day and all that night. Wherefore they say,² Is Saul also among the prophets?

The friendship and covenant of David and Jonathan.

20 AND David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and came and said before Jonathan,
 What have I done? what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father, 2 that he seeketh my life? And he said unto him, God forbid; thou shalt not die:
 behold, my father will do nothing either great or small, but that he will show it 3 me: and why should my father hide this thing from me? it is not so. And David sware moreover, and said, Thy father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thine eyes; and he saith, Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved:
 4 ^hbut truly as the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death. Then said Jonathan unto David, Whatsoever thy soul desireth, I will even do it for thee.
 5 And David said unto Jonathan, Behold, to-morrow is the 'new moon,³ and I should not fail to sit with the king at meat: but let me go, that I may ⁱhide 6 myself in the field unto the third day at even. If thy father at all miss me, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me that he might run ^j'to Beth-lehem his 7 city: for there is a yearly sacrifice [or, feast^m] there for all the family. ⁿIf he say thus, It is well; thy servant shall have peace: but if he be very wroth, then 8 be sure that ^oevil is determined by him. Therefore thou shalt ^pdeal kindly with thy servant; for ^qthou hast brought thy servant into a covenant of the LORD with thee: notwithstanding, ^rif there be in me iniquity, slay me thyself; for why shouldst thou bring me to thy father?
 9 And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee: for if I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee, then would not I tell it thee?
 10 Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me? or what if thy father answer 11 thee roughly? And Jonathan said unto David, Come, and let us go out into the 12 field. And they went out both of them into the field. And Jonathan said unto David, O LORD God of Israel,⁴ when I have sounded my father about to-morrow any time, or the third day, and, behold, if there be good toward David, and I 13 then send not unto thee, and show it thee; ^sthe LORD do so and much more to Jonathan: but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will show it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace: and ^t'the LORD be with thee, 14 as he hath been with my father. And thou shalt not only while yet I live show 15 me the kindness of the LORD, that I die not: but also ^uthou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house for ever: no, not when the LORD hath cut off the enemies⁵ 16 of David every one from the face of the earth. So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, ^vLet the LORD even require it at the hand of 17 David's enemies.⁶ And Jonathan caused David to swear again, because he loved him [or, by his love toward him]: for ^whe loved him as he loved his own soul.
 18 Then Jonathan said to David, ^xTo-morrow is the new moon: and thou shalt 19 be missed, because thy seat will be empty. And when thou hast stayed three days,⁷ then thou shalt go down quickly, and come to ^y'the place where thou didst hide thyself when the business was in hand, and shalt remain by the stone Ezel 20 [or, that sheweth the way]. And I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof, as

¹ The messengers whom Saul sent were constrained, by a Divine impulse, to join in the exercises of the holy men whom they found there: and even Saul himself was visited in like manner; and throwing off his outer robes (which is all that the word 'naked' means), retaining only his inner vesture and his girdle, lay as it were in a trance, during which it is probable that David made his escape from Ramah, and returned to Gibeah, in order to get another interview with Jonathan.

² This revived the use of the proverb, which originated on another occasion: see ch. x. 11.

³ A sacrifice and feast took place every new moon (see Numb. x. 10; xxviii. 11); and on such occasions David was accustomed to join the king's family.

⁴ Rather, 'The Lord God of Israel (when I have,' etc., 'thee), the Lord do so,' etc. The sentence is interrupted by the violence of his feelings.

⁵ Jonathan shows his firm belief in David's advancement, and that entire freedom from ambitious jealousy which springs from true religious friendship.

⁶ That is, 'May he punish all David's enemies; even any of my house, if they become so.'

⁷ Rather, 'On the third day thou shalt come down quickly.'

21 though I shot at a mark.¹ And, behold, I will send a lad, saying, Go, find out the arrows. If I expressly say unto the lad, Behold, the arrows are on this side of thee, take them; then come thou: for there is peace to thee, and no hurt;
 22 as the LORD liveth. But if I say thus unto the young man, Behold, the arrows 23 are beyond thee; go thy way: for the LORD hath sent thee away. And as touching the matter which thou and I have spoken of, behold, the LORD be between thee and me for ever.

b Jer. 4. 2.

c vers. 14, 15, 42.

24 So David hid himself in the field: and when the new moon was come, the 25 king sat him down to eat meat. And the king sat upon his seat, as at other times, even upon a seat by the wall: and Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Saul's 26 side, and David's place was empty. Nevertheless Saul spake not anything that day: for he thought, Something hath befallen him, he is ^d not clean; surely he is not clean.²

d Le. 7. 21; 11. 24, 25, 27; 15. 5, etc.

27 And it came to pass on the morrow, which was the second day of the month, that David's place was empty: and Saul said unto Jonathan his son, Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse to meat, neither yesterday, nor to-day?
 28 And Jonathan ^e answered Saul, David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Bethlehem: and he said, Let me go, I pray thee; for our family hath a sacrifice in the city; and my brother, he hath commanded me to be there: and now, if I have found favour in thine eyes, let me get away, I pray thee, and see my brethren. Therefore he cometh not unto the king's table.

e ver. 6.

30 Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, Thou son of the perverse rebellious woman,³ do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and unto the confusion of thy mother's 31 nakedness? For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. Wherefore now send and fetch him unto 32 me, for he shall surely die. And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said 33 unto him, ^f Wherefore shall he be slain? what hath he done? And Saul ^g cast a javelin at him to smite him: ^h whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of 34 his father to slay David. So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month: for he was grieved for David, because his father had done him shame.

35 And it came to pass in the morning, that Jonathan went out into the field at 36 the time appointed with David, and a little lad with him. And he said unto his lad, Run, find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, he shot an 37 arrow beyond him. And when the lad was come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond 38 thee? And Jonathan cried after the lad, Make speed, haste, stay not. And 39 Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows, and came to his master. But the lad
 40 knew not any thing: only Jonathan and David knew the matter. And Jonathan gave his artillery⁴ unto his lad, and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city.

41 And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times: and they 42 kissed one another, and wept one with another, until David exceeded. And Jonathan said to David, ⁱ Go in peace, forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the LORD [or, the LORD be witness of that which we have sworn both of us^k], saying, The LORD be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. And he arose and departed: and Jonathan went into the city.⁵

David flees to Nob, and thence to Gath, and to the wilderness of Judah.

21 THEN came David to Nob⁶ to Ahimelech the priest: and Ahimelech was 2 ^m afraid at the meeting of David, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no
 2 man with thee? And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, the king hath commanded⁷ me a business, and hath said unto me, Let no man know any thing of the business whereabout I send thee, and what I have commanded thee: and I have

¹ These signals were agreed upon in case they should be unable to have a private interview.

² Supposing that his absence from the sacrificial feast was caused by some ceremonial defilement.

³ It is a common practice among Eastern nations to express resentment against a person by abusing his parents, especially his mother, though without any personal ill feelings towards them; so that Saul, in speaking thus of his wife, intended merely to give the keenest edge to his abuse of Jonathan.

⁴ Rather, as in ch. xxi. 8, 'his weapons.'

⁵ The two friends appear never to have met again after this, except once by stealth in a wood (ch. xxiii. 16).

⁶ While the ark remained at Kirjath-jearim, the priests probably removed the sacred utensils, and perhaps the tabernacle, to various places for safety. Nob is supposed to have been in the immediate vicinity of Jerusalem, on or near the Mount of Olives: see Isa. x. 32.

⁷ David's conduct at Nob, and some other of his actions about this period, indicate a low state of religious sensibility, and a want of that confidence in God which at other times so much distinguished him. He evidently needed all the discipline of subsequent years, with much of the influence of the Spirit of God.

- thine hand? give me five loaves of bread in mine hand, or what there is present.
- 4 And the priest answered David, and said, There is no common bread under mine hand, but there is ^o hallowed bread; ^o if the young men have kept themselves at least from women. And David answered the priest, and said unto him, Of a truth women have been kept from us about these three days, since I came out, and the ^p vessels of the young men are holy, and the bread is ^q in a manner common, yea, though it were sanctified this day ^r in the vessel.¹ So the priest ^s gave him hallowed bread:² for there was no bread there but the shewbread, ^t that was taken from before the LORD, to put hot bread in the day when it was taken away. (Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, ^u detained³ before the LORD; and his name was ^v Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of the herdsmen that belonged to Saul.) And David said unto Ahimelech, And is there not here under thine hand spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste. And the priest said, ^y The sword⁴ of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in ^z the valley of Elah, ^a behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take that, take it: for there is no other save that here. And David said, There is none like that; give it me.
- 10 And David arose, and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to ^b Achish the king of Gath. And ^c the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David the king⁵ of the land? did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, ^d Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands? And David ^e laid up these words in his heart, and was sore afraid of Achish the king of Gath.
- 13 And ^f he changed his behaviour before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands,⁶ and scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard. Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, ye see the man is mad: ^g wherefore then have ye brought him to me? Have I need of mad men, that ye have brought this fellow to play the mad man in my presence? shall this fellow come into my house?
- 22 David therefore departed thence, and ^h escaped ⁱ to the cave Adullam:⁷ and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to him. ^j And every one that was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented, gathered themselves unto him; and he became a captain over them: and there were with him about four hundred men.⁸
- 3 And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab: and he said unto the king of Moab,⁹ Let my father and my mother, I pray thee, come forth, and be with you, till I know what God will do for me. And he brought them before the king of Moab: and they dwelt with him all the while that David was in the hold.¹⁰ And the prophet ^k Gad said unto David, Abide not in the hold; depart, and get thee into the land of Judah. Then David departed, and came into the forest of Hareth.

The massacre of the priests at Nob by Saul.

- 6 WHEN Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men that were with him, (now Saul abode in Gibeah under a tree in Ramah, having his spear in his hand,

¹ Rather, 'especially when this day there is consecrated bread placed in the vessel,' i. e. on the table. Instead of 'vessels,' by a slight change, the Septuagint reads 'all,' which improves the sense. The meaning of this obscure verse is supposed to be, that as David and his men were ceremonially clean, and the shewbread was so far common that it was removed every week, and was used as food by the family of the priest, Ahimelech need not hesitate to let him have it. As there was shewbread removed from the table, but not yet eaten, these events may probably have occurred on the sabbath, when the bread is supposed to have been changed.

² The shewbread taken from the table was appropriated exclusively to the priests and their families; but Moses distinctly taught that ritual observances ought to give place to moral duties. Our Lord alludes to this in Mark ii. 25. Ahimelech seems to have yielded out of respect to the pretended royal command.

³ Doeg may possibly have been detained on his way to Gibeah by some vow or purification, or by the occurrence of the sabbath.

⁴ According to Josephus, David had consecrated this sword to God as a kind of votive offering.

⁵ This has been thought to show that David was widely known to be the destined king of Israel.

⁶ That is, when taken by them. See the superscription of Psal. lvi., which is supposed to have been written upon this occasion.

⁷ There was a town named Adullam in the plain country of the tribe of Judah (Josh. xii. 15; xv. 35; 2 Chron. xi. 7); but this cave was probably in the mountainous wilderness in the east of Judah, towards the Dead Sea, where many such caves exist. About six miles south of Bethlehem there is an immense natural cavern, which can be approached only on foot along the side of steep cliffs, with a number of winding passages and chambers, forming altogether a perfect labyrinth. This would lie between Gath and the land of Moab.

⁸ Some of these afterwards rose to eminent stations in David's service (see 1 Chron. xi. 15, etc.). They doubtless owed much to his discipline, influence, and example. Many think that David wrote Psal. cxlii. about this time.

⁹ It is not stated why David particularly selected Moab as a place of shelter for his aged parents; but as Ruth, one of his ancestors, had been a Moabitess (see Ruth iv. 17), he perhaps hoped that some regard for her descendants might still exist in that country.

¹⁰ One of the natural fortresses in the south-east of Judah. The position and the name suggest the probability that this may have been the site of the celebrated fort of Masada, the last in Judaea which yielded to the Romans.

9 Then answered ^oDoeg the Edomite, which was set over the servants² of Saul, and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to ^pAhimelech the son of ^qAhitub. 10 ^rAnd he inquired of the LORD for him, and ^sgave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.

11 Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father's house, the priests that were in Nob: and they came all of them to the 12 king. And Saul said, Hear now, thou son of Ahitub. And he answered, Here 13 I am, my lord. Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants as David, which is 'the king's son-in-law, and ^ugoeth at 15 thy bidding,³ and is honourable in thine house? Did I then begin⁴ to inquire of God for him? be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more.

16 And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou, and all thy father's 17 house. But the servants of the king ^xwould not put forth their hand to fall upon the priests of the 18 LORD. And the king said to Doeg, Turn thou, and fall upon the priests. And David said unto Abiathar, I knew it that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul: I have occasioned the 23 death of all the persons of thy father's house. David rescues Keilah from the Philistines; is pursued by Saul; spares his life.

23 THEN they told David, saying, Behold, the Philistines fight against ^dKeilah,⁸ 2 and they rob the threshingfloors. Therefore David ^einquired of the LORD,⁹ saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And the LORD said unto David, 3 Go and smite the Philistines, and save Keilah. And David's men said unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah: how much more then if we come to Keilah 4 against the armies of the Philistines? Then David inquired of the LORD yet again.¹⁰ And the LORD answered him and said, Arise, go down to Keilah; for I 5 will deliver the Philistines into thine hand. So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines, and brought away their cattle, and smote them with a great slaughter. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

1 The consciousness of his own injustice had made Saul suspicious.

2 That is, the herdmen.

3 Perhaps referring to David's pretended errand. But some render the clause, 'and goeth into thy council.'

4 The meaning seems to be, that his inquiring now for David was no new thing; as he had done so before, without ever being informed that it was wrong, or displeasing to the king.

5 Or, 'runners;' persons who were accustomed to run before the king when he rode or drove, as in modern Persia. They formed a kind of guard of the palace (see 2 Chron. xii. 10); and were also employed, on extraordinary occasions, as couriers, or 'posts.'

6 This is a remarkable instance of the worst devices of the wicked being turned by God to the fulfilment of his own purposes. By Saul's unparalleled cruelty, the Divine denunciation against Eli (ch. ii. 31) was fulfilled. Ps. lii. is supposed to refer to this event.

7 Saul, by this act of cruel vengeance, not only excited the hostility of the whole body of priests, but also deprived himself of access to God through the medium of the high priest, and threw this important privilege, with all the sympathy and influence of the race of Aaron, into the hands of his persecuted subject; and David well improved the advantage thus afforded to him by consulting the sacred oracle as to his movements.

8 A town in Judah, near the borders of the Philistines (Josh. xv. 44; Neh. iii. 17, 18).

9 Probably by means of Abiathar: see ver. 6.

10 Not from unbelief; but to satisfy his followers, and to inspire them with confidence.

- 6 And it came to pass, when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech ^f fled to David to Keilah, that he came down with an ephod in his hand.
- 7 And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah. And Saul said, God hath delivered him into mine hand; for he is shut in, by entering into a town
- 8 that hath ^g gates and bars. And Saul called all the people together to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men.
- 9 And David knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and ^h he said to Abiathar the priest, Bring hither the ephod. Then said David, O LORD God of Israel, thy servant hath certainly heard that Saul seeketh to come to
- 10 Keilah, ⁱ to destroy the city for my sake. Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand? will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O LORD God of Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant.¹ And the LORD said, He will come
- 11 down. Then said David, Will the men of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? And the LORD said, They will deliver thee up.
- 12 Then David and his men, ^k which were about six hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went whithersoever they could go. And it was told Saul that
- 13 David was escaped from Keilah; and he forbore to go forth. And David abode in the wilderness in strongholds, and remained in ^l a mountain in the wilderness of ^m Ziph.² And Saul ⁿ sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.
- 14 And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his life: and David was in the wilderness of Ziph in a wood. And Jonathan Saul's son arose, and went to David
- 15 into the wood, and strengthened his hand in God.³ And he said unto him, Fear not: for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee; and ^o that also Saul my father knoweth.
- 16 And they two ^p made a covenant before the LORD: and David abode in the wood, and Jonathan went to his house.
- 17 Then ^q came up the Ziphites to Saul to Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself with us in strongholds in the wood, in the hill of Hachilah, which is on
- 18 the south of Jeshimon⁴ [or, the wilderness]? Now therefore, O king, come down according to all the desire of thy soul to come down; and ^r our part shall be to deliver him into the king's hand. And Saul said, Blessed be ye of the LORD; for
- 19 ye have compassion on me. Go, I pray you, prepare yet, and know and see his place where his haunt is, and who hath seen him there: for it is told me that he
- 20 dealeth very subtilly. See therefore, and take knowledge of all the lurking places where he hideth himself, and come ye again to me with the certainty, and I will go with you: and it shall come to pass, if he be in the land, that I will
- 21 search him out throughout all the thousands of Judah. And they arose, and went to Ziph before Saul.

1 God allows us to be very particular in detailing before him all our circumstances and wants.

2 The wilderness of Ziph was part of the hilly country south-east of Hebron, in which were Maon and Carmel.

3 This interview with David (which proved to be the last) was probably sought by Jonathan, at some risk to himself, in order to discharge one of the most important offices of religious friendship; for David at this time peculiarly required that encouragement which all God's servants need from their brethren.

4 'Jeshimon' is correctly rendered 'wilderness,' and is not a proper name. See Deut. xxxii. 10; Isa. xliii. 19; Ps. lxxviii. 7. Either this occasion or that mentioned in ch. xxvi. 1 is referred to in the fifty-fourth Psalm.

5 If this word means 'the rock of division,' it was probably so called because it had completely separated the two hostile parties. But it may mean 'the rock of escape.' But for this providential deliverance it would seem that David was now so hemmed in that he must either have been taken, or have been forced to an engagement with Saul, which he was most anxious to avoid.

6 Engedi (or, 'kid's fountain'), still called 'Ain-jidy,' is situated on a very precipitous pass on the western edge of the Dead Sea. Its ancient name was Hazezon-tamar (Gen. xiv. 7). Ps. lxiii. has reference to David's wanderings in the wilderness of Engedi.

3 David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats. And he came to the sheep-cotes by the way, where was a cave;¹ and ^bSaul went in to ^ccover his feet: and 4 ^dDavid and his men remained in the sides of the cave. ^eAnd the men of David said unto him, Behold² the day of which the LORD said unto thee, Behold,^f I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good unto thee. Then David arose, and cut off the skirt of Saul's robe privily.
 5 And it came to pass afterward, that ^gDavid's heart smote him, because he had
 6 cut off Saul's skirt.³ And he said unto his men, ^hThe LORD forbid that I should do this thing unto my master, the LORD's anointed, to stretch forth mine hand
 7 against him, seeing he is the anointed of the LORD. So David ⁱstayed his servants with these words, and ^ksuffered them not to rise against Saul. But Saul rose up out of the cave, and went on his way.
 8 David also arose afterward, and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the king. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped⁴
 9 with his face to the earth, and bowed himself. And David said to Saul, ^lWherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt? Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how that the LORD had delivered thee to-day into mine hand in the cave; and some bade me kill thee: but mine eye spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord; for he is ^mthe LORD's
 11 anointed. Moreover, ⁿmy father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand: for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not, know thou and see that there is ^oneither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned
 12 against thee; yet thou ^phuntest my soul to take it. ^qThe LORD judge between me and thee, and the LORD avenge⁵ me of thee: but ^rmine hand shall not be upon thee. As saith the proverb of the ancients, ^sWickedness proceedeth from the 14 wicked. but mine hand shall not be upon thee. After whom is the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? ^tafter a dead dog, after ^ua flea. ^vThe LORD therefore be judge, and judge between me and thee, and ^wsee, and ^xplead my cause, and deliver me out of thine hand.
 16 And it came to pass, when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, ^aIs this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted 17 up his voice and wept. ^bAnd he said to David, Thou art ^cmore righteous than I: for ^dthou hast rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil. And thou hast showed this day how that thou hast dealt well with me: forasmuch as 19 when ^ethe LORD had delivered me into thine hand, thou killedst me not. For if a man find his enemy, will he let him go well away? wherefore the LORD reward 20 thee good for that thou hast done unto me this day. And now, behold, ^fI know well that thou shalt surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be 21 established in thine hand. ^gSwear now therefore unto me by the LORD, ^hthat thou wilt not cut off my seed after me,⁶ and that thou wilt not destroy my name
 22 out of my father's house. And David sware unto Saul. And Saul went home; but David and his men gat them up unto ⁱthe hold.

¹ The large caves, containing several chambers, which abound in this neighbourhood, are often used for sheltering cattle and sheep.

² This was plausible, but false. David had a promise of the kingdom, but no command to slay the king. In the feelings of David, as contrasted with those of his men, is seen the happy influence of a patient faith.

³ David's circumstances constrained him to act on the defensive; but not to slay Saul, whom he rightly regarded as his sovereign and the Lord's anointed. Though he appealed to the fact that he had contented himself with cutting off a portion of Saul's robe, as a proof of his freedom from evil intentions (ver. 11); yet, with a delicacy natural to a generous mind, he felt self-reproach for an act which might be considered as an insult. See 2 Sam. x. 4.

⁴ That is, not touching the ground with his face, but probably, according to the Eastern custom, bending his body at a right angle, the hands being placed on the knees, and the feet somewhat apart.

⁵ The meaning of this expression seems to be shown in ver. 15.

⁶ Referring to the custom, still prevalent in the East, of putting to death the children and relations of the preceding monarch, if he belonged to another dynasty.

⁷ It was usual to bury persons on their own property, sometimes in a garden or court attached to a house; and this is probably meant here, and in 1 Kings ii. 34.

⁸ Samuel having died, David goes further south, into the northern part of the desert now called et-Tyh. See Physical Map of Palestine.

5 sheep. And David sent out ten young men, and David said unto the young men.
 6 Get you up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and greet him in my name: and thus shall ye say to him that liveth¹ in prosperity, 'Peace be both to thee, and peace be 7 to thine house, and peace be unto all that thou hast. And now I have heard that thou hast shearers: now thy shepherds which were with us, we hurt² them not, neither was there aught missing unto them, all the while they were in Carmel.
 8 Ask thy young men, and they will show thee. Wherefore let the young men find favour in thine eyes: for we come in 'a good day: give, I pray thee, whatsoever cometh to thine hand unto thy servants, and to "thy son David.
 9 And when David's young men came, they spake to Nabal according to all those 10 words in the name of David, and ceased. And Nabal answered David's servants, and said, "Who is David? and who is the son of Jesse? "there be many servants 11 now-a-days that break away every man from his master. "Shall I then take my bread, and my water, and my flesh that I have killed for my shearers, and give 12 it unto men whom I know not whence they be? So David's young men turned 13 their way, and went again, and came and told him all those sayings. And David
 "said unto his men, Gird ye on every man his sword.³ And they girded on every man his sword; and David also girded on his sword: and there went up after David about four hundred men; and two hundred ^babode by the stuff.
 14 But one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife, saying, Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he railed on them.
 15 But the men were very good unto us, and ^cwe were not hurt, neither missed we anything, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields:
 16 they were ^da wall unto us both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep. Now therefore know and consider what thou wilt do; for ^eevil is determined against our master, and against all his household: for he is such a son of ^fBelial, that a man cannot speak to him.
 18 Then Abigail made haste, and ^gtook two hundred loaves, and two bottles of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and an hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on asses.
 19 And she said unto her servants, ^hGo on before me; behold, I come after you.
 20 But she told not her husband Nabal. And it was so, as she rode on the ass, that she came down by the covert of the hill, and, behold, David and his men came down against her; and she met them.
 21 Now David had said, Surely in vain have I kept all that this fellow hath in the wilderness, so that nothing was missed of all that pertained unto him: and he
 22 hath ⁱrequited me evil for good. ^kSo and more also do God unto the enemies of David, if I ^lleave of all that pertain to him by the morning light ^many that pisseth against the wall.⁴
 23 And when Abigail saw David, she hastened, and ⁿlighted off the ass, and fell before David on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and fell at his feet, and said, Upon me, my lord, upon me, let this iniquity be: and let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thine audience, and hear the words of thine handmaid.
 25 Let not my lord, I pray thee, regard this man of Belial, even Nabal: for as his name is, so is he; Nabal [i. e. fool] is his name, and folly is with him: but I
 26 thine handmaid saw not the young men of my lord, whom thou didst send. Now therefore, my lord, ^oas the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, seeing the LORD hath ^pwithholden⁵ thee from coming to shed blood, and from ^qavenging thyself with thine own hand, now ^rlet thine enemies, and they that seek evil to my lord, be as Nabal. And now ^sthis blessing [or, present] which thine handmaid hath brought unto my lord, let it even be given unto the young men that follow my 28 lord. I pray thee, forgive the trespass of thine handmaid: for ^tthe LORD will certainly make my lord a sure house; because my lord ^ufighteth the battles of 29 the LORD, and ^xevil hath not been found in thee all thy days. Yet a man is

¹ Or, 'To life.' The words 'in prosperity' are not in the original. This seems to be a form of salutation equivalent to 'Long life to you!' like the Arabic, 'May God command thee to live!'

² Though this message directly asserts only the good order in which David kept his band, yet the words 'neither was there aught missing unto them,' taken in connection with ver. 16, imply that he had protected Nabal's flocks against the incursions of hostile tribes, to which they were exposed in the wild border country; for which service it was but just that he should receive some recompense. 'In all these particulars,' says a recent traveller in that region, 'we were struck with the truth of the Biblical descriptions of manners and customs. On such a festive occasion in our own time, an Arab sheikh of the neighbouring desert would hardly fail to put in a word, either in person or by message; and his message would be a transcript of that of David.'—Robinson's Researches, ii. 201.

³ David afterwards implies (vers. 32, 33) that the vengeance which he now contemplated was unjustifiable.

⁴ A Hebrew idiom, for which should be substituted, in an English translation, 'any male.'

⁵ This address is distinguished throughout by admirable tact and elegance, and rises almost to a prophetic strain in reference to David's future destiny. Abigail assumes that David would see the hand of God preventing the execution of his severe purposes, and that, with his characteristic generosity, he would rejoice in it.

risen to pursue thee, and to seek thy soul: but the soul of my lord shall be 30 ^y bound in the bundle of life¹ with the LORD thy God; and the souls of thine enemies, them shall he ^z sling out, as out of the middle of a sling. And it shall come to pass, when the LORD shall have done to my lord ^a according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler 31 over Israel; that this shall be no grief unto thee, nor offence of heart unto my lord, either that thou hast shed blood causeless, or that my lord hath avenged himself: but when the LORD shall have dealt well with my lord, then remember thine handmaid.

32 And David said to Abigail, ^c Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which sent thee this day to meet me: and blessed be thy advice,² and blessed be thou, which hast ^d kept me this day from coming to shed blood, and from avenging myself 34 with mine own hand. For in very deed, as the LORD God of Israel liveth, which hath ^e kept me back from hurting thee, except thou hadst hastened and come to meet me, surely there had ^f not been left unto Nabal by the morning light any 35 that pisseth against the wall. So David received of her hand that which she had brought him, and said unto her, ^g Go up in peace to thine house; see, I have hearkened to thy voice, and have ^h accepted thy person.

36 And Abigail came to Nabal; and, behold, ⁱ he held a feast in his house, like the feast of a king; and Nabal's heart was merry within him, for he was very drunken: wherefore she told him nothing, less or more, until the morning light.
 37 But it came to pass in the morning, when the wine was gone out of Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died³ within him, and he became as a stone.

38 And it came to pass about ten days after, that the LORD smote Nabal, that he 39 died. And when David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, ^k Blessed be the LORD that hath ^l pleaded the cause of my reproach from the hand of Nabal, and hath ^m kept his servant from evil: for the LORD hath ⁿ returned the wickedness of Nabal upon his own head.

40 And David sent and communed with Abigail, to take her to him to wife. And when the servants of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake unto her, 41 saying, David sent us unto thee, to take thee to him to wife. And she arose, and bowed herself on her face to the earth, and said, Behold, ^o let ^o thine handmaid be 42 a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my lord. And Abigail hastened, and arose, and rode upon an ass, with five damsels of her's that went after her; and 43 she went after the messengers of David, and became his wife. David also took 44 Ahinoam ^p of Jezreel; ^q and they were also both of them his wives.⁴ But Saul had given ^r Michal his daughter, David's wife, to ^s Phalti the son of Laish, which was of ^t Gallim.

David is again pursued by Saul, and again spares his life.

26 AND the Ziphites came unto Saul to Gibeah, saying, "Doth not David hide 2 himself in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon? Then Saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having three thousand chosen men of Israel 3 with him, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul pitched in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon, by the way. But David abode in the 4 wilderness, and he saw that Saul came after him into the wilderness. David therefore sent out spies, and understood that Saul was come in very deed.

5 And David arose, and came to the place where Saul had pitched: and David beheld the place where Saul lay, and ^u Abner the son of Ner, the captain of his host: and Saul lay in the trench⁵ [or, midst of his carriages^v], and the people 6 pitched round about him. Then answered David and said to Ahimelech the Hittite, and to Abishai ^w the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, Who will ^a go down with me to Saul to the camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee.

7 So David and Abishai came to the people by night: and, behold, Saul lay sleeping within the trench, and his spear stuck in the ground at his bolster:⁶ 8 but Abner and the people lay round about him. Then said Abishai to David,

1 That is, 'God shall hold thy soul in life.' As men bind up things which they wish to preserve, so God's people form the bundle of the living that he holds in life (Psa. lxi. 9): whereas what is put into a sling is intended to be thrown away.

2 Rather, 'thy wisdom.'

3 The effect, perhaps, partly of fear; but still more of mortification. He died perhaps of apoplexy; languishing for ten days in a state of stupor, incapable of voluntary motion.

4 David herein followed a bad practice of those times, which occasioned many disorders in his family.

5 The Hebrew word here used is one the precise meaning of which is not known. Its radical idea is roundness; and it seems to refer to the circular form of encampment adopted by the Arabs; the chief being always in the centre, as the place of greatest honour and security.

6 Or, 'at his head.' The 'spear stuck in the ground' still marks the resting-place of an Arab chief. For this purpose the spears are spiked at the lower end.

- ^b God hath delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day: now therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear even to the earth at once, and I will not
- 9 smite him the second time. And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not: ^c for who can stretch forth his hand against the LORD's anointed, and be guiltless?
- 10 David said furthermore, As the LORD liveth, ^d the LORD shall smite him; or
- 11 ^e his day shall come to die; or he shall ^f descend into battle, and perish.¹ ^g The LORD forbid that I should stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed: but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear that ^h is at his bolster, and the cruse² of
- 12 water, and let us go. So David ^k took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster; and they gat them away, and no man saw ⁱ it, nor knew ⁱ it, neither awaked: for they ^j were all asleep; because ⁱ a deep sleep from the LORD was fallen upon them.
- 13 Then David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of an hill afar
- 14 off; a great space ^l being between them: and David cried³ to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner? Then Abner answered
- 15 and said, Who ^m art thou ⁿ that criest to the king? And David said to Abner, ⁿ Art not thou a ^o valiant man? and who ^o is like to thee in Israel? wherefore then hast thou not kept thy lord the king? for ^k there came one of the people in to destroy
- 16 the king thy lord. This thing ^l is not good that thou hast done. As the LORD liveth, ye ^o are worthy to die, because ye have not kept your master, ^l the LORD's anointed. And now see where the king's spear ^h is, and the cruse of water that ^h was at his bolster.
- 17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said, ^m Is this thy voice, my son David?
- 18 And David said, ⁿ It is my voice, my lord, O king. And he said, ⁿ Wherefore doth my lord thus pursue after his servant? for ^o what have I done? or what evil ^o is in mine hand? Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the LORD have ^p stirred thee up against me, let him accept an offering:⁴ but if ^q they be the children of men, ^q cursed ^q be they before the LORD; ^r for they have driven me out this day from abiding in the ^r inheritance of the
- 20 LORD, saying,⁵ Go, serve other gods. Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the LORD: for the king of Israel is come out to seek ^t a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains.
- 21 Then said Saul, ^u I have sinned: return, my son David: for ^u I will no more do thee harm, because my soul was ^v precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I
- 22 have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly. And David answered and said, Behold the king's spear! and let one of the young men come over and fetch it.
- 23 ^z The LORD render to every man his righteousness and his faithfulness: for the LORD delivered thee into ^z my hand to-day, but I would not stretch forth mine hand
- 24 against the LORD's anointed. And, behold, as thy life was much set by this day in mine eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the LORD, and ^a let him
- 25 deliver me out of all tribulations. Then Saul said to David, ^b Blessed ^b be thou, my son David: thou shalt both do great ^b things, and also shalt still ^c prevail.⁶ So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

David flees to the king of Gath, and settles at Ziklag.

- 27 AND David said in his heart, I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul:⁷ ^d there is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape into the land of the Philistines; and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any coast
- 2 of Israel: so shall I escape out of his hand. And David arose, ^d and he passed over with the six hundred men that ^e were with him ^e unto Achish, the son of
- 3 Maaoh, king of Gath. And David dwelt with Achish at Gath, he and his men, every man with his household, ^f even David ^f with his two wives, Ahinoam the
- 4 Jezreelitess, and Abigail the Carmelitess, Nabal's wife. And it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath: and ^g he sought no more again for him.

¹ In other words, It is for God, not for me, to inflict the deserved punishment. See Rom. xii. 19.

² In hot climates, a draught of water is very refreshing at night: hence a vessel filled with water is placed near where a person sleeps.

³ From ver. 17, it appears that Saul recognised David's voice, though in the faint light he could not distinguish his person.

⁴ That is, 'let him accept an offering from us both: let us join in seeking his forgiveness by sacrifice.'

⁵ That is, 'by their actions,—by driving me abroad.' Some suppose that one, perhaps the chief, of the treacherous enemies to whom David alluded was Cush the Benjamite, mentioned in the title to Psa. vii.; and that this psalm expresses the feelings which animated David upon this occasion.

⁶ This interview shows that Saul was not without better feelings, though they had become powerless through the course of sin which he had pursued.

⁷ He forgot that, by the Divine command, he had been appointed to be king; and that, though Saul was faithless, God's promises could not fail. Consulting his own fears only, and not the ephod or the prophet, he took a wrong course. His position, and that of his followers, among the Philistines, who were idolaters and enemies of his people, must have been most embarrassing.

5 And David said unto Achish, If I have now found grace in thine eyes, let them give me a place in some town in the country, that I may dwell there: for why
6 should thy servant dwell in the royal city with thee? Then Achish gave him Ziklag¹ that day: wherefore ^h Ziklag pertaineth unto the kings of Judah unto 7 this day. And the time that David dwelt in the country of the Philistines was a full year² and four months.

8 And David and his men went up, and invaded ⁱ the Geshurites,³ ^k and the ^l Gezrites, and the ^m Amalekites: for those nations were of old the inhabitants of 9 the land, ⁿ as thou goest to Shur, even unto the land of Egypt. And David smote the land, and ^o left neither man nor woman alive, and took away the sheep, and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned, and came 10 to Achish. And Achish said, Whither have ye made a road⁴ to-day? And David said, Against the south of Judah,⁵ and against the south of ^p the Jerahmeelites, and 11 against the south of ^q the Kenites. And David saved neither man nor woman alive, to bring tidings to Gath, saying, Lest they should tell on us, saying, So did David, and so will be his manner all the while he dwelleth in the country of the 12 Philistines.⁶ And Achish believed David, saying, He hath made his people Israel utterly to abhor him; therefore he shall be my servant for ever.

28 AND ^r it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered their armies together for warfare, to fight with Israel. And Achish said⁷ unto David, Know
2 thou assuredly, that thou shalt go out with me to battle, thou and thy men. And David said to Achish, Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do. And Achish said to David, Therefore will I make thee keeper of mine head for ever.
3 Now ^s Samuel was dead, and all Israel had lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, even in his own city.

And Saul had put away ^t those that had familiar spirits,⁸ and the wizards, out of the land.

4 And the Philistines gathered themselves together, and came and pitched in ^u Shunem:⁹ and Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in ^v Gilboa.
5 And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was ^w afraid, and his heart
6 greatly trembled. And when Saul inquired of the LORD, ^z the LORD answered
7 him not, neither by ^a dreams, nor ^b by Urim, nor ^c by prophets. Then said Saul unto his servants, Seek me a woman that hath ^d a familiar spirit,¹⁰ that I may go to her, and inquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at En-dor.¹¹

8 And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night: and ^e he said, I pray thee, divine unto me by the familiar spirit, and bring me him up, whom I shall name
9 unto thee. And the woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath ^f cut off those that have familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land: wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to 10 die? And Saul sware to her by the LORD, saying, As the LORD liveth, there
